THE

HISTORY

OF THE

State and Sufferings

OFTHE

Church of Scotland,

FROM THE

RESTORATION

TO THE

REVOLUTION.

With an INTRODUCTION, containing the most remarkable OCCURRENCES relating to that CHURCH, from the REFORMATION to the RESTORATION.

The SECOND EDITION corrected, with ADDITIONS.

By WILLIAM CROOKSHANK, A. M. Minlster of the Scots Congregation in Swallow-Street, Westminster.

In TWO VOLUMES.

VOL. I.

EDINBURGH,

Printed for Andrew Stevenson Writer, and fold by him at his House in the first Story of Muschet's Land, East-Side of the Corn-Market of Edinburgh. MDCCLI.

I m

HIL

old

salons aid

11 11 11

d

y

a C ki dith Pigi

si fo Abh

DEDICATION

To the RIGHT HONOURABLE

ALEXANDER EARL of LEVEN.

My Lord,

TESTEEM it no small honour to have your LORDSHIP's countenance in the design of the following performance, and permission to put the same under your patronage. I wish it had been in my power to render it more worthy of your approbation and acceptance: But as your LORDSHIP is able to spy out the failings in this work, so I doubt not of your candour to throw a vail over them.

Had I been capable to present the world with a most exact, impartial and perfect history of the Church of Scotland during this period, I know none who had a juster claim to have it dedicated to them than your Lordship; for the great actions and sufferings of your worthy progenitors, on account of the protestant religion and liberties of mankind, are well known.

Sir Alexander Lesly, from whom your LORD-SHIP is descended in the maternal line, gained so much honour abroad, that the great Gustavus Adolphus, king of Sweden, promoted him first to be lieutenant-general, and then feldt-marshal of his armies. And when the emperor had reduced all Germany except Stralfund, which was then invested by count Walstein with a formidable and victorious army, general Lefly, to whom that heroick prince gave the command of the place, obliged him to raise the siege 1628. and, in the year 1630. drove the imperialists out of the isle of Rugen, and thereby opened a way for Gustavus to march into Germany.

Having gained fuch laurels abroad, he returned to his native country, and was chosen general of the Scots army, which was raifed in defence of the covenanters and the liberties of his country; and in 1641. was created earl of LE-VEN. His lordship performed many signal services after this, too tedious to be related here. This nobleman's grandfon dying without male issue, and his grand-daughter marrying George earl of Melvil, the honours and estate of Leven came, in process of time, to David Melvil Esq; your LORDSHIP's father.

And nothing is better known, than that the family of MELVIL, from which your LORD-SHIP is lineally descended, has been remarkable, ever fince the dawn of the reformation, for an uninterrupted and steddy adherence to that glorious cause.

Your LORDSHIP's grandfather, the faid George lord Melvil, fuffered not a little in the infamous period described in the following work, fo that he was obliged to flee over to Holland for fafety. But that great judge of men and things, the illustrious prince of and fuch a value for him, that, after the glorious revolution, he appointed him to be his high commissioner to the parliament 1690. in which the confession of faith was ratisfied, presbyterian government established, patronages were abolished, and the church of Scotland restored to the freedom of all her judicatories. This noble peer enjoyed many other high offices under the crown; he was not only made an earl, but was successively sole secretary of state for Scotland, lord privy-feal and prefident of the privy-council.

for

V

His fon David, your noble father, did great fervice in the happy deliverance brought about, under God, by the great king WILLIAM; for, when he was abroad, he raised a regiment of foot, and brought it over with that illustrious prince. He likeways commanded those brave people who guarded the convention of estates, which was an affembly of patriots, whose names will ever be dear to true protestants. During all the reign of king WILLIAM, and a great part of queen Anne's, his lordship was governor of the castle of Edinburgh; and held likeways, under that princess, the offices of general of the ordnance for Scotland, and commander in chief of all the forces in that kingdom, till, towards the end of her reign, he was, by the influence of her Tory ministry, removed from all publick employments: But his lordship persevered in a steddy attachment to the interests of the present royal family, from the act of fettlement 1701. to the day of his death.

As your LORDSHIP is thus descended from a race of patriots, who were always firm to the protestant cause, so it is well known that you, MY LORD, maintain the fame principles, and adhere to the same interest; so that, as your noble grandfather was king WILLIAM's high commissioner to that brave parliament who restored the church and kingdom of Scotland to their religious and civil privileges, so your LORDSHIP has had the honour to reprefent the royal person of his present majesty king GEORGE II. in the general affemblies of that church, ever fince the year 1741. and to partake of several other marks of the royal favour; fuch is the confidence his majesty places in your LORDSHIP, and such the affurance he has of your loyalty to his royal person and government, attachment to the protestant religion, and hearty affection to the church of Scotland. That GOD Almighty may bless and long preferve your LORDSHIP and excellent LADY, and make your family always patrons of religion and liberty, according to the example of your noble progenitors, is the sinceré defire of, My LORD,

Your LORDSHIP's

most humble,

most obedient, and much obliged servant,

WILL. CROOKSHANK.

the

ha

Pio

ma

tive

pre atte

prei

no l nou

the !

12.0F 3 Sep 3

PREFACE.

of the sufferings of the church of Scotland during the reigns of the ROYAL BROTHERS,—to preserve the memory of the sufferers, and shew the cause of their sufferings,—to shew us what we have to expect, should ever any of the pretended race of the STUARTS fill the British throne,—and, if possible, to convince us of the unspeakable obligations a good and gracious God has laid us under, in delivering these nations from the tyranny of their oppressors.

authorize avelod to 1

P

1

h

r

e

h

1

h

s

1-

-

It is but a general and imperfect account that is given of the sufferings of the church of Scotland in this period by the English historians; for they had neither proper informations nor materials. The reverend Mr. Robert Wodrow, minister at Eastwood, is the only person who has given a large account of these things in his excellent history; but, as that work is contained in two large volumes in solio, so there are but sew that have either time to peruse it, or can afford to purchase it; and, since the reducing such a performance into a more narrow compass was thought proper, for making the history of this period more universally known, I was prevailed with, by many of my friends, to undertake the difficult task.

The worthy historian, just now mentioned, had excellent materials for his performance, having in his hands the records of the nation, besides original papers and well attested narratives from those who were immediately concerned, or were present at the facts he has recorded; and many gentlemen and ministers, related to the sufferers, favoured him with well attested accounts of the sufferings of particular persons, as his presace sufficiently declares: So that it is easy to see what labour and pains he must have been at in composing a work from such a multitude of papers he had to peruse, there being no historian before him from whom he could have much assistance. As this, I think, is a sufficient excuse for the voluminousness of his history, so it shows the expediency of this undertaking

The account that is here given is indeed tragical, for it is the history of a most cruel and bloody persecution, and opens

CROOKSHANK

a scene that may justly fill us with horror. The laws against the fufferers were written in blood, and executed by a military force. All methods of cruelty were made use of by a prelatical faction, who not only invaded the properties of the fubject, but even the prerogatives of the mediator as the only head of the church. Many were exorbitantly fined, unjustly imprisoned, oppressed by soldiers, plundered by dragoons and a lawless Highland host. Multitudes were forced to wander about in dens and caves of the earth. Not a few were tortured by boots, thumbkins, fire-matches, &c. Some were beheaded, others were hanged and quartered; women, as well as men, suffered death; some of them were hanged, and others drowned; prisons were crouded, and ships were loaded with prisoners, who were banished from their native country, of cos-na vald

f

ti

fr

ti

ar

M

6

-10

-no

-pe

tri

fci

2

OW

Bu

fin

ty

of 60

whom many parished, &c. &c. &c.

But what had they done? Were they murderers of fathers or murderers of mothers? Were they thieves or robbers? Quite the reverse; for they were pious and religious persons. Their enemies indeed have pretended that it was not fo much for religion as rebellion that they suffered. Accordingly Sir George MacKenzie, in his Vindication of the reign of king CHARLES II. has the affurance to fay, p. 17. 'That there did not die, upon any publick account, twelve in all that ' reign; and that not one died for any principle of religion, unless it be thought a religious principle to die for actual re-' bellion;' and elsewhere, p. 8. ' That no man in Scotland ever suffered for his religion; than which nothing can be more false; and the following history will sufficiently refute the many lies and malicious mifrepresentations in the advocate's Vindication, and clearly shew, that whatever steps the sufferers took were the effect of unparallelled cruelty and unsupportable oppression. It is well known, that, though no people could be more attached to any prince, than the Scots PRESBYTE-RIANS were to king CHARLES II. and no prince was ever under greater obligations to protect any subjects, and maintain them in the inviolable possession of their religious and civil liberties, than Charles was to protect them; yet he was no fooner restored, but he and his wicked ministry proclaimed to all the world their horrid diffimulation, ingratitude and perjury. For, notwithstanding the covenanted tyes which lay upon the king and all the nation, they overturned the prefbyterian fettlement, which all, with uplifted hands, had fworn to maintain, established prelacy, which, with the greatest solemnity, they had fworn to extirpate, and obliged all to make a declaration against the COVENANTS, and persecuted those who could

ft

-

y

nd

er

r-

e-

23

TS.

th

of

ella

13

3 ?

IS.

ch

Sir

ng

ere

at

n,

re-

ind

be

the

e's

ers

ble

ald

Ever

in-

ind

vas

ned

er-

lay

ef-

orn

ni-

de-

ho

uld

4

could not comply; so that presbyterians were counted rebels, because they could not perjure themselves, according to the example of the king and his ministers, nor submit to prelacy and the supremacy; because they esteemed diocesan bishops as contrary to the word of God, and therefore could never own and acknowledge them without acting contrary to their consciences. They likeways looked upon the ecclesiastical supremacy as an usurpation of Christ's throne and dignity; especially as it was afferted, in the preamble of act 1. session 2. parl. 1. Char. II. That the ordering and disposal of the external government and policy of this church doth properly belong unto his majesty, as an inherent right of the crown. Their noncompliance with these things was the cause of their suffering in the manner related in the following work.

It is true, many of them took arms in their own defence, being constrained thereto by horrid oppression and dismal tyranny, and at last some renounced the authority of the two tyrants, but not till after they had been denounced, intercommuned, and put from under the protection of the laws of their country; and if that was rebellion, so was the revolution: But the accusations of their enemies on this score deserves very little regard, since, after the revolution, the forfeitures passed in these two reigns were reversed by act of parliament, and they who were most active, in the defence of themselves and their religious and civil rights, are expressly mentioned, as Mr. John King, Mr. John Kid, Mr. William and Alexander Gordons elder and younger of Earlstoun, Henry Hall of Haughhead, Mr. Cargill, Mr. Robert Baily of Jerviswood, Archibald earl of Argyll, George earl of Melvil, nay, and Mr. James Renwick, &c. &c. ec. The reader may fee the act in the last number of Mr. Wodrow's appendix to his fecond volume.

Little regard, I conceive, is to be paid to what others have alledged, that many of them threw away their lives, and that they suffered only for trisses; nay, if that was the case, was it not base for the ministers of state, and others, in this dismal period, to shed the blood of so many innocent people for trisses? But was it a trissing matter to act against their consciences, to renounce their principles, to own the authority of a prince who had usurped the authority of Christ over his own church, and that in the very exercise of his usurpation? But I shall not here anticipate what the reader will, I hope, find cleared up in the history. In short, they were brave martyrs for their religion and liberties, and a covenanted work of reformation, in opposition to popery, prelacy, erastianism, sec. and it is well known, that whatever resistance was made by any presbyterians during the sway of tyranny and arbitrary power, yet they of that denomination have ever shewn themselves strict adherers and firm friends to legal government.

As the following history is intended to preferve the memory of those who suffered for their religion and liberties, so it gives us a view of what may be expected, should ever the Pretender, or any of his race, ascend the British throne; or should ever prelacy, not to speak of popery, be established in Scotland. It is a just observation of the author of the memoirs of the church of Scotland, p. 194. 'That episcopacy never got ground in that kingdom but by violence, and never failed to exercife what power it had there to oppress and destroy its opposers, being always animated with a spirit of persecution in the church, and absolute tyranny in the state,' as will appear most evident from the following work; in which we have a view of the difinal methods the prelates and their abettors were pleafed to take to support their power, and that they never ceased to vent a spirit of persecution against their fellow-protestants while they were able; and there are not wanting proofs that the episcopalians have shewn the same inclinations to this day, and only want an opportunity to give farther demonstrations of them. As they were inveterate enemies to the revolution, so they have made many attempts, fince that time, to overturn our present happy settlement, and bring us again under their intolerable yoke: But, by the interpolition of a kind providence, all their counsels have hitherto been defeated, and all their measures disconcerted. And happy was it for these nations that it was fo, for, had they succeeded, we could have expected nothing but that the fame bloody scene, that is here presented, would have been opened again, and the same methods of oppression and tyranny made use of. It has been alledged, that we had nothing to fear, because their King, as they call him, would have come under the most folemn engagements to maintain the protestant religion. But who will question that? Is it possible for him to come under stronger engagements than king CHARLES II. or make fairer promifes than his pretended father JAMES VII? The pope, no doubt, would give him liberty to fwear all the oaths that could be invented, and break them too whenever it should be in his power. Popish princes may promise and swear whatever they have a mind, but they cannot perform what they please, because their consciences are in the keeping of others, to whom they stand solemnly engaged, as their infallible guides in mat-

Had

540

23

thi

be

hig

de

ret

fio

ten

in

fen

wit

and

the

vag

ene

and

and

exp

Ron

wei

unc

espe

are

vid

of

trai

rac who

con

and

the

to app

enfl

gre

thei

W the mat

that

E

Had therefore the Jacobites been so numerous or powerful as to succeed in their deligns, and raise the Pretender to the throne, to what dreadful circumstances must the nation have been reduced? Would not the Pretender have refented, to the highest, the opposition made by the presbyterians to his pretended father and himself, or the inviolable attachment they have retained to the revolution-settlement, and the protestant succesfion in the illustrious house of Hanover.

bi-

wn

rn-

ory

ves der,

ver

It

rch hat

hat be-

the

nost

v of ised

to

nts hat

lay,

ons

1071.

urn heir

oviall

na-

ave nere

meal-

, 23

age-

queen-

nifes ubt,

in-

his

they

behom

mat-

1 186

Had

As all firm protestants in England appeared against every attempt made in favour of that abjured race, so the presbyterians in Scotland were exceeded by none in standing up for the prefent happy establishment. With what firmness and constancy, with what boldness, resolution and courage did they espouse and plead for this cause, even in the presence of the rebels themselves, when it was not in their power to oppose their ravages? How ministers exposed themselves to the sury of the enemy by praying for king GEORGE, preaching against popery and rebellion, &c. &c. is well known. What then must they, and all the other hearty friends of their king and country, expect, should it ever be in the power of this emissary of Rome and France to revenge his quarrel? If their fufferings were fo great under CHARLES and JAMES, what they must be under this bigotted tool is easy to conceive.

This work is also defigned to convince all true protestants, especially those of the church of Scotland, what obligations we are under to God, for the remarkable interpolition of his providence, in delivering these nations from the intolerable yoke of a race of tyrants, who did all they could to establish arbitrary power and subvert the constitution of the kingdom; a race who paid no regard to promifes, oaths and laws; a race who studied more to gratify the French king, than how to consult the happiness of their own subjects: For who can read an account of the miseries of the nation under their tyranny, and not fee the greatness of that mercy in delivering us from them? Especially when we consider, that the same providence, to which such a deliverance was owing, has frequently since appeared in defeating all the attempts that have been made to enflave us.

But have our returns of gratitude been answerable to the greatness of our mercies? What means then that deluge of atheilm, blasphemy and profaneness, that so much abounds? Whence are the complaints of the more serious in all places of the nation, of a lamentable course of desection from our reformation-principles? And, in a particular manner, whence is it that so many worthy persons have seceded from the judicato-

ries

ries of the church of Scotland? And how comes it, that many of those, who have not seceded, are so much distaissed with the conduct of these judicatories? For my own part, though I look upon secession to be a very tender point, yet I cannot in charity think that some of those who have seceded, however they may have carried matters too sar, have acted without any provocation; but, as I know not the springs of the conduct of the different parties now in Scotland, I shall only say, that, where divisions prevail, matters are generally carried to extremities on all hands, and, in order to a reconciliation, concessions ought to be made by all the parties, if it can be done without making truth a facrifice to peace. May God himself heal our divisions, put a stop to our desections, unite the hearts of all who have a real concern for the advancement of his glory, and revive a work of reformation among all ranks and degrees of persons.

I have heard it objected, that a history like this should not be published, because it may give offence to the episcopal church of England. But what ground there is for this is not easy to be imagined, unless we should suppose the present bishops of England of the same persecuting disposition with the old Scots bishops, or with several of their own predecessors; which is not the case; for though, according to true prefbyterian principles, prelacy is bad in itself, and contrary to the word of God; yet the present presates, to their honour I speak it, have not shewn the least inclination to persecute those of different fentiments from themselves; so that it would be a reflection upon them to suppose that they would be offended at a history of the state and sufferings of the church of Scor-LAND. And what if they should be offended? Must truth be concealed for fear of giving offence? There is no question but it may offend the Scots EPISCOPALIANS, who are generally Jacobites, as they have ever been fince the revolution . However, I neither court their favour, nor regard their referements, as they have always appeared, not only of a persecuting spirit, but also enemies to their country and our present happy eltablishment.

It has also been urged, that a history of this nature can only serve to revive old quarrels; but those persons do not consider what attempts have been made to bring us under the old yoke of bondage, how the enemies of our present happy constitution have once more endeavoured to subvert it; and therefore, as the reverend Mr. Wodrow published his history a few years after the unnatural rebellion in 1715. so many of my friends, both in England and Scotland, have thought it both

Historian Hard was

ma-

sfied

part.

vet I

ded,

cled

s of

fhall

rally

con-

s, if ace.

etec-

the

tion

not opal

not

the

ors;

ref-

the eak e of

e a orh be

tion

ene-

ow-

nts, spi-

PPy

on-

on 7

old

Iti-

re+

few

my oth

ro:

proper and feafonable that this should appear in the world after the rebellion in the year 1745. It was the facobites that revived old animolities; and this history, as has been already observed; shews the miseries in which we should have been involved, had God, in judgment for our many defections, and the crying abominations of the land, permitted them to be successful. If it be farther considered what a degree of reformation the church of Scotland attained to, both with respect to doctrine, worship, discipline and government, and how zealoufly our worthies refuted even unto blood, a faithful account of these things has rather a tendency to excite to a holy concern, for having a stop put to the defections of the present degenerate age, for a revival of a work of reformation, and for quickening our refentments against popery, prelacy, and every thing that tends to reduce us to that state of slavery and perfecution described in the following work.

When I first engaged in this undertaking, I only intended to abridge Mr. Wodrow's history; but, at the advice of many friends, I was induced to use other helps for making the history of this persecuting period more clear and full. Accordingly, when I mention any thing not to be found in Wodrow, I generally tell my author, or quote him in the margin; so that, tho' there is nothing I thought material in that author which I have omitted, yet the author will find many things of consequence in the following work, which the other takes no notice of.

But, instead of the great number of letters that passed between Sharp and Mr. Douglas, and others, which make up the greatest part of Mr. Wodrow's introduction, I thought it would be more to the advantage of the curious reader, to give a thort account of the most remarkable transactions of the church of Scotland from the reformation; but I am forry I have it to fay, that, after the end of Calderwood's history, there is a chasm in the history of the church of Scotland, from the death of king James VI. to the restoration, though it appears, from Mr. Wodrow's preface, that there are fufficient materials, not only for rendering the history of that church, from the reformation to the death of the faid prince, more perfect, but also for continuing the same down to the restoration; and therefore I am of opinion it would be of great service, if they, in whose hands these materials are, would favour the world with them.

It is not for me to speak much concerning my own performance, which must stand or fall according to the judgment of others; and indeed it would be an unpardonable piece of vanity, should I pretend to have given a perfect or faultless history. There will doubless be found several mistakes; and therefore I shall take it very kind in my friends, if they find any thing in this work, either mistaken, or through inadvertency mistrepresented, to let me know it, that, if I have another opportunity, I may rectify the same. However, I have endeavoured to set things in as clear a light as I could, and for this end have related the sacts mentioned, as much as possible, in the order of time when they happened; and where my reader is at a loss to understand the Scoticisms which occur through the book, he will have recourse to the glossary at the end thereof.

As to the unhappy differences that arose among the presbyterians, concerning the indulgence, the paying of cess, the toleration of king James, &c. I have given the reader an account of what was said by both parties, in as fair and and candid a manner as I could; and some perhaps will think it had been much to the advantage of the common cause, against popery and prelacy, had the contending parties shewn more christian forbearance than it appears they did. Many worthy and holy men thought it their duty to accept of the indulgence, &c. and the generality of the presbyterians embraced the toleration; and as their conduct was, perhaps, too severely censured by those who could not comply, so those non-complyers were too bitterly exclaimed against by the others; but such are the consequences when divisions prevail.

If I had been favoured with more materials than I could have access to, as the manuscript bistory of the reverend Mr. MacWard, some things might possibly have appeared in a clearer light. The reverend Mr. Wodrow told my honourable friend Sir Thomas Gordon of Earlstoun, that, had he seen that history, and the letters that passed between the societies in Scotland and their correspondents in Holland, his history would have had a different turn; I thought it therefore my duty to apply for the faid history, but could not obtain it. Upon the whole, I have given as full and distinct account of what happened, during these two infamous reigns, as I could; and if the imperfections or mistakes in this performance shall excite any better qualified for fuch an undertaking, to favour the world with a more distinct account of these things, I shall be very well satisfied, and shall not be altogether disappointed in my design of publishing this.

I shall only add, That I have, in this edition, corrected many literal mistakes, which had some way been overlooked in the sirst, and made a few alterations and additions, which I hope will render this still more useful.

Is

U

B

TO THE AUTHOR OF THE

HISTORY

OF THE

STATE and SUFFERINGS

OF THE

Church of Scotland.

By THOMAS GIBBONS.

THE scenes of distant æras to disclose,

Paint o'er their blessings, and recal their woes;

To set each virtue in its native light,

And from each vice to strike the cloud of night;

To trace a country's genius, strength and laws,

Their various workings, and their latent cause,

Is HISTORY'S great task; and thus thy page

Unfolds, O CROOKSHANK, the departed age.

Of late REBELLION, like some sudden storm,
That dares the bosom of the deep deform,
And strives to mingle, in one wreck of woe, Earth, air, and skies, and ocean's gulph below,
With gloomy tempests our horizon spread,
And thunder'd instant ruin o'er our head:
But, thanks to heav'n, the dreaded danger past, BRITANNIA smiles triumphant from the blast.
Yet still some minds (while raving frenzy sings Of richer blessings under worthier kings) Would sain renew the wild destructive rage, Dethrone our monarch, o'er our golden age

The rayless glooms of popish error cast,

And bind us in eternal fetters fast. And bind us in eternal fetters fast. O may fuch minds, for ev'n fuch minds remain In BRITAIN's realms beneath a BRUNSWICK's reign; HOPE SET MARKET Roll back the annals of preceeding times, The people's miseries, and the monarch's crimes; Then match the horrors with our happy days, Enjoy the blifs, and shout the thankful praise.

In Mary's reign, her guardian promise broke, Our land receiv'd the anti-christian yoke; Bent were our fathers with the iron load, That gall'd their shoulders, and that drunk their blood. Whom see I there the murd'rer's chain partake, Corded and burning at the focial stake? RIDLEY and LATIMER; illustrious pair! This all their guilt,—to live divinely fair,

And resolutely good:—nor these alone,

Hark, from the realm the universal groan! Hark, from the realm the universal groan! Triumphant Pop'RY hurls the flaming brand, And martyr'd victims blaze through all the land.

MARY no more; the bloody harpy flies From Albion's cliffs, and feeks her WESTERN skies;
But still its genius half-survives behind. And half infects the brave ELIZA's mind: On Puritans, averse to modes and forms, She bends her brow in unrelenting storms; The deep damp dungeon wails with pious breath, And cords and gibbets shriek with guiltless death.

JAMES mounts the throne; but, proud of empty fame, Extravagantly lifts the royal name; Monarchs must shake an undisputed rod,
And nations bow to their despotick nod: And nations bow to their delpotick nod:
He dies,—but, oh! the father's madness lays The ground of woes for his successor's days: Then PRELACY, by regal pow'r fustain'd, The native freedom of our souls restrain'd, Then great in vengeance role pontifick LAUD, Rear'd his tribunal, and the kingdom aw'd: The scourge was crimson'd with the tyrant's rage, And life-long prisons mourn'd the iron age.

Next

7

C

H

F

T W

Fr

See

W See

Pal

'Ti 'Ti

But Th

Cru And

And

Por

'Te

Tri

Her

Next CHARLES the fon affum'd imperial fway, And BRITONS hop'd a more propitious ray, But hop'd in vain; for from its dust arose, Grasping ten thousand thunders for its foes, While door of PRELATICE pow'r. What numbers shall relate Its headstrong fury, and its iron weight?" And Scouts The stars that blaz'd in ALBION's hemisphere, And long dispens'd unclouded radiance there, No more were fuffer'd to indulge their light, Walle gales Torn from their orbs, and funk in endless night. The great N On all that durst not to the mitre bow, Harsh laws were yok'd, and edg'd with penal woe. Charg'd from the throne, here all-rapacious THEFT Widows and orphans of their mites bereft. See on our Here CRUELTY the royal mandate pleads partol bro. L For peace molested, and inhuman deeds: with stoley Assembled saints, their pastors at their head, As ravining These met to give, and those to take the bread, Were dragg'd by wolves, to ev'ry-pity steel'd, With peace From the thick woodland or fequester'd field, Prismplant To share with thieves their half-defrauded cell, And there in long and painful durance dwell.

1 The se

18

1.70

-

Dis

10

W

101

TE

211

073 ol

MA

1

Sec

992 dW

298

231

11

1

12

111:

et T

11 1113

X

no han hit But ALBION bears the lighter lot of ills; ivan live See the thick tempest bursts on Scotia's hills: See, by THAT Prince, the SACRED COMPACT torn, Who late to guard th' uninjur'd rights had fworn: See at his nod Episcopacy spread, Its fov'reign mitre tow'ring on its head; Pale famine, rage, and terror lead its way, And death upholds the standard of its sway. 'Tis not enough felonious caves to fill, 'Tis not enough for cords and steel to kill; A AVAITED But on the ancle the sharp wedge descends, donarch ! The bone reluctant with the iron bends, Crush'd is its frame, blood spouts from ev'ry pore, And the white marrow fwims in purple gore.

Next James fucceeds; and still the slaughter spread, And blacker woes impended o'er our head: Pop'Ry, before unwilling to be known, 'Tempts a bold flight, and feats her on the throne; Triumphant wantons in the tyrant's ray, Her talons whets, and dooms the world her prey.

Then

- A2

Then Monmouth's star, ascending in the west, Appears, but sinks with crimson clouds opprest; While dogs of death, commission'd to destroy, Rush, rend, and havock with remorfeless joy:
The western vales unbounded marder fills,
And Scotia wails thro' her unnumber'd hills.

But see from Belgia's less'ning strands advance, While gales exulting in the streamers dance, The great NASSAU; to ALBION'S coast he bends, The first of heroes, and the best of friends. The ocean, proud the bleffing to convey, Wafts him with speed along the wat'ry way. See on our shores the brave Deliv'res stand, Loud founds th' extatick welcome o'er the land, While abject Tyranny avoids the fight, As rav'ning wolves detelt the riling light; And now his angels and his own renown With peaceful olives lead him to the throne Triumphant; recreant at his vital smile Religion blooms, and Freedom o'er our isle Shoots her glad ray; and still the bliss divine Full and unclouded shines in BRUNSWICK'S line: Oh! may it shine, till TIME has spent his store, Till heav ns revolving fire shall blaze no more, and brow Till that great day shall break upon our eyes HTAR and and That melts the ball, and takes us to the lkies, the Trans. Where pure Relicion o'er the blisful plains Pours her eternal beam, and endlels FREEDOM reignstodt lo

m

00

fla

go

fa fa

th

in

W

fo

ju

of

ar

W

(0

in ez

na

te

in

in

and to examine the principles had points of tellmony for which they infered, that, if agreeable to the divine pattern Cof which, for my own part, I have no doubt) we may tread in their fleps, and has opportunity as offered, imitate their fexample.

ruAnd, as this ission is taught us by rectainion, is may it be insterred from the very distance of reason. That what is transmit nations doth give suffrage unto this, That what is transmit ted by the parchts not taily deserte the preference in point of inquiry, but generally obtains the presentance in respect of multiunce that arish, an estate had other, or whatever else both been our father's, its more dearly accounted of by is than that friemplants wanted in the grant way.

Mer talans whete, and downs the world her rece.

Phi exil 6. † Heb x16.8 | Winels Mr Procht Thanks,

Mu Garge Wilberg, and others

The stiff of the end of the legisle adaptive in the following the center ideal.

ARREATED that finder with evan on prondroupped ; at finders are while those of death committee of the total thought to another than 11.14

TO THE

A

11

108 6

200

000 dy

obe Mar she fuc

tar

gits:

for 40

Sign T

10 ani

dur

Cof

111

ENS!

UI

der

nat

693 offi

tra :

354

UTT I

1118

All into whose hands the following history shall come, especially the Successors of those whose sufferings are therein related.

who me in will do with him and party

THE righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance, said the pfalmilt *; and the facred history + doth abundantly demonstrate how dear unto the LORD the memory of those are, who have had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonments; who were — tempted, were flain with the sword; — who wandered about in sheep skins and goat skins in desarts and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth, being destitute, afflicted, tormented. And though to fach of our ancestors as have not only endured the like, but farther sufferings, as quenching the violence of fire 1, and facing the ax, the gibbet, and other engines of torture, not accepting deliverance, it will be infinitely more than a sufficient reward, that they shall on that account be acknowledged before the FATHER, at the fecond coming of our LORD JESUS CHRIST; yet gratitude, and the deference we owe unto their judgment and authority, oblige us to perpetuate the memory of their zeal, their courage, their faithfulness and patience, and to examine the principles and points of testimony for which they suffered, that, if agreeable to the divine pattern (of which, for my own part, I have no doubt) we may tread in their steps, and, as opportunity is offered, imitate their example.

And, as this lesson is taught us by revelation, so may it be inferred from the very dictates of reason. The practice of all nations doth give suffrage unto this, That what is transmitted by the parents not only deserves the presence in point of inquiry, but generally obtains the pre-eminence in respect of influence; a title, an estate, an office, or whatever else hath been our father's, is more dearly accounted of by us than that ^{*} Pfal. exil. 6. † Heb. xi. 38. ‡ Witness Mr. Patrick Hamilton, Mr. George Wisheart; and others.

for

ba

n

th

th

S

fi

18

in

L

ha

pa

pr

tH

ur

ti

1

m

ex

cv

re

of

O

of

di

re

ed

ne

de

249

16-

331 of any other: Yea, amongst the rudest of the heathen idolaters, the traditions, rites, and ceremonies of the fathers are held in reverend estimation with their children. And shall we be less zealous for our holy religion, than they are for their idolatry? Hath a nation changed their gods which yet are no gods; and shall we change our glory for that which doth not profit; or forego a profession of and adherence to our artained to reformation? Surely this were directly repugnant to a knowing the God of our fathers, and walking before him with a perfect heart.

The grounds upon which our fathers suffered, viz. the alone headship and sovereignty of our Lord Jesus Christ over his church, as his free and independent kingdom, the spiritual and intrinsick power of the church, the divine right of presbytery as the only government thereof appointed in his word, and the covenant obligations which the nation hath come under unto God, are no novel tenets: They were not espoused only by our martyrs, nor were peculiar unto the period wherein they suffered, but were introduced with our reformation from popery, and, when true religion and holiness sourished most amongst us, were accounted our glory. While we walked in these paths, the Lord was with us, and owned us remarkably both as a church and nation.

But, alas! it is both our fin and our shame, that, being weighed in our own balance, we are found wanting : For, without reckoning upon the multitudes who are given up to a spirit of deism and insidelity, are not the practices of profellors disagreeable to the rule of the Loap's word? Bither a detestable neutrality and indifference, inconfishent with the belief of one Lord, one faith, and one rule of life, hath crept in amongst us, or a straitning of the door of church-communion and fellowship is like to be carried the length of eradicating love, the necessary cement of union amongst the brethren. Because our fins against the Lord are increased, he hath mingled a perverse spirit in the midst of us, which causeth us to err in every work, - as a drunken man staggereth in his vomit, and we eat every man the flesh of his own arm. yoke of our transgression is bound by his hand, it is wreathed, and come up upon our neck; and in the day of our calamity he hath covered us with a cloud in his anger, that, like the blind, we grope for the wall, and cannot find either our fin or our duty. Some cry, that there be many of our prophets who have not discovered our iniquity to turn away our captivity; and others complain, that not a few of them have seen for us false burdens and causes of banishment; And, for

for all this, the Lo R D's anger is not turned away, but bis band is fretched out fill. When thus it is with us, have we not reason to cry out, Alas! who shall live when God doth this? or, with the men of Beth bemeft, Who shall stand before this boly Lord God? Surely, it is meet to be faid unto God, Show me wherefore thou contendest with me; I have born chadifferent, I will not offend any more; that which I fee not, teach thou me, until the Lord shall reveal it unto us; and in the mean time, as far as present circumstances will permit, Let us walk by the same rule, and mind the same thing.

It remains to be noticed, that though it was proposed to have prefixed recommendations to this edition, and though part of these were obtained, and others could easily have been procured from severals who were supposed most acceptable; yet some, nearly concerned in, and encouragers of this edition, having fignified a diflike of any recommendations, as unnecellary, confidering the good acceptation the former edition met with, and that laudable defigns support themselves. I have therefore been prevailed with to leave out all recommendations whatever. not also wender that wender not

The reader will also observe, that the author's marginal explications of Scots words in the former impression, are, for eviting repetitions, subjoined by way of glossary at the end of the second volume of this, and that wherever there is a reference in this, by an afterism, thus [*] it is to former pages of the kiftery itself, that whoever wants to see the connection of things may have the more easy recourse unto them.

I have faid nothing to the advantages this edition must have of the first, from the many corrections thereon, and even additions made thereto, these being acknowledged by the reverend author in the end of his preface, and will be obvious to any who will take the trouble to compare this with the former diesting tere, the neieflace cement of union amongst moiting

That the present republication may be of use, and have a due effect upon you all, is the earnest desire of, us to ore in coorn with . - or a drunken man flaggereth in his much obliged, and and Your much obliged, and the of our manseeffor to bound by his band, it is wreath-

ED INBURGH, de most obedient humble fervant, are be her deperted us with a cloud in his auge March like for the wall, and cannot finisether out out ino

TOTA STREET, AND ASSESSED IN

lola-

arc

(hall

for

not

ined

to a

th a

101

e a-

over

irual

orei-

ord.

ome

uled

eretion

ffred

ked

irk-

or,

to 10-

her

the rept

Du-

rare-

he eth

his

The

th-

la-

ike ur

ro-

our em

id, for

to your od synds tads . The PUBLISHER. say because differenced our recourse to twee away our 2:

t

.

f

the the state that I also be appeared to an appear the set and keed is thetrick on this of Wilson that it is with us, have see now reason to sety car, that's who field beginning to did dust asis & or, with the men of Beth beauty, Who that flord refere one bole bord bied . Surely, it is suger to be fail one book. CONTENTS has the cian in lever that brod out that --- you wont to not in the mean time, or far as prefent chroumfances will parone, Let us walk be the fund rule, and ourse the fance then. to the least the content of the child of was properly to described the spire of the spire of the spire of the spire been to note nique and the second of the second o explications of Sage words in the former imprefices, are, for tage of the following to the company of the salar and the salar gos ... may sais to the sais pursue explicate have asin Char. TV. To the dispaceing of Junchy patentes a tite. confection of the billiops, we ole of the parties and the proceedings of the council, may cutarity the act of Kenya. & w. and other things during the grantfordy be owners to HAR. V. of the diffusi effects of the ejection of near four transfied manifers; of the sets, on proceedings of the county ed and partianion: the experience of ford if arrifact, and the fufferings of others during the year 166;

CRAP. VI. Of the erection and proceedings of the high-munifien, and the acts of council; sugether with the flategran CHAR NIT. 10f the occurrences proceedings by a thought a thing out to R: land; of the spay tilely a see executions and other or the quences of it; together with the comput fufferings of the presbyterians tall the year 1666

Shorp the proceedings of parliance , the first same ...

1

-74

C D

H.

1

.

3.

100

E)

1

VEXX

CONTENTS.

-	Dalkin samb	stooma bii	100	Off the me	27 77 77 7
	i .comionno		The same		Periolitas
*	of hardinastil.	and but a	inc law	imodation:	ran'a accom an account of the levend indefence, and other things of

Page: I the year to b Page: I

THE INTRODUCTION,

CHAP. I. Of the apprehending the ma	ronis d	Argyll:	the proceedings of the committee of effates	: the	Supplication	n of the ministers and their imprisonment,	and th	e fuffering others to the end of the year 1660.	LAM 1	0 .1% .5	61

CHAP. II.	Of the ac	ts of the fi	rft fession	of parliamen	at; the CHAP. II.	the chu	reh-judica	tures; th	e fufferings	of the marquis of	Argyll,	Mr. fame	s Guthrie,	and feveral 71

-176.9	1.111 Y	770 3	minima	na baa	1	of the	TITE	Sant?
CHAP.	III.	Of the	e procee	dings o	f the	conneil,	and th	e regal erect	ion o	f prela	cy, toget	her wit	h the	fufferin	ags of	gentlemen'	and n	ninifle	ra during	the re	of fo	the ye	ar	109

- CHAP. IV. Of the discharging of church-judicatures; the consecration of the bishops; the acts of the parkament, and the proceedings of the council; particularly the act of Glasgow, and other things during the year 1662.
- CHAP. V. Of the dismal effects of the ejection of near four hundred ministers; of the acts and proceedings of the council and parliament; the execution of lord Warristown, and the sufferings of others during the year 1663.
- CHAP. VI. Of the erection and proceedings of the high-commission, and the acts of council; together with the state and sufferings of the presbyterians till the year 1666.
- CHAP. VII. Of the occurrences preceeding the rising at Pentland; of the rsing itself; the executions and other consequences of it; together with several other transactions during the year 1666.

- Of the cruelties of Dalziel, &c. the forfeitures of gentlemen, &c. the dispanding of the army, and the bond of peace; Mr. Mitchel's attempt on archbishop Sharp; the proceedings of parliament; the first inducation, and other things to the end of the year 1669.
- CHAP. IX. Of the indulged; the proceedings against conventicles; the actings of the western committee, Leighton's accommodation; the laws and acts of parliament, with an account of the second indulgence, and other things till the end of the year 1673.
- CHAP. X. Of the state and sufferings of the presbyterians during the years 1674 and 1675.
- CHAP. XI. Of Mr. Mitchel's torture; the proceedings of the council; the circumstances of the indulged; the profecutions for conventicles; the occasion of the Highland host, and other occurrences to the end of the year 1677.
- CHAP. XII. Of the trial and execution of Mr. James Mitchel; the proceedings of the council and committee; the bond of conformity; together with the ravages of the Highland host during the months of January and February 1678.
- CHAP. XIII. Of the proceedings of the council and their committee after the return of the Highland host; the appointment of garrifons; the convention of estates; the cest; the progress of the persecution, and other things to the end of the year
- CHAP. XIV. Of the profecutions for conventicles and other branches of non-conformity, together with the violent death of the archbishop of St. Andrews, till the rising at Bothwell

- 51 web reside avec

THE

special it; so denotes during the year 1666.

1435

-13

thi

Do

beg

que

try

al ·

vei

of the

nac

Th

the

bif

the

till Pe

the

pa

be

fo

res

he op L-9.

3.E

n-

h-

th ill 4

13

of

e-//,

10

t-

nd

nd

8.

5

ir

)-

3

e

8

)-

ıt

ıt

7

The INTRODUCTION, containing the most remarkable Occurrences of the CHURCH of Scotland from the RE-

UR historians generally agree, that christia-Christianity was planted in Scotland, a few years after the ascension of our Saviour, by some of the disciples of the apostle John, who seed thither to avoid the persecution of the bloody tyrant Domitian, tho' it was not publickly professed till the beginning of the third century, when Donald I. his queen, and several of the nobles, were solemnly baptized. That prince did his utmost to extirpate idolatry, and settle a gospel-ministry, but was not able to accomplish his pious design, by reason of the continual wars in which he was engaged with the Romans.

But afterwards christianity was much promoted by se-The Culveral ministers and private christians, who were oblig-dees.
ed to come from the south parts of Britain on account Pref. of of the persecutions under Aurelius and Dioclesian. And Knox's history.
these, for their single and retired life, were called Monachi, or Monks by abbreviation, and, for their diligence in the worship and service of God, Colidei, or Culdees.
The overseers of them were commonly termed, by the writers of that time, Scotorum episcopi, the bishops of the Scots, though without any definition of place, or pre-eminence of one above another.

For many years the Scots had nothing to do with the Palladine bishop of Rome; for as the gospel was planted among sent into them without his help, so they retained it in its purity, Britain, till, in process of time, they became infected with the Pelagian heresy. Celestine, then bishop of Rome, is said to have sent Palladius into Britain, to aid the orthodox inhabitants against this spreading contagion. Eugenius II. hearing of his success in the southern parts, sent for him to Scotland. He came; and, having been of great service in suppressing this heresy, at last so far insinuated himself into the hearts of the people, Pref. to Knox's bistory.

that he obtained their confent to have the government of the church changed into prelacy. Boetius, John Mair, John Leslie, John of Fordon, Baleus, of the Britain writers, Baronius, Prosper, &c. as my author evinces, all maintain, that the Scots, before Palladius, had no bishops at all, or at least their bishops were not of any distinct order from other priests or Culdees, by whom they were ordained.

Thus matters continued for near 1000 years after Christ; 'but, after that time, Satan being let loose from his chains and prison of darkness, (as the general as-• Letter ' fembly 1640. expresses it *) began to trouble and albethele! ' most ruin the church, and, by his arts, brought matters ' to that pass, that, for the space of 500 years, a perpedurches. ' tual, and almost universal, night of errors sat down upon her.' Notwithstanding, the Lord had his witnesses in Scotland, who, even during the above time of grofs darkness, bore an honourable testimony to his truth, in opposition to the errors and idolatries of. popery; and, about the year 1494. the reformation began to dawn, and the light of the gospel to shine again in feveral parts of the country, and particularly in the shire of Ayr; which so enraged the Romish prelates, and our rulers then influenced by them, that with fire and faggot they endeavoured to destroy all that professed the true religion +. Howbeit, the blessed bible having got in amongst the people in feveral pla-

+ Page

48.

> + Though it may feem inconsistent with our purpose to descend to particulars here, yet, considering that the burning of two of these, viz. Mr. Patrick Hamilton, brother's fon to the earl of Arran, in the 1527. and Mr. George Wisheart in the 1546. tended greatly to the spreading of the truth, through the inquiry made by many into the grounds of their sufferings, we will take the liberty to hint at the honourable mention made of them by the famous historian Knox. Page 4.

Of the former he relates*, That, having returned to his own country from the university of Wittemberg, the bright beams of the true light, which, by God's grace, was planted in his heart, began most abundantly to burst forth, as well in publick as in private, and the fame of his doctrine, a summary whereof is afforded us by that historian, so troubled the clergy, (though like life from the dead to many others) that they foon brought him to the end you have heard, which he endured with great patience and admirable courage, and ended his days in the midst of the devouring slame, saying, Lord Jesus receive my spirit. How long will darkness overwhelm this realm? And how long wilt thou suffer this tyranny of men? And

Of Mr. Wisheart the same historian saith +, He was a man of such graces, as before him was never heard within this realm. He was not only neft ipirit an) to fu and v ticula the ti comp the fo convi Stance in Sci places > parts, affecte

> lo not

---- A

were c plague

whole

his won

Were f

happy

dering

them a ce

fu

bo

G

ou

ar

ha

the

the

the

ou

fer

the cor

ido

Ch

thr

tion

fcri

qui

ed,

only

t

,

E

r

n (-

l-

73 4

n

t-

of

is

of.

n

a-

ly

eth at

ed

a-

es

to

iz.

27.

ad-

nds

ble

un-

rue

the lo-

iny

ich

his

eive

long

uch

not

nly

ces of the country, and being seconded with the powerful teaching of the holy spirit, prevailed so far, that, about the year 1555. a farther work of reformation began to be carried on by some eminent persons whom God raifed up, particularly Mr. John Knox, whom both our own, and other reformed churches, have accounted a man truly worthy of great estimation; and the Lord's hand was so strong upon these polished shafts, that, in the year 1557. not only the common people, but also the nobility and gentry, began to abhor the tyranny of the bishops, and to doubt whether they could, without fin, give their bodily presence to the mass, or offer their children to the papistical baptism: Whether thele that were in any publick trust could, with a safe conscience, serve the higher powers, in maintaining of idolatry, perfecuting their brethren, and suppressing Christ's truth: Or whether they might suffer their brethren to be executed for religion, without any declaration that fuch tyranny displeased them. And from the scriptures they were resolved, that a lively faith requires a plain confession when Christ's truth is impugned, and that not only be they guilty who do evil, but only fingularly learned, as well in all godly knowledge as in all honest human sciences, but also he was so clearly illuminated with the spirit of prophecy, (instances whereof are by that author condescended on) that he forefaw several things pertaining to himself and others, to fundry towns, and to the whole realm, as they afterwards felt, and which he foretold in the audience of many: But what more particularly calls for a thankful remembrance, especially considering the time of it, was the great power and remarkable efficacy that accompanied and followed his ministry. The author of The fulfilling of the scriptures, speaking t of the large measure of the spirit which did t Page convincingly follow the preaching of the gospel in these last times, in- 243. stanceth the great success which did attend the ministry of Mr. Wisheart in Scotland-----whence so great a change did quickly follow in these places where he preached, through Angus, Lothian, and the western parts, and how much the spirits of the people were then raised and affected with the word. And Mr. Knox relates, that Mr. Wisheart made so notable a sermon at Ayr, as enemies themselves were confounded, -- Again, of another at Mauchlin, where some of the most wicked were converted: And that he having returned to Dundee, while the plague, of which he foretold them, raged there, he stood betwixt the whole and the diseased, and preached from Psalm evii. 20. He sent his word, and healed them; whereby the hearts of most that heard him were so elevated, that they regarded no death, but judged them more happy who should depart, than such as should remain behind, considering that they knew not if they should have such a comforter with them at all times, also they that consent to evil; and this they should do. if, feeing fuch things openly committed they should be filent, and so allow whatever was done. From doubts they came to determinations to endeavour that the glorious gospel should be preached, the holy sacraments truly ministred, and superstition, idolatry and tyranny suppressed. For this end, having calculated both their right and their strength, they fent eminent persons to the remote parts of the kingdom, to incite the gentlemen and boroughs to adhere to the mutual defence of religion, and of one another in the profession thereof. Accordingly, upon the 3d December 1557. several of the nobility, and others, met at Edinburgh, where they entered into a bond, COVENANT, or affociation, wherein they promifed before God and his congregation, That, by his grace, they would, with all diligence, apply their whole power, substance, and their very lives, to maintain, fet foreward, and establish the bleffed word of God and his congregation; and would labour, according to their power, to have faithful ministers truly and purely to minister Christ's gospel and facraments to his people; that they would maintain, nourish and defend them, the whole congregation of Christ, and every member thereof, with their whole power and hazard of their lives; and declare themselves manifest enemies to all superstitious abominations and idolatry.' This was subscribed by the earls of Argyll, Glencairn and Morton, Archibald lord of Lorn, John Erskine of Dun, &c. who, after this, were called The lords of the congregation, and the people

-

Queen-regent's perfidy.

The first

covenant

of Scot-

who adhered to them were called The congregation.

And though in all this they proceeded with that moderation which became wife subjects, attempting nothing of themselves without first supplicating the queen-regent for her concurrence, yet, at last, she appeared openly against the reformers, and made preparations to suppress them openly by force: And, in order to this, she summoned all the ministers in Scotland to appear at Stirling on the 10th of May 1559, which being understood, and endeavours for appeasing her proving abortive, it was agreed, that the gentlemen should accompany their preachers to the day and place appointed. Accordingly the town of Dundee, with the gentlemen of Angus and Mearns, came armed with theirs to Perth, and sent the laired of Dun before, to assure the queen

3

b

t

t

b

t

i

d

t

0

do,

be

lo-

nts

my

eir

to

leof

of.

of

ney

re-

on,

ce,

the

uld

ful

inga-

eir

ni-

he

ord

is,

10-ned

ns

to

png ng

ic-

le-

to

he

en

queen that they came in a peaceable manner, only to give confession with their preachers; but they being numerous, she desired him, being one to whom they gave great ear, to intreat them to disperse; with which he readily complied, and, by a letter to them, shewed what promise and hope he had of the queen's sayour, whereupon they resolved not to go foreward: But she, like a true papist, paying no regard to her promises, held the meeting intended, called over the names, and outlawed those that were absent for contempt.

The lords of the congregation, observing the storm Other of that was coming upon them, assembled at Perth on the sociations. 31st May, and entered into another COVENANT, or allociation, for the defence of themselves and their religion; and, on the first of August that same year, they entered into another; and God so savoured their defigns, that, notwithstanding all the efforts of the queenregent and her French auxiliaries, they made their way, got pollellion of Edinburgh on the 17th of October 1559. and at last the whole government of the kingdom into their hands. And what contributed greatly to this remarkable æra, was the death of the queen-regent upon the joth of June 1560. and of Francis II. king of France, the same year, within a few months thereafter, whereby Mary, our queen, having become a widow, and the popilly party therewith much confounded, both the and they were, in a great measure, at the mercy of the reformers. In the mean time the privy-council met, and, on First book the 29th of April that same year, gave orders to the mi- of discinisters to assemble, and draw up in writing, and in a pline. book, a common order for reformation and uniformity Appol, to be observed in the discipline and policy of the church to be observed in the discipline and policy of the church: Whereupon the first book of discipline was drawn up and presented to the council on the 20th of May following. In this book the government of the church by prelates is overthrown, church-fessions are established, the thrusting ministers into reclaiming congregations is condemned, the way of the trial of ministers, contrary to the episcopal method, is appointed, the superstitious observation of fast-days, or days dedicated to saints, is likeways condemned; and several other things tending to the right government of the church are determin-This was afterwards approved of by the council, who engaged to promote it to the utmost of their power, provided that the bishops, abbots, &c. should post fels the revenues of their benefices during life.

ÇF,

ed

nc

be

of

ftr

to

w

th riv

ga

op

for

que bu

bl

bly

ce off

no

wa

till ele

pli

of

aft

tha

ma

the

rea

aft

fho

od

Superinsendents.

It is true, superintendents were allowed for a short space, because of the paucity of settled ministers, and want of literature in some, which the necessity of these times required a bearing with; yet so zealous were our first reformers against popery, that they would not acknowledge them to be bifbops, nor fuffer any who had formerly born that character in the time of popery, to enjoy the place and power of superintendents, lest those might be abused, and at last degenerate into the old power of the prelates. They were chosen by consent of the whole bounds where they were to visit, were tried and examined by the ministers in these bounds, and had neither the fole power of ordination nor excommunication. They were subject to the censure and excommunication of the province, who might, in some cases, depose them or lay them aside. Their main work was preaching, for they were to preach at least thrice every week; and they had their own particular flocks befides, where they were to refide, except when they were viliting the bounds committed to their care: Neither did they ever moderate, or prefide, in general affemblies, unless they had been chosen by a majority of votes.

The book of policy being thus far fettled, affairs rested for the present, until the meeting of a convention or parliament, the calling whereof was, by the treaty of peace concluded by the ambassadors of England and France with the estates of Scotland, in summer 1560.

In this parliament, which met in August 1560. the committed to a council of twelve.

bolified.

The first reformers, by their order, drew up a large Confession confession of their faith, which was read in the house, and then of faith. openly avowed, professed and ratified by them; for hitherto they had only the Geneva confession, which was reckoned too brief and general. Farther, this parliament made several acts against popery, and in behalf of Popery a- the reformers, ordaining that the bishop of Rome, called the Pope, have no jurifdiction nor authority within this realm in any time coming; and that no bishop or other prelate within the realm use any jurisdiction for the time coming, by the said bishop of Rome's authority, under pain, &c. And thus the reformed religion was established by law, and church-government by prelates virtually discharged, because prelates then had no power but what they derived from Rome.

1

rt

nd

fe

ur

C-

ad

to

fe

er

10

d

d

1-

1-

s,

29

-

e

r

3,

r

d

Popery and prelacy being thus discarded, the first general assembly was held at Edinburgh the 20th of Decemneral aster 1560. in which ministers and readers were ap-sembly. pointed unto several parishes through the country; and it was ordered, that the election of ministers and elders should be in the publick church; that intimation should be made the Lord's day preceeding; and that a petition should be presented to the estates of the realm and lords of the privy-council, craving, that all judges, magisfrates, &c. should be professors of the truth according to the word of God.

A convention of estates met in January 1561. at Q. Mary which the book of discipline was subscribed by many of arrived. the nobility and gentry. But queen Mary, having arrived in Scotland from France in the month of August following, had the mass said on the next Lord's day, which gave great offence to many; and particularly Mr. Knox openly rebuked some of the courtiers, who, though professors, suffered this without opposition.

The fecond national assembly met in December, when Other association debates arose concerning their meeting without the semblies. queen's authority, and concerning the book of discipline; but matters were amicably adjusted. At the next assembly in June 1562, it was ordained, that, at every assembly, superintendents, ministers and elders be tried concerning their life, doctrine, and the discharge of their office. And it is remarkable, that this assembly would not acknowledge Mr. Alexander Gordon, bishop of Galloway, for a superintendent, nor admit him to that charge, till they understood that the churches in Galloway had elected him, and till he had subscribed the book of discipline.

The queen's marriage with Henry Stuart, lord Darn-James by, in July 1565. gave a general disgust. On the 19th VI. borns of June next year, she was brought to bed of a prince, afterward James VI. The general assembly, sitting at that time, sent some of their number to congratulate her majesty, and to desire the prince might be baptized in the protestant church. But the queen, disregarding their reasonable request, ordered the prince to be baptized after the popish manner, at Stirling castle, by the archbishop of St. Andrews. Soon after king Henry was murdered by the earl of Bothwel, who afterwards married the queen

Toh

fon,

· fa te te

(gr

6 th

6 ha

' th

ha im

" m

1011

· W

an fpi ha

Go Th

Afte

relig

Thu

ing l blies

femb

shall gener

the c fed u fhop:

no w orda

fhop:

give began

Or

* N

fellion (

and hi

or N

Table,

queen on the 5th of May 1567. This horrid scene, and many other pieces of misconduct, issued in the queen's being obliged to renounce the government in savours of her son, who was proclaimed king of Scotland, and crowned the 29th of July. Mr. Knox preached the coronation-sermon, and the earl of Moray was made regent, who next year, on the 13th of May 1568. defeated the queen's sorces in the battle of Landside. Whereupon the queen sled to England, where she was afterwards beheaded.

Tulchan

In the midst of these troubles the judicatories of the church conveened, parishes had ministers settled among them, and the discipline of the church was in a great measure established. In this agreeable posture matters continued for a few years; but Satan, envying the prosperity of this infant church, excited some of the statesmen against her, who, having possession of the church-rents and the prelates benefices, contrived a method for securing the possession of them to themselves, by getting in some * Tulchan bishops, as they were called, who might have the name of the whole benefice, but receive only a small part, leaving the rest in the hands of these nobles. Accordingly the earl of Morton got the earl of Marr, then regent, to call an affembly at Leith, by means of the superintendent of Angus, who - upon their meeting the 12th of January 1572. nominated fix of their number to attend fix appointed by the council; and these twelve agreed to several things tending to introduce the prelates; and according to these resolutions the earl of Morton procured one Mr. Douglas to be made bishop of St. Andrews, Mr. Boyd of Glasgow, Mr. Paton of Dunkel, and Mr. Graham of Dimblain.

Mr. Knox was then at St. Andrews, and refused to have any hand in setting apart the bishop, nay, bore an open testimony against it. The general assembly, held at St. Andrews the 6th of March, appointed some of their number to examine into these things.

Mr. Knox's Death. On the 24th of November, the famous, pious, learned and zealous Mr. John Knox departed this life. The night before he died, he fighed and groaned much in his sleep: And when he awoke, one Campbel and John Johnston

A Tulchan is a calf's skin stuffed with straw to make the cow give, milk. The bishop had the title, but my lord had the milk. Calderwood, p. 55.

e,

he

aid, he

de

ele.

25

he

ng

at

rs he

he

he

a

25, als

ut

ds

ot

at 104

ed

n-

ng 0-las af-

m-

to

an

eld

of

n-

he

in

ohn

ton

sive, Cal-

Johnston, who attended him, having asked him the reafon, he answered, ' In my time I have been often af- Knox's faulted by Satan, and oft he hath cast my fins in my life. teeth, to bring me into despair, but God gave me grace to overcome all his temptations. And now that fubtle ferpent, who never ceafeth to tempt. hath taken another course, he seeks to persuade me that my labours in my ministry, and the fidelity I have shewn in that service, have merited heaven and immortality. But bleffed be God who brought to my mind these scriptures, What hast thou that thou hast not received? And, Not I, but the grace of God in me. With which he hath gone away ashamed, and shall no more return. And now I am fure my battle is at an end, and that, without pain of body or trouble of fpirit, I shall shortly change this mortal life for that: happy and immortal life.' After prayer he was asked whether he had heard it? He replied, ' Would God that ye had heard it with fuch an ear and heart as 'I have.' Then he faid, 'Lord Jesus receive my spirit.' After which he spoke no more, but without any emotion resigned his soul into the hands of his God and father. Thus the church was deprived of a burning and a shining light.

The above mentioned innovations were fo disagree- Acts aable, that they were condemned by feveral after affem-gainst blies; and particularly it was agreed by the general af- prelacy. fembly in October 1578. that all bishops already elected. shall be required particularly to fubmit themselves to the general affembly, and if they refuse, after admonition, the censure of excommunication was ordered to be pasfed upon them. And in the year 1580. the affembly unanimously ordained, that all who were called bishops should demit simpliciter, because that office had no warrant in the word of God; and at the same time ordained provincial fynods to call before them fuch bishops as lived in their bounds, and ordered them to give obedience to this act: Whereupon presbyteries began foon to be established in this kingdom.

On the 28th of January 1581. * the confession of faith, National Or NATIONAL COVENANT, was subscribed by the king covenant and Subscribed.

N. B. In the title of the NATIONAL COVENANT, in the Con- wood, selfion of faith, it is said, That it was subscribed by the king's majesty p. 96. and his houshold in the year 1580. thereafter by persons of all ranks and his houshold, together with a great many others, and afterwards by all ranks of people in the land. In this confession, under the name of hierarchy, is condemned episcopal government; so that one might think that presbyterial church-government was now established upon sure and lasting foundations. But the king had no relish for the presbyterial establishment, and had those about him who increased his prejudices. In short, he was in the hands of the Duke of Lennox, the Earl of Arran, and others, who were disagreeable to the rest of the nobility.

Rode of Ruthven. Ibid. p.

129.

Wherefore, on the 20th of August 1582. happened the famous rode of Ruthven, when the earls of Marr and Gowrie, the master of Oliphant, young Lochlevin, &c. came to Perth, after the king had returned from a huntingmatch in Athole, and conveyed him to Ruthven-castle. At the same time they presented a declaration, signifying the reasons of their conduct, and then carried him to Stirling, where they gave him the full liberty of his perfon and government, only taking the administration out of the hands of Lennox and Arran. The king never forgave this attempt, but refented it against the ministers, as if they had been the chief instruments concern-However, he complied with their terms, and published a proclamation for restoring the liberties of the kirk, with the freedom of her judicatures. The affembly fat down in October, and recognized the reformation, erected presbyteries in the north of Scotland, and impowered them to fummon the bishops before them. And thus prelacy was born down, and the church had a little fun-shine. But the king secretly hated them, and, notwithstanding all his subscriptions and proclamations, was determined to run them down.

Liberties of the church invaded.

Accordingly, in May 1584. his majesty, having got a parliament to his mind, they discharged all church-judicatures, gave the king power over all causes ecclesia-stical as well as civil, discharged all declining of him and his council in any matter under pain of treason, and likeways all ministers to meddle, in their sermons, with the affairs of his highness or the estate. But in this parliament matters were so ordered underhand by the in the year 1581. The reason of the difference of the calculation here seems to be this, that the English (amongst whom the national covenant, as prefixed to the Westminster confession, was first printed) do not begin their year till the 25th of March, whereas Calder wood reckons by the present calculation.

as for pre blig app and to j

COL

pain wer pub of t chu epif to a fittue their brownar ther that the byte on

agai

affer ther cilection, tor, thin the and mini parl that fuits cil, ers,

In

on-ink

hed

had

he

Art of 114 1

ned

and

ime

ng-

At

ing

to

per-

out

ver

ini-

ern-

ub-

the

em-

ma-

and

em.

had

em,

cla-

got

rch-

esia-

and

and

with this

the

urt,

ation

ional

rint-

-9

court, that it feemed rather a private council than a parliament; the ministers had no access to be heard. and fuch as protested against their illegal proceedings, as Mr. James Lowson and Mr. Walter Balcanquel, were forced to flee into England to escape the fury of the prevailing party: Mr. Andrew Metvil was likeways obliged to make his escape. Upon this bishops were appointed, who immediately exercised their tyranny and rage against the rest of the ministers, obliging them to promise obedience to them as their ordinaries, upon pain of banishment, confinement, &c. so that many were forced to retire, and none durst so much as pray publickly for those ministers who fled, under the pain of treason. From this the author of the memoirs of the church of Scotland justly observes, that no sooner was p. 104. episcopacy, upon any occasion, set up in Scotland, but it began always to persecute the presbyterian church.

The parliament fat again the 24th of August, and enjoined all ministers and other ecclesiastical persons to appear within forty days, and subscribe the new constitution of the church, as it was called, and submit to their diocesan, on pain of losing their stipends. This brought no small trouble upon those who resused, and many went into a voluntary banishment.

However, it was not long before matters took another turn. Episcopacy was not able to support itself, so that affemblies and provincial synods were restored, and Presbytery the king again professed a singular regard for the prest restored.

byterial establishment. In short, matters were carried on with fo much fuccefs, that,

In the year 1590, the NATIONAL COVENANT Was The naagain subscribed by all forts of persons. The general tional assembly met at Edinburgh on the 4th of August, and covenant then the king and the church seemed persectly reconscribed; for to the eighth session his majesty came in person, and, being seated in a chair of state, the moderator, Mr. Patrick Galloway, proposed to him these three things, viz. The ratification of the liberties of the kirk; Calderthe purging of the land of Jesuits, seminary priests, &c. wood.
and providing stipends or salaries in every parish for the ministers. To the first the king answered, That in all parliaments the liberties of the kirk were first ratified; that they knew his good-will to purge the land of Jesuits; and for the third he referred them to the council, and desired that Masters Bruce, Lindsay, Pont and the moderator might be fent as commissioners to treat on the subject. In a word, to please the affembly, he stood up, and taking off his bonnet, with his eyes and hands lifted up to heaven, faid, 'That he speech to s praised God that he was born in the time of the affembly. I light of the gospel, and in such a place as to be king of fuch a kirk, the fincerest kirk in the world. The kirk of Geneva keeps pafch and yule. What have they for them? They have no institution. As for our neighbour kirk in England, their service is an ill faid mass in English, they want nothing of the mass but the liftings. I charge you, my good people, miinifters, doctors, elders, nobles, gentlemen and bafrons, to stand to your purity, and to exhort the people to do the same, and I, forfooth, so long as I brook my life and crown, shall do the same.' Thus the king flattered the affembly; and they were fo moved with this unexpected declaration, that, for a quarter of an hour, there was nothing heard but praising God, and praying for the king.

The

While his majesty continued in this mood all things went on eafy, the church flourished, her judicatures fourishes. were acknowledged, and her prelatical enemies fell before her. On the 21st of May 1592. the assembly met and agreed to prefent the following articles to the king. I. That the acts of parliament made 1584. against the authority, discipline and government of the church, be reversed, and the present government established. 2. That the act of annexation be abolished, and the patrimony of the church restored. 3. That abbots, priors, and other prelates, have no more liberty to vote in parliament. And, 4. that the country, which is fearfully polluted with idolatry and blood, be purged.

A faithmition. Calderwood, p. 268.

The assembly directed their brethren, and others ful admo- who were appointed to present these articles, to go immediately to his majesty, and admonish him gravely, in the name of the eternal God, to have respect in time to the state of the true religion, to the many murders and oppressions daily multiplied through impunity and lack of justice, and to discharge the kingly office in both, as he will eschew the fearful challenge of God, and avert his wrath off himself and the whole land; and, that he might be the better informed, to lay down the particulars to him, and crave his answer. The king did not much relish this faithful warning. However,

The

1.1

tiff

pa

gra

tul

pr

the

fai

tai

28 kin

41

· i

. 6 2

6 t

6 1

. 1

en

pa

au

tic be

ed

mi

th

N A

to

aft

rei be

de

on to cal

sw/

The parliament sat down on the 29th of May, and ratisfied the privileges and government of the church, and particularly the Powers of general assemblies, synods, presbyteries, and kirks or kirk-sessions, and reversed the act 1584. granting commission to bishops and other judges constituted in ecclesiastical causes, esc. The ministers improved these advantages, and their judicatures exerted themselves to the utmost to suppress popery and profameness. And the better to gain this great and important point,

The provincial fynod of Fife met 1593. and gave it Plain as their opinion, that commissioners repair to the dealing. king, 'To tell plainly to his majesty, that which all Ibid. Po his true subjects think, touching his too much bearing with, favouring and countenancing of papifical teachers, his negligence in suppressing of idolatry and establishing the kingdom of Christ within the realm; and to declare freely to his majesty the resolution of all his godly and faithful subjects, viz. That they are ready to give their lives rather than to suffer the same.' Accordingly Mr. Melvil and others were appointed. The synod next proceeded to excommunicate the popish lords, without regard to the countenance they received from his majesty.

to

em-

his he

the

ing

The

ave

for

ais

mi-

ba-

the I

hus

ter

od,

ngs

res

ind

I,

be

2.

11-ote

ers

mly,

me

ers

nd th,

a-

nat ar-

lid

he

This plain dealing could not but excite the church's Not reenemies to contrive methods for her overthrow. The listed.
papists, on the one hand, plainly perceived that they could have no quiet settlement in Scotland, unless the authority of the church was broken: And profane politicians and courtiers, on the other, not being able to bear the strictness of the discipline established, prevailed with the king, notwithstanding of all his former promises and protestations, to oppose, and at last to overthrow it.

The assembly 1596. solemnly renewed the NATIO-NAL COVENANT, and made a faithful representation to the king of the sins of his person and family. But after that the church had not another like it during his reign; for ever after this he encroached upon their liberties, and, about the end of this year, a BOND was The devised to be subscribed by all the ministers of Scotland, BOND, on pain of losing their stipends, in which they were to acknowledge the king as their sovereign judge in all causes of sedition and treason,—necessard of all their speeches which may import the said orimes, though uttered in the pulpit, pulpit, or any other place. This faithful ministers would by no means subscribe; because, when they subscribed the confession of faith and national covenant, they there acknowledged his majesty's lawful authority; and because they perceived that it was devised on purpose for a fnare, and their subscription would be a virtual acknowledging of the king as supreme and only judge of ministers in all causes. Thus early did the church of Scotland testify against the ecclesiastical supremacy.

Proclamation a-Tainst Calderwood, P. 369.

On the 27th of December a proclamation was published at the cross of Edinburgh, requiring all magistrates, barons and gentlemen of power, to interrupt ministers, if they should utter any speeches tending to fedition from their pulpits, in reproach, contempt or disdain of the king, his parents or progenitors, his council and their proceedings, to put them in fure firmance, till the king and council were advertised to take farther order, or at least to hinder them from preaching within their bounds or jurisdiction. These were great encroachments. The most of the ministers refused the bond with abhorrence.

Convention at Perth.

After this the king called a convention of ministers, to meet at Perth the 28th of February 1597, the generality whereof were nominated by the king, and members came from the north in unufual numbers: And therefore the honest part of the ministers denied this to be a lawful affembly, and protested against it, and whatever should be transacted in it. Eight presbyteries entirely opposed it, but eleven approved of it under the name of extraordinary. And as the members of this meeting were fuch as generally subscribed the bond, they gave way to his majesty's measures.

Ordinary afferitly.

The lawful affembly had been appointed to meet at St. Andrews, whether Mr. Robert Pont, the moderator Ibid.402. of the last assembly, went on the 27th of April. Though the number of commissioners was but small, yet they met in form, constituted themselves regularly, and, having begun the affembly with prayer, as usual, and with the confession of fins, which had caused the present fad alteration of affairs, they protested for the liberty of the church, and referred all other affairs to the next meeting.

Mean while the king appointed another affembly at Dun- of his own model to meet at Dundee in the month of dee. Ibid. May. The king's design, at this assembly, was to get the popish lords, who had been excommunicated, ab-

folyed

fo

th

fo

C

pi

gı

af

hi

W

th

to

pe

fte

We

Wa

tio

ch

abl

re

do

Th

wa

tha

pal

ftor

pro

abb

vot

fon

roya

Ma

to 1

this

feffi

par

act

ny

Mr.

nan

who

ing

folved, and the affembly at Perth acknowledged. By this time, one way or other, he got feveral of the poorer fort of the ministers to come in to his measures, some complying for preferment, and others for honour and profit; and thus a rent was made in the church, which grew wider and wider every day. Accordingly this affembly absolved the lords, ratified the Perth affembly, ordained that there be no meeting of ministers without his majesty's consent; and indeed all ecclesiastical matters, which were to be treated in general affemblies, were, hence foreward, first proposed and determined by the king.

ble

ib-

ey

nd

ofe

al

ge

of

b-gi-

pt

to

or

nce, ır-

ng

at

he

rs,

an

rs

e-

be

it-

n

he

is

ey

at

or

gh

ey

d.

nd

nt

of

xt

ly

of

et

b= do

At his majesty's desire this affembly chose fourteen of All for their number, authorifing them, or any feven of them, ministers to advise with him about a method of presenting the to vote in petitions and grievances of the church, fettling mini- ment. sters stipends, &c. However plausible the pretences were for this commission, yet the event shewed what was the real delign; for foon after they gave in a petition to the parliament then litting, in the name of the church, (though falfly, for the main body of the church abhorred the thought of fuch a thing) that ministers, as representing the church, the third estate of the kingdom, might have liberty to sit and vote in parliament. The estates in parliament assembled, judging that there Ibid. was no inconveniency in complying, being of opinion 412. that no honest minister would assume any prelatical title, palt the same into a law, and ordained, that fuch pastors and ministers, as at any time his majesty shall please to provide to the office, place, title and dignity of a bishop, abbot, or other prelate, shall at any time hereafter have vote in parliament, as much as ever any ecclefialtical perfon had in times past, &c. And this was approved by the royal affembly, which met at Dundee the following March. At this affembly the king would fuffer nothing to be done till Mr. Andrew Melvil was removed. Nay, this Mr. Melvil, together with Mr. John Johnston professor of divinity in St. Andrews, were charged to depart out of the town under pain of horning. When the act of approbation passed by a small majority, after many threatnings to some, and promises to others, then Mr. John Davidson entered a solemn protest in his own name, and in the name of all the ministers of Scotland who adhered to him, against that and the two preceeding affemblies, as void and null. It is certain their acts were afterwards reverfed, both by the parliament and affembly.

In short, there were several meetings, as one at Falkons. A land the 29th of July 1598, where were some debates pologet. upon this affair, and some cautions limiting these parliarelation. mentary ministers, to propose nothing in parliament without express warrant from the church, to be accountable to the general affembly, and fubject to their prefbytery and fynod, and every way to behave as other ministers; and to all these, and other necessary points, they were bound to fwear and fubscribe. But all this was artifice, the better to bring in episcopacy by art and Hift. p. flattery, and by degrees; for even Spotiswood fays, It was neither the king's intention, nor the minds of the wifer fort, to have those cautions stand in force, but to have mutters peaceably ended, and the reformation of the policy made (i.e. episcopacy established) without any noise. From hence it is plain, that prelacy was established in Scotland on the foundation of royal flattery and diffimula-tion, and of open and avowed perjury.

King's letter to the pope.

453.

In July 1599. Monsieur Bethune arrived ambassador from the most christian king, for renewing the ancient league between France and Scotland; and in September following the king wrote a flattering letter to the pope, at the instigation of secretary Elphingston, intreating him to promote the bishop of Vaizon, a Scotsman, to the dignity of a cardinal, that by his means there might be a correspondence between the king and the court of Rome. In this letter his majesty stiles the pope, beatissime Pater, Pontifex maximus, &c. The king afterwards pretended that another person wrote this letter, and that he figned it in haste, in a crowd of other papers which were to pass the sign-manual. The curious reader may fee the letter itself in Calderwood's history, p. 427. fince I have not room to infert it here.

On the 17th of November following began the famous conference at Holy-rood-house, to which fundry ministers were summoned, but the king took care to secure a majority of his own party. For formality's fake those things were debated and resolved, which his majesty had before resolved without debating. The questions were not, if the giving ministers votes in parliament should be confirmed; that was past already: But how many they should be who should chuse, and what title they should bear. In a word, their number Conference at Holyroodhouse.

and that foun

0 vere cont the l bride were

A from Sabet coun the l and .

> chur faid, ·.Il 6 to no in in · vif

O

6 fha dir t per my " ftie 4 fel to to ou ou 6 my T was of ar ipiri very decla Ir Pert rity, of th relto nour act o

and

and choice were left to the king, and it was proposed that they should have the title of bishops: And thus a foundation was laid for bringing in of prelacy.

On the 19th of November 1601, the queen was deli- K. Charl vered of a prince, afterwards king CHARLES I. Matters I. born, continued much in the same situation during the time the king continued in Scotland: The assemblies were abridged of their liberty, and the parliamentary ministers were appointed. But,

About the end of March 1603. an express arrived The king from England, with the news of the death of queen Eli-ascends the sabeth, and with letters of recognition from the privy- England, council there; upon which James was congratulated by the lords, &c. and proclaimed king of England, France and Ireland.

On the 3d of April he made a speech in the great His church of Edinburgh, wherein, among other things, he speech. said, 'As God hath promoved me to a greater power than Calder'I had, so I must endeavour to establish religion, and wood, pe
'to take away corruption in both countries. Ye need 'not doubt, but, as I have a body as able as any king in Europe, whereby I am able to travail, so I shall 'visit you every three years at least, or oftner, as I

's shall have occasion, (for so have I written in my book directed to my son, and it were a shame to me not to

'my own mouth, take account of the execution of ju'flice of them that are under me; and that ye your-felves may fee and hear me, and, from the meanest to the greatest, have access to my person, and pour out your complaints in my bosom. This shall ever be ' my courfe.'

ıd

k-

es

a-

nt

nf-

er

s,

is

nd

It

er

de

m

t-

a-

or

nt

er

at

to

g-

be

e.

d-

he

er

7.

fa-

nile-

y's

nis

ie-

ia-

But

nd

nd nd

These were fair promises, but not one word of them All griwas performed; for no sooner did he become a king mace. of an episcopal church, but, as was always natural to the spirit of prelacy in Scotland, he became a persecutor of that very church, which, in the most solemn manner, he had declared to be the sincerest or purest church upon earth.

In the month of July 1606, the parliament met at Bishops Perth, and acknowledged his majesty's sovereign author restored by rity, princely power, royal prerogative and privilege parliations of the crown, over all estates, persons and causes, and ment. Apol reselvored the bishops to the ancient and accustomed holat. p. nour, privileges, livings, lands, &c. and repealed the 34. act of annexation; by which they were restored to their votes in parliament, and had the title of Lords of parliament. But though they were thus advanced to civil dignities, yet no ecclefiastical jurisdiction was given them. The commissioners from the several presbyteries through Scotland, being met at Edinburgh, gave in a most excellent protestation against this, in the name of the church in general, and in name of their presbyteries from whom they had commission in particular. This was subscribed by a great many ministers, and among others by Mr. Adam Bannantine, Mr. John Abernethy, and Mr. William Couper, who afterwards became bishops themselves,

C

P. 35.

Conflaint ... When prelates were thus advanced to their civil dignities, methods were next fallen upon to advance them tors. Ibid. to spiritual power. Accordingly, on the 10th of December this same year, an affembly was called to meet at Linlithgow; but then only some presbyteries, in whom the king most consided, had notice of it; nay, matters were so secretly managed, that the moderator of the last allembly knew nothing of the matter. Here it was agreed, that there should be constant moderators in presbyteries chosen, and that, where the bishops resided, they should moderate both in synods and presbyteries. When this act came down refined from court, about half a year afterwards, all fynods and prefbyteries were charged, under pain of rebellion, to admit the constant moderators.

Conduct _ nod of Perth. Calder-

This was so disagreeable to the church of Scotland, of the fy- that not one of the provincial fynods accepted the constant moderator, except the synod of Angus, and even there it met with no small opposition. But the synod of Perth remarkably distinguished themselves on this 565, &c. occasion, at their meeting in April 1607. Lord Scoon came with a commission from the king, and threatned them in his majesty's name, if they refused to admit a constant moderator. But, notwithstanding all threatnings and unjustifiable infults, Mr. Row, their last moderator, took the roll of the fynod in his hand, and, when Scoon would have pulled it out, Mr. Row kept his hold, and called all the names of the members, who choic Mr. Henry Livingston for their moderator. He beginning with prayer, according to the cultom of the indicatories at that time, Secon profanely interrupted him, and threw down the table, but he still continued. In short, when they returned to the next meeting, the churchdoors were shut against them, so that they were obliged to meet at the fouth church-door, and agreed, that every prefpref chui I

und

with court Edin obta conf man peop oppi A nera at G had tend with feve were ney it w of al at hi that mini femb rity

H elect for Engl Mr. of G feal, Rock Engl the mon

upor

grea

meet

ed t arch presbytery, at their first meeting after the synod, should chuse their own moderator.

ar-

ven .

ries

the

om

ub-

by

Vil-

es,

em)eeet

ers

aft

a-

y-

ey

en

ar

n-

s.

id,

n-

en

bo

13

ON

d

t-

n

1,

.

g

1-

di,

1

In the month of February 1610. a commission given High under the great seal to the two archbishops, together commission with several noblemen and gentlemen, to hold two on courts. courts of high commission, was proclaimed at the cross of Edinburgh; by virtue of which the archbishops, &c. obtained power to excommunicate, imprison, fine and confine, for causes ecclesiastic, whether in doctrine or manners, whether in noblemen, ministers, or common people; and there was scarce any kind of injustice or oppression that was not practised in consequence of this.

And that the bishops might have the fanction of a ge- Glasgow neral affembly, one of the king's appointment was held affembly. at Glafgow in June. All the constant moderators, who had their hundred pounds a-year, reforted to this pretended affembly. The earl of Dumbar was fent thither with a strong guard to intimidate the ministers, so that several, who were coming from the west to protest, were forced to return back. There was likeways money brought to hire votes. At this corrupt meeting it was, among other things, agreed, that the calling of affemblies belonged to the king; that every minister, at his admission, shall swear obedience to his ordinary; that fynods should be moderated by Prelates; that no minister shall preach or write against the acts of this affembly; and that the question about the parity or imparity of ministers shall not be mentioned in the pulpit, upon pain of deprivation, &c. But though these were great encroachments, yet there was not a word at this meeting concerning the confectation of bishops,

However, it was judged necessary that the bishops bishops elect should be consecrated by some of the same order; consecrated this purpose the king sent for three of them into England, viz. Mr. Spotiswood archbishop of Glasgow, Mr. Lamb bishop of Brechen, and Mr. Hamilton bishop of Galloway, and issued a commission under the great seal, to the bishops of London, Ely, Bath and Wells, and Rochester, requiring them to proceed to the consecration of the above mentioned bishops according to the English Ordinal. They were accordingly consecrated in the chapel at London-house, October 21. 1610. In the month of December the three consecrated bishops returned to Scotland, and consecrated Mr. George Gladstones archbishop of St. Andrews, and in January and February 1611. the rest of the bishops were confecrated, some

di Ibo

wi

tei

la

re

fu

D

ha

de

wo

th

W

CO

at

te W

all

ny

21:

7110

of

fiv

til

W

th

Ita

the

pr

dy

WI

car che

ev fie

mi

at St. Andrews, and some at Leith.

Thus the original constitution of the church of Scotland was overturned by an usurped authority, and other violent and indirect means, contrary to the inclinations of the people, and the repeated protestations of the affembly. Bishop Burnet, (though an adversary) in the history of his own times, acknowledges that great opposition was made to all these steps; and adds, that the whole force of the government was strained to carry elections to those meetings, or to take off those who were chosen, in which it was thought that no fort of practice was omitted, Cath of Supremacy.

P. 10.

In the year 1612. a parliament met, and inserted in their registers the oath which every minister was to fwear at his admission, by which they declared that the king was the supreme governor in all causes ecclesiastical as well as civil, and that they held their churches of his majelty and the crown royal of the realm. They were also to swear obedience to the bishop of the diocese, Thus were matters carried on with a high hand in fayour of prelacy, contrary to the general fense both of ministers and people.

Sacrament at Easter.

On the 4th of March 1614. the ministers were commanded, by proclamation at the cross of Edinburgh, to prepare the people for the Lord's supper, and to administer it to them upon Easter-day the 24th of April, The people were likeways charged to communicate on that day at their own parish-churches, which was contrary to feveral acts of affembly.

The king's progres to Scotland. .

In the year 1617. the king made a tour to Scotland, still farther to advance the cause of prelacy there. The chapel at Holy-rood-house was adorned after the manner of that at Whitehall, pictures being carried from London with the statues of the twelve apostles and four evangelists, curiously wrought in timber, in order to be gilded and fet up. But the people murmuring, the bishops diffuaded the king from fetting them up. His majesty made his publick entry into Edinburgh on the 16th of May, and next day the English service, finging of quirifters, playing on organs, and furplices, were first heard and seen in the chapel-royal. And the facrament of the Lord's supper was administred on Whitfunday after the English form. However, still greater alterations must be made; for, when the parliament did

ome

cot-

her

ati-

the

the

op-

the

ye-

who

t of

in

to

the

ical

his

rere

efe.

fa-

of

-mc

to

mi-

rit.

on

on-

and, The

ner

on-rebe

bi-

mathe

ing

ere fa-

hit-

ter

ent did

did meet, it was proposed, that what soever his majesty should determine in the external government of the church, with the advice of the archbishops, bishops, and a competent number of the ministry, should have the strength of a About fifty five ministers entered a humble and respectful protest against this, for which several of them fuffered exceedingly; as Mr. Archibald Simpson, Mr. David Calderwood, Mr. Peter Hewet, and others, who, having been fummoned before the high commission, were deprived and confined, or imprisoned, and Mr. Calderwood was ordered to depart forth of the kingdom. So that the bishops being once got in, the king and they were refolved to carry matters as far as possible. Accordingly.

On the 25th of August 1618. a meeting was called Five arat Perth, to which his majesty sent seven noblemen, fif- tides of teen barons and gentlemen. Here the honest party Spotifwood, who took upon him to was born down. moderate, told them, that he would fend the names of all who refused to the king. He asked the votes of many who had no commission, and so these five articles, viz. 1. Kneeling at the holy facrament ; 2. Private communion; 3. private baptism; 4. confirmation of children; and, 5. the observation of holy-days, had the approbation of all, except one nobleman, one doctor, and forty five ministers. All these unscriptural innovations Spo-tifwood got ratified in the high commission.

But these not being sufficient to establish the articles Ratified into a law, it was refolved to use all the interest of by parliathe court to carry them through the parliament, which most. was not, however, attempted till the year 1621. and then they were ratified on the 4th of August, notwithitanding all the opposition made thereto by several faithful ministers. But the methods used were contrary to Calderthe ordinary freedom of parliament. Care was taken wood. that none of the ministers should get into the house to protest, for they knew that they had a protestation ready to deliver. And in the parliament itself they met with great opposition. The lords Rothes, Monteith, Eglington, Linlithgow, Kintail, Gray, Rofs, Yester, Cathcart, Cowpar, Burlie, Balmerine, Elphingstoun, Torphichen, and Forbes, all publickly voted against it. However, the act passed, and the articles were thereby rati-But it is remarked, that when the king's commillioner rose to touch this act with the sceptre, there

fti

go

So

on

lan

on

to att

ear

Soi

on

An

La

6 a

· r · W

6. n · p

· 1

· L

· yo

· a

" ty

· W

· fo

6 hi

maj

to a

pro

ing

and ligio

poli

fear Som

king

plice

mad

Said

who

it w

C

came in at the window a great flash of lightning; after that a fecond, and a third. Then there fucceeded an extraordinary darkness to the astonishment of all in the house. The lightnings were followed by three loud claps of thunder, which feveral thought were the firing of the castle guns. Then there was a surprising shower of hail, succeeded by such rain as made the streets run like rivers, so that the parliament was obliged to stay within doors for an hour and an half, and afterwards to go home without their robes.

tyrannized over all ranks in such a manner, that the Persecuti- The prelates having now all power in their hands, this.

17.

inhabitants were more afraid of disobliging them than his majesty; for they banished or imprisoned what gentlemen or ministers they pleased upon the slightest pretences, such as hearing their own old ministers, and the like. The prisons were filled with deprived ministers, and the remote parts with the banished. thus far king James went in establishing prelacy, and thereby shewed his gratitude to those by whom his life was preferved in his infancy, and by whose means he obtained the crown; and what a regard he had for the national covenant, and for that which he called the purest church upon earth. But I leave the reader to his own The king reflections. He died not without suspicion of poison, dies. p. -27th March 1625. It is certain, fays bishop Burnet, no king died less lamented, or less esteemed than he was. This funk the credit of the bishops of Scotland; who, as they were his creatures, so they were obliged to a great dependence on him, and even thought guilty of grofs and abject flattery towards him.

His fuccessor CHARLES I. was no less zealous than fucceeds. his father for prelacy, but being left embarassed in a war with Spain, and afterwards entering into another rashly with France, he had not leifure to purfue his deligns upon the church of Scotland for some years. However, at length, he carried things in so arbitrary a manner, both there and in England, that he never defisted till he tumbled headless from the throne.

Though, about the end of the last reign, the persecution was hot against some eminent ministers; yet many, by the special providence of God, had a peaceable residence at their several pastoral charges. Some of them were protected by persons of considerable di-Wilson's stinction, for not a few of the first rank in Scotland di-Defence. ftinguished flinguished themselves by a concern for the purity of gospel-ordinances, and remarkable success attended the ministry of those who had not conformed to prelacy. Solemn falts were likeways observed through the land, on account of the deplorable state of the church of Scotland, and for a revival of the Lord's work in that nation: And God was pleased to give a gracious return ing marked ev to their prayers, as we shall relate.

ter

an

the

oud

ing

ver

ets

to

er-

ds,

the

nan

hat

telt

und

ni-

nd

and life

he

the rest

wn

on,

net, he

nd;

ged

ilty

han

war hly

upver,

ner,

till

rfeyet

ice-

ome di-

di-

hed

In the year 1633. the king made a tour to Scotland, His proattended by Land bishop of London, together with the gress to earls of Arundel, Northumberland, Holland, Pembrake, Southampton, and other lords, where he was crowned His coroon the 18th of June by Spotiswood archbishop of St. nation. Andrews, affilted by the bishops of Ross and Moray. One Hift. of Larrey, speaking of the king's coronation, says, The the Stu-' archbishop of Glasgow ought to have been on the arts. ' right of the archbishop of St. Andrews; but Laud, P. 117. who had the direction of the ceremony, feeing he was onot in his pontifical robes, as the others were, being a person who abhorred pomp, had the boldness to pull ' him forcibly from his place, and to substitute the bi-' shop of Ross in his stead. To this outrageous insult Land added words that were not less infulting, Are you a churchman, and dare you appear here without a habit fuitable to the episcopal dignity, and the folemnity of this day? The Scots faw, by this action, what was to be expected from fuch a man, who was zealous for episcopacy even to superstition; but they knew ' him much better soon after.'

On the 20th of June the parliament met and gave his His usage majesty the largest subsidy that had ever been granted of the to any king of Scotland before him. After which he parliaproposed two acts relating to religion, the one concern-Rapin, ing his royal prerogative and the apparel of churchmen, and the other for ratifying the former acts touching religion. These were the only acts that met with any oppolition, on account of the confequences which fome feared the king would afterwards draw from them. Some of the members of this parliament suspected the king would make use of this act to introduce the fur-And being asked whether he intended it, he made no answer, but, taking a lift out of his pocket, Said, Gentlemen, I have all your names here, and I'll know Neal. who will do me service and who not this day. However, Vol. 2. it was carried in the negative, thirteen lords and the F. 239. majority majority of the commons voting against it. The lords faid, they agreed to the act fo far as it related to his majesty's prerogative, but diffented from that part of it which referred to the apparel of churchmen, fearing left under that cover the furplice might be introduced. But his majesty said, he would have no distinction, but commanded them to fay yes or no to the whole bill. The king marked every man's vote, and, upon casting them up, the clerk declared that it was carried in the affirmative, which some of the members denying, his majesty. faid, the clerk's declaration should stand, unless any of them would go to the bar, and accuse him of fallifying the record of parliament, at the peril of his life. This method of proceeding juftly difgusted all ranks of people, especially as the king would not look upon the diffenting lords, nor fuffer them to kifs his hand.

Laud's regulati-

When the king left Scotland, he erected a new bishoprick at Edinburgh, and about two mouths after, Laud ons of the being advanced to the archbishoprick of Canterbury, pel. Ibid. framed articles for the reformation of his majesty's royal chapel in that city, which were fent to Scotland, with a declaration under the king's own hand, that they were intended as a pattern for all cathedrals, chapels and parish-churches in that kingdom. The Liturgy was to be read in the choir, the facrament to be received kneeling, the dean to appear in his whites, &c. were come to a forry pass, when such innovations were made by an English prelate, without the confent of either parliament or general affembly in Scotland. Surely faithful ministers had just reason to preach against the English hierarchy, and to warn the people against furrendering up their liberbies into the hands of a neighbouring nation.

Prejudithe dukes of Hamilton. p. 29.

Accordingly their endeavours were not fruitless: ces against For, as bishop Burnet observes, though the bishops were thebishops. cherished by the king with all imaginable expressions Mem. of of kindness and confidence, yet, being charged with popery, arminianism, and breach of sabbath, they lost all their esteem with the people. Neither, says he, stood they in better terms with the nobility, who were at that time as considerable as ever Scotland saw them. They were offended because the bishops seemed to have more interest with the king than themselves. Spotifwood archbishop of St. Andrews was made chancellor, and Maxwell bishop of Ross was fair for the treasury. They were

Wer prid that rouf ken blem canon fhop Lond Wren fente 7uxo and t The pared pater the : whol first and j Fewi cond worf was 1 by ar or ur femb. and knees point muni no pe or ac the fo with er ev would reign. confe ed ftr macy,

An public This were no less hateful to the ministry, because of their pride, which was cried out upon as insupportable; so that the reader cannot be surprised at the nation's being roused, and at the methods which were afterwards taken to throw off the difmal yoke of prelacy.

13

1-

it

ft

ut

ut

ne

m

a-

ty.

of.

ng

113

oif-

p-

ud

ry,

y-

ha

ere

nd

to el-

ers

ere ei-

ely

the ur-

gh-

fs:

ere

ons

po-

all

boo

hat

hey

ore

vood

and

hey

vere

When the king was in Scotland, it was reckoned a Book of blemish in the church, that it had no liturgy nor book of canons. canons. To supply this defect the king ordered the bi- Neal. shops to prepare draughts of both, and remit them to vol. 2. London to be revised by the bishops Laud, Juxon and Wren. The book of canons being first finished, was prefented to the king, and by him delivered to Land and Tuxon to be examined, altered and reformed at pleasure, and to bring it as near as possible to the English canons. The bishops having executed their commission, and prepared it for the press, the king confirmed it by letterspatents under the great seal, dated at Greenwich, May the 23d 1635. These canons were subversive of the whole constitution of the church of Scotland; for the first canon excommunicates all who affirm the power and prerogative of the king not to be equal with the fewish kings, that is, absolute and unlimited. The fecond excommunicates those who shall affirm, that the worship contained in the book of common-prayer (which was not yet published) or the government of the church by archbishops, bishops, &c. to be corrupt, superstitious, or unlawful .---- The book farther decrees, that no affembly of the clergy shall be called but by the king ; and that none shall receive the sacrament but on their knees. After fundry other canons of this nature, as appointing fonts for baptism, church-ornaments, communion-tables of altars, &c. the book appoints, that no person shall be admitted to holy orders, or to preach, or administer the sacraments, without first subscribing the forefaid canons. These things could never go down with the people of Scotland. Nothing could be a greater evidence of infatuation, than to think that they would submit to canons dictated for them by a few foreign bishops, without so much as asking their advice or These proceedings, and such an unprecedented stretch of the prerogative, and to them hateful supremacy, could not miss to enflame them.

And, to crown all, the king was refolved to have a Book of publick liturgy or book of common-prayer used in Scotland: common-this his father could never accomplish, and his son soon prayer.

D

found

found it impracticable. It was, however, appointed to be read on Easter-day 1637. against which Time all parishes were to be provided with two books at least. It was first fet up in the chapel royal at Holy-rood-house, but the more the people faw the service performed, the more hateful and abominable it appeared to them.

Tumult in Mem. of church of p. 178, UC.

On the 23d of July there was a great concourse of the great people in the great church at Edinburgh, and, when the hour of service was come, the dean in his surplice came out of the vestry, (the people gazing as at a great show) Scotland, paffed through the crowd to the reading delk, and began the fervice, the people as yet continuing quiet; but on a sudden, at some words that disgusted Fanet Geddes, an old woman, the started up and faid, Villian, dost thou fay mass at my lug? And taking up a little stool, on which she sat, threw it at the desk. Some that sat next followed her example, till the whole church was in an uproar, and the dean obliged to leave the delk and pull off the furplice, for fear of being torn in pieces. The bishop of Edinburgh being present, went into the pulpit and beckoned for filence, but to no purpose: So both bishop and dean were obliged to give over, and Burnet's retire to the veltry for their fafety. As the lords of Mem. of council complained to the king of this disorder, they

D. of Ha- spared not to lay the greatest blame of it upon the bip. 31, Shops. After the strictest inquiry, it did not appear that milton, any above the meaner fort were accessory to this tumult. 32. However, the lords of council thought proper to difpense with the fervice next lord's day, till they should Neal. p. hear from his majesty. But Laud dispatched their mel-315.

fenger with all expedition, telling them, It was the king's firm resolution that they should go on with their work; and blaming them highly for fuspending it.

P. 181.

bill of

The country people having then been engaged in Mem. of their harvest, things went on pretty smooth; but, when ch. Scot that was over, it was foon found that the generality of the nation was difgusted at these impositions: Accordingly, in the middle of September, a vast number of gentlemen of rank, and others, presented a petition to the council, requesting them that the service-book might be no farther pressed upon them, till these things might be represented to the king, and his pleasure be farther known. The council not regarding this petition, and being averse to a being importuned, removed the session to L

enra

cil-h

ded

the /

ly in

was dred

tants

the l dere forb

burg 6 L.

· Sc

tit

fit

6 fia

cr cr

3.

ar OU

ad

in

ef

5.

pi cl

al

· de larg

Th

the to 1

ing

din

the

rou

and

cor

lo!

U

ed to

I pa-

. It oufe,

the

fe of

1 the

came

low)

be-

but

ddes,

thou

, on fat

was

desk

ces,

the

: So

and s of

they

bi-

that ult.

dif-

ould

nef-

ng's

and

in hen

lity

or-

of

to ght

ght

her

ind ion

to

to Linlithgow; whereat the citizens of Edinburgh were fo enraged, that a vast mob arose and surrounded the council-house, while the members were sitting, and demanded a more favourable answer to their petition, and that the fervice-book might be laid afide till the king was fully informed of the matter. Next day another petition was presented, signed by nineteen noblemen, three hundred gentlemen of note, and by the principal inhabitants of Edinburgh. But tho' this petition was fent to the king, yet, instead of returning a fost answer, he ordered a proclamation to be published from Stirling, to forbid all tumultuous meetings on pain of rebellion, &c.

Upon this fundry noblemen, barons, ministers and And a burghers met together, and signed the following protest, protestati-1. That it is the undoubted right of the subjects of on. Neal.

Scatland to have immediate recourse to the king by pe- P. 317. tition. 2. That archbishops and bishops ought not to fit in any judicatory in this kingdom, civil or ecclefiaftical, till they have purged themselves of those crimes which are ready to be proved against them, 3. That no proclamation of council, in presence of the archbishops or bishops, shall be prejudicial to any of our proceedings. 4. That neither we, nor any that adhere to us, shall incur any damages for not observing the liturgy, or book of canons, as long as it is not established by general assembly, or act of parliament. 5. That, if any inconvenience fall out (which God prevent) upon pressing the late innovations, we declare the same is not to be imputed to us. 6. That all our proceedings in this affair have no other tendency, but the preservation of the true reformed religion, and the laws and liberties of the kingdom.'

The council, being apprehensive of danger from these They erest large assemblies and combinations of people, agreed, TA-That if they would return peaceably to their habitations, BLES. they might appoint some of their number of all ranks to represent the rest, till his majesty's pleasure concerning their protest should be more fully known. Accordingly they erected four TABLES at Edinburgh, one of the nobility, another of the gentry, a third of the boroughs, and a fourth of the ministers. These prepared and digested matters for the general TABLE formed of commissioners from the other four, where the final Refolutions were taken.

Renew the lation. p. 47.

28 These, rightly judging that the main procuring cause of all the calamities of the nation, was the violation of the NATIONAL COVENANT, unanimously resolved to renew the fame; and accordingly they drew it up with fome additions and confirmations out of the acts of parliament, and bound themselves ' to adhere unto, and defend the true religion, and (forbearing the practice of all novations already introduced in the worship of 6 God, or approbation of the corruptions of the publick government of the kirk, or civil places and power of kirk-men, till they be tried and allowed in free affemblies and parliaments) to labour, by all means lawful, to recover the purity and liberty of the gospel, as it was established and professed before the foresaid innovations, and promife and fwear to continue in the profession and obedience of the foresaid religion, to · refift all contrary errors or corruptions; and that they had no intention to attempt any Thing that might tend to the dishonour of God, or to the diminution of the king's greatness and authority, and to defend themselves mutually in the same cause, &c.' This was fubscribed by all present; and copies of it, being sent to those who were absent, were read in the churches, heartily approved of, and subscribed and sworn to, with Wilson's tears and great joy, on the first of March 1638. in the defence- Grey-friers church at Edinburgh. The flower of the nation was present. This solemn meeting consisted of the nobility, of the barons and gentlemen from the feveral fhires, of burgesses from burghs, with ministers, and o-The town of Aberdeen was the only place of any note in the kingdom that declined to join in the cove-Therefore the general meetings at Edinburgh fent Malters Alex. Henderson, Dav. Dickson, and Andrew Cant, to that town; and, notwithstanding the opposition they met with from the doctors and ministers of the

Marg. of Hamil-

P. 240,

VF.

The king, being informed of all these proceedings, fent the marquis of Hamilton, as his high commissioner, ton com- to use his utmost to disfolve the TABLES, and get missioner, them to desist from the covenant. The covenanters (for so they were after this called) absolutely refused, and infifted upon a free parliament and a general affembly, place, fuch was their fuccess, that several of special note chearfully put their hands to the covenant, which was fworn by the generality of all ranks through the nation before the end of April.

The

ti

fe

th

th

ha

fa

qu

di

aff

lit

art

viz

jed

ed,

me

the

eld

bui

the

rev

mo tho

feffi

and

the

tion

peer

rede

dyin

and

exp

on t fign

king diffe

T

ule

of

to ith

ar-

and

tice

of

ick

rof

em-

ful,

s it

no-

hey

ight

n ot

end

was t to

hes,

vith

the

na-

the

eral d o-

any

over

fent

rew

fiti-

the

was

tion

ngs,

get (for

and

bly, The

The marquis, finding he could make no Impression on these faithful men, returned to court: Mean while the general meeting agreed to publish a paper, intitled, Reafons for a general affembly, and came to a resolution, That, if the king should refuse, or delay, to call a general asfembly, they would fall upon the most proper measures themselves for conveening a free national assembly of the church of Scotland. The marquis returned about the 12th of August, and proposed from the king the granting of an affembly, but upon fuch conditions as had an evident tendency to frustrate the designs of these faithful contenders for the cause of Christ. quis returning again to court, it was agreed, That, if he did not come back by the 22d of September, they should proceed in the election of commissioners for a general The marquis, according to his Instructions, affembly. had made feveral concessions, such as, the revoking the liturgy, the canons, the high commission, and the five articles of Perth; But as the main thing was omitted, viz. the abolishing of diocefan episcopacy, they justly rejected all proposals. He returned at the time appointed, and published a proclamation for an assembly to meet at Glasgow the 21st of November 1638.

The affembly met, confifting of 143 ministers, toge- The genether with professors from the universities, and 95 ruling ral affemelders from the presbyteries and burghs. Forty eight by at burghs were present by their commissioners, so that Ibid. p. there were only 47 elders from the presbyteries. The 248. reverend Mr. Henderson minister at Leuchars was cholen moderator. The earl, afterwards marquis of Argyll, p. 254though a member of the privy-council, attended all the sessions of this assembly, in order to hear their debates and determinations concerning diocesan episcopacy and the five articles of Perth, and declared his full fatisfaction with their decisions. It was here that this noble peer began to distinguish himself by a concern for the redeemer's glory, and he continued stedfast unto the end, dying a martyr for that cause which he now espoused; and, at their 8th fession, several others of the nobility expressed themselves after the same manner with Argyll.

The marquis finding, after seven days attendance up-dissived, on the assembly, that they resolved to carry on the design of the TABLES, thought fit to dissolve them in the king's name. But, as they found not his reasons for dissolving them of equal weight with those which called them together, they entred a humble protest thereagainst, and continued to fit until they finished their business. In their protest they say, That it is unlawful in it self, and prejudicial to the privileges that Christ has left his church, for the king to dissolve or break up the assemblies of this kirk, or stay their proceedings; for then it would follow, that religion and church-government depended abfolutely on the pleasure of the prince, &c. The affembly, therefore, continued fitting till they passed the following acts: An act for disannulling all the assemblies by which prelacy was countenanced and established, particularly those held in the years 1606, 1608, 1610, 1616, 1617, 1618. An act for abjuring and abolishing episcopacy: An act for condemning the five articles of Perth, book of canons, book of ordination, and the high-commission: An act for restoring presbyteries, provincial and national assemblies; and feveral others of the same nature. They likeways pronounced fentence of deposition against the bishops, eight of whom were excommunicated, four excluded from the ministerial function, and two only allowed to officiate as paltors or presbyters. They then wrote to the king, complaining of his majesty's commissioner for declaring them traitors, and praying that he would look upon them as his good and faithful subjects.

them

The king goes against and partly from his confulting with none but the avowed enemies of presbytery, published his resolution, on the 26th of January 1639. to go in person against the Scots COVENANTERS at the head of an army. They, on the other hand, hearing of the preparations which were making against them, provided as well as they could for their own necessary defence. The king went against them with an army; but matters were so manag-A pacifi- ed, that his majesty thought proper to yield to a pacification, by which all differences were to be referred to a general affembly, to be held August the 12th, and a parliament to meet in a fortnight thereafter. Both armies were to be dismissed; however the Scots, knowing with whom they had to do, prudently kept their officers in pay, that they might be ready in case of necessity.

But the king, partly from his aversion to presbytery,

th

an

ap En

the

of

na

the

pli

bly

fift

the lian

Affembly

cation.

The affembly met at Edinburgh, and the earl of Traand par- quair was commissioner. They unanimously confirmed the allembly at Glasgow, appointed the COVENANT to be taken throughout the kingdom, and, with one confent, determined that diocefan episcopacy was unlawful; all all which the commissioner assented to. The parliament fat down on the 31st of August, but, things being managed contrary to the king's inclinations, it was prorogued to the 2d of June 1640.

t,

lf,

is ies

ly,

ng

ch

rly

17,

of

act

es;

ays

ps,

om

ate

ng,

ing

oon

ery,

on,

inst

ley,

nich

hey vent

cift-

to a par-

mies

with s in

Tra-

T to

con-

ful;

all

Mean while the king resolved to renew the war, in War resorder to sorce the Scots to a compliance with his defigns. newed. Both parties made preparations accordingly. The Scots were victorious at Newburn and took Newcastle. At last the king, finding it impossible to carry on the war, appointed commissioners to treat with the Scots at Rippon, who agreed to a cessation of arms for two months, and the treaty to be adjourned to London, where a free parliament was immediately to be called.

While these things were transacting, the parliament Parliaof Scotland sat down on the 2d of June, which was the ment sat time to which it was adjourned, and, by their fourth act, down. they ingrossed and specially ratissed an act of the general assembly 1639. condescending on the imposing of prelacy, the service-book, and book of canons, the sive articles of Perth, &c. as the causes of their bygone evils, with the remedies thereof. They also ratissed the coVENANT, and ordered it to be inserted in their registers.
So that, if we may not say with some authors, that, in this parliament, all the acts of the assembly 1639, were ratissed, we may, at least, assirm, that the sum and substance of the reformation then attained to, and contended for, was so.

The king, not relishing the proceedings of the parlia- The king ment at Westminster, made another progress into Scot-goes to land, with a view, whatever was pretended, to break Scotland. Neal. p. the confederacy that was then between the Scots and the English parliament. He arrived at Edinburgh in August, and on the 19th the parliament sat down, and there he approved of all their late proceedings, in opposing the English liturgy, and erecting TABLES in defence of their liberties. And it was enacted, That every member Wod-of succeeding parliaments shall take and subscribe the natio-row. p. nal covenant, and give an oath in parliament relative 22. thereunto. And thus presbyterian government and discipline were re-established by king, parliament and assembly, and abjured prelacy legally abrogated.

While CHARLES was at Edinburgh, it is faid that he Hist. of fifted the Scots, to see whether he could prevail with Stuarts. them to invade England, to assist him to subject the par- P- 178. liament there to his will; and that he offered them the

hree

three northern counties for this service. Yea, the and p. 22,23. thor of The mystery of iniquity, printed at London 1643. fays, ' That the king fent propositions to the Scots while at Newcastle, of joining with the English army against the parliament, and that, for this Service, he offered them three hundred thousand pounds to be paid down, the four northern counties, and the plunder of London, the quitting of his revenues and customs in that kingdom to their publick use, the king's residence at York, for the better accommodation of both nations; but that the Scots not only refused these Offers, but likeways acquainted those who were most intrusted with the affairs of the English parliament, of their readiness rather to asfift them in securing their just privileges, and in settling both nations in truth and peace.' Whatever be in these things, it is certain his majesty's design, in this progrels, was to gain over the Scots, that he might be at liberty to enflave the English parliament, and therefore he complied with every thing. At this time the marquis of Hamilton was made a duke, and the earl of Argyll a marquis. But the king no fooner returned to England, than he repented of all his concessions in Scotland. During the civil war in England, the English parlia-Rife of the folemn. ment called an ASSEMBLY of divines to fit at Westminleague and ster, for consulting about religion and church-govern-Calamy ment, in order to carry on a work of reformation in that kingdom. These divines were men of eminent learning and godliness, ministerial abilities and fidelity. In the year 1643. commissioners were sent to Scotland to treat with the affembly there concerning these things. The commissioners arrived at Edinburgh, August 9th, and were favourably received. On the 12th they presented their proposals to the convention of estates, and Apol. re- on the 15th to the assembly, desiring, That, because the popish prelatical faction is still pursuing their design of corrupting and altering the religion through the whole island, the two nations might be strictly united for their mutual defence against them and their adherents, and not to lay down arms, till those their implacable enemies be disarmed, &c.

proved of, and fent into England by the hands of lord Apol. relation.

It was agreed, at the first conferences, that the best and side speediest means for accomplishing the union and assistance desired, was, for both nations to enter into a mutual they covenant and league, which was soon drawn up and apwer

tin

fcr

ne

ed

gio

all

lan

tio

app

16 bot

and

bro

for

to g

Ne

pro

wit

of .

Eng

nou

ner

ed :

stat

in c und

mai

ftra

refo

fou

Scor

ham

ty,

rest

Maitland, afterwards duke of Lauderdale, and Mr. Henderson the 13.

ile

nit

red

lon,

rk,

hat

ac-

urs

af-

ing

refe

ro-

ore

Ar-

ng-

ind.

lia

nin-

rn-

in ent ity.

igs.

oth,

and

the n of

and,

own

&c.

and Tift-

tual

ap-

Hen-

rfon

derson and Mr. Gillespie, where it met with the approbation both of the parliament, and the assembly then sitting at Westminster, and was solemnly sworn and sub-The coverscribed almost in all parts of that nation.

When thus it was fworn in England, the commissio-scribed and mers of the general assembly, 11th October 1643. order-sworn, ed the same to be, with publick humiliation and all religious solemnities, received, sworn and subscribed by all ministers and professors within the church of Scotland: And next day the commissioners of the convention of estates appointed the same thing. All this was approved and ratisfied by act of parliament 15th June 1644, and by the general assembly 1645. And thus both nations, in a most solemn manner, abjured popery and prelacy, &c. and by this means the strength of the popish and prelatical saction was, in a great measure, broken.

By this time the king's affairs grew desperate, where- The king fore, on the 5th of May 1646. he surrendred himself goes to the to general Leven, and marched with the Scots army from Newark to Newcastle; but he would by no means approve of the folemn league and covenant, nor yet comply with the propositions made to him by the parliament of England. At last he was, upon the intreaty of the English parliament, and their promise for using him ho- Is delimourably, delivered up to them, and their commission vered up ners conveyed him to Holmby-house, where he continued for some time.

In the year 1648. the duke of Hamilton, by his inte-The Entell and intrigues, prevailed with the convention of e-GAGEstates to raise an army and appoint him general of it, MENT. in order to releue the king from his captivity. This undertaking and engagement was entirely disagreeable to many, and the commission of the assembly remonstrated against it; not that they were against the king's rescue, as appears from their declarations, but they found, that, under the colour of acting against the independents of England, the royalists, the mortal enemies of Scotland and of all presbyterians, were to be restored: Belides, this was chiefly promoted by those who were never friends to the reformation then attained to; nay, they observed, that men were fent for to Edinburgh, who were enemies thereto, as Langdale, Musgrave, Glemham, and others; that the junction with the king's party, confilting of papifts and episcopalians, was a most manifek def

and

live

bef

thi

bet

kin

his

fact

Bre

and

Win

on)

The

Caffi

It w ed in

ed a

lette

of 1

Hag

was

Brea

liam

and deliv

jesty

the c fton,

of th

and a thing

until ry la

clude

coun pedit

or 30

to pr

with

I

nifest breach of the covenant; that, in short, by this the covenant, which was the basis and foundation of the union between the two nations, would be destroyed, whilst it was pretended to raise an army for its support. And indeed providence blasted the whole design; for tho duke Hamilton invaded England with a numerous army, yet he was routed by CROMWELE, taken prisoner, and afterwards beheaded.

All of Classes. Burnet.

Soon after this defeat, the parliament not only condemned the engagement, for the reasons above-mentioned, but likewise passed an act against the engagers, ranking them in several classes, whence it got the name of An act of classes, whereby they were excluded from all offices of publick trust and vote in parliament. Of this number were William earl of Lanerk, brother to the duke of Hamilton, the earl of Landerdale, and several others, who formed a saction, which Rapin calls the Hamiltonian. In short, this act included all who had opposed the work of reformation. The commissioners of the assembly likeways appointed church-censures to be insticted on those who had been concerned in the engagement, in order to bring them to repentance.

The king's death.

Rapin.

At last the sectarian party came to such a height in the English army, that they over-ruled the parliament of England; for they put down the house of lords as useles, modelled the house of commons as they thought sit, and erected a new court, which they called an High court of justice, before which they arraigned the king, and violently took away his life, Jan. 30. 1649. against which the commissioners both of the church and state in Scotland did solemnly protest.

P. Char- The prince of Wales received the news of these things les takes at the Hague, and immediately assumed the title of king, the title of being then 18 years of age, and made those of his faking.

Rapin. ther's council, who attended him, to be sworn of his privy-council, with the addition only of one person, privy-council, with the addition only of one person, viz. Mr. Long, his secretary. In the mean time his condition was deplorable, not having wherewith to maintain his houshold, or any table but that of the prince of Orange, his brother-in-law, and subsisting intirely by his assistance, which could not last very long. When advice came of the king's death to the parlia-

Proclaim- When advice came of the king's death to the parliaed at E- ment of Scotland, which was then fitting, they, on the dinburgh 5th February 1649. ordered prince CHARLES to be proclaimed king of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, promifing s the

uni-

hilft

And tho'

rmy,

and

con-

ank-

of An

offi-

this

duke

hers,

the

lem-

d on

or-

it in ment

is as

High

ting,

ainst

te in ings

s fa-

cion,

his

n to

the gin-

ong.

rlia-

r the

to be

land, ising promising humbly and faithfully to obey, maintain and defend him, according to the NATIONAL COVENANT, and the SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT, with their lives and fortunes; and at the fame time declaring, that, before he be admitted to the exercise of the royal power, he shall give satisfaction to the kingdom in those things that concern the security of religion, the unity between the kingdoms, and the good and peace of the kingdom of Scotland, according to the covenants, &c.

Immediately commissioners were sent to treat with Treaty of his majesty at the Hague, who returned without fatif. Breda. Next year commissioners were sent to him at Living-Breda. The parliament pitched upon the earls of Caffils Life, writ and Lothian, Alexander Brodie of that ilk, Mr. George by himself, Winram of Libberton, (these two last being lords of fessi- p. 29, on) together with Mr. John Smith and Alexander Jaffray, Gc. The commission of the kirk chose the reverend Mr. John Livingston, Mr. James Wood, and Mr. George Hutchison. Cassils and Brodie sustained the character of ruling elders. It was with great reluctance that Mr. Livingston engaged in this fervice. The day these commissioners landed at Campvere, Lothian and Libberton proposed that letters might be written to duke Hamilton and the earl of Lauderdale, and some other malignants then at the Hague, to repair to Breda to assist at the treaty; which was rejected. However, after the commissioners got to Breda, duke Hamilton, &c. came likeways. The parlialiament had limited the time of treating to thirty days, and yet it was several days before the first papers were delivered to the king, and some days after before his majelty gave his answers. The king complied at last to all the conditions required, yet the reverend Mr. Living. ston, one of the commissioners, says, That, all the time of this treaty, he continued the use of the service-book and of his chaplains, and that there did not appear any thing of fincerity on his part, for he granted nothing until he was in a manner compelled; and it was the very last day they had to treat before the treaty was concluded.

The king postponed the signing of the treaty, on ac-Moncount of the great hopes he had entertained from the ex-trose's pedition of the marquis of Montrose, who had picked up 2 tion. or 3000 men in Denmark and Holstein, with an intention Hist. of to prepare the way for the king's reception in Scotland, Stuarts, without being obliged to comply with the terms propose p. 387.

ed.

ed. Part of these troops landed first in Orkney, and the relt at Caithness, during the time of the treaty. The par-loofe. p.

Hind let

86, liament having notice of this, ordered David Lefly to march against him; but before he could come up, colonel Strachan fell upon, and intirely defeated them. Montrose surrendered himself to Astin, by whom he was fent under a strong guard to David Lesly, who carried him to Edinburgh, where he was hanged, drawn and quartered. It was found that he had the king's commission; whereupon the committee of estates determined to recal their commissioners from Breda, and break off the treaty; and for this end fent an express with letters, which, falling into the hands of Libberton, were, without the knowledge of the other commissioners, delivered by him into the king's hands; who, feeing how matters stood, thought proper to comply with all the proposals. engaged to remove from his counfels all who stood excommunicate by the kirk; that he would take the NATI-ONAL COVENANT and SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVE-NANT, and profecute the ends thereof; that he would ratify and approve all acts of parliament enjoining the same, and establishing presbyterian government, the directory of worship, the Westminster confession of faith and catechisms, &c. and that all civil matters should be determined by the present and subsequent parliaments, and all ecclefiaftical by the enfuing general affemblies of the church.

But though he agreed to all this, it is plain he did not intend to perform the it.

All was artifice and dissimu-

The king communicates kneeling.

lation.

Livingflon's life.

P. 35.

For, on the Saturday before the king left Breda, the ministers, who were commissioners for the church, having intelligence that his majesty intended next day to communicate kneeling, went to him and shewed him the fin of fo doing; how it would provoke God to blaft all his designs, was inconsistent with his concessions, and would confirm fome, who were of opinion that he was only dallying with God and them. They left him, to think of what they had faid, till after supper; and, when they returned, they found him fixed in his resolution, He faid, His father used always to communicate at Christmass, Easter and Whitsunday, and he behoved to do so likeways; and that people would think strange of him, if, having resolved to communicate, he should forbear it, and that he did it to procure a blessing from God on his intended poyage. In short, all they said could not prevail, so that 111

1

11

do

W

in bo

ho

pla

ch

th us

217

T

th

T:

M

po

cei

fer

be

ed.

wh

CO

Hi

fw

the

nan

1

6.

4.

10

9-7

6 8

,I

4.0

ft

6 3

1 g

1-0

f.t

in effect his majesty broke the treaty before he left Bre-

The king embarked, and, befides the commissioners, The king was attended by duke Hamilton, the earl of Lauder-embarks. ddle, and other matignants, fo that Mr. Living fron had no Ibid. 36. inclination to go aboard; for he fays, that he thought, both in regard of the profane malignant company, and how matters flood in the treaty, they were taking the plague of God with them to Scotland; and therefore he chose to go back to Roterdam, and come home with the first opportunity. However, under some pretence used to decoy him, he was got aboard, and the king arrived in the mouth of the Spey on the 23d of June. There had been debates during the passage concerning P. 3%. the king's taking the Covenants, to which he feemed refractory; however, at last, he declared his willingness. Mr. Living from would fain have had the king's swearing postponed, because he did not look upon him to be fincere, but the rest urged, that it would give great offence if the king's offer of swearing the covenant should be rejected.

Mr. Livingston, not being able to get this affair delay- Takes the ed, was prevailed with to preach on the occasion; covenants, which having done, he distinctly read the NATIONAL relat. p. COVENANT and SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT. 65. His majesty standing, and lifting up his right-hand, swore the same in presence of the commissioners and others, in the following words subjoined to both cover

nants.

the par-

y to

CO-

nem.

ried

uar-

ion;

recal

rea-

nich,

the

him

ood,

He

ex-

ITI.

VE-

ould

the rec-

ate-

min-

l ec

rch.

mu-

the

have y to the all

and

was

, to then

10n, rift-

do sa

, if,

nded

that

T CHARLES, king of Great-Britain, France and Theling's Ireland, do affure and declare, by my folemn Oath. oath, in the presence of the almighty God the searcher of hearts, my allowance and approbation of the NA-TIONAL COVENANT, and of the SOLEMN LEAGUE and covenant above written, and faithfully oblige myself to prosecute the ends thereof in my station and calling; and that I, for myfelf and fuccessors, shall consent and agree to all acts of parliament enjoining the NATIONAL COVENANT and SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT, and fully establishing presbyterial government, the directory of worship, the confession of faith and catechisms in the kingdom of Scotland, as they are approven by the general affembly of this fikirk and parliament of this kingdom, And that I' shall .

fhall give my royal affent to the acts of parliament en-' joining the same in the rest of my dominions, and that I shall observe them in my own practice and fa" mily, and shall never make opposition to any of these,

or endeavour any change thereof.

We shall see And immediately subscribed the same. what regard he paid to this. However, for the present. he acted his part as well as he could, and submitted to every thing required, even to part with Hamilton, Lauderdale, and others. But all this was against the grain, He had an inward aversion to every thing that looked like strictness in religion, and was uneasy at the faithful reproofs he received from time to time.

Crom-

But while these things were a-doing in Scotland, the parliament of England recalled Cromwel from Ireland to take the command of an army which was to act against the king. Accordingly, about the middle of July, that general was at the head of an English army, confisting of eighteen or nineteen thousand men and marched to the frontiers of Scotland, where he published his mani-

At this time both church and state were taking meafures for the farther fecurity of their religio: and liberties, from any encroachments that might be made by the young king; accordingly the commission of the afsembly made the following act at the West-kirk of Edinburgh, which I shall here insert.

AR of the West- 6 Kirk. Hind let loofe. p. 106.

wel marches

against

Scotland.

West-kirk, August 13. 1650. 'The commission of the general affembly, confidering that there may be just ground of stumbling, from the king's majesty's refusing to subscribe and emit the declaration offered to ' him by the committee of estates and the commission of the general affembly, concerning his former carriage and resolutions for the future, in reference to the cause of God, and the enemies and friends thereof, " doth therefore declare, that this kirk and kingdom doth not own or espouse any malignant party, or quarrel or interest, but that they fight merely upon their former grounds and principles, and in the defence of the cause of God, and of the kingdom, as they have done these twelve years past; and therefore, as they disclaim all the fin and guilt of the king, and of his house, fo they will not own him nor his interest, otherways than 6

"

. 1

6 4

. [6 2

4 1

4]

. 1

« n

and in

6 f

f t

his

Wei mal no

chu

wh

ons

fern

the oat

e re

re re

· lu

· ho

ef

en-

ind

fa-

ie,

fee

nt,

to

au-

in.

ed

th-

he

to nst

nat

ng to

ni.

eali-

by af-

in-

the

uit

ul-

to

on

FIthe of,

om

ar-

eir

of

ne

lif-

fe,

IVS . an

than with a subordination to God, and so far as he owns and profecutes the cause of God, and disclaims his and his father's opposition to the work of God, and to the covenant, and likeways all the enemies thereof: and that they will, with convenient speed, take into confideration the papers lately fent unto them by Oliver Gromwel, and vindicate themselves from all the falshoods contained therein, especially in those things wherein the quarrel betwixt us and that party is mifflated, as if we owned the late king's proceedings, and were resolved to prosecute and maintain his prefent majesty's interest, before and without acknow-· ledgment of the fin of his house and former ways, and fatisfaction to God's people in both kingdoms. ALEX. KER.

The same day, August the 13th 1650. ' The committee of estates having seen and considered a declaration of the commission of the general assembly a-' nent the stating of the quarrel wherein the army is to fight, do approve the fame, and heartily concur therein.

ALEX. HENDERSON.

These were doubtless things of hard digestion with his majesty, especially as at this time all his thoughts were bent to get in his old friends the Hamiltonian and malignant faction; but he could not make the attempt now, for Cromwel was coming against him, and both church and state had declared themselves very plainly; wherefore CHARLES, the better to disguise his intentions, emits a most remarkable declaration, from Dumfermling, on the 16th of August 1650. of which I give the following extract, as far as it relates to his former oath.

CHARLES R. IS majelty taking into confideration that mer- The ling's ciful dispensation, ----- by which he hath been declararecovered out of the snare of evil counsel, ----- doth, in Dumreference to his former deportments, and to his refo-fermling. lutions for the future, declare as follows. Wo-'Though his majesty, as a dutiful son, be obliged to drow. honour the memory of his royal father, and have in Ap. N. 1. estimation the person of his mother, yet doth he de-through the blood of Jefus Christ .----And his majesty having, upon the full persuasion of the justice and equity of all the heads and articles · 6 thereof, now fworn and fubscribed the national covef nant, ----- and the solemn league and covenant, ----doth declare, that he hath not fworn and fubscribed these covenants, and entred into the oath of God, with his people, upon any finister intention and crooked design, for attaining his own ends, but, so far as human weak-4 ness will permit, in the truth and fincerity of his heart, 4 and that he is firmly resolved, in the Lord's strength, to adhere thereto, and to profecute, to the utmost of his power, the ends thereof in his station and calling, really, constantly and sincerely, all the days of his In order to which, he doth, in the first place, profess and declare, that he will have no enemies but the s enemies of the covenant, and ----- no friends but the friends of the covenant: And therefore, as he doth now detest and abhore all popery, superstition and idolatry, together with prelacy and all errors, herefy, and fchism and profaneness, and resolves not to tolerate, much less allow any of these, in any part of his mae jesty's dominions, but to oppose himself thereto, and to endeayour the extirpation thereof to the ut-' most of his power: So doth he as a christian exhort, and as a king require, all fuch of his subjects as have ' stood in opposition to the selemn league and covenant, and work of reformation, upon a pretence of kingly and work of reformation, upon a pretence of kingly interest, or any other pretext whatsoever, to lay down their enmity against the cause and people of God, and

to e to

4 G

6 0

6 W

it it

(W

6 A

· fu

6 ri

6 th

6 th

" te

as

· Ip

no

ar

telta

ror,

höri

affai

was

of n

Mr.

abor

ti:

or or

· fo

W.

ch ch

6 th

which

Iam

The

noty

at th

cover

vide

A go

we!

aufe

oun-

and ne i-

the

oca-

ini-

beit

and

the

d to n to ll his

ving

ion,

afion

icles

cove-

ribed

with lign,

reak-

eart,

ngth,

oft of

ling, f his lace,

it the

t the

doth

idola-

and erate,

ma-

and

e ut-

horty

have enant,

ingly

down

and

6.10

to cease to prefer the interest of man to the interest of God, which hath been one of those things which hath occasioned many troubles ---- and, being insisted in. will be fo far from establishing the king's throne, that it will prove an idol of jealoufy to provoke ---- him who is King of kings, and Lord of lords. The king fhall always esteem them best servants and most loyal · Subjects, who serve him and seek his greatness in a right line of subordination to God, giving unto God the things that are God's, and unto Cafar the things that are Cæfar's; and resolveth not to love or countenance any who have fo little conscience and piety. as to follow his interest with a prejudice to the gofpel and the kingdom of Jesus Christ, which he looks not upon as duty, but as flattery, and driving of felfdefigns, under pretence of retaining royal authority and greatness.

Given at our court at Dumfermling, August 16. 1650. and in the second year of our reign.

Now, who can compare these solemn oaths and pro- Remarks testations with this prince's after-conduct without horror, both on account of his wicked dissimulation and horrid perjury? It is alledged, that the necessity of his affairs forced him to these compliances. But furely he was one that had no fense of religion, in being capable of mocking God in this manner. When the reverend Hind let Mr. Gillespie put the pen in his hand, to subscribe the loofe. above declaration, he told him, 'That, if he was not fa- p.87,88. ' tisfied in his foul and conscience, beyond all hesitation, of the righteousness of the subscription, he was fo far from over-driving him to run upon that for which he had no light, that he obtested him, yea, charged him in his master's name, not to subscribe that declaration, no not for the three kingdoms.' To which the king answered, Mr. Gillespie, Mr. Gillespie, I am satisfied, I am satisfied, and therefore will subscribe it. The truth is, CHARLES could swallow any thing; for, notwithstanding the above declaration, measures were, at this time, concerting for bringing the enemies of the covenant both into the army and judicatures, and to divide the presbyterians among themselves.

We have feen how CROMWEL invaded the country. Battle of A good army was raifed against him under the command Dumbar. of general Lesly, but it was entirely routed by Gromwel at Dumbar on the 3d of September. The king was pleased pleased at this defeat of his subjects; for now he thought he would have an opportunity of accomplishing his defign of getting the Hamiltonians and Malignants both into his armies and councils. Clarendon has a strange remark upon this. ' Never, fays he, was victory obtained with less lamentation; for, as Cromwel had great argument of triumph, so the king was glad of it, as the greatest happiness that could befal him, in the loss of fo strong a body of his enemies.' So that, according to the noble historian, his majesty looked upon his subjects as his enemies.

Neal. P. 22.

As the king was well received by the marquis of Argyll, so he professed, at this time, a great regard for his lordship, as appears from the following letter and declaration under his own hand, which I cannot but infert, that the reader may fee what regard his majefty had afterward to his royal promifes and engagements.

claration & in favour of Argyll. P. 56.

King'sde- T TAVING taken into my confideration the faithful endeavours of the marquis of Argyll, for restoring me to my just rights, and the happy settling Wodrow of my dominions, I am desirous to let the world see how fensible I am of his real respect to me, by some particular marks of my favour to him, by which they ' may fee the trust and confidence which I repose in him: And, particularly, I do promise, that I will make him duke of Argyll and knight of the garter, and one of the gentlemen of my bed-chamber, and this to be performed when he shall it think fit. And I do further promise him to hearken to his counsels -----(worn out) ----- Whenever it shall please God to restore me to my just rights in England, I shall see him paid the forty thousand pounds sterling which is due to him. All which I do promife to make good upon the word of a king.

St. Johnstoun,

CHARLES R.

ma

fer

ou fro

rat

on

TI

ber

fo

ten

the

6 T

"

6 t c n

"

4 1

. 1

· i

6 e

· 1

· f

f t

6 h

f r

6 n

· j

a a

ner

of

Mo

to :

Sti

rie

g

24 Sep. 1650.

We shall afterwards see how these fine things were performed.

Rife of the After the battle of Dumbar it was proposed that the oners and restraints should be taken off, by which the malignants were hindred from ferving his majesty. This was at first protefrefused; but the descat at Hamilton, falling out in a Wodrow little time, was made a new argument for admitting of Intr. p. malignants malignants into the army, because, as was alledged, the present standing forces were not sufficient for the defence of the kingdom, unless all the fencible men, without distinction, were raised. The king therefore wrote from Perth, where the parliament then fat, to the moderator of the commission, desiring him to call a commission, pro're nata, to give their judgment in this matter. The oppofers of the refolutions alledged, that many members had no notice, and that the time for meeting was fo foon after the notice, that the members could not at-

When a quorum of the commission was met at Perth, The parthe parliament inquired, ' What persons are to be ad-liament's ' mitted to rife in arms, and to join with the forces of question.

the kingdom, and in what capacity for defence thereof, against the armies of the sectaries, who, contrary to the folemn league and covenant, and treaties, have ' most unjustly invaded, and are destroying the kingdom ?

ught

de-

in-

e re-

ined

rgu-

s of

ding

fub-

Ar-

his

de-

in-efty

ts.

ith-

for ling

fee

ome

they

im:

nake

one

o be fur-

d to him

due

upon

R.

rere

the ants

firlt

n a

gof

ants

The commission, on the 14th of December 1650. an- The com-' swered, ' In this case of so great and evident neces-mission's fity, we cannot be against raising all fencible persons answer. ' in the land, and permitting them to fight against this enemy, for the defence of the kingdom, excepting fuch as are excommunicated, forfeited, notoriously profane or flagitious; or fuch as have been, from the beginning, or continue still, and are at this time, obstinate and professed enemies and opposers of the covenant and cause of God. And, for the capacity of acting, that the estates of parliament ought to have, as we hope they will have, special care, that, in this so general a concurrence of all the people of the kingdom, none be put in fuch trust and power, as may be prejudicial to the cause of God; and that such officers as are of known integrity and affection to the caule, and particularly such as have suffered in our former armies, may be taken special notice of.'

Upon this answer some of the most considerable ma- Effects of lignants were employed in the army. Some of the gc-it. neral officers, and more than half the colonels, were of this stamp, and not a few of them had been with Montrose: But their proceedings were very offensive to many ministers and presbyteries, particularly those of Stirling and Aberdeen. The reverend Mr. James Guthrie and Mr. David Bennet, Ministers at Stirling, in conjunction junction with the rest of that presbytery, wrote to the commission at their next meeting, declaring their disfatisfaction with their refolutions, which was likeways done by many other presbyteries. These two ministers spoke their mind with freedom and plainness, and preached a. gainst the public resolutions, as involving the land in a conjunction with the malignant party.

11

m

fin

it

th

or

an ful

lea

Wa

ali

an

an ren

XX

oug

tha fra

Бее

gri

cal

thr fwe

rei

king

CON

and

to

bot

and

cor bot

ties

mu

der

to (wit

fifte

dica

Mr,

The king

About the end of this year matters were brought to disapoint- that pass, that a considerable number of noblemen, gentlemen, and others, was to rife, and form themselves into an army under Middleton's command, and the king was to throw himself into their arms. Accordingly, all of a sudden, he withdrew from St. Johnstoun, and repaired to the place appointed. But, not finding things to answer his expectation, he returned to St. Johnstoun with major-general Montgomery, whom the committee of e-This was a plain proof that states had sent after him. all his majetty's compliances were infincere. Middleton was excommunicated by the commission of the general affembly, and the fentence was pronounced by the faid Mr. James Guthrie; however, the commission, at their next meeting, took it off.

Crowned

Phenix.

Mean while, on the 1st of January 1651. king CHARLES II. was crowned at Scoon; the noble marquis of Argyll put the crown upon his majesty's head. After an excellent and fuitable fermon preached by the reverend Mr. Douglass, from 2 Kings xi. 12, 17. the solemnity began with the king's most solemn renewing of the national and folemp league and covenant, in this manner. The king kneeled and lifted up his righthand, before the three estates of the kingdom, the commissioners of the general assembly, and all the congregation, and, by his folemn oath, in presence of the almighty God the searcher of hearts, he assured and declared his allowance of the national covenant, and solemn league and covenant, promising faithfully to prosecute the ends thereof, and to establish the same with the presbyterial government, and the whole work of God, in all his dominions. Then he was presented to the people, and the question was put, whether they were willing to have him for their king, and submit to his authority? They expressed their willingness, by faying, God fave king CHARLES II. After this he took the coronation-oath; and, when the sword was put into his hands, he was defired to receive the same for the defence of the faith of Jesus Christ and of the

o the

diffa-

done

poke

ed ain a

at to men,

elves

king

y, all

pair-

gs to with

of e-

that lleton

neral

faid their

king

marread.

7 the

e 10ng of this ight-

com-

igreighty

is al-

and hererern-

nons.

ltiop

their

their

II.

1 the

eive nd of

the

the true religion, according to the covenants, and for the ministration of justice, &c. which he accepted accordingly. Just before the crown was set upon his head, the minifter prayed, That the Lord would purge the crown from the fins and transgressions of them that did reign before him: That it might be a pure crown; that God would fet the crown upon the king's head, &c. and then the marquis fet the crown on his head. Upon this the noblemen came, one by one, and kneeling, with their hand touching the crown, fwore, by the eternal and almighty God, to be true and faithful fubjects, according to the national covenant and folemn league and covenant. Then the people's obligatory oath was proclaimed, whereby they all fwore, by the eternal and almighty God, who liveth and reigneth for ever, to be true and faithful to the king, according to the national and folemn league and covenant. Being after this installed, and fet upon the throne, the minister exhorted him to remember that his throne is the Lord's throne, I Chron. xxix. 23. And, being a COVENANTED king, he ought, under God, to rule for God; and especially to beware that he made not the Lord's throne a throne of iniquity, to frame mischief by a law, even such mischievous laws as had been enacted by his predecessors, destructive to religion, and grievous to the Lord's people. Then the nobles, being called one by one, and kneeling before the king on the throne, and holding their hands between his hands, fwore by the eternal and almighty God, who liveth and reigneth for ever and ever, to be true and faithful to the king, according to the national and folemn league and covenant. The folemnity was concluded with a folid and pertinent exhortation, both to the king and people, to keep the covenant, and beware of breaking it; and both king and nobles were certified, that if the king, and they who were engaged to support his crown, shall conspire together against the kingdom of Jesus Christ, both the supporters and supported should fall together. Messes.

This was a very folemn action, and all the folemni- Guthrie ties of it were so interwoven with the covenants, that it and Benmust be acknowledged, that never king and people un-net deder the fun could be more strictly bound to God, and civil auto one another, than these were: But his majesty, not- thority in withstanding all these oaths and declarations, still per- matters filted in his design of getting the malignants into the ju-ecclesiastidicatures, as he had got them into the army. And, as cal. Mr. James Guthrie and Mr. David Bennet preached o-

gov

of e

ing

who the whi

der,

parl

miff

· be

f tie

ca ca

6 be

de de

. ha

we we

6 co

Apri

and

Pert

to th

if it

and

purp

cauti

e ven

for

' are

claj

' defi

'obli

' thei

' judi

fron

pur

and

' fille

to t

' veri

' wor

' not!

der,

plac

T

T

penly and faithfully against the public refolutions, fo, in the month of February, the chancellor, by a letter, ordered them both to repair to Perth on the 19th, and to anfwer, before the king and the committee of estates, for their letter to the commission and their doctrine. two ministers, on account of the indisposition of one of them, excused their appearing on that day, but promifed to attend about the end of the week. Accordingly, on the 22d of February, they appeared at Perth, but gave in a protestation, signifying, that though they paid all due regard to his majesty's civil authority, yet they did not acknowledge his majesty, or their lordships, as proper judges of their doctrine, or of what concerned their ministerial calling; that being the province of the judicatories of the church. This matter was put off for some days, till the king's return from Aberdeen, and, in the mean time, the two ministers were confined to Perth and Dundee; whereupon, February 28th, they presented a second paper, containing a protestation to the same purpose with the former, though in stronger terms, and supported by a great many excel-After these protestations the king and lent arguments. the committee of estates thought proper to dismiss the two ministers, and to proceed no farther in this affair, However, we shall find that Mr. Guthrie's declining the king's authority, at this time, in matters ecclefiaftical, was made a principal article in his indictment ten years after this.

Debates the relotions.

Mean while the commission of the assembly, finding concerning their answer to the parliament's questions censured and condemned, published a warning, and a large answer to the letter from the presbytery of Stirling, in their This occasioned many debates, own vindication. especially as all ministers and preachers were, by the commission, discharged to speak or write against these resolutions. And an act was made, ordaining presbyteries to proceed, with the censures of the kirk, against those who should oppose them; and the copy of another act was transmitted to presbyteries, ordaining those who opposed the refolutions to be cited to the next affembly at St. Andrews: By which means many of these were prevented from being members of the affembly.

> It is easy to see how agreeable this was to his majefty, who, notwithstanding his being a COVENANTED king, and Iworn to maintain and promote presbyterial government,

in

er-

an-

for

he

one

ro-

rd-

th,

ney

yet

rd-

hat

ro-

ter

om

ere

ary

ro-

igh

cel-

and

the air,

the

cal,

ars

ing

and

ver

eir

tes,

the

refe

ries

ofe

act

vho

bly

ere

ije-

ED

rial

ent,

of

government, yet hated presbytery, and would be glad of every thing that tended to its overthrow. Accordingly, while these things were a-doing, the gentlemen, who, by means of the former refolutions, had got into the army, next wanted to get into the judicatures, from which they were excluded by the act of classes. In or- Another der, therefore, to get this act rescinded, the king and query by parliament proposed the following question to the commission of the general assembly, ' Whether or not it be finful and unlawful, for the more effectual profecution of the publick refolutions, for the defence of the cause of the king and the kingdom, to admit such to be members of the committee of estates, who are now debarred from the publick trust, they being such as have satisfied the kirk for the offence for which they were excluded, and are fince admitted to enter into

The commission delaying their answer, on the 3d of April the moderator received a letter from the king and parliament, desiring the commission to meet at Perth on the 17th, not only to give a positive answer to the last query, but their judgment and resolutions, if it be sinful and unlawful to repeal the act of classes; and on the 23d they received another letter to the same purpose.

To both which the commission, after some previous The comcautions, answered, As for the folemn league and co-mission's venant, the solemn acknowledgment and engagement, and answer.

venant, the folemn acknowledgment and engagement, and answer. former declarations emitted by this church, (which ' are set down as grounds in the narrative of the act of ' classes) we find they do not particularly determine any definite measure of time, of excluding persons from ' places of trust for bypast offences, but only bind and oblige accordingly to punish offenders, as the degree of ' their offences shall require or deserve, or the supreme ' judicatures of the kingdom, or others having power ' from them for that effect, shall judge convenient, to purge all judicatures and places of power and truft, ' and to endeavour that they may confift of, and be ' filled with fuch men as are of known good affection to the cause of God, and of a blameless christian con-' versation, (which is a moral duty commanded in the word of God, and of perpetual obligation) fo that ' nothing, upon the account of those grounds, doth hin-' der, but that persons, formerly debarred from places of power and trust for their offences, may be admitted. to be members of the committee of estates, and the censures inflicted upon them, by the act of classes, may be taken off and rescinded, without sin, by the parliament, in whose power it is to lengthen or shorten the time of their censures, as they shall find just and neceffary, providing they be men that have satisfied the * kirk for their offences, have renewed and taken the covenant, and be qualified for fuch places, according to the qualifications required in the word of God, and expressed in the solemn acknowledgment and engagement, oc.'

The divi-

Upon this answer the act of classes, in all its articles. fions that was repealed; fo that great numbers formerly excluded followed. were brought into parliament, nominated as members of the committee of estates, and made capable of places of trust; and in a little time the bulk of the malignant party got the management of all into their own hands.

> These resolutions and proceedings gave great offence to many godly and eminent ministers, and even to fome Presbyteries. As they who adhered to the refolations were called RESOLUTIONERS, fo the opposers of them were called PROTESTORS and Anti-refolutioners. On the one hand it was faid, that every government might call out all that were under its protection to its defence. This feemed founded on the law of nature and nations. And, if men had been milled, it was a frange cruelty to deny room for repentance: This was contrary to the nature of God and to the gospel, and was a likely mean to drive them to despair .--- But the protestors objected, That, to take in men of known enmity to the cause, was a fort of betraying it, because it was putting it in their power to betray it; that, to admit them to a profession of repentance, was a profa-nation and a mocking of God. It was visible they were willing to comply, though against their conscience, only to get into the army; nor could they expect a bleffing from God on an army fo constituted."

And, fays the bishop, this mock penitence was indeed a matter of great scandal. And the following history will abundantly shew, that the protestors were not out in their fentiments; for these men afterwards did betray the cause, and persecuted those that maintained it.

However, when the parliament met, they thought proper, in the month of June, to ratify all the preceedbift. p. 55.

The covenant ratified.

ing

ing t clude

pals

video ' ing

upo

and and the co the k

parlia

fcarce

espec

fons t

fully Th

when ness c

after actin

Engla

ly rou

ing.

extre

the ki

retire

who w

to the

infrin

dent p

versiti

ty of consti

of Fu

fembl

liberty

Mr.

instead

flation

next

lieuter

standi

ecclefi

Soc

So

ing treaties, transactions, engagements and actions concluded and enacted by the king, whereby the same did pass into a perpetual law. And it was expressly provided, his majesty being present, 'That, in all succeeding parliaments, every member, before they entered upon business, should sign and subscribe the covenant, and without this the constitution of the parliament, and all they do, is declared void and null.' Thus the covenant became at last a fundamental constitution of the kingdom. Mr. Wodrow says, that the acts of this parliament were not printed, (as indeed that could scarce, in the then unsettled state of the kingdom, and especially of the court, be obtained) but that, from perfons then alive, and several papers still extant, he was fully assured that such an act was made.

The general assembly met at St. Andrews in July, when the anti-resolutioners protested against the lawfulness of the assembly. Three of the subscribers were, after citation, deposed, and one suspended, and the actings of the commission approved.

ed

he

ay

a-

he

e-

he

he

to

nd

ge-

es.

led

ers

ces

ant

S.

nce

to

ola-

of

ers.

ent

its

ure

s a

his pel,

But

own

aule

, to

ofa-

they

ısci-

ex-

ted.'

mat-

bun-

their

the

ught

ceed-

ing

Soon after this the king and his army marched into The king England, and, on the 3d of September 1651. were total—worcely routed at Worcelter, his majesty most narrowly escapting. By this blow his affairs were reduced to such an extremity, that he found himself obliged to remove from the kingdom, which with difficulty he accomplished, and retired to France. In the mean time, general Monk, who was left in Scotland, quickly reduced that kingdom to the obedience of the English republick.

Soon after this, the just privileges of the church were Churchinfringed, and commissioners, chiefly of the indepen-judicadent persuasion, were sent into Scotland to visit the uni- tures inversities, and to settle an unlimited toleration and liber-Neal. ty of conscience, inconsistent with their ecclesiastical constitution, and contrary to the covenants. On the 26th of July 1652. a declaration was presented to the afsembly in favour of the congregational discipline, and for liberty of conscience; but the faithful members (whom Mr. NEAL, in derision, calls the stubborn assembly-men) instead of yielding to the declaration, gave in a protestation against it. When the affembly met at Edinburgh next summer, and were just entering upon business, lieutenant-colonel Cotterel went into the church, and, standing upon one of the benches, told them, that no eccleliastical judicatures were to lit there, unless by authority thority of the parliament of England; and, without giving them leave to reply, he commanded them to retire, and conducted them out of the west-gate of the city with a troop of horse and a company of foot, and enjoined them not to affemble any more above three in a In like manner, on the 10th of April 1655. company. the fynod of Perth and Stirling was no sooner met at Dumblain, but it was dissolved, in a violent manner, by open force, (of which I have an account from the registers transmitted to me by a reverend minister of that fynod;) for one lieutenant Belvin came with a band of foldiers, and commanded them to difmifs, alledging that he had orders from his superiors. But though the fynod desired to see them, yet he absolutely refused, and, upon their demurring and delaying to obey orders, the foldiers laid hands on them, and thrust them vio-Thus were the liberties of lently out of the church. the church invaded.

Mean while the unhappy differences between the resolutioners and protestors still went on, till at last, in the years 1655 and 1656. conferences were agreed on for an union, and the matter was carried up to London before Oliver Cromwel, who had usurped the government, and was declared protector, but without effect. However, both refolutioners and protestors agreed in this, that they were enemies to the usurpation, and loyal to the king, though it was not yet in their power to contribute any thing to his restoration, which they fincerely wished for upon proper terms. But, as they had little reason for their zeal in behalf of his interest, so they were ill rewarded for it, as shall be afterwards shewn.

The king embraces popery. Neal, Vol. IV. p. 53.

For, when the king arrived in France, he immediately threw off the malk of a Presbyterian, and never went once to the protestant church at Charenton, though they invited him in the most respectful manner: But lord Clarendon dissuaded him, because the Hugonots had not been hearty in his interest, and because it might look difrespectful to the old church of England. But the truth is, the court, not having a prospect of the king's restoration by the presbyterians, turned their eyes to the Roman catholicks, and many of the king's retinue changed their religion, as appears by the legenda lignea, published about this time, with a lift of fifty three new converts, am m

hi

an th

an

6 j

6 2

4 i

" (

wa

at 1

Sp

wh

Be

thi

and

ma

avo

of

to

the 16

his

the

fuff

wh

par

In

ed

to :

eve

nag

of t

the:

t giv-

etire,

city

njoin-

e in a 1655.

iet at

r, by regi-

at fy-

nd of

dging

h the fused,

ders,

V10-es of

the

t, in d on

Lon-

got ef-

reed

and ower

they

had

, fo

ards

ate-

vent

hey

ord

not

ook

uth

fto-

Ro-

ged

hed

, a-

ong

mong whom were several names in red capitals, not to mention the KING himself, of whom father Huddleston, his confessor, writes in his treatise, intitled, A short and plain way to the faith of the church, published 1685. that he put it into the king's hand in his retirement; and that, when his majesty had read it, he declared he did not fee how it could be answered. Bishop Burnet fays, Before king CHARLES left Paris, (which was in p. 73. ' June 1654.) he changed his religion, but by whose perfuasion is not yet known, only cardinal de Retz was in the fecret, and lord Aubigny had a great hand Chancellor Hide had some suspicion of it, but would not suffer himself to believe it quite. Sir Allen Broderick, when on his death-bed, fent doctor Burnet an account of this matter, which he believed was done in Fountainbleau before king CHARLES was fent to " Colen.' And it is certain, fays Mr. Neal, that he was reconciled to the church of Rome this year (1659.) at the Pyrenean treaty concluded between France and P. 232. Spain, whither he had repaired incognito to engage them in his interest. Here the king stayed twenty days, in which time he, with the earl of Bristol, and Sir. H. Bennet, embraced the Roman catholick religion; fo that this covenanted king broke all his folemn engagements, and turned papist, before his restoration. However, his majesty, rightly judging that it was not his interest to avouch what he had done, by making an open profession of popery, as his brother afterwards did, still pretended to be a protestant himself, and to have a real concern for the protestant religion.

After Gromwel's Death, which happened September 3. Crom-1658. things went pretty fmooth, till the king, upon wel's his return, declared his displeasure with the opposers of death. the refolutions, some of whom were among the first of the sufferers in the tragical period of which I am to treat, while other honest presbyterians were afterwards made

Mean while England was embroiled in confusions. England In April 1659. RICHARD the young protector dissolving confusion ed his parliament, and soon after was himself obliged on. to resign; after which matters took a new turn almost every month, till at last the whole government was managed by a committee of safety, appointed by the officers of the army; so that the English nation became sick of these changes, and willing to prefer any government to the present anarchy. Many of the gentry, therefore. from feveral parts, fent letters to general Monk, inviting him to march his army into England to obtain a free parliament.

the

Monk's behaviour in Scotland. Wodr. P. 4.

Monk managed every thing in Scotland, apprehended and imprisoned the earls Marshal, Montrose, Eglinton, Selkirk, Glencairn and Lowdown, lord Montgomery, lieutenant-general David Leslie, viscount of Kenmure, lord Lorn, earl of Seaforth, Sir James Lumsden, colonel James Hay, earl of Kelly, major Livingston, and earl of Rothes. Such of them as took the tender, and gave bond for their peaceable behaviour, were fet at liberty. eyer, the general had a great share in the restoration of the royal family, which was now approaching,

In Scotland the reverend Mr. Robert Douglas was the Mr. Douglass first, says my author, as far as he could find, who adproposes ventured to propose the king's restoration to general the resto-Monk, It is faid he travelled incognito in England, and ration. in Scotland engaged confiderable numbers of noblemen Ibid. p.

and gentlemen in this project.

Monk

3.

summons officers of the army in Scotland, and engaged them by oath to submit to and serve the parliament, cashiered missioners, all he suspected, and managed every thing according to his own mind, and then refolved to march up with his army to England, and restore the privileges of parlia-Before he departed, he ordered the commissioners of shires, magistrates of burghs, and many of the nobility, to meet him at Edinburgh. They affembled in the parliament-house November 15. He told them that he was to march to England to re-establish the liberties of parliament, and recommended to them to maintain the peace, and suppress all risings and commotions during his absence.

On the 19th of October the general affembled all the Marches to En land.

On the 22d he marched towards England, and, when at Haddingtoun, received articles from the council in England. But these not-pleasing him, he returned with his officers to Edinburgh. Mr. Douglas met him, and interceded with him to attempt the restoration. After consultation, he and his officers rejected the articles, as contrary to their principles, which were to be governed not by the fword, but by a parliament lawfully called, in the maintenance of which they were engaged by path. Accordingly he returned his answer on the 24th, and on the 2d of December he marched with his army to the thire revo vera Mon feeir and Dec my N

and

er, 1 atin ing poil rupt free

W

bout

Robe Fani him one of w the I defir recei fon t to hi to A welfa and W

came

to de

defir as he of th in a he h paire tance re, rit-

n a

ded

ton,

euord

mes

es.

for

w-

of

the

ad-

eral and

nen

the

by red to

his

lia-

Tio-

the

l in

hat

ties

in-ons

hen

in vith

and fter

les,

gocal-

by

4th,

my 19

to Berwick, where he continued fome time. On the the 12th he fent orders to the commissioners of the thires for keeping the peace during his absence.

About this time Portsmouth and part of the fleet Parliarevolted, and declared for a free parliament, as did fe-ment reveral detachments of the army, which made way for flored. Monk's entring into England. The committee of Safety, feeing all things in confusion, refigned their authority, and restored the parliament, which met on the 26th December, and named a committee to govern the army in their name, and under their direction.

Monk entred England with his army January 2. 1660. 1660. and fome days after received a letter from the speaker, thanking him for his kind intentions, and infinu- Monk ating, that he might fave himself the trouble of com-enters ing to London, fince the parliament was in peaceable England. possession of their authority: But this did not inter-Rapin. rupt his march, fince he deligned a new, as well as a free parliament.

While matters were thus carrying on for bringing a- Sharp bout the king's restoration, Mr. David Dickson and Mr. proposed Robert Douglas, in their letter to general Monk, dated to be fent January 10. 1660. fignified their entire confidence in to Enghim as to the affairs of Scotland, and the necessity of one from them to be near his person, to put him in mind of what should be necessary, and to acquaint them with the state of things from time to time. Accordingly they defired his pass for Mr. JAMES SHARP: But, before the receipt of this, the general ordered Mr. auditor Thomfon to write from York to Mr. Sharp, and in his name to desire him to undertake a winter journey, and come to him at London with all speed; and on the 17th wrote to Messrs. Dickson and Douglas, assuring them, that the welfare of their church should be a great part of his care,

When the general got to Harborough, commissioners Monk came to him from London on the 23d, with an address to enters desire the re-admission of the members secluded 1648. and, Rapin. as he continued his march, he received many addresses of the like nature; at last he entred the city of London in a fort of triumph, on the 3d of February 1660. After he had given orders for quartering his troops, he repaired to the council of state, but was refused admittance till he had taken the oath of abjuration, renouncand that he had fent a pass for Mr. Sharp.

1660. ing the king's title to the crown, and engaging to be faithful to the parliament and common-wealth.

liament.

On the 6th of February he went to the parliament, the par- where, by the mouth of the speaker, he received the thanks of the house for his many services. He return. ed the compliment, and told them, among other things, that, as he marched from Scotland, feveral applications had been made to him for a free and full parliament. and that they would determine the time of their fitting, and likeways for the admittance of the members feelud. ed before the year 1648. without any previous oath or engagement. And, proceeded the general, 'I must ' fay, with pardon of you, that the less oaths and engagements are imposed (with respect had to the security of the common cause) your settlement will be the fooner attained to.' And, after he had recommended the case of Ireland, he proceeds, 'As for Scotland, I must fay, the people of that nation deferve to be cherished; and I believe your late declaration will much glad their spirits; for nothing was to them more dreadful than a fear of being overrun with fanatick notions. The same day that Monk was conducted to the parlia-

Sharp fent to London with instructions, church of Scotland. His instructions were these. Wodr.

1. You are to use your utmost endeavours, that the ' kirk of Scotland may, without interruption or encroachment, enjoy the freedom and privileges of her established judicatures, ratified by the laws of the ' land. 2. Whereas, by the late toleration, which is efablished, a door is opened to very many gross errors ' and loose practices in this church, you shall therefore use all lawful and prudent means to represent the finfulness and offensiveness thereof, that it may be ' timeously remedied. 3. You are to represent the prejudice the church doth fuffer by the interverting of the vaking stipends, which by law were dedicated to pious uses, and seriously endeavour, that hereafter vaking stipends may be intromitted with by presbyteries, and fuch as shall be warranted by them, and no others, to be disposed of and applied to pious ment, feveral ministers met at Edinburgh, and agreed to fend up Mr. Sharp to take care of the affairs of the ules, according to the 20th act of the parliament 1644. 4. You are to endeavour that ministers, lawfully called and admitted by presbyteries to the mini-

CH and Man

1

6 1

6 8

6 3

4 2

f t

· v

6 C

reć

Da

Ge

Sh

fro

ner

per

inf

his

he atte

pre.

the

mie

wea

by

oth

tute

land

mon

of A

by whi

Hill

hou

carr

of 1

nam

L

(

f niftry,

nistry, may have the benefit of the 30th act of parlia- 1660. ment, intitled, Act anent abolishing patronages, for obtaining fummarily, upon the act of their admission, decreet and letters conform, and other executorials, to the effect they may get the right and possession of their stipends, and other benefits, without any other If you find that there will be address or trouble. any commission appointed in this nation, for settling and augmenting of ministers stipends, then you are to use your utmost endeavours to have faithful men, well affected to the interests of Christ and his church, employed therein.' These instructions, directed to Mr. James Sharp, were subscribed by Messrs. David Dickson, Robert Douglas, James Wood, John Smith, George Hutchison and Andrew Ker. On the 13th Mr. Sharp arrived at London, met with a kind reception from Mr. Manton, and had immediate access to the general, who recommended him to Sir Anthony Albly Cowper and Mr. Weaver, two members of Parliament. But, instead of following the instructions he received from his constituents, he treacherously betrayed that very cause he was fent to promote.

On the 21st of February Monk repaired to Whitehall, The feattended by the fecluded members, who were mostly cluded presbyterians, having made them previously to subscribe members these four articles, 1. To settle the conduct of the ar-restored. mies, fo as might best secure the peace of the common- note on 2. To provide for the support of the forces Rapin, wealth. by sea and land, and money for their arrears, and the p. 615. other contingencies of the government. 3. To constitute a council of state for the civil government of Scotland and Ireland; and to iffue out writs for the fummoning a parliament to meet at Westminster on the 25th And, 4. to confent to their own diffolution, by a time that should be limited to them. But all this while the general, the better to disguise his real design, still professed himself to be against the restoration.

When the fecluded members took their place in the Their house, they were superior in number to the rump, and so alls. carried all before them. They annulled the engagement of 1649. ---- repealed the oath of abjuration of CHARLES Stuart, ----- ordered the earls of Crawford and Lauderdale to be fet at liberty, ----- agreed to a bill, March the 2d, for approbation of publick ministers, and named Mr. Manton, and several others of the presbyterliaed to the t the

en-

her

to be

ment,

d the turn-

ings,

tions

nent,

ting,

clud-

th or

must

en-

fecu-

ill be

com-

for

de-

ecla-

was

rrun

the s erors eret the

be be the ting ica-

ereby em,

ious nent aw-

initry,

1660. rian persuasion for that service, which passed into an act March the 14th. They declared for the affembly's confession of faith, reserving the 30th and 31st chapters for farther consideration, declaring it to be the public confession of faith of the church of England; and the fame day ordered the SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVE-NANT to be reprinted, and fet up in every church in England, and read publickly by the minister once every year. And thus the re-establishment of presbytery, with the SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT, was judged necessary for bringing in the king. After this the long parliament passed an act for their own dissolution, and for the calling a new parliament to meet the 25th of A. pril; the candidates for which were to declare, under their hands, ' That the war against the late king was ' just and lawful, and that all who had assisted in aony war against the parliament, since January 1. 1641. they and their fons were made incapable of being elected, unless they had fince manifested their good affection to the parliament.' Then they appointed a new council of state, to take care of the government, and on the 16th of March dissolved themselves, after they had fat, with fundry intermissions, nineteen years, four months, and thirteen days.

Sharp's

All this time Sharp kept up his correspondence with dissimula. Mr. Douglas, and acquainted him with the occurrences of the times, still professing a zealous concern for the interest of presbytery, and for the covenants. In his letter of the 4th of March he named five, whom he called warping brethren, and no friends to the covenantinterest, and that the great fear is, that the king will come in, and that with him moderate episcopacy, at the least, will take place in England. But the reverend Mr. Douglas, in his letter to Sharp of the 15th, says, among other things, ' We know by experience that moderate episcopacy (what can it be otherways than bifhops with cautions?) is the next step to episcopal ty-' ranny, which will appear very foon above-board, if that ground once be laid, &c.' But though Mr. Douglas infifted that commissioners should be sent from Scotland, yet Sharp, in his answer, declared, that this would be neither for their reputation nor advantage; and, in another letter after this, he fays, ' I continue in ' my opinion, that Scotland should make no application ' till the king come in.' Thus Sharp managed affairs. The

Th

VENT

Mr.

who 25th

as a f

from pardo

within

parlia

ces, a

questi on w media

voted

gover

lords

Engla

up a

his de

was i

as the

mifer

whole

under indepe of the ans,

peop)

juries

In the

terwa

tage;

tisfied

plan

flood In

there

up th

tors,

verte

mana

with

Ha

an

y's

ers

olic

the

E-

in

ery

ith

ne-

ong

ind

A-

der

vas

2-

41.

ing

boo

ted

nt,

ter

rs,

ith

ces

the

his

he

int-

will

the

Mr.

a-

mo-

bi-

ty-

011-oni.

his

ge;

e in ion

s.

The

The elections for the new parliament, or rather con- 1660. VENTION, went generally in favour of the royalists; and Mr. Neal fays, that in some places men were chosen The king who had no religion at all. They fat down on the invited 25th of April, and appointed the 30th to be observed bome And the next day the king's DECLARATION without anyterms. as a fast. from Breda was read in the house, granting a general pardon to all his subjects who should lay hold on it within forty days, except fuch as should be excepted by parliament, and declaring a liberty to tender consciences, and that no man shall be disquieted, or called in question, for differences of opinion in matters of religion which do not diffurb the peace of the kingdom. Immediately after reading this declaration, the commons voted, that, according to the ancient constitution, the government of this kingdom is, and ought to be, by king, lords and commons; that the king of Scotland is king of England, &c. And a committee was appointed to draw up a dutiful letter inviting his majesty to return to his dominions; and a deputation of lords and commons was fent to convoy him home. Thus the king was invited back in a hurry, without any terms.

Had the presbyterians in England exerted themselves, as they might, on this occasion, in all probability the mileries, that afterwards came upon themselves and the whole nation, had been prevented. They had been kept under fince 1648. and being by this time weary of the independents, and watchful to keep all republicans out of the parliament, they secretly courted the episcopalians, fays Mr. Neal, who dispersed papers among the Vol. IV. people, protesting their resolutions to forget all past in- P. 247juries, and to bury all rancor, malice and animolities. In short, they put that confidence in them, which afterwards turned out to their own unspeakable disadvantage; nay, the majority of them declared themselves satisfied to yield to a moderate episcopacy, according to the plan of archbishop Usher; but the church of Scotland flood to their principles.

In April and May the provincial fynods met, and Synods in there appeared a very good disposition towards making Scotland up the differences between the resolutioners and protestors, had not Mr. Sharp, by his letters from London, diverted this upon the king's return, and put him and the managers about him upon beginning the perfecution, with attacking the remonstrators or anti-resolutioners. For 1660. this vile apostate had a private pique against the reverend Mr. Samuel Rutherford, Mr. James Guthrie, lord Waristoun, and others of the protestors, and therefore put the government upon those measures we shall afterwards relate, by which all attempts for a reconciliation were rendred abortive, till both were thrown into the furnace together. Sharp was joined in this by those noblemen who could not bear the scriptural strictness of the prefbyterian discipline and government.

Mr. Douglas's fermon. Ibid.

The fynod of Lothian fat down on the Ist of May, when Mr. Douglas preached an excellent fermon from 2 Cor. iv. 1. where he bore an excellent testimony a. gainst prelacy, and warned his brethren against moderate episcopacy; for, fays he, 'Tis a plant which God never planted, and the ladder whereby ANTICHRIST ' mounted his throne; ' and farther observes, that kingly government in the state, and presbyterian in the church, are the greatest curbs to profaneness; and so confuted that foolish proposition, No bishop, no king. He likeways bore his testimony against fectarianism, which he compared to quick-fands on the shore, which swallow up people before they are aware.

Sharp king. P. 92:

The king was proclaimed at London on the 4th of goes to the May, and at Edinburgh on the 14th. Many at this time went to compliment his majesty; among others Sharp was fent, of whom Dr. Burnet writes thus. ' He carried with him a letter from the earl of Glencaira to Hyde, made foon after earl of Clarendon, recommending him as the only person capable to manage the design of setting up episcopacy in Scotland: Upon which he was received into great confidence. as he had observed very carefully the success of "Monk's folemn protestations against the king, and for a commonwealth, it feems he was so pleased with the f original, that he refolved to copy after it, without letting himself be diverted from it by scruples; For he stuck neither at solemn protestations, both by word of mouth and by letters, (of which there is a multitude in Mr. Wodrow's introduction) nor at appeals to God of his fincerity in acting for presbytery, both in prayers and on other occasions, joining with these many dreadful imprecations on himself if he did prevaricate. He was all the while maintained by the presbyterians, as their agent, and continued to give them a constant account of his negotiations in their

the (Th 6 his 4 jea 6 bou (peo diffi of v owi Th

6 cha

day th throu clama he pa attend hands receiv book t restore foluti other

Abstr

of Go that man moun own ways, world to wh cordi fave autho comm > pectar Ne ling f fet by

eve-

ord

put ards

vere

lace

nen

ref-

Tay,

om

y a-

ode-

God

IST

hat

the

fo

ing.

nich

low

of

this

ers He

airu

m:

age

pon

et,

of

for

the

ith-

es;

oth

ere

r at

ery,

ith

he

by

to

in

reis

their service, while he was indeed undermining it. 1660. This piece of craft was so visible, he having repeated his protestations to as many persons, as then grew e jealous of him, that when he threw off the mask, about a year after this, it laid a foundation of fach a character of him, that nothing could ever bring people to any tolerable thoughts of a man whose diffimulation and treachery were fo well known, and of which fo many proofs were to be feen under his own hand.

The king landed at Dover May 26th, and on Tuefday the 29th rode in triumph with his two brothers through the city of London to Whitehall, amidst the acclamations of an innumerable croud of spectators. As Calamy, he passed along, the London ministers in their places attended him with all demonstrations of joy, and by the hands of old Mr. Arthur Jackson presented his majesty with a rich emboffed bible, which he was pleafed to receive, and to declare it his resolution to make THAT book the rule of his conduct. Thus was his majesty restored; and we shall relate that he kept this last refolution in the fame manner that he observed all his other engagements.

Abstract of the protest referred to p. 18. of the foregoing Introduction.

FTER apologizing for this step, they say,----To your honours is our exhortation, that ye would endeavour----to advance the building of the house of God, referving always into the Lord's own hand that glory which he will communicate neither with man nor angel, to wit, To prescribe from his holy mountain, a lively pattern, according to which his own tabernacle should be builded; remembering always, that there is no absolute----authority in this world, except the fovereign authority of Christ, ----to whom it belongeth as properly to rule the church according to the good pleasure of his own will, as----to lave her by the merit of his own fufferings: All other authority is so intrenched within the marches of divine commandment, that the least overpassing of the bounds fet by God himself, bringeth men under the fearful expectation of temporal and eternal judgments-----

Next, remember that God hath fet you to be nuring fathers of the church, craving----ye would advance-----that church which he hath fashioned-----but not that ye should presume to fashion-----a new portraiture of a church, and a new form of divine service, which God in his word hath not before allowed---as, namely, the estate of bishops---thereby ye should bring in ---the ordinance of man---which the experience of former ages hath shewed to be the ground of idleness----pride---tyranny and---ambition in the church of God; and, sinally, to have been the ground of that antichristian hierarchy which mounted up on the steps of pre-eminence of bishops, until that man of sin came forth as the first ripe fruits of man's wisdom, whom God shall consume with the breath of his own mouth.-----

Above all things, my lords, beware to strive against God with an open and displayed banner, by building up again the walls of Jericho, which the Lord hath not only cast down----but laid them under an---execration; so that the building of them again must needs stand to greater charges to the builders, than the re-edifying of Jericho to Hiel the Bethelite ----- for he had nothing but the interdiction of Joshua .--- But the states of this realm have the reverence of the oath of God, made by themselves, and subscribed with their own hands---to hold them back from fetting up the dominion of bishops-----This pre-eminence of bishops is that Dagon which once already fell before the ark of God in this land, and no band of iron shall be able to hold him up again----the institution of Christ was anterior thereto ---- and shall stand within the house of God, when this new fashion of altar shall go to the door----Remember, my lords, that in times past your authority was for Christ----God forbid that ye should now leave off, and fall away from your former reverence born to Chrilt, in prefuming to lead him whom the father hath appointed to be leader of you; and far less to trail the holy ordinances of Christ, by the cords of your authority, at the heels of the ordinances of men. ---- And albeit your honours have no fuch intention .--- yet remember that spiritual darkness, flowing from a very small beginning, doth so infinuate itself into the house of God, as men can hardly difcern by what fecret means the light is dimmed; and darkness creeping in gets the upper hand, and in the end, at unawares, all is involved with in a misty cloud of horrible apostacy.----

THE

per lig

to jeć

foo

end

ou

fell who no Ar inco

ma tio

Ea

HISTORY

OF THE

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND.

CHAP. I.

Of the apprehending of the marquis of Argyll; the proceedings of the committee of estates; the supplication of the ministers, and their imprisonment, and the sufferings of others, to the end of the year 1660.

It is a second to the possession of such the sing section of the such any prince came to the possession of such The sing's large dominions with greater advantages, ingratito have done good to himself, to his subjects at home, and to his allies abroad: But he was no sooner placed on the throne, than, through the influence of evil counsel, and his own effeminate and vicious disposition, he abandoned himself to all manner of voluptuous pleasures, and in a little time became a liged for being placed on the throne of his ancelporrvice, ---as, ing in f fors----God; ichrif pre-forth | fhall

gainst

lding

h not crati-

needs

re-ee had

ftates

made

ds---of bit Don this

m up

ereto

this

mber, as for

, and hrift,

poin-

ho-

ority,

lbeit

mber

egin-

d, as light

pper

vith-

HE

The English presbyterians were not long before they felt the dismal effects of their appearance for a monarch who had no sense of gratitude for their kind services, nor any regard to his most solemn oaths and engagements. And the church of Scotland, to whom he was so much indebted, and for the support and establishment whereof he had entred into covenant, was, in a little time, made to feel the direful consequences of royal dissimulation and perjury, though she had an undoubted claim to all manner of savour and protection.

perfecutor of those very persons to whom he was ob-

On the 19th of June a thanksgiving was observed at A thanks-Edinburgh, for the king's restoration, which began with giving at seeming burgh. 1660. feeming devotion, and ended in open impiety. When the fermons were over, the city-magistrates and council. preceeded by his majesty's heralds and trumpeters, and different kinds of mulick, and attended with the officers of state, a multirude of nobility and gentry, judges and others, went in procession to the cross, where, a large theatre being erected for that purpose, and a table co. vered, they drank to the health of the day with the utmost pomp and levity possible, the trumpets founded. the bells rung, the guards fired, the very cross run with wine, and all manner of demonstrations of joy were shewed; from thence they repaired to the town-hall and chief inns in the city, where the evening was fpent as if it had been a great facrifice to Bacchus; a direful prefage of the woful days a-coming, and a literal verification of that faying of the wifelt of mere men, Even in laughter the heart is forrowful, and the end of that mirth is beaviness.

Soon after the king's return, the noble marquis of Argyll was very much follicited to repair to court; and no doubt he was himself inclined to wait on a prince on whose head he had placed the crown. But several of his best friends, and particularly Mr. Robert Douglas, used many arguments to divert him from his purpose, till matters were come to fome fettlement, especially as his enemies at London had been at pains to raife calumnies on his lordship's person and conduct. However, Argyll being persuaded that he was able to vindicate himself from all aspersions, was he only admitted to his majesty's presence, set out for London, where he arrived on the 8th of July, and went directly to Whitehall.

When the king heard of his being come thither, he, * Introd. notwithstanding his former promises *, ordered Sir William P. 42. Fleming to apprehend and carry him directly to the tower, where he continued under close confinement till Argyll committed he was fent to Scotland. This noble peer was one of to the the chief of the COVENANTERS, and had been fingularly tower. active in the reformation of his country from the infupportable yoke of prelacy.

From the tower he was conveyed in a man of war to Scotland. Scotland, to be tried by the parliament. They landed at Leith on the 20th of December, and he was committed to Edinburgh castle the same day.

Sir John Swinton, one of the judges under Cromwel, Swinton apprehen- who, from being a zealous professor of the reformation, ded. turned hou mar ly o cure chib Car/ les I and time trun proc pour all I of tr is no ing a ny t

Cha

turn

V

0 Was burg the f A Scott missi forc mad State earl Prin But parti vate for e ting this terec H state Whit nom Edin

fairs

turned quaker, and had been apprehended in a quaker's 1660. house in London, was fent down to Scotland with the marquis.

. T.

hen

icil.

and

cers

and irge co-

the

led,

vith

rere

and

t as

re-

ca-

in irth

of

and

nce

eral

las,

ole,

y as ımer,

ate

to

ar-

all.

he,

iam

the

till

of

rly

While these things were a-doing, on the 14th of 7u-Sir ly orders came down to major-general Morgan to fe- James cure Sir James Stewart, provoft of Edinburgh, Sir Ar- Stewart chibald Johnstoun of Waristoun, and Sir John Chiesty of and Sir Carfwell, who protested against the death of king Char- Chiefly les I. and was knighted in the Isle of Wight. The first seized. and last were seized, but Waristown escaped for some time. And therefore he was summoned by sound of A proclatrumpet to furrender himself, and the general issued a mation aproclamation for apprehending him, promiting 100 Waripounds Scots to any who should do it, and discharging stoun. all from concealing or harbouring him under the pain This was the first arbitrary step; for here is not only a reward offered by a general for apprehending a worthy gentleman, but declaring it treason for any to harbour him, and that without any cause assigned.

On the 26th of July, one William Giffen, or Govan, was apprehended, and committed to the castle of Edinburgh, upon a false information, that he had been on the scaffold when king Charles I. was beheaded.

About this time his majesty settled the ministry in The mini-The earl of Middleton was declared his com- firy in missioner for holding the parliament, and general of the Scotland, forces that were to be raised. The earl of Glencairn was p. 110. made chancellor, the earl of Lauderdale secretary of made chancellor, the earl of Lauderdale secretary of state, the earl of Rothes president of the council; the earl of Crawford was continued in the treasury, and Primrose was Clerk-Register. The rest depended on these: But Middleton and Lauderdale were two heads of the parties. Dr. Burnet farther fays, that Middleton had a private instruction, to try the inclinations of the nation for episcopacy, and to consider of the best method for setting it up. If this be true, we may see what regard this prince had for the folemn engagements he had entered into.

How foon as the king had leifure to confider the Proclastate of Scotland, he issued a proclamation, dated at mation Whitehall the 2d of August, for the committee of estates, committee nominated by him and the parliament 1651. to meet at of estates, Edinburgh the 23d of that month, for managing the affairs of the kingdom till the parliament should meet.

I co motion had sent ability to All up-

to led

iit-

vel,

on, aed Occasion of it.

Cha

(OU

the the

de!

· pre du du

we we

ani

an

de:

& tar

'kn

his

fer fer

· Sco

" me

do:

of t hav

ty:

his

' nin

' mo

e pel

and

the the

4 fam

dor

fire

· lom

per,

upon

nant,

well

him i full fu

Sworn

mann

like a

yernn

on of being

Th

Da

pec

Th

ty professors of this committee had appeared hearty professors of the true religion, had concurred with the king in taking the NATIONAL COVENANT and SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT, and some of them had advised him to make that remarkable declaration at Dum.

Introd. fermling * in August 1650. So that every one might P. 39. have expected some good from their administration; but their little singer became heavier than the loins of all the former oppressors, of which they gave a specimen on the very first day of their meeting.

Meeting Thus, upon the 23d of August, Messieurs James Guof ministerie at Stirling, John Stirling and Robert Trail at Edinsters. &c. burgh, Alexander Moncrieff at Scone, John Semple at at EdinGarsphairn, Thomas Ramsay at Mordingtoun, John Scot at burgh.

Oxnam, Gilbert Hall at Kirklistoun, John Murray at Methven, and George Nairn at Bruntisland, ministers, together with Mr. Andrew Hay of Craignethan, and James Kirkco of Sundiwell, elders, assembled at a private house in Edinburgh, to draw up an humble address and supplication to the king.

The occasion of their meeting was this: The opposers of the publick refolutions, justly suspecting the designs now hatching against the church, and the conduct of Mr. Sharp at London, applied to the publick refolutioners either to concur with them in a dutiful address to his majesty, at such a conjuncture as this, or address him themselves: But they, considing too much in Mr. Sharp, would not comply with either of these; and therefore these faithful men found themselves obliged to do something in such a criss. Accordingly they met, and drew up a humble supplication and address, wherein they declared, 'how hateful the actings of the late u-

Their sup-they declared, 'how hateful the actings of the late uplication 'furping powers were to them, in offering violence to and address.' the parliament of England, in murdering the late king, dress. Woods 'in secluding his majesty from his government, &c.

Wodr In lectuding his majetty from his government, of.

Ap. No. ' the kingdom and liberties of Jesus Christ-----how thankfully they acknowledged the Lord's signal preferving his majesty's person,----and in bringing him back after a long exile. --- How it was their fincere purpose and resolution, as it was their present practice, to pour forth their fervent desires and supplications for his majesty, hoping that he would allow them that protection, countenance and encourage ment, which they had reason to expect from a graci-

ar-

the

MN

ad-

um-

ight

on;

fall

men

Gu-

din-

at at

of at

at

ers.

and pri-

refs

fers

gns

Mr.

s ei-

ma-

him

Mr.

and

d to

met,

rein

e u-

e to

ing,

Oc.

pon

how

pre-

him

cere

rac-

lica-

llow

age.

racious

ous king .---- What dangers threatned religion, and 1660. the work of reformation in these kingdoms, from the deligns and endeavours of the remnant of the popilb, prelatical and malignant party therein, ---- to re-introduce prelacy, the ceremonies and the fervice-book, which were formerly cast out as inconsistent with that pure and spotless rule of church-government, discipline and worship in the word of God, ---- and from the endeayours of the spirit of error, that possesset the fectaries in these nations, --- and therefore, with bowed knees and bended affections, they humbly supplicate his majesty, to employ his royal power, for the prefervation of the reformed religion in the church of Scotland, in doctrine, worship, discipline and government, and for the reformation of religion in the kingdoms of England and Ireland, ---- and that all places of trust under his majesty might be filled with such as have taken the covenant, and are of approven integrity and known affection to the cause of God, --- and that his majesty would be pleased, for removing the begin-' nings of stumbling that had already been given, to remove the ceremonies and fervice-book from his own chapel and family, and other places of his dominions, and give publick fignification of his appprobation of the covenant, and of his purpose to adhere unto the same, which they put him in mind he had formerly ' done in a most solemn manner, ---- for it was the de-' fire of their foul, that his majesty may be like unto David, a man according to God's own heart, to So-' lomon of an understanding heart to judge the Lord's people, &c.

This is that which bishop Burnet calls a warm pa- Remarks, per, in which, after some cold compliments to the king P. 112. upon his restoration, they put him in mind of the covenant, &c. But the reader may judge whether they could well use fincerer expressions of loyalty. Did they put him in mind of any thing but what all honest and faithfull subjects ought to have done. Had not his majesty fworn to every thing, which, in the most respectful manner, they defired? Was there any thing treafonable, like a seditious reslecting on his majesty, or on the government of the kingdom of England, or the constitution of the present committee of estates?

The earl of Glencairn, the chancellor, and others, being informed of that meeting, fent some persons to 2660. apprehend those who were met together. They who were fent came upon them when the scrolls and other papers were before them. These papers were no other than the first draughts of letters to some brethren, defiring another meeting at Glasgow, in September, about the supplication, with instructions to some of their num. ber, when they went welt with a copy of the supplicati. on, that it might be confidered by the fynod of Glafgow, in order to their joining with them in it, if they judged it needful.

The miniprisoned.

When the unfinished scrolls and supplication were flers im- read before the committee, they were directly fent to court, and all who had been present at the meeting, except Mr. Hay of Graignethan, who happily escaped, were committed to the castle of Edinburgh, without ever calling the ministers before them, or hearing what they had to fay in their own defence. So great injustice, exercifed towards those who were manifesting their love and respect to their prince, by putting him in mind of his most facred engagements, and of the duty he owed both to God and his fubjects, justly alarmed all the faithful in the land, especially the congregations, who were now rendred desolate.

Proclamation.

Next day the committee of estates published a proclamation against all unlawful and unwarrantable meetings and conventicles, without his majesty's special authority, and against all seditious petitions and remonstrances, under what pretext foever. But can the reader imagine that it was unlawful for a small number of ministers to meet in a private room, when their only defign was to congratulate his majesty upon his being restored to the throne of his ancestors, and put him in mind of his duty? Or that it was a feditious petition and remenstrance, to intreat the king to observe his coronation-oath, when many used all their interest to get him to act a part inconsistent with what he had sworn in the presence of God?

The ministers under confinement agreed upon a petition, and fent it to the committee: But the chancellor infifted that they should acknowledge their fault This they could in meeting upon the defign they did. not in conscience comply with, notwithstanding the advocate, who had taken the tender, and thereby renounced all allegiance to the king, when many of them were fuffering for their loyalty, threatned to found a Guth dom Di apost gust, his m

Cha

proc

they

lever

to t parli

· 70 ou you fee ' the ' wh del:

of of you " fter wh ' tha cat ' diff to to ' ple ' tha na ' the pro an (fur fel: cal

Sco

act 16 an an

foo

proces

process of treason upon the fupplication. And therefore 1660, they continued a considerable time in prison; at last several of them were let out of the castle, and confined to their lodgings in Edinburgh, till the sitting of the parliament, when they were all liberated except Mr. Guthrie, who remained in prison till a glorious martyrdom set him free.

During the proteedings of the committee, that vile sharp apostate Sharp arrived at Edinburgh on the last of Au-returns. gust, and next day delivered the following Letter from his majesty, directed to Mr. Robert Douglas, to be communicated to the presbytery of Edinburgh.

CHARLES R.

who

ther

ther

de-

bout

um-

cati-

gow.

dged

were

t to

were

cal-

they

tice,

heir

nind

, he

d all

ons,

cla-

ings

ori-

ranader

mide-

re-

n in

tion

his

t to

vorn

pe-

cel-

fault

ould

the

1 70-

hem

nd a

cels

RUSTY and well-beloved, we greet you well. King's By the letter you fent to us with this bearer Mr, letter. James Sharp, and by the account he gave of the state of our church there, we have received full information of your sense of our sufferings, and of your constant affection and loyalty to our person and anthority: And therefore we will detain him here no longer, of whose good services we are very fensible, nor will we delay to let you know by him our gracious acceptance of your address, and how well we are fatisfied with your carriages, and with the generality of the ministers of the church of Scotland, in this time of trial, whilst some, under specious pretences, swerved from that duty and allegiance they owed to us. cause such, who, by the countenance of usurpers, have disturbed the peace of that our church, may also labour to create jealousies in the minds of well-meaning people, we have thought fit, by this, to affure you, that, by the grace of God, we resolve to discountenance profanity, and all contemners and oppolers of the ordinances of the gospel. We do also resolve to protect and preserve the government of the church of Scotland, as it is settled by law, without violation; and to countenance, in the due exercise of their functions, all such ministers who shall behave themselves dutifully and peaceably, as becomes men of their calling. We will also take care, that the authority and acts of the general affembly at St. Andrews and Dundee 1651. be owned and stand in force, until we shall call another general affembly, (which we purpose to do as soon as our affairs will permit) and we do intend to iend

Chi

rett

1 crea

publ

to t

and

T

of G

prife

beca

The

colle

Edin

he co

Wifb

chan

Wilh

Guth

he co

01 ed ag

REX,

ed m datio

princ

ved, to the

called man.

the co

Iters 1

men (

on, v

1637.

for th

to mod

mind

ed be influc

fend for Mr. Robert Douglas, and some other ministers. ' that we may speak with them in what may farther concern the affairs of that church. And as we are very well fatisfied with your resolution not to meddle without your sphere, so we do expect that church-judicatures in Scotland, and ministers there, will keep within the compass of their station, meddling only with matters ecclefiastick, and promoting our authority and interest with our subjects against all opposers: And that they will take special notice of such, who, by preaching, or private conventicles, or any other way, transgress the limits of their calling, by endeavouring to corrupt the people, or fow feeds of difaffection to us or our government. This you shall make known to the feveral Presbyteries within that our kingdom: And as we do give affurance of our favour and encouragement to you, and to all honest deserving ministers there, so we earnestly recommend it to you, that you be earnest in your prayers, publick and private, to almighty God, who is our rock and our deliverer, both for us and for our government, that we may have fresh and constant supplies of his grace, and the right improvement of all his mercies and deliverances, to the honour of his great name, and the peace, fafety and benefit of all our kingdoms. And fo we bid you heartily farewel. Given at our court at Whitehall, the 10th of August 1660. and of our reign the 12th year.'

By his majesty's special command. LAUDERDALE.

This letter feems to have been penned by Sharp; and, though calculated to lull all afleep till matters were ripe for a thorough change, yet there is in it an innuendo, as if some of the ministers had deviated from their duty: Howbeit, none of them had taken the tender, nor complied with the measures laid down by Gromwel, as Sharp did, The reader will likeways observe, that this covenanted king took care not to mention one word of the covenants, but only promifed to protect the government of the church of Scotland as it is fettled by law. And as for his calling an affembly, if it was intended, we are fure it was never performed. However, the presbytery of Edinburgh sent a loyal answer to the king's letter, with another to Lauderdale. But to 1660.

69

When his majesty's letter came down, it rather en-Procedcreased than lessened the committee's proceedings a-ings of the gainst gentlemen and ministers. The brethren for the committee. publick resolutions made too much of it; and those who opposed these resolutions were looked upon as enemies to the king, and therefore many of them were harrassed and imprisoned.

1.

ers,

her

ve-

ldle ju-

eep

nly

ho-

rs:

ho,

her

lea-

faf-

hall

that our neit

end lick

and

that

de-

the

And

ourt

our

.

nd,

ere

heir

der,

wel,

that

go.

d by

was ow.

r to

the

Thus, on the 14th of September, John Graham provolt Several of Glafgow, and John Spreul town-clerk there, were im-imprison-prisoned, by their order, in the tolbooth of Edinburgh, ed. because they were reckoned to favour the remonstrance. The next day, Mr. Patrick Gillespie, principal of the college of Glasgow, was made prisoner in the castle of Edinburgh, and afterwards sent to Stirling castle, where he continued till the parliament sat down. Mr. William Wisheart and Mr. Robert Row were consined to their chambers at Edinburgh, and within a sew days Mr. Wisheart and provost Jassray were imprisoned in Edinburgh jail; about the same time the reverend Mr. James Guthrie was sent from Edinburgh castle to Stirling, where he continued till near the time of his trial.

On the 19th of September a proclamation was publish-Proclated against two noted books, viz. Mr. Rutherford's LEX mation against two noted books, viz. Mr. Rutherford's LEX mation against lex rex, and the causes of God's wrath, as if they contain-rex, and ed many things injurious to the king, and laid the foun-the causes dation and seeds of rebellion. But the truth is, the of God's principles maintained in the first were never yet dispro-wrath. ved, and the facts in the other were directly contrary to the measures now pursued; and therefore they were called in and burnt at Edinburgh by the common hangman.

Next day a proclamation was issued against all whom Proclathe committee were pleased to call remonstrants, and mation atheir adherents; by this the most zealous of the mini-gainst steers were laid open to persecution, and many gentle-strants. men of the best estates and greatest interest in the nation, who appeared for the reformation since the year 1637. and had given the greatest evidences of concern for the royal samily, were now struck at, with a view to model the elections for the ensuing parliament to the mind of the court. Accordingly some were sommoned before the committee, and others confined, that their influence upon elections might be prevented. And if they

Chap

BOREL .

Of the

not a first st

legal religio

of Far

gul, a

State.

elt par

a very earl of

Bishop

' fpler

for v

sabor

ably c

tive is

were 1

nagers

cipline

difgust

the ele

at the disposi

was m

house,

from 2

not for

ment.

chosen

comm

pealed ed by e

they en

It is

Wh

Acc

$660. they had any tolerable information against them, with respect to their compliances in the time of the usurpation, or their inclination to the remonstrance and protesta-Bond to stion, they were to fign a bond obliging themselves to do to be fid- nothing tending to the prejudice of his majesty's person, Scribed. family, and authority, ---- and that they shall not, in any time coming, directly or indirectly, own, promote, or abet the remonstrance under the highest pains.

On the 10th of October Sir Archibald Johnstown of Warristoun, colonel Ker, colonel Barclay, John Hume of Kello, Robert Andrew of Little-tarbat, and William Dundass late supervisor, were declared fugitives by the committee.

Many ministers were at this time brought to tronimprison- ble; particularly, on the 13th of October, Mr. John Dickfon minister at Rutherglen was imprisoned at Edinburgh, upon an information given by Sir James Hamilton of Elistoun, of some expressions used in a fermon, which, as was alledged, reflected on the government and committee, and tended to fedition and division. Mr. James Nasmyth minister at Hamilton was imprisoned for words alledged to have been spoken by him many years ago, and Mr. James Simpson minister at Airth, when going to fettle with a congregation in Ireland, was seized at Port-patrick, without any cause shewn him. Now it cannot be alledged that these persons suffered for rebellion or treason; for all of them owned the king's authority, and many of them had suffered much for his majesty when in exile. After this the committee adjourned for fome days.

On the 1st of November a proclamation was published, with much folemnity, for holding a parliament at Edinburgh on the 13th of December following: But the king being engaged in several important affairs at London, the affairs of Scotland were postponed till the 31st of December, when his majesty's high-commissioner arrived at Holy-rood-house, and by that time all was ready for business.

I shall close this chapter by observing, that though, in November, George Campbell, sherisf-depute of Argyll, was imprisoned for being concerned in some things with the marquis, yet he was foon pardoned.

standing and degine antifers again the pre-tras and noo erodro bas, estimated ACHAP.

CHAP. II.

control the end won gold from the relief to the control contro

Of the acts of the first session of parliament, the conduct of the church judicatures, the sufferings of the marquis of Argyll, Mr. James Guthrie, and feveral others.

E have had a short view of the arbitrary pro- 1661. ceedings of the committee of estates, by which not a few fuffered contrary to law: And therefore, the first step of the managers was, to open a door for a more legal profecution of honest people, who stood up for religion, liberty and property.

D.

ith

tita-

do

n,

in e,

of

of

in-

m-

n-

ckh,

of

h,

m-nes ds

0, ng

at

it

re-

g's

nis

id-

ed,

in-

he 071-

ıst

ar-

dy

h, vill,

gs

P.

Accordingly, when the parliament met upon the 21st The parof January 1661. they passed many acts, which were ille, liament gal, and subversive of the constitution both in church and meets. flate. To trace this matter more particularly --- The great- illegal. ell part of the members of this parliament were men of a very infamous character. The commissioner, the Character earl of Middleton, was of a fierce and violent temper. of the Bishop Burnet says, *, 'His way of living was most members.

p. 113. 'splendid, but, at the same time, was most scandalous; for vices of all forts were the open practices of those 'about him.' The nobility and gentry were remarkably changed to the worle. Few that had been active in former years were now alive, and these few were marked out for ruin. Several of the leading managers finding that the strictness of the presbyterian discipline stood in the way of their licentionsness, took a disgust thereat: Besides, great pains had been taken at the elections, to get those chosen, who were entirely at the devotion of the court; and if any of another disposition had been chosen, some pretence or other was made to fet aside the election.

When they had taken their feats in the parliamenthouse, Mr. Robert Douglas preached an excellent sermon from 2 Chron. xix. 6. Take heed what ye do, for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in the judgment. After calling the rolls the earl of Glencairn was cholen preses, and the commissioner had a speech recommending peace and unity.

It is to be observed, that, according to former unre-Oath of pealed acts, the covenants were to be taken and subscrib- allegiance ed by every member of succeeding parliaments, before flead of they entred upon business; but a new oath of allegi- the cove ence, papt.

1661. ance, or rather supremacy, being now imposed, the same was taken by all present, except the earl of Cassils; so that this parliament fat down and proceeded in a method directly contrary to standing laws.

Lords of the articles.

On the 8th of January the commissioner moved, that the parliament might proceed to business, in the ancient way, by the lords of the articles, without devolving their power on them, which he declared was not his intention; accordingly, after some debate, it was resolved, 'That 12 noblemen, 12 barons, and 12 burgesses, with the officers of state, shall be in the place of the lords of the articles. These were authorised, in their several meetings, to hear all matters presented to them; to receive proof of what they found relevant, and reoport to the parliament twice a week.' And to these the nation was chiefly indebted for the laws made in this fession.

It is very evident that the main delign of this parliapreachers. ment was to make the king absolute: And this was not a little promoted by the fulfome fermons preached by too many before them. The preachers were not then appointed by the affembly or commission, who used formerly to fit in time of parliament, but the king's advocate, by his letter, appointed what preachers he pleaf-Their ordinary themes were the wickedness of rebellion, the extensiveness of the king's power, passive obedience, &c. and bishop Burnet says, Though they did not speak out, they infinuated the necessity of a greater authority than was then in the church for keeping them in order. One or two spoke plainer; upon which the prefbytery of Edinburgh went to the earl of Middleton and complained of that, as an affront to the law and the king's letter. He dismissed them with good words, but took no notice of their complaints. It will not be amiss now to consider some of the acts made in this fession of parliament, since they laid the foundation for all the injustice and cruelty that were exercised afterwards.

The first printed act is concerning the president and oath of parliament, by which it is enacted, That all members should, at their first down-fitting, take an oath dentication sample, but a new calls of succe of allegiance in the following form.

the fa eath, gover cause fon ci Superi and for and fl his me never

ling

Me fully gr pounde

answer

The body o it incl but ve Thus, fons an that j restrict though and ag intend civil p to take And it were m ed; for my mov register oath ca time wa

By 1 leagues, the 6th who en null. the Sole or pub church . 21

ame

· fo

me-

that

ent

neir

nti-

red.

vith

ords

ve-

em;

re-

hefe

e in

lia-

not

by

hen

for-

ad-

eaf-

fre-

flive

did

ater

n in

ref-

and

the

rds,

not

this

tion

af-

and

t all

oath

--for

most gracious and redoubted sovereign CHARLES ing of Great-Britain, France and Ireland, defender of Oath of the saith, do affirm, testify and declare, by this my solemn allegiance with, that I acknowledge my said sovereign only supreme and parliment, that I acknowledge my faid sovereign only supreme and parliment; and that no foreign prince, power or state, nor person civil or ecclesiastick, hath any jurisdiction, power or superiority over the same; and therefore I utterly renounce and forsake all foreign jurisdiction, powers and authorities, and shall, to my utmost power, defend, assist and maintain his majesty's jurisdiction foresaid, against all deadly, and never decline his majesty's power or jurisdiction, as I shall answer to God.

Members of parliament were to add; and I shall faithfully give my advice and vote in every thing that shall be propounded in parliament, as I shall answer to God.

The title of the act calls it an oath of parliament, the Remarks body of it, an oath of allegiance; and it is evident that upon it. it includes the SUPREMACY. The words are general, but very comprehensive, and capable of different senses. Thus, when the king is affirmed to be supreme over all perfons and in all causes, and to be affisted and maintained in that jurisdiction, this would require some limitation, restriction, or explication to clear the meaning; for though the commissioner and chancellor declared once and again, in the face of parliament, that they did not intend to give his majesty any ecclesiastical, but only a civil power, yet in a little time, when ministers offered to take the oath in this sense, they were not permitted. And it would feem these declarations from the throne were made from other views than at that time appeared; for, when the earl of Cassils and the laird of Kilburmy moved that these declarations might be entred in the regilters, it was peremptorily refused. In fine, this oath came to be the Shibboleth of the state, and in a little time was imposed upon all subjects of any influence.

By their 4th act they decree, that no conventions, O'ker acts leagues, or bonds be made without the fovereign. By of parliate 6th act they declare the convention of estates 1643. ment. who entred into the folemn league and covenant, void and null. By their 7th act they discharge the renewing of the folemn league and covenant, or any other covenants, or publick oaths concerning the government of the church or kingdom, without his majesty's special war-

K

rani

6

.

4 fel

kin

act

kno

kin

kin

er i

cove

mea to c

to r geth cal,

defe

catu

king

utte decl

ther

were

and decla for t

ers,

teria

mine they

ter t all th

1640 huma

natio

what

name

fit

· all

01 ficier

1661. rant and approbation. By their 11th act it is ordered, that all persons in publick offices take the oath of Allegiance before mentioned, and subscribe a declaration afferting his majesty's royal prerogative; the fubstance whereof is as follows. Forafmuch as the Inftrurogative.

estates of parliament-----have-----declared, that it ferting the c is an inherent privilege, ----- and an undoubted royal pre- c part of the royal prerogative of the kings of this kingdom, to have the fole choice and appointment of the officers of state, privy councellors and lords of fession on; that the power of calling, holding and diffolying parliaments, and all conventions and meetings of the estates, doth solely reside in the king's majesty, his heirs and fucceffors, and that----no acts nor ftatutes, to be passed in any parliament, can be binding on the people, or have the authority or force of laws, without the special approbation of his majesty, or his commission .---- That the power of arms, the mak-' ing peace or war, the making treaties with foreign ' princes and states, or at home by subjects among themselves, doth properly reside in the king's maje-' fty, his heirs and fuccessors, as their undoubted right, and theirs alone: And that it is high-treason in the fubjects of this kingdom, or any number of them, upon whatfoever ground, to rife, or continue in arms, ------without his majesty's authority first interponed thereto. That it is unlawful for fubjects, of whatfoever quality or function, to ----- assemble themselves to treat or determine in any matters of state, civil or ecclesiastical, (except in the ordinary judgments) or to make leagues or bonds-----without his majesty's special consent. That the league and covenant, and all the treaties following thereupon, ----- are not obligatory on this kingdom, or on the subjects thereof, to meddle or interpose, by arms or any other seditious "way, in any thing concerning the religion and government of the churches of England and Ireland .---And that none----prefume, upon pretext of any authority whatfoever, to require the renewing or swearing of the faid league and covenant, or of any other covenants or publick oaths-----and that none offer to renew the same without his majesty's special warrant and approbation, &c. I do, conform to the acts of parliament aforesaid, declare, that I do, with all hum-

· ble duty, acknowledge his majesty's royal prerogative

. 2.

Or-

the

oe a

the

the

at it

bted

ing-

the

fessi-

oly-

rs of

esty,

ding

aws,

r his

nak-

eign

long

naje-

ight,

the

up-

rms,

oned

atfo-

elves

il or

or to fpe-

d all

liga-

f, to

tious

go-

1.---

y au-

wear-

other er to rrant

ts of hum-

roga-

tive, right and power in all the particulars, and in the 1661.

manner aforesaid, and that I do heartily give my confent thereto, by these presents subscribed by me at---.

As the oath of allegiance before mentioned was in it- Remarks. self unlawful, because, to swear unrestricted and unlimited allegiance to any man, is a manifest enflaving of mankind to a servile obligation to maintain and uphold the persons and government of mutable men, let them act as they please; and because there is in it an acknowledgment of universal supremacy inherent in the king; so this instrument or declaration, afferting the king's prerogative, is equally fo; for, 1. all in publick offices hereby acknowledge an absolute and unlimited power in the king; 2, they renounce the folemn and facred and, 3. they condemn the most innocent covenants; means of feeking redrefs of grievances; for they are to declare it to be treason for subjects, upon any pretence, to rife in arms, and unlawful for subjects to assemble together to treat of any matters of state, civil or ecclesiastical, without his majesty's approbation: So that here all defensive arms are condemned; and none of the judicatures of the church are to affemble but when the king pleases. By this also a door was opened for the utter overthrow of these judicatures, seeing the king is declared to be the fountain of all church-power. therefore it was no wonder, though many of those, who were bound by the national covenant and folemn league and covenant, refused to take the oath or subscribe the declaration; and it is evident, that they who suffered for this refusal can never be said to suffer as evil doers, but only for conscience sake.

One might think that the parliament had made suf-The act ficient progress, for one session, in overturning presby-resisfory. terian government and discipline; but they were determined to make all sure, and therefore, by their 9th act, they annulled the parliaments and committees kept after the year 1648. and by their 15th act they annulled all the parliaments that had been held betwixt the years 1640 and 1648. And thus they took away the greatest human securities that could be given to a church and nation. Bishop Burnet says of this last mentioned act, what he might with equal reason have said of both, namely, 'That it was a most extravagant act, only p. 119. 'fit to be concluded after a drunken bout. It shook 'all possible security for the suture, and laid down a 1661. ' most pernicious precedent.' When this act rescisso, my was brought in to the house by the lords of the articles, great debates arose upon it, so that it could not pass that night; however, after great struggle, it was carried next day.

" most

Att concerning religion and church government.

By their 16th act, concerning religion and government, the true protestant reformed religion was ordered to be fettled as it was before the year 1638. and the government of the church to be secured as the king finds most consistent with scripture, monarchy and peace. Hereby the king was fet at the head of all ecclefiaftical affairs; for the government of the church was entirely unfixed, and the settlement of it put into the king's power: And though fessions, presbyteries and synods were permitted for a few weeks ; yet we shall see how their liberties were taken from them, and their proceedings violently interrupted, fo that presbyterian government fcarcely lived out this year.

29th of May made an anniversary thanksgiving.

By their 17th act they ordained that the 29th of May be observed as an anniversary thanksgiving for the king's restoration, and be for ever set apart as an holyday unto the Lord, &c. Though many gave obedience to this act, yet others could not in conscience submit to it, not only because it is not in the power of any, under heaven, to appoint anniversary holy-days, that - being the prerogative of the creator alone, but also because, though the day was set apart, forever, to be kept holy to the Lord, yet diversions were appointed for spending the day after the publick worship was over,

Patronage 49.

And the better to fecure the model of their church-government, by the 36th act they restored the heavy grievance of patronages, which they knew had always been a dead weight upon, and inconsistent with presbyterial government. Nay, this act ordained all who shall be presented to take the oath of allegiance, before they were fettled, under severe penalties. Instead of making any remarks upon this, I shall only lay before the reader what were the sentiments of the parliament of Scotland when they abolished patronages 1649. 'Considering (fay they) that patronages and presentations are an evil

f and bondage under which the Lord's people and mi' nisters of this land have long groaned, and that it hath no warrant in God's word, but is founded on-f ly on the common law, and is a custom popish, and brought into the kirk in time of ignorance and fue peritition,

s gr 4 to 6 bl s lir vert ges, cy c H

Cha

· be tion laid all w prop mini doin It acts

gain Some able by / of th chur M

the p

and, full a chure Wara Livin grega in a effort of the Edinb ner, explai parlia to an and t faith ther v

T

77 persistion, and that the same is contrary to the 2d 1661.

book of discipline, in which, upon sound and good grounds, it is reckoned among abuses that are desired to be reformed, and unto several acts of general assembly; and that it is prejudicial to the liberty of the people and planting of kirks, and unto the free calling and entry of ministers unto their charge.----Nevertheless this parliament not only restored patronages, but imposed the oath of allegiance and supremacy on all ministers who should be presented.

Having thus considered some of the most remarkable Conduct acts of this session of parliament, by which the constitution of the mition of the church was overturned, and a foundation wifters, laid for introducing abjured prelacy, and prosecuting all who should oppose the schemes then forming, it is proper that we next take a view of the conduct of the ministers and judicatures while these things were a-doing.

2,

100

ar-

not

Was

rn-

red

the

inds

ere-

af-

un-

W.

ere

ncir

ngs

ent

of the oly-

nce

mit

iny,

be-

kept

-go-

iev-

rial

1 be vere

any ader

land

(fay evil

mi-

at it

onand

fu-

ion,

It is too evident they did not make such a stand against these encroachments as they might have done. Some indeed, in their private capacity, bore an honourable testimony thereagainst, but very little was done by synods and presbyteries. However, for the honour of those who made any stand for the liberties of the church, take the following account.

Mr. Robert Douglas, in his fermon at the opening of the parliament, dealt very faithfully with the members; and, in feveral parts of the country, ministers gave full and faithful warning of the dangers threatning the church of Scotland, particularly Messieurs Robert Mac-Ward at Glasgow, William Guthrie at Fenwick, and John Livingston at Ancrum, and not a few ministers kept congregational fasts; but all this time very little was done in a judicative capacity. Nevertheless the following efforts were made, though they proved fruitless.

The parliament having passed several acts subversive Overtures of the work of reformation, the brethren in and about of the Edinburgh presented several overtures to the commission ministers in and aner, namely, that there might be an act of parliament bout Edinexplaining the meaning of the oath of allegiance, that the burgh, parliament would declare, that they had no intention to annul or make void the solemn league and covenant, and that they would approve and ratify the confession of saith and catechisms, and the directory for worship, together with the discipline, government and liberties of this church.

thre

₩25

mati

2 CC

wou

to a

vern

that

of th

gain

clam

prive

tion.

their

Ry's

was t

Glafg

ling n

the re

Octobe

comm

25 CO

and th

if ther

before

and fin

interr

the co

were i

in the upon v

accord

a plain

The

On

1661. church. These overtures the commissioner and chancellor promised to communicate to his majesty, and af-Neglett- terwards return an answer, and at the same time defired the brethren to draw up an act of ratification, as they would have it, and it should be considered. This was accordingly done, and given to the commissioner, but it all came to nothing; for the ministers were kept in hopes, and got fair words, till matters were past remedy; and, instead of this act of ratification, the act rescissory, above mentioned, was made and ratified.

Other efforts made by

When the nature of this last act came to be known. the presbytery of Edinburgh prepared a supplication to the house, and sent it to the commissioner by three of the mini- their number; but partly by promises, and partly by threatnings, he prevailed upon them not to give it in that day, and presently the parliament met, and in all haste past the act. Upon which the presbytery, next day, fent Mr. David Dickson, and others, to the commisfioner, to intreat access for having their supplication presented to the house, but all to no purpose. this they fent their supplication to the king, which met with no regard: And when they heard of farther intentions to alter the government of the church, they wrote. to the earl of Lauderdale to interpose with his majesty to put a stop to these proceedings, till all things be settled by a free and lawful general affembly; and in March following they fent up an information to court, reprefenting, among other things, the inconvenience and fad consequence of a change in the government and constitution of the church; in which also they were disappointed; for the managers were resolved to please the high-flyers in England, to follow Mr. Sharp's ambitious defigns, and to carry their project against all reason and justice.

Proceedings of Synods.

Before April and May, when the fynods were wont to meet, the parliament made great progress in their work. However, the fynod of Glafgow and Ayr met on the 2d of April, and, taking the state of the church under confideration, they appointed a committee to draw up an address and supplication for a new security to religion and the church, feeing the old fences were taken away; and Mr. William Guthrie having read, from the committee, a draught of fuch address, some of the refolutioners, especially those who were gaping after a bishoprick, vehemently opposed the supplication, and threatned ever, t ting, a ed; an their ad This liamen could i it in th did no 2.

n-

£-

ed

ey

25

it

in

e-

.6-

n,

to

of

by

in

all

ext

nif-

on

ter

net

en-

ote.

efty

fet-

irch

fad

ısti-

fapthe

ious

and

ont heir

met

urch

e to

rity

were rom

ere-

er a

and

presented to differet, because they alledged that now 1661. was not a proper time; and therefore urged that this matter might be delayed; whereto others yielded, from a consideration, that without harmony their address would lofe much of its weight : However, they agreed upon a declaration of their being fixed in, and refolved to adhere to the doctrine, worthip, discipline and government of the church; but many were justly grieved that they made no mention of diocelan episcopacy, nor of the obligation of the covenants. When they met again at Glafgow in May, they were discharged by a prodamation from the market-cross. Thus were they deprived of an opportunity of confidering their fupplication. And though the ministers in town sent three of their number to Edinburgh, with a petition to his majehy's commissioner, yet no return was given to it. This was the last synod of presbyterian ministers who met at Glasgow before the year 1687.

On the 11th of April the fynod of Perth and Stirling met, and, out of their excessive loyalty, ordered the remonstrance, which was drawn up by that fynod oth October 1650. and afterwards presented to the king and committee of estates, to be razed out of their records, as containing several things resecting on his majesty and the estates. I shall only say, that it had been well if there had never been a cause for that remonstrance.

The fynod of Fife met at St. Andrews in April, but, before they had formally voted their intended petition, and finished the warning they designed to give, they were interrupted by the earl of Rothes, appointed inspector by the commissioner. His lordship came in, while they were in the midst of their business, commanded silence in the king's name, required they would insist no more upon what was before them, and dismiss immediately: accordingly they obeyed, without protesting against such a plain invasion of the liberties of Christ's house: However, the presbyteries in their bounds, at their first meeting, approved of what the synod could not get sinished; and all of them, in a very solemn manner, declared their adherence to the principles of the church of Scotland.

This new Office of inspector of synods had no act of par- The office liament for its constitution; and, though it had, that of inspectould not justify the same, there being no precedent for torit in the word of God; but that was what our managers did not consult. They were much vexed that synods fhould

1661. should bear a testimony against their proceedings, and therefore these were appointed as spies, in order to disfolve them when they determined to petition against threatning grievances, as was the practice when prelacy was first introduced, after the reformation, in the time of king JAMES VI.

Synods diffotved.

Accordingly the fynod of Dumfries was disfolved by Queensberry and Hartfield, who were both drunk at that very time. The fynod of Galloway was disfolved by the earl of Galloway, as they were drawing up a supplication against episcopacy; but the moderator, Mr. John Park. faithfully protested against what was done, as an injury to a court of Jesus Christ, and the ministers would not remove till he prayed and regularly concluded their meeting.

Symod of Lothian.

In the fynod of Lothian they were not fuffered for much as to speak of any testimony; nay, some of the members, who were ripe for a change, and devoted to the interest of the managers, moved that the protestors should be censured. While this was in debate, the earl of Callendar and Sir Archibald Stirling came in, and required the moderator to purge the house of rebels, meaning the protesting ministers, else they would dissolve them, and make them answer before other judges. Upon this the fynod suspended five ministers of great piety, viz. Messieurs Alexander Livingston at Biggar, John Greg at Skerling, Arch. Porteous and James Donaldfon in the presbytery of Biggar, and Gil. Hall at Kirkliston. They likewise removed two from their charges, upon the application of some malignant and disaffected persons in their parishes, viz. Mr. William Weir at Linlithgow, and Mr. Will. Creighton at Bathgate. Mr. Weir, refuling to deliver up to the magistrates the church-emoluments and registers, was put into the thieves hole by provost Glen; and, after being some time in that dungeon, he was carried to a room in the palace, where he was kept fix weeks, till, at last, he was forced to make the best terms he could. But, notwithstanding all this sinful compliance of the fynod, because the majority would not yield to some proposals made in favour of prelacy, they were dissolved in the king's name, and forced to difmifs without prayer.

Northern Lynods.

In the northern fynods the protestors began to feel the oppressions of the times. I only mention, that Mr. Thomas Hog, minister at Kiltearn, was deposed by the fynod polis ling mitti what croac done,

Chi

fync

for

tatio

or th that v ty of fays, was th PISCO It i many shall f others as the Guthri We castle (

On 1 brough er, the of high that it berty t fuled and the to prefe than A fences, perverfi are coll 1. Tha the anti it was I poled. the how ced his

The

2.

Æ

f

it

n,

y

t

r

0

e

0

75 rì

e-

8,

De

J-

e-

bn

on m.

on

ns

w,

ng.

its

oft

he

ept

est

ful

ald

cy,

to cel

Mr.

the

od

fynod of Ross; who sat down the beginning of this year, 1662. for refusing judicially to disown and disclaim the protestation. At the same time a motion was made for deposing Mr. James Frazer of Liny from his Office as ruling elder, but what was the issue of it I know not.

By this time we may see the dismal consequences of ad-Remarks, mitting malignants into places of power and trust, and what efforts were made against the before named encroachments. It is certain more might have been done, there being as yet no law against their meetings, or their petitioning for a redress of those grievances that were coming upon them. However, the generality of the ministers were against Prelacy. Bishop Burnet says, The synod of Aberdeen (at which he was present) was the only body that made an address looking towards E-p. 120, 115COPACY.

It is now proper that we give an account of what many suffered during this session of parliament, when we shall find some attacked in their name and reputation, others in their liberties, and others in their lives; such as the noble marquis of Argyll, the reverend Mr. James Guthrie and Mr. Govan.

We noticed that the marquis was committed to the castle of Edinburgh the 20th of December last.

On the 13th of February this year his lordship was Argyll brought to the bar of the house, where Sir John Fletch-before the er, the king's advocate, accused him, in common form, parliated high treason; and, producing an indictment, craved that it might be read. The marquis himself begged liberty to speak before that was done: But the house refused his reasonable desire, and ordered it to be read; and though he entreated them to hear a petition he had to present, yet that was too great a favour to be granted.

The indictment, which was more months in forming His inthan Argyll had days allowed at first to bring in his dedictmentations, consisted of 14 articles, wherein a heap of slander, perversion of matters of fact, and misrepresentations, are collected together against this good and great man.

1. That he rose in arms against the king's good subjects, the anti-covenanters: and said to Mr. John Stuart, that it was the opinion of many divines that kings might be deposed.

2. That he marched with an armed force and burnt, the house of Airlie.

3. That, in 1640, he besieged and forced his majesty's castle of Dumbarton to surrender to him.

211

1661. 4. That he called, or ordered to be called, the convention of estates 1643. and entered into the folemn league and covenant with England, levied Subsidies from the Subjects, and fought against his majesty's forces. 5. That, in 1645. he burned the house of Menstrie. 6. That, in 1646. he, or those under his command, besieged and took the houses of Towart and Escoge, and killed a great many gentlemen. 7. That he marched to Kintire, and killed 300 MacDonalds and MacCouls in cold blood, and transported 200 men to the uninhabited ifle of Jura, where they perished by famine. 8. That he went to London and agreed to deliver up the king to the English army at Newcastle, upon the payment of 200,000 l. pretended to be due for the arrears of the army treasonably raised 1643. 9. That he protested against the engagement 1648. for relieving his majesty ; raifed an army to oppose the engagers; met with Oliver Cromwell; confented to a letter wrote to him on the 6th of October, and to the instructions given to Sir John Chiefly to the parliament of England; and, in May following, figured a warrant for a proclamation against the lords Ogilvie and Rac, the marquis of Huntley, John now earl of Middletoun, declaring them, their wives and families; to be out of the protection of the kingdom. 10. That he clogged his majesty's invitation to the kingdom of Scotland 1649. with many unjust limitations; consented to the murder of the marquis of Montrole; corresponded with Cromwell; contrived and confent-, ed to the act of the West-kirk 1650. and the declaration following upon it. 11. That, in 1653. and 1654. he abetted, or joined with, or furnished arms to the usurper's forces, against Glencairn and Middletoun, and gave remissions to fuch as had been in the king's fervice. 12. That he received a precept from the usurper of 12,000 l. sterl. confented to the proclamation of Richard Cromwell; accepted a Commission from the Shire of Aberdeen, and Sat and voted in his pretended parliament. 13. That he rebuked the ministers in Argyll for praying for the king. 14. That he positively advised Cromwell and Ireton, in a conference 1648. that they could not be fafe till the king's life was taken away; at least he knew and concealed that horrid defign.

Porceedings a-

After the indictment was read the marquis had leave to speak, and discoursed, at some considerable length, to gainst him exceeding good purpose. The parliament fixed the 26th of February for bringing in his defence, which was too short a time for replying to a charge consisting of 10 tracte fore 1 ately ry m remit the p to be

Chal

fo mi

W25 1 fubmi was v give ! When on A take t to wh > becau insert which Inform day a

marq hoods

ment.

of : he 1 and late he '

ran ffy his pri gust

that who

ufur

2.

nof

VC-

and . he

, or

To-

ilds

the

ine.

the

tt of

rmy

the

rmy

con-

and ·lia-

rant

the

lar-

eti-

חטוnjust

onenttion

bet-

fornissi-

t he

con-

pted

100-

the

hat

ence

was

d de-

ave

, to

the

was

of

So

6 many particulars. However, at his request, they pro- 1661. mached it till the 5th of March, when he appeared before the lords of the articles, who ordered him immedi-ately to produce his defence; whereupon he made a very moving speech, and gave in a most affecting petition. remitting himself to the king's mercy, and befeeching the parliament to intercede for him, which are too long to be inferted here.

Next day, being brought before the parliament, it was reported from the articles, that he had offered a submission to his majesty, with a desire that the parliament might transmit it to the king; but his submission was voted not fatisfactory, and he was commanded to give in his defences next day to the lords of the articles, When he came before them, and told that his defences were not yet ready, he was appointed to give them in on Monday, April the 9th, otherways the lords would take the whole business before them, without any regard to what he should afterwards say. But it seems, on the day appointed, his defences were given in, wherein the marquis's management is vindicated from all the falfhoods, calumnies and misrepresentations in the indict, Mr. Wodrow does not give an abstract of them, because they contain thirteen sheets of small print, but inferts a paper which contains the substance of them, of which I give the following abbreviate.

Information for my lord Argyll against the dittay given in against him by the king's advocate.

HE deeds alledged to be done, either before, Informaor fince his majesty left Scotland, were either tion for of a publick or private concern. As for the publick, my lord he never acted without the approbation of parliament Argyll. ' and general assemblies, which were ratisfied by their late and present majesties. As to particular persons, he was never accessory to any thing but what is warranted by acts of parliament, approved by his majefly and his royal predecessors. As for actings, after his majesty left Scotland 1651. the marquis was still a prisoner on demand, and did never capitulate till Augulf 1652. being surprised in his house lying sick, and that long after the deputies had taken the TENDER, ----- and all others in arms had capitulated, and the whole kingdom was----of the ulurper.

The

Cha

4 k

* Ti

4 an

in 'in

m

" ca

4 m

m

& fee

1 21

" ed

f the

the th

be wa

f co

at.

4 ha

it ve

& the

. fto

" thi

" acc

it it

me don

fer and he he

" the

" mit

" unt

* As

as i

. wo

f and

1 Du

his

der

But it is not relevant to infer any crime, though those words had been spoken in the abstract terms related, no more than if any should speak the tenet of the Sorbonne or canon law, upon the pope's power.

This deed is 1640. the act of oblivion 1641.

I.

And 7.

The 2d deed is the flighting the house of Airlie....
It is answered, These houses were kept out in opposition to the committee of estates, and so might be desired of parliament 1641. rege presente-----the king being present.

The 3d deed is the taking the castle of Dumbarton.

This was done by order of the committee of e-flates, and before the act of oblivion.———

As to the calling of a convention of estates, and going into England with an army.—— This was done by the conservators of the peace, secret council, and commissioners of publick burdens, appointed by the king,——and ratisfied in parliament since,——and was allowed by the king in his agreement at Breda, and by his act of oblivion 1651.

As to the burning of Menstrie by his command, he denies any such command. Whereas it bears by men under his command, there is no law to make that treason, nor is it relevant or reasonable; for noxa caput sequitur, & delicta such tenent auctores. It was remitted by the act of oblivion 1651. And general Baillie had the command, whose service in that expedition was approved in parliament 1646. And though he had done this, he had commission from the parliament 1644.

As to the taking of Towart and Escoge, and murdering a number of men after capitulation, it is answered, The marquis was not in the country, but in England, at that time. To the murdering of 200 men after the taking of Dunavertie, it is answered, That David Lestie had the command there, and what was done was by a council of war, and Lestie's service was approved by the parliament 1648---That my lord Argyll caused take 200 persons from Islay to Jura, where they perished. This is false; for he thap. 2. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. knew nothing of the matter, nor ever heard of it 1661. will he received his dittay. To the giving up of the king at Newcastle, it is 8. answered, It was a parliament deed, and-----a voice in parliament cannot be censured ---- But the truth is, my lord Argyll was not in Scotland when the king came to the Scots army at Newark----neither did the marquis ever meddle in that affair, but in the parliament 1647. As to the protest in parliament 1648, calling in the feffarian army, writing to Cromwell, ---- and emitting f a proclamation against certain families, it is answered, That there was no protest, but a declaration, before the vote, that the affembly ought to be consulted anent the engagement. As for the letter, no answer can be given till the letter be feen; and though there was a letter in the terms libelled, yet it is an act of the committee; and as matters went, the army being lolt at Preston, and the enemy lying on the border, if they ' had demanded the strengths of the kingdom,it would not have been refused. - Befides, he never faw Gromwell till 1648. and he was called in by the committee, and the marquis did what he could to flop his carreer. As to the ____ proclamations, no-' thing can be faid rill they be produced .-'To the clogging his majesty's proclamation, murdering Montrofe, corresponding with Cromwell, and his 'accession to the act of the West-kirk and declaration, it is answered, That it was the act of the parliament then fitting by which the first allegation was 'done, and the king acknowledged that to be good fervice, by admitting the marquis to places of trust, and accepting the crown from him .--- As to Montrofe, ' he had no accession to his death, or the manner of it. ...-His corresponding with Gromwell is falle --- As to the act of the West-kirk, the marquis was at no com-' mittee of the kirk after his majesty's happy arrival, until they came to Perth, nor did he know of it. As to the declaration he advised the king to go ' as far as he could; but would not advise him, for the world, to fign the declaration against his mindand defires the duke of Buckingham and the earl of Dumfermling's depositions may be taken herein, and his facred majesty confulted as to the truth hereof.

To yeto the marquis south given

t is

di-

ofe

ted,

the

....

ofi-

de-

tion

ing

ton.

fe-

one

and was and

and, s by

iake

for It

that

And

rom

nur-

it is

but

200

red,

what

fer-

y to

e he

#ew

2661.

12.

To the opposition to Glençains and Middletoun, when appearing for their king, and his joining with the English,—it is answered, That their commission was never intimated to him,—that he sent to Middletoun to have a conference, but received no answer.—As to joining the English in their expedition to the hills, he denies any joining with them; but being a prisoner, and required to be with them, he durst not resuse; and denied any kind of acting either by counsel or deed.—As for taking pay from the usurper, for a foot-company,—general Monk allowed payment for 100 soldiers to guard the country, and because they did not oppose the forces in the hills the general discharged payment.—

' As to the affifting at Richard Cromwell's proclamation, his receiving a precept of 12,000 l, sterling, and fitting in the parliament of England, it is answered, He was not at all at Richard's proclamation, but by command, indeed, he was at Oliver's, but not at Dumbarton. Being Monk's prisoner he was commanded to come to the English council, and assist at the proclamation, and could not refuse, without having his Iife and fortune made a prey. No law can make this a crime, far less treason; and it cannot be instructed, from any history, that a people overcome by an enemy, and commanded to do outward deeds of sub-' jection, were ever questioned by their lawful prince when he hath pardoned the invader; or that the fubject should be prosecuted for doing what he, being a prisoner, could not refuse, without hazarding Ife and fortune. The 12,000 l. is fally adduced. The parliament of Scotland gave the marquis, in payment of just debts, half of the excise on wine and strong waters. - As for his sitting in the of England after fo long an usurpation, no precedent can be shewn, in any age in this country, whereby this was made a crime, far less trea-

To his forbidding to pray for the king, and the rest of the alledged speeches, it is answered, They are false and calumnious. His parish-minister and chaptain did always pray for the king in the time libelled, and that in the face of the English.

The last head: It is basely false, and he opposes thereto the marquis's oath given in parliament 1649.

pro ry fr

declai

Chap

for all they that, to fix after S ors. ing hi he thin him a for the faid, he and if the left Wh tence, for all

low th

law a

of the that thirty ten, the refused hamen and fai pronout fon, traite cross fore to fer to fe

and a

he ha

n

ę.-

e-

un \s

s,

n-:;

10

12 or

ŀ

ti-

nd

ed,

by

///-

ed

-0

his

his

ed,

e-ıb•

ice

he

being

ed.

ay-

ine

the

on,

un-

e1.

the

are

ap-

ed,

es

49.

and

cand leaves it to all to judge how unlikely and im- 1667 probable it is that he would speak any thing contra-Ty to the oath that he had fworn, but The that; but you cannot hinder are from the indemnity

From this information fome tolerable view may be Many had of the defences of this worthy peer. . Mr. Wodrow proofs declares that he had it from a very good hand, that up-fail. wards of thirty different libels were formed against him, for alledged injuries, oppressions, and the like; but, when they went to prove them, they all came to nothing, fo that, after their most diligent search, they were forced to fix upon his necessary compliance with the English, after Scotland had been obliged to yield to the conquerors. Bishop Burnet fays, that, in one speech, excus- P. 1234 ing his compliance with Cromwell, he faid, What could he think of that matter, after a man lo eminent in the law as his majesty's advocate had taken the engagement? This inflamed the other so much, that he called him an impudent villain, and was not fo much as chid for that barbarous treatment. Lord Argyll gravely faid, he had learned, in his afflictions, to bear reproaches; and if the parliament faw no cause to condemn him, he was the less concerned at the king's advocate's railing. When he was brought to the bar to receive his fen- Argyll tence, on the 25th of May, the house was very thin; sentenced for all withdrew except those who were resolved to follow the course of the times. He put them in mind of the practice of Theodofius the emperor, who enacted, that the sentence of death should not be executed till thirty days after it was palled; and added, I crave but ten, that the king may be acquainted with it. This was refused; and he was told that he must receive the parhament's fentence kneeling. He immediately kneeled, and faid, I will in all humility. Then the fentence was pronounced, ' That he was found guilty of high-treafon, and adjudged to be execute to the death as a traitor, his head to be severed from his body, at the cross of Edinburgh, upon Monday the 27th instant, and affixed on the fame place where the marquis of Montrofe's head was formerly, and his arms torn before the parliament and at the crofs." Upon this he His behaoffered to fpeak; but, the trumpets founding, he stopped viour. fill they had ended, and then faid, 'I had the honour to let the crown upon the king's head, and now he haltens me to a better crown than his own.' And,

1661; directing himself to the commissioner and parliament, be faid, ' You have the indemnity of an earthly king among your hands, and have denied me a hare in that; but you cannot hinder me from the indemnity of the king of kings, and hortly you must be before his tribunal. I pray he mete not out such measure to you, as you have done to me, when you are called to account for all your actings, and this among the

As for his compliance with Cronwell, it was fo far from being treasonable, that the advocate himself, and other lawyers, had actually taken the engagement, and many of the members of this parliament were equally guilty. Was it not therefore frange, that a parliament should condemn one for a crime of which so many of themselves were guilty, and that, of all the compliers in Scotland, not one was profecuted but this noble peer? What law will make compliance with a conqueror, for the good and fafety of the country, after all means of defence are taken away, an act of treason? It is therefore certain that the fentence passed against the marquis was without all warrant of law. But it feems it was necessary the foundation of prelacy, and of those arbitrary measures now on foot, should be laid in blood.

The marquis, after his sentence, was ordered to the mon pri-Jon.

the com- common prison, where his excellent lady was waiting for him. Upon feeing her he faid, They have given me till Monday to be with you, my dear, therefore let us make for it. She, embracing him, wept bitterly, and faid, The Lord will require it, the Lord will require it. Which drew tears from all in the room. But, being His com- himself composed, he said, Forbear, forbear, truly I pity them; they know not what they are doing. They may that me in where they please, but they cannot that out God from me. For my own part, I am as well content to be here as in the caltle, and as content in the castle as in the tower of London, and as content there as when at liberty; and I hope. to be as content upon the scaffold as any of them e all, &c.

His carprison.

He spent all his short time, till Monday, with the greatest serenity and cheerfulness, and in the proper exercises of a dying christian. He said to some minifters who were permitted to attend him, ' That shortly they would envy him, who was got before them;

6 and if y or f men but but go n own d night. gaged pany, on of a rapti the 1 orde! a bet be of before most m twelve and the the doc my lord hath Thy joy flor window and ma concern face; a

Chap

here; cloak, down, ling upor go, and When not to b ' die lik rapture.

is goo

an. clean! verend 1 marquis is with respec 23

nt,

ng

in

ity

ore

to

ed

he

far

nd

ind

lly

ent

of in 25

the nce

er-

vas

ne-

ra-

the

ing

me us

and it.

ing

ruly

ing.

hey

art, and

don,

ope.

nem

the

per

uni-

ort-

and added, Mind that I tell it you, my fill fails me, 1661. if you who are ministers will not either suffer much, or fin much; for though you go along with those men in part, if you do it not in all things, you are but where you were, and fo mult fuffer; and if you go not at all with them, you shall but suffer.' At his own desire his lady took her leave of him on Sabbath night. On Monday morning, though he was much ingaged in settling his affairs, and in the midst of company, yet he was so overpowered with a sensible effusion of the joy of the Holy Ghost, that he broke out in arapture, and faid, ' I thought to have concealed the Lord's goodness, but it will not do; I am now ordering my affairs, and God is fealing my charter to a better inheritance, and just now faying to me, Son, be of good cheer, thy fins are forgiven thee.' Sometime before he went to the place of execution, he wrote a most moving letter to the king, and dined precisely at twelve with his friends with the utmost cheerfulness, Upon his opening and then retired a little in secret. the door, the reverend Mr. Hutchison faid, What cheer, my lord? He answered, 'Good cheer, Sir; the Lord hath again confirmed, and faid to me, from heaven, 'Thy fins be forgiven thee.' Upon this tears of joy flowed in fuch abundance, that he retired to the window and wept there; from that he came to the fire. and made as if he would ftir it a little to conceal his concern, but all would not do, his tears ran down his face; and, coming to Mr. Hutchifon, he faid, in a perfect apture, 'I think his kindness overcomes me; but God is good to the, that he lets not out too much of it here; for he knows I could not bear it. Get me my cloak, and let us go.' Upon receiving notice to come down, he called for a glass of wine, and asked a blefsing upon it standing, and in a very little said, Now let us go, and God go with us.

When he took leave of those in the room, who were His exenot to be with him on the scaffold, he said, 'I could cution. die like a Roman, but chuse rather to die like a christi-Come away gentlemen, he that goes first goes 'cleanliest.' When going down stairs, he called the reverend Mr. James Guthrie, who at parting addressed the marquis thus, ' My lord, God hath been with you, he is with you, and will be with you; and fuch is my respect for your lordship, that, if I were not under the

' fentence

em; and

Chap.

ed the

religio

of and

ing hi

Mr. 70

fon to

able fa

the un

proof

scholar

and fti

was ve

the mo

when e

never 1

mixtur

time.

he first

the rev

by his

and co

way.

this ex

munica

of the earl of

never !

discove

brough

him for

read be

The he

to, a the p

contr

pamp

contr

The I

he w

'king' autho

In th

His remem

1661. ' sentence of death myself, I could cheerfully die for your lordship.' So they parted, to meet again in a better place, on the Friday following. The marquis, attended by feveral noblemen and gentlemen all in black, mounted the scaffold with the greatest serenity and gravity, like one going to his father's house, and faluted all that were upon it. Then Mr. Hutchison prayed. After that his lordship delivered a moving and pertinent speech with the utmost composure, in which, among other things, he faid, I was real and cordial in my defires to bring the king home, and in my endeavours for him when he was at home, and had no correspondence with the adversary's army, onor any of them, when his majesty was in Scotland; nor had I any accession to his late majesty's horrid and execrable murder --- I shall not speak much to these things for which I am condemned, lest I seem to condemn others. It is well known it is only for compliance, which was the epidemical fault of the nation. I wish the Lord to pardon them: I say no · more : - God hath laid engagements upon Scotland : · --- We are tied by covenants to religion and reformation. Those that were then unborn are yet engaged: And it passeth the power of all the magiftrates under heaven to absolve from the oath of God. These times are like either to be very sinning or very fuffering times, and let christians make their choice. There is a fad dilemma in the business, sin or " fuffer; and furely he that would chuse the better part, will chuse to suffer: Others that will chuse to fin, shall not escape suffering.'---- When he had delivered his speech, which is recorded at length in * Naphtali, Mr. James Hamilton prayed: After him his lordship prayed himself, and then took his leave of all his friends on the scaffold, and having given the executioner an handkerchief with some money, and small presents to his friends, he went to the instrument called The maiden, kneeled down most cheerfully, and after he had prayed a little he gave the fignal, whereupon his head was severed from his body, and then placed on the west end of the tolbooth, as a monument of the parliament's injustice and the land's misery. His body was delivered to his friends, and decently interred. Thus di-

^{*} A book intitled Naphtali, or, The wreftlings of the church of Scot-

2.

or

12

is,

in

ity

nd

Con

ng

in

nd

in

nd

ıy,

id;

rid

to

em for

the

no

id: or-

en-

gi-

od.

ng eir

or

ter

to

le-

bh-

rd-

his

n-

nts

ai-

ad

ead

eft

t's li-

di-

ed

cot-

r.

2.

4

of the noble marquis of Argyll, the proto-martyr for 1661. religion after the restoration, who was a great promoter w of and support to the covenanted work of reformation during his life, and stedfast in witnessing to it at his death.

I am next to relate the martyrdom of the reverend Mr. James Guthrie minister at Stirling --- Mr. Guthrie was Mr. Gufon to the laird of Guthrie, a very ancient and honour-thrie's able family. For some time he taught philosophy in parentage the university of St. Andrews, where he gave sufficient rafter. proof of his being a good philosopher and an exact Though bishop Burnet says he was a resolute and stiff man, yet my author assures us, that his temper was very stayed and composed, and would reason upon the most controverted points with great folidity, and, when every one about him was warm, his temper was never ruffled; and that he had, perhaps, the greatest mixture of fervent zeal and fweet calmness of any in his time. He was entirely prelatical in his judgment when he first came to St. Andrews; but, by conversing with the reverend Mr. Rutherford and others, and especially by his joining the weekly focieties there, for prayer and conference, he was entirely brought off from that

His conduct in the years 1650. and 1651. was now See p. remembred: But the real spring of the hard measure 44, 45, this excellent man met with, was the fentence of excom- 46. munication, which, by appointment of the commission of the general affembly, he had pronounced against the earl of Middletoun in the year 1650. which Middletoun never forgot; and his personal resentment abundantly discovered itself in his trial before the parliament.

In the beginning of the year 1661. Mr. Guthrie was His inbrought to Edinburgh, and had his indictment given dictment. him for high-treason by the king's advocate. It was read before him in the house on the 20th of February. The heads of it were, 1. 'His contriving, confenting to, and exhibiting before the committee of eltates, the paper called the Western Remonstrance. 2. His contriving, writing and publishing that abominable pamphlet called, The causes of God's wrath. 3. His contriving, writing and subscribing a paper called, The humble petition, of the 23d of August last, when he was apprehended. 4. His convocating of the king's lieges at feveral times without warrant or authority, to the disturbance of the peace of the Itate

f not

indi

cati

4 this

of t

4 justi

6 Ship

f is, t

· ly c f it to flate

' pile

it,

the:

· fior

' me

f can

ver

giv

f is a

1 boo

and · lor

· 1.

any fity

· ly

for

co'

an

f ho

· No

f the

fin

cei

· bu

f ac

6 be

tit

an

f th

1 3

not-

w 5.

6.

fate and of the church, fly, by his appeal and protestation, incapable to be judge over him, which he presented at Perth. And, 6. some treasonable expressions he was alledged to have uttered in a meeting 1650. or 1651.' The curious reader will find the whole of his indictment and his defences at large in Mr. Wodrow's appendix.

Vol. I. N. 21. His indictment being read, he made an excellent B, C, D. speech to the parliament, of which I shall insert the following brief abstract,

My Lord Chancellor,

Abstract of his Speech.

Being indicted---- upon things alledged to be feditious and treasonable, humbly defire, -that my lord commissioner - will patiently, and without interruption, hear me as to a few things I have to fay for myself. I am glad that the law of God is named in the first place; ___ I hope your lordship, in all your proceedings, will have most respect to this, that I may be judged by the law of God especially, and by other laws in fubordination thereto.

' As to those laws ---- mentioned in the indictment, concerning his majesty's royal prerogative, --- I hope --- they are to be understood according to the fense and meaning given by posterior acts of parliament, --- and -- by our folemn publick vows and covenants, contracted with God by his majesty and his subjects. -I am first charged, in general, of fundry seditions and treasonable remonstrances, &c. To which I say, that generalia non pugnant; they can have no strength in the inferring of a crime or guilt, except—they are finftanced in particulars." One thing there is in the general charge that I cannot, and ought not to pass, to wit, that I have feditiously and traiterously purposed the eradicating and subverting of the fundamental government, &c .-It is an unjust charge; there was never any such purpose or design in my heart .- As I had never any compliance with the councils or designs of the late f usurping powers against his majesty's royal father or himself, --- so there was no part of their ungodly and unjust actings, but I did, in my station and calling, bear open and publick testimony against, both by word and writing. My lord, - I can hardly refrain f expressing some grief of spirit,' (here he gives an aceount of what he suffered under the usurpation) 'that,

. 2.

aje-

) be

And,

d to

cu-

and lent

fol-

o be

that

out

e to

l is

hip,

his,

and

ent,

-I

the

lia.

nts,

As.

ous

ay,

gth

are

t I

eve

ing

ch

ny

ite

or

nd

g,

by

in

C.

ıt,

notwithstanding all those things, I should now stand 1661. indicted before your lordships, as intending the eradicating and subverting of the ancient civil government of this nation .-- The God of heaven knows that I am free of this charge, and I defy all the world, allowing me justice and fair proceeding, which I hope your lord-hips will, to make out the same against me. -

The first particular wherewith I am charged,is, that I did compile and draw up a paper, common-Ily called The remonstrance, and presented it, or caused it to he presented to his majesty and committee of eflates the 22d of October 1650. — I never did compile or contrive that remonstrance, nor did I present it, or cause it to be presented—then, or at any o-I indeed, being a member of the commifther time. ' fion of the general affembly, when they gave their judgment upon it, did diffent from their fentence, which cannot be reckoned any culpable accession thereto, every man being free, without hazard of punishment, to 'give his judgment freely in the judicature whereof he is a member. -

'The next particular I am charged with, is the book of The causes of God's wrath, especially the 5th and 6th articles .- But I humbly profess to your lordship, and this honourable court of parliament,---1. That - my accession thereunto did not flow from any difrespect unto, or dislatisfaction with his majety's person or government, —but merely and sing-'ly from a constraining power of conscience, to be found faithful, as a minister of the gospel, in the discovering of fin and guiltiness, that it being taken with, and repented of, wrath might be taken away from the house of the king, and from these kingdoms. -Next, my lord, I wish it may be seriously pondered, that nothing is afferted in these causes, as matters of fin and duty, but what hath been the common and received doctrine of the church of Scotland.

'The 3d particular -is the Supplication at Edinburgh, August the 23d, to which I acknowledge my accession, but deny it to be treasonable or seditious, because —it doth contain nothing but a humble petition concerning those things to which his majesty and all the subjects of this kingdom are engaged, by the folemn and indispensible oath of the covenant, with a lober and ferious representation of the danger that · threatens threatens religion - The indictment is pleased to ' fay, that I charged his majesty with dissimulation and ' perjury; but there is no fuch thing in the fupplication, which doth only put him in remembrance of holding fast the oath of the covenant.

' As to what is alledged against the lawfulness of our meeting - That meeting cannot fall within those acts of parliament that strike against unlawful conventions; because every meeting, for business in itself ' lawful, is agreeable to the word of God and the laws of the land, and, when kept without tumult and multitude, such as that was, needs no particular warrant from authority: - Yea, fuch meetings are clearly exempted from a breach of those acts of parliament, by a posterior act of parliament, viz. Act 29. Parl,

2. Charles I.

' As to the last particular in my indictment, viz, my declining his majesty's authority, I confess I did decline the civil magistrate as a competent judge of ministerial doctrine in the first instance. His authority in all things civil I do with all my heart acknowlege. - But that the declining of the civil magistrate's being a judge of minister's doctrine, in the first inflance, may appear not treason and sedition, but lawful and warrantable, I humbly offer, 1. That fuch declinatures are agreeable to-God's word, and to the confession of faith, and doctrine of this church confirmed and ratified in parliament --- And therefore it hath been the ordinary practice of this kirk, in fuch cases, to use such declinatures since the time of the reformation from popery—2. Such declinatures are agreeable to, and founded upon the national coveand, and folemn league and covenant, by which the king's majesty himself, and all the subjects of this kingdom, are bound to maintain the doctrine, worthip, discipline and government of this church. - Upon these grounds I did give in, and do affert that decli-' nature for vindicating the crown, dignity and royal prerogative of Jesus Christ, — but with all due refpect to his majesty, his greatness and authority.

As to that act of parliament 1584. it was made at a time when the fettled government of this church---was wholly overturned and hath been often repealed-and stands repealed NOW at the down-sitting of this parliament. It was reverfed 1592 .- and by

6 the

Chap the · Pa 6

two or : gai

" Go cs, wo: and

6 0000 anan

and wit 4 28

nei ' the of

4 con Th ence his d Burne so he On was fpeec thoug exped meml other have man : accor found 'Tw ' ting hitl

' pre to ! name

daine han and 2.

to

nd

n, ır

ſe

1-lf

18 ŀ

nt

y

t,

1.

d

y

S

1-

1.

h

0

h

.

١,

le

25

-

C

,

n

i-

ı

t

y

the 4th Act, Parl. 2. Charles I .--- and by the 6th Act, 1661.

The fum of what I have faid I comprise in these two. 1. That I did never purpose, or intend to speak or act any thing difloyal, feditious or treasonable, aagainst his majesty's person, authority or government, God is my witness .-- Next -- I have founded my speeches, and writings, and actings in those matters, on the word of God, and on the doctrine, confessions of faith, and laws of this church and kingdom, upon the national covenant of Scotland, and the folemn league and covenant between the three kingdoms of Scotland, England and Ireland. If these foundations fall, I must fall with them; but if these sustain and stand in judgment, as I hope they will, I cannot acknowledge myself, neither, I hope, will his majesty's commissioner, and the honourable court of parliament, judge me guilty of fedition and treason, notwithstanding any thing ' contained in the indictment.'

This pointed and pathetical speech had some influence upon several of the members of the house; but his death was designed. It was resolved, says bishop Burnet, to make a publick example of a preacher, and p. 126.

so he was fingled out.

On the 11th of April, when the process against him His inwas read in the house, he immediately delivered a dictment speech, so affecting and close to the purpose, which, found rethough it had not that influence that might have been expected, made such impressions upon many of the members, that they withdrew, declaring to one another, as they went out of the house, that they would have nothing to do with the blood of this righteous man: But his judges were determined to proceed, and accordingly, at that very time, his indictment was Bishop Burnet fays *, ' The earl of . p. 127. found relevant. Tweeddale was the only man that moved against put-' ting him to death. He faid, banishment had been ' hitherto the severest censure that had been laid on the ' preachers for their opinions, --- yet he was condemned to die,' though the day of his execution was not named till the 28th of May, when the parliament ordained 'Mr. James Guthrie and William Govan to be His fenhanged at the cross of Edinburgh, Saturday June 11t, tence. and the head of the first to be affixed on the Ne-

1661. ' ther-bow, his estate to be confiscate, and his arms torn, and the head of the second on the West-port of the ' city of Edinburgh.' A gentleman, who was present at the trial, told my informer, one of the present ministers of Aberdeen, that when Mr. Guthrie received his sentence upon his knees, he rose up with cheerfulness, and thus addressed the parliament, My lords. may never this sentence more affect you than it does me, and let never my blood be required of the king's family.

The iniquity of this fentence is very obvious: Nay, the king himself was so sensible of his good fervices to him and his interest, when at the lowest, and of the parliament's feverity, that, when he got notice of it, he asked with some warmth, And what have you done with Mr. Patrick Gillespie? It was answered, that Mr. Gillespie had so many friends in the house, his life could not be taken. Well, said the king, if I had known you would have spared Mr. Gillespie, I would have spared Mr. Guthrie. But had his majesty known his true interest, he would have put the management of his affairs into other hands.

His execution.

P. 127.

Mr. Guthrie was in a most serene frame all the time between his fentence and during his execution on the 1st of June. Dr. Burnet, who was present at his execution, observes, that he was so far from shewing any fear, that he rather expressed a contempt of death; that he spoke an hour upon the ladder, with the composedness of one delivering a fermon, rather than his last words. His last speech and testimony is in Naphtali, where, among other things becoming a martyr for the cause of Christ, he faith, ' One thing I would warn you all of, that God is - very wroth with Scotland, and threatneth to depart and remove his candlestick. The causes of his wrath are many, and would to God it were not one great cause, that causes of wrath are despised - Consider the case that is recorded, Jer. xxxvi. and the con-' sequence of it, and tremble and fear. I cannot but also say, That there is a great addition of wrath. I. By that deluge of profanity that overfloweth all the ' land - in fo far that many have lost not only all " use and exercise of religion, but even of morality-4 2. By that horrible treachery and perjury that is in the ' matter of the covenant and cause of God, and work of reformation. Be aftonished, O ye heavens, at this, &c.

17. 1 (eppi off is to

Ghap.

1 do e ereat rupti

who

a ble it be of ca and there ' pray mind

' Jefus who them what prela flery lead the 1 be t heed flyin, my land, three oath: with but : will by t our our ' prote the r on m the tain. fuch made that 4 3. Horrible

C

t

.

d

17. Horrible ingratitude. The Lord, after ten years 16612 oppression -hath broken the yoke of strangers from off our necks, but—the fruit of our deliveryis to work wickedness, and strengthen our hand to do evil. 4. A most dreadful ---- facrificing to the ereature. We have changed the glory of the incorruptible God into the image of a corruptible man, in whom many have placed almost all their salvation and have turned that which might have been a bleffing - into an idol of jealoufy, by preferring it before him. God is also wroth with a generation of carnal, corrupt, time-ferving ministers. I know, and bear testimony, that in the church of Scotland there is a true and faithful ministry and I pray you to honour ---- these for their works sake But oh, that there were not too many who mind earthly things, and are enemies to the cross of Jesus Christ, who push with the side and shoulder, who strengthen the hands of evil doers, who make themselves transgressors, by studying to build again what they did formerly warrantbly destroy, I mean, ' prelacy, and the ceremonies and the fervice-book, a my-' flery of iniquity that works amongst us, whose steps ' lead unto the house of the great whore BABYLON, the mother of fornications: Or whosoever else he be that buildeth this Fericho again, let him take ' heed of the curse of Hiel the Bethelite, and of that ' flying roll threatned Zech. v, &c. - I do bear 'my witness unto the national covenant of Scot-'land, and folemn league and covenant betwixt the three kingdoms. These facred, solemn, publick oaths of God, I believe, can be loofed nor dispensed with by no person, or party, or power upon earth, but are still binding upon these kingdoms, and will will be for ever hereafter, and are ratified and fealed by the conversion of many thousand souls since our entering thereinto. I bear my witness to the protestation against the controverted assemblies, and the publick resolutions .-- I take God to record, upon my foul, I would not exchange this scaffold with the palace or mitre of the greatest prelate in Britain. Bleffed be God who hath shewed mercy to fuch a wretch, and has revealed his Son in me, and made me a minister of the everlasting gospel, and that he hath deigned, in the midft of much contradiction.

Chap.

ken a

have

(Aition weeks

the Net

down t

upon th

gence c confult

for fuch

think o

ked of,

blood o ver put

to wip

were a

of May

and con

parlian

the co

was pu

was ob

But it

the rel

vation

apart :

and ea

that fo

be do to Sco

the un

fellion

ry on

Fanua

forfei

the lo

read

foun ?

claim

13th

pole :

83d

Ma

On t

Mr.

1661. diction from Satan and the world, to feal my miiniffry upon the hearts of not a few of his people: f and especially in the station wherein I was last, I mean the congregation and presbytery of Stirling; - Jefus Christ is my light and my life, my right teousness, my strength and my falvation, and all my defire. Him! O him, I do with all the strength of my foul commend unto you, Blefs him, O my foul! from benceforth, even for ever.' He concluded with the words of old Simeon, Now let thy fervant depart in peace, fince mine eyes have feen thy falvation.

suted.

At the same time was executed the above mentioned William Govan, in some papers called captain Govan, who was reckoned a pious good man. There were different accounts of the reasons why the parliament condemned him. In his last speech he says, It was for laying down his arms at Hamilton, as all the company did; and takes notice, that he carried up Montrofe's standard through the streets of Edinburgh. It was alledged that he was prefent on the scaffold when king Charles I. was beheaded; but, to the conviction of all, he proved himself to be elswhere. His last speech, being omitted in Naphtali, is inserted by Mr. Wodrow in his appendix. When he went up the ladder, he faid, Dear friends, pledge this cup of fuffering before you fin, as I have done : For fin and fuffering have been prefented to me, and I have chosen the suffering part. The rope being about his neck, he faid, 'Now I am near my last, and I desire to reflect on no man; I would only acquaint you of one thing: The commissioner and I went out to the field s together for one cause; I have now the cord about my neck, and he is promoted to be his majefly's commissioner, yet for a thousand worlds I would not change lots with him, praise and glory be to Christ for ever.' After he again prayed a little, he gave the fign, and was turned over. He concluded his last speech with these words: 'I bear witness with my blood to the persecuted government of this church, in general affemblies, fynods and presbyteries, and also to the protestation against the publick resolutions. I bear witness to the covenants national and folemn league, and now am to feal them with my blood. I likeways testify against all popery, prelacy, idolatry, superstition, and the service-book: For I have not ta-6 kep

12 ni-le ;

, I

ng:

my my

ul!

rith

in

led

an,

TC

nt

25

n-

11-

It

ld

1-13

y

C

C

d

C

e

ken a little pains in fearthing out those things, and 1661. have found them to be but the relicks of Ramilo fuper-Aition and idolatry, left in king Henry VIIIth's time.

Mr. Wodrow fays it was confidently affirmed, that fome A frange weeks after Mr. Guthrie's head had been fixed upon accident.

the Nether-bow port, the commissioner's coach coming down that way, feveral drops of blood fell from the head mon the top of the coach, which all their art and dilisence could not wipe off; and that when phylicians were consulted; whether any natural cause could be assigned for fuch a strange phænomenon, they declared they could think of none. This odd incident beginning to be talked of, and all methods being tried in vain to wipe the blood off, at last the leather was removed and a new cover put on, which indeed was much easier done, than to wipe the guilt of this innocent blood from those who were accessory to the shedding it.

On the 15th the proclamation for keeping the 29th Occurrenof May was published. On the 22d the folemn league ces about and covenant was by order of two houses of the English this meparliament burnt with triumph, at London, by the hand of lancholy the common hangman; and thus the king's perjury was published in the face of the fun. The 29th of May was observed with the greatest solemnity at Edinburgh: But it is well known that the church of Scotland, fince the reformation, had fill vigoroutly opposed the observation of anniversary holydays, even tho' they were set apart in honour of Christ himself, such as christmass and easter; they could never therefore think of doing that for their king, which our faviour did not require to be done for himself. Besides, this was a most dismal day to Scotland, being the triumph of the wicked between the unjust execution of Argyll and Mr. Guthrie.

Many worthy gentlemen fuffered greatly during this The fuffellion of parliament, merely for compliance, which eve-firings of ry one was obliged to give during the usurpation. In gentle-January the lairds of Arkinglass and MacCondochy were men. forfeited. On the 1st of February the indictment against the lord Waristoun, William Dundas, and John Hume, was Wariread in the house, none of them being present. Warifour was forfeited, and his forfeiture was publickly pro- foun forclaimed at the cross of Edinburgh, by the heralds, on the 13th of May. The indictment was much to the same purpole with that against the marquis of Argyll. On the ead of February the laird of Swinten, was brought p. 620 petore

Chap.

confes

derwe

ter thi

1 Ab

Mr.

lords 0

proug

the re

wrat!

perfe

M

WAS

impo

and I

then

f fer

& ca

6 ...

. W

4 00

6 W

4 11 (a)

4 n 4 A

1 500

.

6.

.

4 1

4 .

.6

. 1661, before the parliament, and, when his indicament was read, had a very accurate and pointed speech in his own vindication, which so effectually prevailed upon them, that they recommended him to the king as a fit object of his mercy; and, according to Mr. Wodrow, the papifts at court interposed in the quaker's behalf, and he had favour flewn him, tho' he had as great a flare in joining with the ufurper, as any man in the kingdom. Such was the partiality of those times ! For little or no favour was shewn to those who had been affive in the work of reformation, and faithfully adhered to their principles; as appears from the treatment feveral eminent ministers and others met with, which I amonow to relate, beginning with those who were apprehended with Mr. Guthrie on the 23d of August last. Tho one or two of them fainted, and, upon making fome verbal acknowledgments, were permitted to retire to their own habitations, yet others fuffered greatly for their faithfulness, particularly Mr. Alexander Moneries and Mr. Robert Trail.

Mr. Moncricf.

During the usurpation, Mr. Alexander Moncrief, minister at Scoonie in Fife, endured much persecution for his attachment to the royal family. He was then hunted as a patridge upon the mountains, and fuffered imprisonment for praying for the king; but all the return he had, was to be apprehended when petitioning according to law. He had his indiament given him about the same time with Mr. Guthrie. No follicitations could move him to retract his principles, tho' his life was in danger: And when the earl of Athole and others told his wife, that it was impossible to fave his life, if he did not recede from fome things, this excellent woman answered, 'That they all knew she was happy in a good husband; that she had great affection to him, and ma-' ny children; yet she knew him to be so stedfast in his f principles, where his conscience was concerned, that f no body needed to deal with him upon that head; f for her part, before the would contribute any thing that would break his peace with his mafter, the would rather chuse to receive his head at the cross." However, providence so over-ruled this affair, that his life was spared; but then he was declared to be for ever incapable of exercifing any publick truft, civil or ecclefiastical, and discharged from going to his parish; and all this for owning his accession to the remonstrance and causes

Was

his

ipon

23 2

, and there

dom.

vean

their emi-

now

one

rua

heir

heir

and

.

mi-

for

int-

on-

he

OF-

out

ald

in old

lid

an od

0-

İs

at 5

140

Sept 3

.114

-DELA

derwent, and as many the prefervations he met with after this, as we shall relatered and to make the prefer and the met with after this, as we shall relatered and to make an animal and the same than the same and t

About the beginning of March, Mr. Robert Trail, Mr. Mr. John Stirling, and other ministers, were before the Robert lords of the deticles: But it seems none of them were Trail. brought before the parliament except Mr. Trail, who was indicted for high-treason, for being concerned in the reminstrance 1650. in the book of the causes of God's wrath, in the supplication of August last, and in the imperfect scroll of a letter and instructions which were sound at that meeting.

Mr. Trail as appears from his speech in the house, was one of those who declared against the Tender, when imposed in the time of the usurpation, and always endeawoured to keep in mind that great precept, Fear God and honour the king. As to the remonstrance, he told them; 6 That he was neither at the contriving or prefenting of it; that he was at that time belieged in the cattle of Edinburgh by the unjust invaders of the land. ' ---- That he run a very great hazard, by a dangerous wound he received in the defence of his king and country As to the book of the causes of God's wrath, he owned that he was present at that meeting when those things were spoke of, and confessed, and mourned for, and prayed against; but he could not fee that this was either treasonable or seditious. As to what is faid in the book, of closing a treaty with the king, after he had given fuch evidences of his disaffection and enmity to the work of God, he said, 'That he never denied his majesty's just right and title to these kingdoms, but always acknowledged him to be the only righteous heir; but that he thought there was not care enough taken to get him brought off from his prejudices against the work of reformation. ---- The next article in that book, concerning taking " malignants into the army and judicatories, he faid, There is nothing afferted there, but what is confoant to the word of God, and the received doctrine of this church, For, if it be a commanded duty to put into places of trust and power, men fearing God, men of truth and hating covetouineis, then the neglect thereof must be a sin, and so a cause of wrath. As to the supplication in August laft, he said he most cheerfully subscribed it, as a testimony of his loyalty 7661. Doyalty to his king, and of his ardent defire to have wrath kept from his throne and dominions, by a humble minding him of the facred ties of the covenant, and by earnestly supplicating him to walk according to them, both in his court and family, and in the government of his kingdoms .--- As to the imperfect fcroll of a letter and inflructions found in their meeting, he acknowledged they were intended to be fent to some of their brethren, in another part of the country, for procuring their subscription to their petition, without the least thought of disloyalty.

This is the fum and substance of his defence; from which it plainly appears how unjustly he and others were at that time charged with treason. Whether the parliament passed any sentence against him at this time. my author does not fay; only it appears that he was in prison after the fession was over.

Mr. John Murray, minister at Methven, who was at the meeting in August last, was likeways charged with high-treason; but what the issue of the process was is not known. Yet, the and sport war and and forest

Mr. P. 70.

But the ministers who were apprehended in August Simplon, last were not the only sufferers during this session: for Mr. James Simpson, minister at Airth, who had been apprehended at Port-patrick, after a copy of his indictment was fent to him to answer in prison, was, by this parliament, banished the king's dominions, without being allowed a hearing, or to much as being fummoned before them, He died in Holland, and so had the same fate with the reverend Mr. MacWard, whose fingular case I am now briefly to relate.

Mr. Mac-Ward.

Mr. Robert MacWard, minister at Glafgow, was remarkable for his learning, zeal, and other ministerial abilities. This good man observing the design of the managers, to overturn the whole covenanted work of reformation, in February gave a faithful and feasonable testimony against the glaring defections of the times, in an excellent fermon in the tron-church of Glafgow, from Amos iii. 2. He concluded his fermon with these words; As for my own part, as a poor member of this church of Scotland, and an unworthy minister in it, I do this day call you, who are the people of God, to witness that I humbly offer my diffent to all acts which are, or shall be passed against the covenants, and work of reformation in Scotland : And, 2. protest that I am desirous defi Go mon, and t guard india

W livere his W thing tha any

> VID gal the pre and mo

wh

tice (An nel imi bre the

to.

· ple

pro · Ho the the N ga

bot is is all ' his an

TE fol · fay me pr

pr 10 2.

ve

nd

to

.

nt

n-

n,

rs

ie

Ŋ

It

h

1

Æ

d

desirous to be free of the guilt thereof, and pray that 1661.
God may put it upon record in heaven. This fermon, especially this conclusion of it, made great noise, and therefore he was brought in to Edinburgh under a guard, and committed to prison, and soon after had an indiament given him by his majesty's advocate, for sedition and treasonable preaching.

When he was before the parliament, June 6. he de Abstratt livered himself with great eloquence and judgment, as of bis his very enemies acknowledged; and, among other freech. things, faid, 'I humbly defire it may be confidered, that a ministerial protestation against, or diffent from any acts, or act, which a minister knows, and is convinced to be contrary to the word of God, is not a legal impugnation of that or those acts, much less of the authority enacting them, which it doth rather presuppose, than deny or impugn; but it is a solemn and ferious attested declaration, or witness and testimony against the evil and iniquity of these things; which, by the word of God, is a warrantable practice, and here, and at this time, a necessary duty: And for which way of protesting, or teltifying, or witnessing, a minister hath the prophets a pattern for his imitation, as is clear, I Sam. viii. 9. Howbeit, yet protest folemnly unto them, and shew them the manner of the king that shall reign over them. Where the Lord, to lignify his great refentment and dislike at the people's course and carriage towards him, commands the prophet, in his name, to protest against their procedure. Howbeit, yet protest folemnly unto them, (faith he) or, as the words are rendered on the margin of our bible, Notwithstanding, when thou hast protested solemnly a gainst them, &c. which reading seems best to agree; both with the scope, and what is faid verse 19. It is clear also, Jerem. xi. 7. when the Lord sums up all his ferious exhortations to obey his voice, and all his harp expostulations for not obeying his voice, and keeping his covenant, in this very term of PROL TESTING earnestly : For I earnestly protested unto your fathers in the day, &c. rifing up early and protesting, laying, Obey my voice. So that my protestation, testimony and diffent, not being without a precedent practice in the prophets, and so not without divine precept, cannot be called, nor ought to be accounted a contravention of the acts libelled in the indicament; e neither

A661. neither can I, for this, come under the lash of the law; unless it be faid and afferted; which I know will be denied with abhorrence and detellation, that these acts do discharge, under pain of treason, what God the fupreme lawgiver commands his fervants to do, under pain of his displeasure, as they would not, by their unfaithful filence, lofe their own, and betray the fouls of others; fo that, take the word protesting, in the fcripture-fense, for folemn declaring and witnefling against fin, and for duty, in which fense alone I take it, it will not be liable to any just exception --- there being nothing more frequent in the word than fuch s protesting, declaring and witnessing against fin and for duty .- And, besides, it will not a little contribute, to remove what matter of offence is taken at the manner of my testimony, because, in the term of dissenting and protesting, if it be considered, that all the reformed churches of Christ this day have their denomination and distinction from the church of Rome, from a folemn publick PROTESTATION against the decree which was made by CHARLES V. and the eltates of the empire at ____ anno ___ in prejudice to religion and reformation, though I do not plead a perfect parallel between this and that. and si as another

As to the matter of my protestation. My practice feems neither contrary to reason nor religion; but confonant to both; it being commonly taken as a principle, rather than toffed as a problem, that, where there is a jus qualitum domino, it is competent, incumbent and necessary for the servant and ambassador, in the behalf and interest of his lord and master, to diffent from and protest against all acts made to the f prejudice of that right. But so it is, that there was a right acquired to the LORD my master, whose fervant and ambassador I am, though most unworthy, to wit, the confirmation civil of those covenants and vows, made to and with HIM for reformation in this church, according to his will revealed in his word, and the obligation civil of the lieges thereunto, by the interpolition of civil authority: Therefore I humbly conceive, that, as a right cannot, at least ought not, to be taken away in prejudice to a third party, for far less in things concerning the LORD and his interests, the publick faith of the kingdom being engaged to Gon to promote and fecure that : So that, in this intere to diff I hope defires in the done, Mr.

Chap. 2

at much terian I nished; in the r power g at his d tence, where, Petrie, tholick Hague gation during and no custodie and fu died ab useful i

Thu blood, their b nished testimo may ha ment, the col

and pie with C need i present hered Besides
no sm
notice

of Ma

n

ſe

æ

ir

ls

ne

ft

it

re

h

1C

e, nig

1-

1 ee of

a

C

n,

23

it.

t,

24

r, ne as

r

V,

nd

13

d,

ne

ly

t,

1-

1-

it

in

in this case, for me to have protested for my master's 1661.
interests, to whom there was a civil right made, and wo dissent from all acts prejudicial to the same, will, hope, be thought to be the duty of the man who desires to approve himself to God, and who expects, in the day of his accounts, the approbation of Well done, good and faithful servant.

Mr. Sharp and his friends resolved now to be rid, He is baas much as possible, of the most eminent of the presby- mished. terian ministers, and therefore Mr. MacWard was banished; however, he was allowed to continue fix months in the nation, one of which only in Glasgow, and had power given him to receive the following years stipend at his departure. Accordingly he submitted to the sentence, and transported himself and family to Roterdam; where, upon the death of the reverend Mr. Alexander. Petrie, (the author of a compendious history of the catholick church, from the 600 to 1600. printed at the Hague 1662.) he became minister of the Scots congregation there, where he wrote a history of this church, during his own time, which, if it had been published, and not concealed by the inconsiderate or ill-designing callodier thereof, might have been of very fingular use, and superseded all other histories for that time. died about 20 years after this, having been eminently uleful in his day and generation.

Thus the acts of this parliament were scaled with blood, and with the many tears of numbers, who had their beloved pastors violently taken from them and banished into foreign countries, and that merely for the testimony of a good conscience. But that the reader may have another proof of the partiality of this parliament, I cannot omit the case of Mr. Patrick Gillespie.

He was first minister in the town, and principal of Mr. Patithe college of Glasgow, a man of great learning, solidity Gillespic, and piety. It is plain that he made great compliances with Cromwell during the usurpation, and therefore we need not be surprised that he was prosecuted by the present managers, when so many, who had sirmly adhered to the king's interest, were so ungratefully used. Besides, he was against the publick resolutions, and had no small share in the western remonstrance. We took notice of his imprisonment last year. On the 6th p. 69 of March this year, he was brought before the parliament, and his indictment was read, containing his 166r. compiling and subscribing the western remonstrance, his confenting to the pamphlet called The causes of God's wrath, his constant correspondence with Cromwell, &c. But he had friends in the house, and favour was shewn him. It must indeed be owned that he sadly departed from his former testimony; for he acknowledged 'he had given offence to his majesty by the remonstrance, and otherways, which he now was forry for, and did disclaim, and therefore cast himself upon the king's mercy, &c.' The parliament, upon this, interceded for him, and in a little time he was taken out of prison. but confined to Ormistoun and fix miles round it. His acknowledgment gave just offence to many, who looked upon it as an instance of great fainting, in a person of his forewardness, zeal and activity in former years.

0

The parliament rose on the 12th of July, after which the management of affairs were lodged in the hands of the COUNCIL. On the last day of July their acts were proclaimed, with great folemnity, at the cross of Edin. burgh. During all this session there was not the least motion made for an act of indemnity; the secret whereof, according to Bishop Burnet, was this, That, since diocesan episcopacy was to be set up, and as those who were most like to oppose it were, on other accounts, obnoxious, it was thought best to keep them under that fear, till the change should be made.

I shall conclude this chapter with some account of the great Mr. Rutherford who died about the end of March this year, and may very justly come in among the sufferers during this session of Parliament, for he was certainly a martyr, both in his own resolution and in the design of the managers.

* IIIO

This pious and learned, diligent and faithful minister Mr. Ru- of Christ, was a gentleman by extraction, and gave ear-Pref. to ly proofs of his great abilities; for, when he was very his letters, young, he was pitched upon for a profession of philofophy in the college of Edinburgh, where he was edup. 15, 16. cated. From thence he was called to the ministry at Anwoth, and entred on that charge, by means of the then viscount of Kenmure, without coming under any engagement to the prelate. There he laboured with great diligence and much fuccess, and there he wrote his Exercitationes apologetica.

The prelates were so heterodox, as to accuse him for writing that book, and so apostatized, as to find fault fult v land. court I of the and fer the do were c that he

Chap.

Upo to his f ed prof affembl the mir indefat the fch Andreu of all fi as my a

taken co

whole I

He v affembl divines tation. ed Mr. bundan of this there. own co of dang day of

The dictmen for, afte burnt a the new ty profe lummor treason, ing con tribuna Accord day before

away fr

. 2.

his

od's

&c.

wn.

ted

he nce,

did

g's

ded

on,

His:

ced .

of

ich

of

ere

in-east

re-

nce

ho

its,

hat

he

rch

uf-

vas

in

ter

ar-

ry

lo-

u-

In-

en

re-

di-

7.

im

nd

lt

fault with him for preaching against the sins of the 1661. Ind. He was summoned before the high commission—court 1636. and upon declining its authority, as none of the courts of Christ, was deposed from his ministry and sent prisoner to Aberdeen; where, says my author, the doctors found, to their confusion, that the Puritans were clergymen as well as they. It was from thence that he wrote many of his admirable letters to his friends.

Upon the great turn of affairs 1638. he was restored to his former charge at Anwoth, and soon after appointed professor of divinity at St. Andrews by the general assembly. He was likeways called to be colleague in the ministry with the worthy Mr. Blair. And by the indefatigable pains of Mr. Rutherford, both teaching in the schools, and preaching in the congregation, St. Andrews, the seat of the archbishop, and so the nursery of all superstition, error and profaneness, soon became, as my author expresses it, a Lebanon, out of which were taken cedars for building the house of God through the whole land.

He was one of the commissioners sent by the general Netheni assembly of the church of Scotland to the assembly of Præs. ad divines at Westminster, where he was held in great reputation. In the year 1651. upon the death of the learning arminiated Mr. Dematius, the magistrates of Utrecht being abundantly satisfied as to the learning, piety and zeal of this great man, invited him to the divinity chair there. But he chose rather to suffer affliction in his own country, than to leave his flock and charge in time of danger. And therefore he continued at home till the day of his death.

The parliament this year 1661. were to have an indictment laid before them against this eminent person; for, after his book, Lex rex, had been ordered to be burnt at the cross of Edinburgh*, and at the gate of p. 69. the new college of St. Andrews, where he was divinity professor, they most barbarously ordered him to be summoned before them, to answer to a charge of high treason, though every body knew he was then in a dying condition: But, says Mr. Wodrow, he had a higher tribunal to appear before, where his judge was his friend. Accordingly he died on the 29th of March, the very day before the ast rescissory was passed, and so was taken away from the evil to come.

Some

filling of

1661. Some of his last words are these, I shall shine, I fhall fee him as he is, and all the fair company with ' him, and shall have my large share. It is no easy ing's ful- thing to be a christian : But, as for me, I have got the script, the victory, and Christ is holding forth his arms fol. edit. to embrace me. I have had my fears and faintings, p. 187. f as another finful man, to be carried through creditably; but as fure as ever he spoke to me in his word, his spirit witnessed to my heart, saying, Fear not, he hath accepted my fuffering, and the out-gate should onot be matter of prayer but of praise.' He said also, Thy word was found, and I did eat it, and it was to " me the joy and rejoicing of my heart.' A little before his death, after some fainting, he faid, Now I feel, I believe, I enjoy, I rejoice'. Turning to his colleague Mr. Blair, he faid, 'I feed on manna, I have angels food, mine eyes shall see my redeemer. I know that he shall stand, at the latter day, upon the earth, and I shall be caught up in the clouds to meet him in the air.' Afterwards he had these words, 'I fleep in Christ, and when I awake I shall be satisfied with his likeness. O for arms to embrace him!' And to one speaking of his painfulness in the miniftry, he eried out, ' I disclaim all, the port I would be in at is redemption and forgiveness of fins through his blood. His last words were, Glory, glory dwel-Ieth in Emanuel's land.' He regreted, when near his end, that he had not the honour of giving a publick testimony to the work of reformation fince the year 1638. and against the lamentable defections of the prefent times.

> Thus lived the great Mr. Rutherford a life of communion with God, and died in full affurance. The letters which he left behind him discover what manner of spirit he was of; and however they are the ridicule of the graceless and profane, like pearls before swine, yet they breathe an uncommon spirit of piety and seraphick love to his Lord and master, and are much calculated for the support, encouragement and comfort of scrious christians, under their forest afflictons,

> > CHAP.

Of the pre

Chap.

lowin lor, e the c quis Schal, Muri toun, South Duna fus, Willi mour laird knigh Alexi Willi their oath oath powe meet lifb, as th > put king cal g the ! lacy, per brou

was !

Iome

W

N cour they

we f

e, I

with eafy

got

rms ngs,

lita-

ord,

, he

ould

llo,

s to

be-

wI

his

ave

the

icet · I fied

1!

ni-

uld

igh

rel-

his

ick

ear re-

nu-

et-

ner

ule

ne,

ra-

al-

of

P,

I

CHAP. III.

Of the proceedings of the council and the regal erection of prelacy, together with the sufferings of gentlemen and ministers during the rest of the year.

HE day after the parliament rose, his majesty's 1661. The folprivy council met at Holy-rood-house. lowing is a lift of them, The earl of Glencairn chancel- The prilor, earl of Crawford treasurer, earl of Rothes president of vy council the council, the dukes of Lenox and Hamilton, the mar-meets. quis of Montrose, earls Lauderdale secretary, Errol, Marschal, Mar, Athole, Mortoun, Eglinton, Cassils, Caithness, Murray, Linksthgow, Hume, Perth, Dumfermling, Wigtoun, Kelly, Roxburgh, Haddington, Tullibardin, Weems, Southesk, Hartfield, Callender, Tweeddale, Middletoun, Dundee, Newburgh, lords Sinclair, Halkertoun, Duffus, Sir Archibald Primerose, Sir John Fletcher, Sir William Bannantyne, Sir Robert Murray, Sir John Gilmour of Craigmillar, Sir William Fleming, Laird of Ley, laird of Blackhall, Sir John Wauchop of Niddrie knight, Gibson of Durie, Sir George Kinnaird of Rossie, Alexander Bruce brother to the earl of Kincairdin, and Sir William Scot of Airdie. After the publick reading of their commission, and their powers, all present took the oath of allegiance, formerly mentioned, and then the oath of council. They had now the whole executive power in their hands, and accordingly, at their first meeting, they ordered the citadels built by the Engulb, during the usurpation, to be demolished.——But as the point of the greatest importance, at that time, was the getting prelacy established - I shall first give lome account of that matter.

We have seen how the parliament, by their 16th act, put the whole power, as to church-affairs, into the king's hands, by which he was to lettle the ecclesiastical government, as HE thought most proper; but then the parliament had by no act as yet established prelacy, consequently it does not appear to have any proper parliamentary settlement in Scotland, but to be brought in by a mere act of the king's prerogative, as we shall presently see.

When the parliament was up, Middletoun and the Debates courtiers repaired with all speed to London, and, when about epifthey had the government of the church of Scotland un-copacy.

der

Chap.

vice u obedie

is as f

the :

the main

fettle

time,

began

all th

left t

' ment

' sciffor Whit.

the i

hath

the u "fadly

ed, c 1 to 0

'civil

'thori the g

pious and f

· with

' Irela

those

terpo

'churc

bylan

royal now st

cerni:

to ma

as yo

we re "accor

affect caref difter

CH

der their consideration, the commissioner and chancellor were strenuously for bishops. Landerdale, Crawford and duke Hamilton, for some time opposed them. 'The earl of Middletoun, fays Burnet, affured the king, That episcopacy was defired by the greater and honester part of the nation. One fynod had as good as petitioned for it: And many others wished for it, though the share they had in the late wars made them think it was not fit or decent for them to move for it. Sharp affured the king, That none but the protestors, of whom he had a very bad opinion, were against it: And that, of the resolutioners, there would not be found twenty that would oppose it. - On the other hand, the earl of Lauderdale, and all his friends, affured the king, That the national prejudices against it were still very strong, that those who seemed zealous for it ran into it only as a method to procure favour, but that those who were against it would be found stiff and eager in their opposition to it; that, by setting it up, the king would lose the affections of the nation, and that the supporting it would grow a heavy load on his government; which indeed came to pass. The bishop farther obp. 132. ferves, 'That upon this divertity of opinion, the thing having been proposed in a Scots council at Whitehall, the earl of Crawford declared himself against it, but the earl of Lauderdale, duke Hamilton and Sir Robert Murray were only for delaying till the king should be better fatisfied concerning the inclinations of the nati-

All the rest were for the change.'

The refult of thefe dehates.

These debates are said to have lasted for some days, and that here the foundation of discord was laid between Middletoun and Lauderdale, which issued in the ruin of the former. A little after, the chancellor, in a conversation with Lauderdale, desired him not to mistake his conduct in that affair, for he was not for lordly prelates, fuch as had been formerly in Scotland, but only for a limited, fober and moderate episcopacy. To which Lauderdale is faid to have replied, ' My lord, fince you are for bishops, and must have them, bishops you shall have, and higher than ever they were in Scotland, and that you shall find.' It being thus agreed to alter the government of the church of Scotland, a letter was fent from his majesty to the privy council there, declaring his royal pleasure to have episcopacy established in this ancient kingdom. He did not demand their advice vice upon it, says bishop Burnet, but even required their 1661? obedience to it, as appears from the letter itself, which is as follows.

CHARLES R.

IGHT trusty and well beloved cousins and The king's counsellors, we greet you well. Whereas in letter. the month of August 1660. we did, by our letter to the presbytery of Edinburgh, declare our purpose to maintain the government of the church of Scotland fettled by law; and our parliament having, fince that time, not only rescinded all the acts since the troubles began referring to that government, but also declared 'all those pretended parliaments null and void, and left to us the fettling and fecuring of church-government: Therefore, in compliance with that aft re-'sciffory, according to our late proclamation, dated at Whitehall the 10th of June, and in contemplation of the inconveniences from the church-government, as it hath been exercised these twenty three years past, of the unsuitableness thereof to our monarchial estate, of the 'fadly experienced confusions which have been caused, during the late troubles, by the violences done to our royal prerogative, and to the government, 'civil and ecclefiastical, settled by unquestionable authority, we, from our respect to the glory of God, and the good and interest of the protestant religion, from our pious care and princely zeal for the order, unity, peace and stability of that church, and its better harmony with the government of the churches of England and Ireland, have, after mature deliberation, declared to those of our council here, our firm resolution to interpose our royal authority for restoring of that 'church to its right government by bishops, as it was by law, before the late troubles, during the reigns of our royal father and grandfather of bleffed memory, and as it now stands settled by law. Of this our royal pleasure, concerning church-government, you are to take notice, and to make intimation thereof in fuch a way and manner as you shall judge most expedient and effectual. And we require you and every one of you, and do expect, according to the trust and confidence we have in your affections and duty to our fervice, that you will be careful to use your best endeavours for curing the distempers contracted during those late evil times, for

Chap

on W

appa

nilter

presb

tion

churc

word

be a very & ven a

byter

byteri

folem

ble.

was n

macy,

advise

requir

tho'

fince i

ftablis

his au

vernm

troubl

abfolut

this re

ven.

piety 1

church

and, P

ces by prefby

monarci

that th

and th

ons of charge

three k

tho' hi

gard to terpofin

tution,

ed up t

before,

1661. uniting our good subjects among themselves, and bring. ing them all to a cheerful acquiefcing and obedience to our fovereign authority, which we will employ, by the help of God, for the maintaining and defending the true reformed religion, increase of piety, and the fettlement and fecurity of that church in her rights. and liberties, according to law and ancient custom. And, in order thereto, our will is, that you forthwith take fuch course with the rents belonging to the several bishopricks and deanries, that they may be restored and made useful to the church, and that according, to justice and the standing law. And, moreover, you are to inhibit the affembling of ministers in their feveral synodical meetings through the kingdom, until, our farther pleasure, and to keep a watchful eye over all who, upon any pretext whatfoever, shall, by difcourfing, preaching, reviling, or any irregular or un-· lawful way, endeavoue to alienate the affections of our people, or dispose them to an ill opinion of us. and our government, to the disturbance of the peace of the kingdom. So, expecting your cheerful obedience, and a speedy account of your proceedings herein, we bid you heartily farewel. Given at our court at Whitehall, August the 14th 1661. and of our reign the 13th year. By his majesty's command.'

LAUDERDALE.

On the last of August, the earls of Glencairn and Rothes, with Mr. Sharp, returned from court; and next council day, September 5th, the lord chancellor presented his majesty's letter, which being read, the clerk was ordered to draw up an act in obedience thereunto, to be proclaimed and made known to all the lieges. Accordingly next day the draught was presented and approved of, and proclaimed over the cross, with great folemnity, by the Lyon king at arms, with all the trumpets, and the magistrates of Edinburgh in their robes. act of council is the eccho of his majesty's letter. The council, the same day, ordered a just copy of their act and proclamation to be transmitted to the king; for which his majesty returned them his thanks. And thus PRELACY was again brought into Scotland; from which I cannot but make the following remarks.

clamation in consequence of it, was the foundation up-

'n

$

1

.

• 3

3 .

u.

1

r, f- ;

1- , of 18,

e

e- , e- ,

rt,

n .

E.,

0-xt'

it-

rk

0, es.

nd

eat

ts,

nis

he

act '

for us '

ich '

ro-

ip-

on

on which prelacy was at this time established, so it is 1661. apparent, 1. That the king intended to deceive the ministers of the church of Scotland, by his letter to the presbytery of Edinburgh, wherein he declared his refolu- P. 67, tion to protect and preserve the government of that 68. church, as it is fettled by law; for, in his last letter, these words, as it is, are artfully omitted, that there might be a fairer pretence for introducing bishops, upon that very ground which so many took to be an affurance given against them. When his majesty wrote to the prefbytery of Edinburgh, prelacy stood abolished, and presbyterian government established by law, and the king's folemn oath was engaged to preserve the same inviolable. But, 2. it is apparent, that prelacy, in Scotland, was now restored entirely by virtue of the regal supremacy, of which the king was so tender, that he neither advised with his council, nor fought their consent, but required them to publish his pleasure in this point; for, tho' the parliament had rescinded all the acts passed fince the year 1633. yet they had by no act, as yet, etablished diocesan episcopacy; only the king interposed his authority for restoring that church to its right government by bishops, as it was by law before the late troubles; fo that prelacy was one of the first fruits of absolute and arbitrary power. 3. The reasons given for this remarkable change were absolutely false. Inconveniences are first mentioned, tho' not one instance is given. It is plain that profaneness was greatly suppressed, piety flourished, and many were converted, while the church of Scotland enjoyed her just and lawful liberties; and, perhaps, THESE were looked upon as inconveniences by the present managers. It is also alledged, that presbytery, tho' never named, was unsuitable to his monarchical estate. How soon had his majesty forgot that the presbyterians stood by him during his exile, and that they restored him to his crown! The confusions of the late times are also most unjustly laid to their charge, fince they were almost the only body in the three kingdoms that stood out against CROMWELL. And tho' his majesty pretended he was now moved from a regard to the glory of God, who, that observe him now interpoling his royal anthority for overturning that constitution, which, upon his knees, and with his hands lifted up to heaven, he swore to maintain only a few years before, can give the smallest credit to his pretences?

P

Chap

Mr.

Argy

Forbe

Tohn

ray,

Burn

met 1

of an

by m

his cl

Dowa

rent d

It wa

of I

' fom

' king

· low rael

bishot

Hamil

' that

f prie

ed b

be i

was

" had

who

1 too

bifh

in th

othe

the bi quaint

was ti

fwallor

invidi

prove ordain

infifted

private the fo

Westmi

lift no

was p

Th

1661. For indeed he stuck at nothing. But, not to trouble the reader with any farther remarks,

Prelacy being thus restored by the royal authority, Men fought out the next thing under confideration was to have bito be bishops appointed and consecrated. Sheldon, and the Eng. Shops. list bishops, had an aversion to all that had been en-Burnet. gaged in the covenant. Mr. Thomas Sideferfe was the p. 132, only man now alive of the old bishops, and at this time 133. expected to be advanced to the primacy of Scotland. But he had so disgusted the English bishops, that they did not espouse his interest, tho' they were much against a fet of presbyterian bishops. This affected Sharp sensibly: So he laid the matter before the earl of Clarendon, and managed matters with so much art and dissimulation, that he got the archbishoprick of St. Andrews secured to himself, and was ordered to find out proper

The new bishops.
Sharp's character.

men for filling up the other sees. The choice were,
Mr. James Sharp metropolitan; a monster of hypocrify, perjury and vileness. He took the Fender; made such a proposal to Cromwell, that he publickly declared him to be an atheist; was base with one Isabel Lindsay, as she publickly declared to his face, and had a share in the murder of the poor infant. He betrayed the church of Scotland, and persecuted the true members of it. In a word, his wicked and cruel life, and the death he deservedly met with, would make a black and dismal story.

Mr. Andrew Fairfoul was made archbishop of Glasgow.

Fairfoul's Mr. Andrew Fairfoul was made archbishop of Glasgow, character. a man of some learning and neat expression, but never p. 133, esteemed serious. Burnet says, he was a pleasant saccious man, insinuating and crasty; a better physician than divine; that his life was scarce free from scandal, and was eminent in nothing that belonged to his own function. He had both sworn the covenant, and persuaded others to do it; and, when it was objected to him, he said, That there were some very good medicines that could not be chewed, but were to be swallowed.

Other bishops. The persons who filled up the other bishopricks, were Mr. George Wisheart of Edinburgh, Mr. Sideserse of Orkney, Mr. David Mitchell of Aberdeen, but did not enjoy it a full year. Mr. James Hamilton of Galloway, ^{*} Burnet says of Mr. Hamilton, that, when he formerly gave the sacrament, he excommunicated all who were not true to the cevenant, using a form in the old testament of shaking out the lap of his gown, saying, So did be cast out of the church and communion, all that dealt salely in the COVENANT.

P. 3.

uble

rity,

bi-

Eng-

en-

the time

and.

they

ainst

ensiidon,

lati-

fe-

oper

re,

ponade

ared

lfay,

e in

irch

In

de-

ory.

ow,

ever ace-

cian

dal,

nwc

per-

d to edi-

wal-

cks,

erfe

not vay,

Mr.

the

enant,

falfely

Mr. Robert Wallace of the Ifles, Mr. David Fletcher of 1661. Argyll, Mr. George Haliburton of Dunkeld, Mr. Patrick forbes of Gaithness, Mr. David Strachan of Brechen, Mr. John Paterson of Ross, Mr. Murdoch MacKenzie of Moray, and Mr. Robert Leighton of Dumblain. To this last Burnet gives the most excellent character that can be met with amongst them; and he was certainly the best of any of the bishops nominated: But he was judged by many to be void of any doctrinal principles; and his close correspondence with some of his relations at Doway, in popish orders, made him suspected as indifferent to all professions which bear the name of Christian. It was the remark of a countryman, 'That the bishops Countryof England were like the kings of Judah, some good, man's re-'some bad; but the prelates in Scotland were like the mark. kings of Ifrael, not one of them good, but all followers of Feroboam the fon of Nebat, who made If-'rael to fin.'

There were four of those who were appointed to be Burnet, bishops at this time in London, to wit, Sharp, Fairfoul, p. 139, Hamilton and Leighton. The English bishops, finding 140.

that Sharp and Leighton had not episcopal ordaintion as ' priefts and deacons, the other two having been ordain-'ed by bishops before the wars, insisted that they should be ordained first deacons and then priests. was very uneafy at this, and reminded them of what had happened when king JAMES had let up episcopacy, who declared, That he thought fuch a practice went too far towards the unchurching all those who had no bishops amongst them: But the bishops were positive 'in the point, and would not dispense with it, and the others at last yielded; which, says Mr. Wodrow, made the bishop of London tell Sharp, when he came to acquaint him with their consent to re-ordination, That it was the Scots fashion to scruple at every thing, and to fwallow any thing. And tho' this was an unjust and invidious reflection, yet these persons were justly reproved; for one of them frankly declared he would be ordained, re-ordained, and re-ordained again, if it was ordained, re-ordained, and re-ordained again, if it was infifted upon. Accordingly Sharp and Leighton were Re-or-privately ordained deacons and priests, and then all dained the four were consecrated publickly in the Abbey of and conse-Westminster, before a great consuence of Scots and Eng-crated.

was performed in all the modes of the English church.

Though

Cha

Bot

incl

ing

was

his cou

lett

mei

late

and

till

cil

fign

oth

men

3.

nati

cess

in t

ear

owi

der

Sco

his

tho

this

cro

the

(

pro

be

fuc

jest

acts

wh

vid

tion not

fro

the

tha

bur

fcar

Though the Scots bishops, by submitting to a fresh ordination as presbyters, declared that they looked up-Remarks, on presbyterial ordination as invalid, yet it is plain their after-conduct was inconfistent with this principle: for, when they returned to Scotland, and entred upon their episcopal function, they re-ordained none of those ministers who complied with them; and consequently, according to their own principles, these were no lawful ministers, fince they had not prelatical ordination. It must therefore be left with the reader to determine, whether they could be justified in persecuting those people who would not fubmit to those compliers, when, according to their own principles, they were not lawful ministers. It is in vain to alledge that the bishop's allowance was equivalent to ordination by the imposition of hands; for, if that was the case, why were they themselves re-ordained by the imposition of hands, to the scandal of all the reformed churches? The party may answer this the best way they can. Leighton told Dr. Burnet, that, in the whole progress

Leighnet, p. 341.

ton's opi- of this affair, there appeared such cross characters of an nion. Bur- angry providence, that, how fully soever he was satisfied as to episcopacy itself, yet it seemed that God was against them, and that they were not like to be the men that should build up his church, so that the struggling about it seemed to him like a fighting against God - He that had the greatest hand in it proceeded with so much disfimulation, and the rest of the order were so mean, so felfish, and the earl of Middletoun, with the other secular men that conducted it, were so openly impious and vicious, that it did cast a reproach upon every thing relating to religion to fee it managed by fuch instruments.

Earl of Tweeddale before the council.

It is now proper that we return to the proceedings of the privy-council, before whom we shall find a remarkable process, in the month of September, relating to the earl of Tweeddale. It feems the court was informed, that, when the process was depending before the parliament against Mr. Guthrie, his lordship spake in favour This was accounted such a crime, of that gentleman. that his Majesty sent a letter to the council, dated the 7th of September, ordering them to commit the earl to Imprison the caltle of Edinburgh, which was executed on the 13th. On the 17th his lordship petitioned the council, to interpose either for his enlargement, or that his imprisonment might be changed to a confinement to his house at Bothams.

reih

up-

lain

ple;

pon

hose

wful

ople

ac-

alofi-

hey

to

refs

an fied

inst

out

hat

dif-

Sa

cu-

and

re-

ıţs.

rk-

the

ed,

lia-

our

ne,

the

to

th.

in-

on-

ns.

It vheBothams. Accordingly they wrote to the secretary, and 1661. inclosed his petition, and fignified, that, in the late meeting of council, when the matter of church-government was before them, the earl had heartily complied with his majesty's commands, behaving himself as a faithful counsellor and loyal subject. On the 1st of October two letters from the lecretary were read in council, recommending them to examine his lordship's conduct at the late vote in parliament which condemned Mr. Guthrie, and to confine him to Bothams, and three miles round, till farther orders. Upon this a committee of the council was appointed, to whom he gave in a declaration, fignifying, 1. That there were some circumstances in Mr. Guthrie's case, that inclined him to vote for some other punishment than death. 2. That he did not remember his vote relating to the petition and instructions. 3. That having heard the process relating to the declinature read but once, and it being the first criminal process he was ever witness to, he therefore declined to vote in that article. Upon producing this declaration the earl was discharged from the castle, but confined to his own house at Bothams, and three miles round, and or- Confined dered to find bail, under the penalty of 100,000 merks to his Scots, for his appearance, or returning to the caltle, when boufe. his majesty or the council should see proper. tho afterwards his confinement was taken off, yet from this process the reader cannot but see a manifest encroachment on the freedom of parliament; for this was the only thing that was laid to his charge.

On the 18th of September the council agreed to a Proclamaproclamation discharging the electing of any person to tion conbe magistrate or counsellor within any burgh, except cerning esuch as were of known loyalty and affection to his mamogijesty's government, qualified as is expressed in the late strates.

acts of parliament, and others made for that effect, and whose carriage, during the late troubles, has been no evidence to the contrary. The design of this proclamation was to exclude all presbyterians, and such as were not hearty for bishops and the king's arbitrary power, from any management of burghs, and to entirely subject the royal burghs to the yoke of the courtiers.

On the 7th of November, information being given, Liberties that George Swinton and James Glen, bookfellers in Edin-of the burgh, have ordered to be printed several seditions and presstates scandalous books and papers, such as Archibald Campbell's

1661. bell's speech, Guthrie's speech, The covenant's plea, &c. it was ordered by the council, that the lord advocate and provost of Edinburgh seize upon these books and papers, and discharge the above and other booksellers to print any more books or papers, till they received warrant from the king, parliament or council. And thus the liberty of the press was effectually taken away: For the conduct of these managers could by no means bear fuch a publick ferutiny.

Proceedings a-Zainst

During these things the reverend Mr. Robert Blair, minister at St. Andrews, was ordered, upon some information or other, where Sharp took care to keep himself Mr. Blair. behind the curtain, on account of particular obligations he was under to this worthy gentleman, to present himself before the lord chancellor, at Edinburgh, by the 9th of October. The earls of Linlithgow, Hume, &c. were, on the 5th of November, appointed to examine him, and give in their report to the next meeting of the council, which was done accordingly on the 7th: But what refolutions they came to is not known; for my author tells us, that he found a blank in the records of near half a page; and upon the margin, Act Mr. Robert Blair, as if they had been ashamed of their proceedings against fuch a person, who was so universally regarded. We shall hear more of him next year.

Ministers

The council, in consequence of an application by the discharg- presbytery of Linlithgow, discharged the reverend Mr. William Wisheart from his confinement, after 13 months imprisonment, and afterwards Mr. John Scot and Mr. Gilbert Hall, who had been apprehended on the remarkable 23d of August.

Several west-country gentlemen, in the month of November, were brought to a great deal of trouble for their joining with colonel Strachan, 1650. And while the council were profecuting Mr. Blair and other presbyterians, they could not, for shame, evite doing somewhat against trafficking papists, whose numbers at this time greatly increased; and it must be owned that the council shewed some considerable zeal this way, had they not been much hindred by the remissiness of the prelates. However, John Inglis, and William Brown were apprehended and committed to prison, and were both banished the kingdom; and a proclamation was issued on the 19th of November against papists, and for seizing all popish books, writings, commissions, and others belonging

Chap.

ing to Papilts the tru fecuted

On. chance orderin to the bishop ceived to the admiffi fummo der th presby which might under ordina rial fu laft : le in this rences

> Of the of 1 cees and

> tures ceived Sharp Ac ceived pleafi clesia till at thops ed, a ordain Were

DE

0

r

r

f

ing to them, under the highest pains. Nevertheless 1661. Papifts were over-looked, while they, who adhered to the true principles of the church of Scotland were profecuted with the utmost rigour.

On the 10th of December the council defired the Proceedchancellor to fend a letter to the presbytery of Peebles, ings aordering them to defilt from admitting Mr. John Hay gainst the to the church of Manner, until the return of the arch- presbytery bishop. But it feems the presbytery either had not re- of Peebles ceived the chancellor's letter, or could not put a stop to the ordination, and therefore had proceeded to the admission: Wherefore all the members present were fummoned to appear, and answer for their conduct, under the pain of rebellion. This proceeding against presbyteries was a stretch beyond the king's letter, by which synodical meetings were only prohibited. They might as well have forbid presbyteries to take fcandal under their confideration, as limit them in the point of ordination, which was one great part of their ministerial function as yet referved to them by his majesty's last letter. We shall find more presbyteries writ to, in this manner, by the council next year, to the occurrences of which I proceed in the following chapter, or adv ad bluer. CHAP. IV.

Of the discharging of church-judicatures, the consecration of the bishops, the acts of the parliament, and the proceedings of the council, particularly the act of Glasgow, and other things during the year 1662.

DEFORE the parliament fat down, the council 1662. compleated the work of overturning the judicatures of this church, pursuant to the orders they received from London, where all things were concerted by Sharp, and the rest of the bishops who were there.

Accordingly, on the 2d of January, the council received a letter from the king, fignifying his will and Churchjupleasure, for them to discharge, by proclamation, all ec-dischargclesialtical meetings in fynods, presbyteries and fessions, ed. till authorised and ordered by the archbishops and bishops. Thus we find that fynods were first interrupted, and then discharged: Presbyteries were forbid to ordain any in vacant parishes, and now their meetings were prohibited, nay, and fessions likeways must die with

Biolis

1662. the other indicatures of this church, and all in confequence of the royal supremacy, without the authority of parliament.

Bishop Burnet says, that Sharp procured this without P. 141. any advice, and it proved very fatal; for when king Fames brought in the bishops before, they had still suffered the inferior judicatures to continue fitting till the bishops came and fat among them. - Whereas now, by filencing these courts, the case was much altered: P. 142.

- For these courts being now once broken, and brought together afterwards by a fort of connivance, without any legal authority, only as the bishop's assistants and officials, to give him advice, and act in his name, they pretended they could not fit in them any more, unless they should change their principles and become thoroughly episcopal. And here, by the way, Burnet had no reason to put in these words, they pretended; for the truth is, they could not countenance any fuch judicatures, confistent with presbyterial principles. Burnet adds, so fatally did Sharp precipitate matters. He affected to have the reins of the church wholly put into his own hands, and Lauderdale was not forry to fee him commit errors, fince the worfe things were managed, his advice would be the more justified. Middletoun and his party took no care of any business, being almost perpetually drunk.-

Refoluti-

vinced.

The same day the above mentioned proclamation was onerscon- published the council discharged the presbytery of Kelfo from proceeding to ordain a minister to the church of Tettam; for things were now carried on with an high hand : And, by this time, the publick resolutioners began to see the dismal effects of opening a door to malignants to get into places of trust in the council and army; because though the protestors were the first who fuffered, yet both were afterwards made to drink of the Accordingly Mr. Douglas is reported to fame cup. have faid, when he faw things thus carried on, Our brethren the protestors have had their eyes open, and we have been blind. Mr. Dickson used to say, The protestors had been much truer prophets than they. And Mr. Wood acknowledged to feveral of his brethren, who differed from him in judgment, that they had been mistaken in their views they took of matters.

And it is a matter of fad regret, that the most part of state of the presbyteries, instead of making any stand for their religious church.

gious and lef the Wic and di the fair now, i hearing

Chap.

Thu of thei Rerick petitio humbl ' That them! those land.

they w tion. reason be left

Ma

ticul

and

' trod

broug maged the fo the tr remon/ theref Rerlin the af ed had estate of Cu Campl Earle

Th cil th the I Edin mone ding

tion.

ife-

of

out

ng

uf-

the

w,

d:

nd

ce,

ft-

nis

ny

e-

y,

d-

ch

7-

le

nee

1-

ıd

5, 15

1-

h

h

-

-

ď

e

0

6

I

gious liberties, filently yielded to the proclamation, 1662? and left off meeting in a judicative capacity; fo that the wicked and unjust invasions made upon the crown and dignity of the Lord Jesus Christ brought many of the faithful of the land with sorrow to the grave; for now, if any presbytery did so much as petition for a fair bearing, no regard was paid to it.

hearing, no regard was paid to it.

Thus, when the presbytery of Kirkcudbright sent two Petition of of their members, to wit, Mr. John Duncan minister at the prefRerick, and Mr. James Buglos at Crossmichael, with a bytery of petition to the privy council, most respectfully and bright rehumbly intreating them, in the name of Jesus Christ in the humbly intreating them, in the name of Jesus Christ, jested.

That their honours would be pleased to grant unto them freedom and liberty to unfold their bosoms in those things, that, relating to the work of God in the land, did sadly aggrieve their spirits, — and particularly that they might have liberty, with freedom and safety, to express their minds against the re-introduction of prelacy upon this church and kingdom, instead of having a hearing allowed them, they were still more exposed to suffering and persecution. If such petitions as these can, with any shew of reason, be looked upon as seditious or treasonable, must be left to the reader.

Many worthy gentlemen in the west country were Gentle-brought into trouble, on pretence of their having da-men harmaged the earl of Queensberry's estate, and been with rassed. the forces under colonels Strachan and Ker, 1650. But the true cause was, because most of them were for the remonstrance, and enemies to prelacy. The parliament therefore computed the losses the earl sustained at 2000 l. sierling, and the council, to whom the parliament lest the affair, rated every gentleman, whom they pretended had been concerned as above, in proportion to his estate real and personal. Thus Sir William Cuningham of Cuninghamhead was rated at above 200 l. Sir Hugh Campbel of Cesnock at above 130 l. Mr. William Gordon of Earlestoun at above 120 l. sterling, and others in proportion.

The reverend Mr. Robert Blair was before the coun-Procedcil the beginning of this year. On the 9th of January, ings athe Lord Bellenden, with the advocate and provost of sainst the Lord Bellenden, with the advocate and provost of Mr. Edinburgh, were appointed to examine the witnesses sum-Robert moned to appear in his case, and make report accor-Blair, dingly; but, after their most diligent search, nothing 1662. could be found against him. After the imprisonment of the ministers in August 1660. and the prospect of the resettlement of prelacy, he preached a faithful, and yet cautious sermon, from I Pet. iii. 14. Upon his examination, as to the matter of his fermon, he gave the committee of the council a distinct account. He was only confined to his room at Edinburgh, and afterwards removed to Musselburgh, where he continued till September While he was there Sharp found means to this year. get his charge declared vacant. On hearing of this Mr. Blair fent his prefentation to the council. A little after he obtained liberty to refide at Kirkaldy, where he continued, with great respect, till the order was published forbidding all presbyterian ministers to live in burghs, and then he removed to Couston. But the true ground of all his trouble was, because the archbishop could not be The council eafy while fo good a man was near him. had little more before them till the parliament rose.

The earl of Loudon died of grief.

The melancholy change that was now made, and the dismal prospect of things for the time to come, made fuch impressions upon many, that they died of grief. Among these was the noble John Earl of Lowdown, late Chancellor of Scotland, who had been a prime instrument in the late work of reformation. He was a nobleman of great and peculiar endowments, joined with remarkable refolution and courage, and, next to the marquis of Argyle, was the object of the spite and rage of the present managers. He often intreated his excellent lady to pray that he might never fee the next fession of parliament; and accordingly he was taken away from the evil to come on the 15th of March, and was honourably interred among his ancestors.

The bidown. Burnet, P. 142.

Soon after this archbishop Sharp, and the other three Shops come who had been consecrated at London, came down to Scotland all in one coach. Leighton told Dr. Burnet, that he believed they were weary of him, for he was very weary of them. But, finding they were to be received at Edinburgh with some pomp, he left them at Morpeth, and came to Edinburgh a few days before them.

> They got to Berwick on the 8th of April; were met upon the road to Edinburgh by a considerable number of noblemen, gentlemen and others, and received at their coming in with all pomp and folemnity, which was not a little pleasing to Sharp. The lord chancellor, with all the nobility and privy counsellors then at Edin-on Sal confec Holy-re confec bits.

> read a Burnet and de ing pr month

Chap.

burgh,

city, Burnet

truly e

the po

mility

The

Thi liamen ceremo the ear geffes, feats i in stat rank; Edinbu had al to the ing th They who d them levate purfecellor hand, other

Th least f in opp ed; a ed up too. w this c

made

burgh,

burgh, went out together, with the magistracy of the 1662. city, and brought the bishops in as in triumph. Dr. Burnet was a spectator, and says, That though he was Ibid. truly episcopal, yet he thought there was something in the pomp of that entry that did not look like the humiliar that become their sunstion mility that became their function.

The Commissioner Middletoun came to Holy-rood-house Consecration Sabbath, May the 4th; and the 7th was fixed for the ed. consecration of the rest of the bishops in the church of Holy-rood-house. The two archbishops, who were the consecrators, went to the church in their pontifical habits. The primate made use of the English forms, and read all from the book: But it is remarkable, as bishop p. 143, Burnet observes, that they were not ordained first priests and deacons. Three of the bishops nominated, not being present, were consecrated at St. Andrews in the month of June following.

. 4.

nt of

e re-

yet

ami-

om-

only

re-

nber

to

Mr.

fter

on-hed

hs,

of

be icil

he

de

A-

ite

u-

e-

e-

1-

of

nt

of

m

)-

C

This ceremony made way for their admission into par- Admitted liament, May the 8th, which was performed with great into par-Six members of parliament, two noblemen, liament. ceremony. the earls of Kelly and Weems, two barons, and two burgelles, were fent to invite them to come and take their leats in the house. From the Nether-bow they went up The two archbishops in the midst of the first rank; the gentlemen, magistrates and town-council of Edinburgh mixed in with the rest of the bishops, who had all their black gowns and robes. When they came to the house a speech was made to them, the act restoring them read, and the house adjourned for that time. They were all invited to dine with the commissioner, who did them the honour to walk down the street with Six macers went first with their maces ethem on foot. levated. Next three gentlemen-ushers, and then the purse-bearer uncovered. The commissioner and chancellor came next, with two noblemen upon their righthand, and the archbishops upon their left. other noblemen and members of parliament invited made up the rest of the cavalcade.

Thus prelacy was restored in triumph; but without the Remarks, least shadow of the church's consent or authority, nay, in opposition to many ecclesiastical acts, as yet unrepealed; and therefore it was no wonder though many looked upon them as intruders. Besides, the managers knew too well that they durst not run the hazard of having this change made in any considerable meeting of the mini-

fera

1662. Sters of Scotland: And therefore prelates and prelacy were introduced entirely by the supremacy. And upon this footing the parliament gave their confent to, and Settled episcopacy in their second session; the proceedings of which I am now briefly to relate, when I have observed, that, May the 7th, the commissioner in council declared, that it is his majesty's royal will and pleafure, that the earl of Tweeddale's restraint be taken off. But then he and others must be taught, by his eight months imprisonment and confinement, how dangerous it would be to speak according to their conscience, and in any thing to contradict the measures of the court.

The parliament had been adjourned to March; but it The parliament fat being resolved that the bishops should sit in the house, down. and matters not being as yet concerted for their confecration, it was deferred till that should be over. Accordingly, on the 8th of May, the parliament fat down: and if ever iniquity was established by law, it was remarkably fo in this fession, as appears by their following acts. The very first which passed, was, Act for the restitustoring e- tion and re-establishment of the ancient government of the piscopacy, church by archbishops and bishops; which begins thus;

Forasmuch as the ordering and disposal of the exter-' nal government and policy of the church doth prof perly belong unto his majesty, as an inherent right of the crown, by virtue of his royal prerogative and fupremacy in causes ecclesiastical' --- So that this act Remarks. was founded entirely upon the king's Supremacy. The bishops were already set up by his majesty's fole authority, and therefore it was very fit that they should lean entirely upon that foundation. By this act the king was made the only fountain of church-power, and that exclusive of Christ the only HEAD of the church, of whom there is not the least mention. And the reader may judge, whether any could, with a fafe conscience, take the oath of allegiance, or rather supremacy, formerly mentioned, who was persuaded that there was no visible head of the church upon earth, or submit to prelacy, as thus established, especially when we consider the exorbitant power that was put into the hands of bishops; For by this act they were 'restored to the exercife of their episcopal function, precedence in the church, power of ordination, inflicting of censures, and all other acts of church-discipline, which they are to perev ev 4 vi

Char

4 for

as

s cle

6 fh OWI anot fore

1

6 fa

per/ form into kin ly,

> the way leag lay Th

blif

cle lar it 1 pri his sati

cle tho tru of

ar

tro fho for to ch

4n

form

form with advice and affiftance of fuch of the clergy 1662. as they shall find to be of known loyalty and prudence. --- And, farther, it is hereby declared, That, whatever shall be determined by his majesty, with the advice of the archbishops and bishops, and such of the clergy as shall be nominated by his majesty, in the external government and policy of the church (the fame confisting with the standing laws of the kingdom) 's shall be valid and effectual.'—Bishop Burnet himself p. 143. owns, that this was plainly the fetting episcopacy on another bottom than it had been ever on in Scotland before this time.'

lacy

pon

and

ngs

ler-

ncil

lea-

off.

ght

ous

and it it

ule,

ife-

Acn;

rk-

ing

tu-

the 18;

er-

ro-

t of

fu-

act

he

ho-

ean

ing

hat

of

ier

ce, er-

no

6.

er

01-

r-

h, 0.

r-

m

Their 2d act was for the preservation of his majesty's All for person, authority and government; in which it was de-preserving clared to be treason for subjects, upon pretence of reformation, or any other pretence whatfoever, to enter into leagues and covenants, or to take up arms against the king, or those commissioned by him; and, consequently, passive obedience and non-resistance were hereby established; and, had this been observed in all time coming, the REVOLUTION had never taken place. It was likeways declared, That the national covenant and folemn league and covenant were unlawful oaths, and that there lay no obligation on the subjects from these oaths. Thus they assumed the pope's power in dispensing with And, to compleat all, they repealed all acts, ecclehaltical and civil, approving the covenant, particularly the acts of the affembly at Glafgow 1638. In short, it was declared, That, if any should speak, write, preach, print, or pray any thing tending to stir up a dislike of his majesty's prerogative and supremacy in causes ecclefialtical, or the government by archbishops and bithops now fettled, should be incapable of any publick truft. All this plainly shews that prelacy in the church of Scotland was the road to tyranny in the state.

By their 3d act, all ministers entred since 1649. were 3d act. ordered to take presentations from their respective patrons, and receive collation or admillion from the bishops; so that they must either look upon all they had formerly done in the ministry to be invalid, and submit to prelacy, contrary to their consciences, or quit their charges. And, the better to transmit prelacy to posterity,

By their 4th act, all masters of colleges, who refus- 4th act, ed to submit to episcopacy, and take the oath of allegiance, were ordered to be turned out. Ministers were ordered

things, as they shall be required by the bishops, under very severe penalties. In a word, all private meetings, or conventicles in houses, under pretence of religion, were, by this act, discharged, and none were to preach, keep school, or be pedagogues to persons of quality, without the bishop's licence. Remarks upon these arbitrary laws, and open restraints upon conscience, are, I suppose, needless. But, to compleat the work,

By their 5th act, all persons in publick trust were ordained to subscribe the following DECLARATION.

The decla-

-do fincerely affirm and declare, that I judge it unlawful to subjects, upon pretext of reformation, or any other pretext whatfomever, to enter into leagues and covenants, or to take up arms against the king, or those commissioned by him; and that all those gatherings, convocations, petitions, proteflations, and erecting or keeping of council-tables, that were used in the beginning, and for the carrying on of the late troubles, were unlawful and feditious; And, particularly, that these oaths, whereof the one was commonly called the national covenant (as it was ' fworn and explained in the year 1638. and thereafter) and the other, intitled, A folemn league and covenant, were and are, in themselves, unlawful oaths, and were taken by and imposed upon the subjects of this kingdom against the fundamental laws and liberties of the fame; and that there lieth no obligation upon me, or any of the subjects, from the said oaths, or either of them, to endeavour any change or alteration of the government, either in church or state, as it is now established by the laws of the kingdom.'

By this all are obliged to condemn the covenants, and declare that they laid no obligation upon any. Surely nothing could be so unaccountable, as to declare that they who had taken these sacred oaths were loosed from their obligation. Here perjury of the deepest dye was made the necessary qualification of all in publick office. In short, the whole work of reformation, since the year 1638. was thereby renounced, defensive arms declared unlawful, conscience enslaved, and tyran-ny allowed to reign triumphant.

All of in_ Prelacy being thus settled towards the end of the selminity. Sion, they at length passed an act of indemnity and oblivion, V as the not e intere prefb ed ex demn Camp been parlia farth king' bles, year pitch 900 1 liame they 8 d. The pend tione were the v fpeak were thoug hand fhall farth

Chap.

ford a difgra when lord i jefty

were

be na

who benef

T

on,

all

er

n,

h, e,

C

C

1-

nt-

t

t

n

on, which had been granted in England almost as soon 1662. as the king came home; but his ancient kingdom must not enjoy such a favour, till the prelates had their main interests secured, tho' it is well known that the Scots presbyterians crowned him, fought for him, and suffered exceedingly under the usurpation. So from this in- Exceptidemnity were excepted John Hume, William Dundas, the ons. Campbels of Ardkinglas and Ormfay, and all who had been declared fugitives by the committees of estates and parliament fince the year 1660. This indemnity was farther clogged by an act of fines for the relief of the Att of king's good subjects who had suffered in the late trou-fines. bles, as they generally termed the reformation fince the year 1638. The parliament appointed a committee for pitching upon the persons to be fined, and the sums each were to pay. Accordingly they made up a lift of about 900 noblemen, gentlemen, and others, which the parliament readily approved of, together with the fums they were to pay, which made in all 1,017,353 L. 6 s. 8 d. Scots money, which is above 84,779 L. Sterling. The curious reader may fee the lift in Mr. Wodrow's appendix, N. 33. It was then observed, that some men- Remarks, tioned in the lift were dead, or had never a being, some were fucking infants, and others were fublifted out of the weekly collections for the poor. And, generally speaking, these fines were imposed upon those who were reckoned the foundest presbyterians. Middletoun thought to have got this money, but it fell into other hands. How this act of fines was put in execution we shall see afterwards. In short, this act of favour was farther clogged by the balloting act, by which 12 persons Balloting were to be secluded from places of trust, who were to alt. be named in parliament by balloting. This was a contrivance of Middletoun's to turn out Lauderdale, Crawford and Sir Robert Murray: But it oceasioned his own difgrace; for the king was so displeased thereat, that when the duke of Richmond, Sir George MacKenzie, and Burnet, lord Tarbat, delivered the balloting act to him, his ma- P. 151, jelty faid, that their last actings were like madmen, or men 152. that were perpetually drunk.

This parliament issued a proclamation for keeping the 29th of May, with certification, that those ministers who would not observe it should be deprived of their benefices; whereupon many, without being either summoned or heard, were deprived of their stipends for that

1662. year, and the non-observance of it became the occasion of great trouble to many faith ful ministers.

The obserThis thanksgiving was observed with the usual sovation of lemnies in cities and burghs: But the town of Linkith.
the 29th gow signalised itself by a most horrid contempt of the
of May.

covenants and work of reformation, whereof I shall give both a just relation of fact, and a display of the spirit of the party.

When divine service was ended, the streets were filled with bonefires. The magistrates invited the earl of Linlithgow to honour them with his presence, which Then coming to the market-place, where was a table covered with confections, they were met by the curate, who having prayed and fung a pfalm, they eat a few of the confections, and threw the rest among the people, the fountain all that time running French and Spanish wines .- At the cross was erected an arch standing upon four pillars: On the one fide of the arch was erected a statue in form of an old hag, having the covenant in her hands, with this inscription, A GLO-RIOUS REFORMATION. On the other fide was another statue in a Whigmuir's habit, having the remonstrance in his hand, with this inscription, NO ASSO-CIATION WITH MALIGNANTS. On the top of the arch was placed a statue representing the devil as an angel of light, with this label at his mouth, STAND TO THE CAUSE.

The arch was beautifully adorned with several draughts of rocks, reels, and kirk-stools upon the pillar beneath the covenant: And upon the pillar beneath the remonstrance were drawn brechams, cogs and spoons. Within the arch was drawn a committee of estates, with this inscription, ACT FOR DELIVERING UP THE KING. On the left hand was drawn a commission of the kirk, with this inscription, ACT OF THE WEST KIRK. In the middle of the arch hung a table with this litany,

From covenanters with uplifted hands,
From remonstrators with affociate bands,
From fuch committees as govern'd this nation,
From kirk commissions, and their protestation, Good LORD deliver us.

Upon the back of the arch was drawn the picture of rebellion, in a religious habit, with eyes turned up, and other

REX WR acts of ing the perfective of the week to

Cha

othe

Th

Fly

Things where fult u

who ticula Ramj
seque left a

men eteration ments are in the find gand ji floun, and his before firm could

on

fo-

th-

the

ive rit

fil-

arl

ch

vas

by

ney

ng

nch

rch

rch

the 0-

in-

on-

0-

of

an

ND

hts

ath

1011-

th-

his

HE

the ST

ith

e of

and

her

other fanatick gestures, in its right hand holding LEX 1662 REX, and in his left THE CAUSES OF GOD'S WRATH. There lay, round about, acts of parliament, acts of committees of estates, acts of assemblies, &c. during these 22 years of rebellion. Above her was this fuperfeription, REBELLION IS AS THE SIN OF At drinking the king's health' WITCHCRAFT. fire was put to the frame, and fuddenly all was confumed to ashes, and then appeared a table supported by two angels, bearing this infcription.

Great Britain's monarch on this day was born, And to his kingdoms happily restor'd: The queen's arriv'd, the mitre now is worn, Let us rejoice, this day is from the Lord. Fly hence, all traitors who did mar our peace, Fly hence, schismaticks who our church did rent. Fly, covenanting, remonstrating race; Let us rejoice that God this day hath fent.

Then the magistrates accompanied the earl of Linlithgow to the palace, where was a great bonfire, and where were drunk the healths of the king, queen, &c.

From the whole, I question whether such a bold infult upon religious matters is to be parallelled; for some who were chiefly concerned in this mock pagentry, particularly Robert Milne, one of the magistrates, and Mr. Ramfay the minister, had taken the covenants, and, conlequently, now publickly avowed their perjury, and left a blot upon their memory.

During this fession of parliament the reverend Mr. Mr. Robert Baillie, who was justly reckoned among the great Robert men of his time, died of grief, on account of the fad al- Baillie terations then made; he faithfully declared his fenti- died of ments as to prelacy, in two letters to Lauderdale, which are inferted by Mr. Wodrow.

Soon after the act reltoring episcopacy was passed, Prosecutithe following ministers, viz. Messis. John Carstairs at on of se-Glasgow, James Nasmith at Hamilton, Matthew Mowat veral miand James Rowat at Kilmarnock, Alexander Blair at Gal-niflers. Stoun, James Veitih at Mauchlin, William Adair at Air, and William Fullerton at St. Quivox, were all summoned before the parliament, for a terror to others who stood firm to their principles; and, because no indictment could be found against them, they were brought before the lords of the articles, and, as a telt of their loyalty, R were 1662, were required to take and subscribe the oath of allegiance and supremacy. They declared their willingness to comply, upon condition of being allowed to explain the oath, and accordingly they all, except Mr. Adair, fub. scribed their sense of it in a paper which they present. ed to the house on the 28th of May. When the chancellor received the paper, and observed that Mr. Adair had not figned it, he ordered him to withdraw by himfelf, and fix of these ministers (for Mr. Fullerton was dismissed) were closely confined, 3 and 3 in one room, to the great prejudice of their health, without allowing any to have access to them. After some weeks they were Sentenced to be banished, when the commissioner and council should think fit to order their transportation: However, Mr. Carstairs having fallen dangerously ill, he was permitted to go to Dalkeith for his health, and thereby escaped. And the managers, being apprehensive of the confequences of fuch rigour, thought proper to allow them some more liberty, and suffer their friends to see them, and some of them to go out of town for their health.

Proceed-· ing against lord Lorn. p. 148, 149.

At this time the parliament's proceeding against the lord Lorn, the eldest son of the late marquis of Argyll, was most unprecedented and severe; for, having wrote to the lord Deffus complaining of the practices of his enemies, in endeavouring to pre-possess the king against him by lies, this letter was intercepted, carried into parliament, and complained of as leafing-making. Accordingly the parliament defired the king to fend him down to be tried upon it. Though his majesty thought the letter indifcreetly wrote, he could not fee any thing in itthat was criminal; yet, in compliance with fo zealous a parliament, Lorn was fent down upon his parole: But the king wrote politively to Middletoun not to proceed to the execution of any fentence that might pass upon him, tils lordship came down to Edinburgh, July 17th, and was charged to appear, that very afternoon, at the bar of the house. After a handfom speech he was committed close prisoner in the eastle; and on the 26th of August received sentence of death. Burnet fays, He was certainly born to be the fignalist instance in this age of the rigour, or rather of the mockery, of justice. However, as the time of his execution was left to the king's appointment, we shall find afterwards a remission granted him. 08:

and (of the Mr Tohn . prive

Chap

hop; were if the put to tembe W ons i ftorin

been 2000 ejecto by w hard Dr. (coun and | throu

See a

affair

T met, repai they othe auth cases fortl Tue/ St.

Dun

berd

Qrk1

made

On the 3d of September the Campbels of Ardkinglass 1662. and Ormfay were forfeited and declared traitors, for some alledged crimes long ago committed against some some forof the name of Lamont.

Mr. James Hamilton, Mr. George Hutchison, and Mr. John Smith, ministers of Edinburgh, were silenced and deprived by the parliament, for dif obedience to their bihop; and the rest were given to understand, that they were to meet with the same punishment and censure if they did not submit to their ordinary. An end was put to this * fession of parliament on the 9th of September.

P. 4

ance

om-

the

fubent-

lan-

dair

im-

Was

, to

3 a-

rere

un-

WC-

Was

by

the

em

m,

he

yll,

ote

115 nit

to

C-

m ht

ıg

o

is.

17.

at 0

it

•,

e

f

f

While these things were transacting the presbyteri- AR of aons in England were made to feel the fad effects of re-niformity. floring the king without terms; for episcopacy having Calamy. been re-established upon his majesty's return, about 2000 ministers were, upon the 24th of August this year, ejected by the act of uniformity that took place that day, by which they were brought under great and intolerable Many holy and excellent ministers, says hardships. Dr. Calamy, were quickly after laid in goals in many counties in the land, for the heavy crime of preaching and praying. And thus protestants perfecuted protestants through the whole island, when it was a rare thing to fee a papist in the least molested. But to return to the affairs of Scotland.

The next day after the parliament rose the council met, and ordered all parsons, vicars and ministers, to repair to, and attend upon the diocesan meetings, as they shall be appointed by the archbishops and bishops, otherways to be accounted contemners of his majesty's authority, and to incur the censures provided in such cases, and all other meetings of ministers were henceforth to be held as feditious. Accordingly the 2d Tuesday of October was appointed for the dioceles of St. Andrews, Glafgow, Edinburgh, Dunkeld, Brechin and Dumblain, and the 3d Tuesday for those of Galloway, Aberdeen, Murray, Rofs, Caithness, Isles, Argyll and Orkney.

It

N. B. Such was the zeal of this parliament for prelacy, that they made an order for razing the monument that had been erected on the grave of the reverend Mr. Alexander Henderson in the Grey-friers church-yeard, Edinburgh, He was moderator of the general affembly 1638. and of several after assemblies, and died 18th August 1646.

3662. It is plain that no presbyterian ministers could attend or give countenance to these assemblies, without renouncing their principles; and accordingly these meetings were very ill attended, except in the north.

A tour to

In order therefore to put this act in execution, and the west. to confer the greater honour upon the bishops in the western and southern shires, where they were generally difliked, the commissioner and chancellor, with the earls of Morton, Linlithgow and Calender, and the lord Newburgh, made a tour to the west country with great pomp and ceremony, and were regaled in many places thro' which they passed. And, as these entertainments were generally to excess, this was particularly the case at Ayr, where, about the middle of the night, in one of their debauches, the devil's health was drank at the cross. Such were the reformers of this period, and thefe the prompters of prelacy!

Fairfoul's proposal.

On the 26th of September they came to Glasgow, where Fairfoul the archbishop complained to the commissioner, that, notwithstanding the act of parliament, there was not one of the ministers ordained since 1649. had owned him for bishop; that he had only the hatred which attends that office in Scotland, without the power; and that the new made bishops would be mere cyphers, if his grace did not fall upon some more effectual method. The commissioner desired he would make some proposal, with which he would readily comply. Fairfoul moved that the council would agree upon an act and proclamation exprelly banishing all those minilters from their houses, parishes and presbyteries, unless they received collation or admission from the hishop before the 1st of November, assuring the commissioner there would not be ten in his diocese who would not comply.

Drunken Upon this the council met at Glafgow, in the colmeeting at lege fore-hall, on the Ist of October. Bishop Burnet says, Glasgow, That Duke Hamilton told him they were all so drunk P. 154.

that day, that they were not capable of considering any thing that was laid before them, and would hear f of nothing but the executing of the law without any relenting or delay. When the council met the commissioner laid before them the motion made by Fairfoul, and urged the necessity of supporting the bishops brought in by the king and parliament. Duke Hamilton, according to Burnet, as well as Sir James Lockhart of Lees

Ibid.

Chap. Lee, reason refolv cordi had e collati Nove for th and p part (none der t conv

ed th

did 1 T most of m ced t millio mal the 4 Andr Edin ture. befor niste latio to r dioc pero Oc. cour he 1 appe at a ply with of a the ed t geil cou mag

nd

e-

t-

nd

he

ly

İs

Up

q'

re

S, ıe

0,

t,

1-

e e

.

n

t

Lee, Arenuously opposed the motion. However, no 1662. reasoning could have any weight with men who were resolved upon establishing prelacy right or wrong; accordingly the act passed, ordering all the ministers, who had entred fince the year 1649, and would not receive collation or admission from the bishop, before the first of November following, to be deprived of their stipends for the current year, and to remove from their parishes and presbyteries, discharging them from exercising any part of their ministerial office after that time; and that none of their parishioners repair to their fermons, under the pain of being punished as frequenters of private conventicles and meetings. But, as duke Hamilton figned this act, as well as others, it would feem that he did not make that opposition which Burnet represents.

This was the famous act of GLASGOW, whereby the The most part of the west and fouth of Scotland was deprived Glasgo of ministers. However, the managers were soon convin- Ad. ... ced that they had taken a wrong step; for, after the commissioner's return, accounts being daily brought of the dismal confequences of their late proceedings, they met on the 4th of Nopember, and wrote to the archbishops of St. Andrews and Glasgow, to repair, as soon as possible, to Edinburgh, to give their advice at such a critical juncture. However, nothing was concluded in this affair before the 23d of December, when the council gave minilters till the first of February to come and receive collation or admission from the bishops, as above, or else to remove out of their parishes, presbyteries, and the dioceses of St. Andrews and Edinburgh; and ordered all perons to repair constantly to their own parish-churches, Oc. This was the last time that Middletoun sat in the council; for foon after he went up to London, where he suffered no small inconveniencies; and, for ought appears, never returned any more to Scotland,

Besides this general thrust made by the Glasgow act, Proceedat all the ministers who could not in conscience com- ings aply with prelacy, many, both ministers and others, met gainst the ply with prelacy, many, both ministers and others, inch ministers with cruel and unjust usage. Accordingly, on the 16th ministers of September, because several who were persecuted in burgh, the country repaired to Edinburgh, the council order- &c. ed the magistrates of that city to oblige all their burgeffes and inhabitants, every evening, to give an account of their lodgers, under fuch penalties as the said magistrates should inslict. And the same day ordered all

the

1662, the ministers of the town, who would not own the prefent establishment, not only to desist from the exercise of their ministry, but also to remove from the city at Martinmoss next, which was more than the act of parliament authorised. But the council made no scruple to exceed the penalties inflicted by the parliament, and to assume to themselves a paramount power. The ministers submitted, except Mr. Robert Lawrie, called the Nest egg by the common people, who conformed to prelacy, and foon after died under remorfe. Thus were the ministers of Edinburgh turned out, and were succeeded by persons that could in nothing be compared with them.

Att agil and Mr. Wylie.

Mr.

At Glafgow the council, after ordering letters of intercommuning against James Campbel of Ardkinglass, and Mr. Car- James Campbel of Ormsay, passed an act against Mr. Donald Cargil minister of the barony-church at Glasgow, for not observing the 29th of May, and for not obtaining a presentation and collation from the archbishop of Glafgow, declaring his church to be vacant, and ordering him to transport himself, family and effects, before the 1st of November following, to the north side of the river Tay, under the penalty of being imprisoned and profecuted as a feditious person. The reader will observe, that his preaching against the defection and fins of that time was what was then constructed sedition. The like act was passed against Mr. Thomas Wylie minister at Kircudbright, who, with the other brethren of that presbytery, continued preaching, and kept their presbyteries, notwithstanding the act made against all such meetings. But through the interpolition of lady Cochran that sentence was stopt as to Mr. Wylie for two months longer.

On the 6th of November the council commenced a Process against Sir process against Sir James Stuart late provost of Edinburgh, and his fecond fon, for entertaining in their family Mr. James Stuart Hugh MacKail, who, they pretended, had, in a fermon, abused the King and the government in church and state; which, when strictly examined, came to nothing.

So Sir James's fon, whom they had imprisoned, was fet at liberty, but died foon after; and Mr. MacKail went abroad, to accomplish himself by travelling for MacKail fome years, and, upon his return, became the greater object of the prelates malice, as we shall hear.

Froad. The same day the learned, zealous and pious Mr. John Mr. Brown, minister at Wamphray, was ordered to be im-Brown imprison- prisoned for speaking against those who countenanced the the dioce derwent ries of 1 met with ret he c he figned ment wi On th the follo at Ancr John Ca Nasmith John M ander C and Fa them, r cil agai ordered fecured delign v the biff

Chap. 4

On t

was an bove n worthy council only la and in he wou of May in the that, v majest Edinbu he fhor fee his fentend to m foev to p ' and there

Upon fon, o which the for the diocefan affemblies. Great were the hardships he un- 1662. derwent in prison, for he was denied even the necessaries of life; and tho', because of the ill treatment he met with, he was brought almost to the gates of death, ret he could not have the benefit of the free air, until he figned a bond obliging himself to a voluntary banishment without cause.

On the 18th of November the council ordered that Council's the following ministers, viz. Messieurs John Livingstone at aat Ancrum, Samuel Austin, John Neave at Newmills, against John Carstairs, Matthew Mowat, Robert Trail, James mini-Nasmith, Andrew Cant elder, Alexander Cant his son, flers. John Menzies, and George Meldrum at Aberdeen, Alexander Gordon at Inverary, J. Cameron at Kilfennan, and James Gardiner at Saddle, do, upon notice given them, repair to Edinburgh, and appear before the council against the 9th of December next. They likewise ordered Mr. Gilbert Rule and Mr. John Drysdale to be secured; but neither of them was apprehended. The delign whereof was to force them either to comply with the bishops, or be banished their country.

On the 11th of December, for it does not appear there Mr. was any federunt on the 9th, to which the ministers a- Livingbove mentioned were fummoned, the eminent and ftone exworthy Mr. John Livingstone was examined before the council; and though he acknowledged the king as the only lawful, supreme, civil governor over all persons, and in all causes ecclesiastick as well as civil, yet, because he would not promise to keep the anniversary of the 29th of May for the future, nor take the oath of allegiance in the terms in which it was expressed, they ordered Banished that, within two months, he should remove out of his majesty's dominions, and within 48 hours depart from Edinburgh to the north of the Tay, and remain there till he should leave the country, without being permitted to fee his wife and family. Upon receiving this cruel sentence, he said, 'Well, although it be not permitted to me to breathe in my native air, yet, I trust, whatfoever part of the world I go into, I shall not cease to pray for a bleffing to these lands, to his majesty, and the government, and the inferior magistrates thereof, but especially to the land of my nativity." Upon this they told him, that he must either go to prison, or subscribe his acquiescence to the sentence; which last he complied with, and accordingly subscribed. the following bond.

1662. TMr. John Livingstone, late minister of Ancrum. bind and oblige me, that I shall remove myself His bond, forth of his majesty's dominions within the space of eight weeks after the date hereof; and that I shall onot remain within the same hereafter, without licence from his majesty or privy-council, under the pain of death; and that I shall depart from Edinburgh to the onorth fide of Tay, and there remain while my departure; and that my going off from Edinburgh shall be within forty eight hours after the date hereof. Subfcribed at Edinburgh, December the 11th, 1662. JO. LIVINGSTONE.

This Mr. Livingstone was honoured remarkably of His fuccess in the God to be the instrument of the conversion of thouministry. fands. In the year 1630. by his fermon on the Mon-· day after the communion at the Kirk of Shots, from Ezek. xxxvi. 26. about five hundred persons dated their faving change. About two or three years after, such another, and a more plentiful effusion of the spirit attended a fermon of his at a communion at Hollywood in Ireland, where about a thousand were brought home to Christ. And great success attended him in the ordinary course of his ministry. He was one of those who was fent to the king at Breda, and the person who tendered the covenant to his majesty before he landed in Scotland. What to think of the prelates, who could not be eafy till they had got rid of fuch a man as this, must be left to the reader. He went to Holland, where he lived till Holland. August 1672. and then entered into the joy of the Lord. While in Holland he made a Latin version of the old testament, which, though approved by many great men, was never printed. The same day Mr. James Gardiner and Mr. Robert Gardiner Trail were in like manner sentenced to banishment, and Trail for refuling to take the oath of allegiance, and obliged to banished. subscribe each of them a bond as Mr. Livingstone had done, with this difference, that they were to remove in a month; however, the council was pleased to give Mr. Trail a little more time.

On the 16th of December Mr. John Menzies and Mr. Menzies Mr. George Meldrum appeared before the council, and and Mr. declaring their readiness to comply with the present e-Melstablished church-government, fo far as to join in presbytedrum. ries ries an were r order 1 fom th death. of Abe minist fourtee fan fyr politio zies, fo though vernm ling, t to their the bif looke ence : he figr ment, ded th Synods; take i declar took t useful. gainst teft tu many till kir

Chap.

the ch On before remov on his cause withit and I ner, he for Nasm and fr

himse Mr. fenter lf

f

11

e

e

.

n

r

ries and fynods, and to take the outh of allegiance, they 1662. were recommended to the archbishop of St. Andrews in order to their restitution. We shall see how burdenfom this compliance became to Mr. Menzies before his death. Mr. Meldrum was ordained by the presbytery of Aberdeen 1659. but was stopt in the exercise of his ministry by the above mentioned act at Glasgow, about fourteen days before the bishop of Aberdeen's first diocefan fynod, at which the bishop passed a sentence of debosition against him and the learned and pious Mr. Menzies, for not subscribing to the oath of canonical obedience though they offered submission to the present church-government; however, the council, finding them fo far willing, recommended them both to the primate, in order to their being restored. When this was presented to the bishop, he readily promised to obey it, and never spoke to them one word of the oath of canonical obedience: When, in his letter to the bishop of Aberdeen, he fignified that they were willing to own the government, Mr. Meldrum refused to receive it, unless he added this qualification, so far as to join in presbyteries and synods; to which the primate agreed, fince they would take it in no other terms. However, Mr. Meldrum declared his forrow for that submission, though he never took the oath of canonical obedience. He was remarkably useful, with his colleague Mr. Menzies, in Aberdeen, against the quakers and jesuits, till the self-contradictory test turned him out of that city. And after he had, with many faithful ministers, suffered no small persecution till king James's toleration, he was settled at Kilwinning, and from thence translated to Edinburgh, where he filled the chair of divinity with much reputation.

On the 23d of December Mr. John Neave appeared Mr. before the council, and was obliged to fign a bond to Neave; remove out of the nation against the first of February, upon his refusing the oath of allegiance; and for the same cause Mr. John Cameron was ordered to confine himself within the bounds of Lochaber. Mr. James Nasmith and Mr. Samuel Austin were referred to the commissioner, who was to deal with them as he saw proper; but he soon left the country, and it seems he remitted Mr. Nasmith to the council, who ordered him to confine himself within the bounds of the sherissdom of Merse. Mr. Alexander Dunlop minister at Paisley was likeways sentenced to be banished, for the same reason with the 1662. rest, but happened to be overlooked. Mr. Alexander Gordon was prevented, by a violent fever, from being ordered before them. Thus messieurs Livingstone, Trail, Brown, Neave and Gardiner went over to Holland, which, at that time, was the afylum of the banished, merely for refuling the oath of allegiance, though all of them were willing to take it in the fame sense the managers said they had themselves taken it.

CHAP. V.

Of the dismal effects of the ejection of near 400 ministers. Of the acts and proceedings of the council and parliament, the execution of lord Waristoun, and the Sufferings of others during the year 1663.

nisters.

DY the act of Glafgow, spoke of in the preceeding chapter, above a third part of the ministers in Character Scotland were thrust from their charges, amounting to of the e- near 400. And the hardship was the greater, that, generally speaking, they were persons of remarkable grace and eminent gifts, godly and laborious, a great many of them learned and able ministers, all of them singularly dear to their people, and most of them had suffered under the usurpation for their loyalty to the king, and refuling the tender; fo that all the presbyterians in Scotland suffered in a most sensible part, by being deprived of them, especially as those who were intruded into their charges were men of a quite different character.

Bishop Burnet says, that the prejudices of the people incumbents who were put in the places of the ejected preachers, who were generally very mean and despicable P. 158. in all respects; that they were the worst preachers he ever heard; were ignorant to a reproach, and many of them openly vicious; they were a difgrace to their facred functions, and were indeed the dreg and refuse of the northern parts; those of them who rose above contempt or scandal were men of such violent tempers, that they were as much hated as the others were despised.

Character of the in- against episcopacy was out of measure increased by the truders.

The peonot hear them.

It is easy then to perceive how dismal the circumple would stances of presbyterians were at that time, when so many places, especially in the west and south, were left destitute; for the most part in the north country conformed. They could not in conscience hear the new incumbents,

Chap. called doing broke reform ledgn batio nister quali in the a rig in, t batio

> A in m coul mini they WOT nun feve and orig mac mad

comp

to efp pro cip to fw the mi hea

la

in

W

CO

·in

called by the country people curates, because, in so 1663? doing, they would have countenanced those who had broken the covenant, and overturned the whole work of reformation: This would have been a virtual acknowledgment of the authority of the prelates, and an approbation of that wicked act by which their own lawful ministers were ejected. Besides, these curates had not the qualifications of ministers, for they were neither found in the faith, nor moral in their practice; neither had they a right to officiate in the places where they were thrust in, because, instead of having the consent and approbation of the people, they were imposed upon them by compulsion and violence.

As the people could not hear the new incumbents, Original in many places they had 20 miles to go before they of fieldcould hear fermon; some of them repaired to the older ministers, who were not affected by the act of Glasgow; they who could not reach them frequented the familyworship and exercises of the ejected ministers. And the numbers that came to their houses were so great, that feveral of them were obliged to preach without doors, and at length to go to the open fields. This was the original of field-meetings in Scotland, which afterwards made so great a noise, that, some years after, it was made death by law, first to the minister, and then to the hearers.

P. 4.

ander

eing

rail,

nich,

for

were faid

ers.

ent,

fo-

ng

in

to

e-

ce

y

.

d

f

The ejection of fo many excellent men could not fail to lay the foundation of much distraction and trouble, especially as it was for adhering to their known and professed principles, even to the doctrine, worship, difcipline and government of the church of Scotland, and to those facred covenants which they had frequently fworn and often renewed. This was the cause for which they were obliged to wander, with their numerous families, many of them knew not whither, and that too in the winter-season: But a good and gracious God wonderfully provided for them and theirs, to their own confirmation and amazement.

Scotland was never witness to such a sabbath as the last on which these ministers preached. It had not its parallel, except to the presbyterians in England on the 17th of August the preceeding year; for it was a day of mourning and lamentation, and the beginning of great forrow to the godly through the nation.

Before

1662. Before confidering the acts of council and parliament this year, I observe that in February died Mr. David Mitchell, who was made first bishop of Aberdeen after the restoration, tho' his character did not merit any elevation in the church, and was succeeded by Mr. Alexander Burnet,

This Mr. Mitchell had determined to go to the church of Maryculter, in the presbytery of Aberdeen, and declare the same yacant, but, as I am affured by a worthy minister now at Aberdeen, he died the Saturday night before; fo that the pious and excellent Mr. Leafk. minister of that parish, notwithstanding his non-conformity, possessed his church till the year 1670. either, as my informer fays, through some indulgence of bishop Scougal, or some remarkable restraint he was under. When Mr. Leask was on his death-bed, the episcopal incumbent of Peterculter went to fee him, and asked him what his thoughts were now, To which the holy man replied, I am dying in the faith of what I have held, and am as full of glory as a clay veffel can hold; Then bowed his head and died. There are other two instances of presbyterian ministers in the synod of Aberdeen that kept their parishes notwithstanding the act of ejection, of which I have an account from the fame person, which may be depended upon, viz. that of Mr. Dumbar minifter at Kearn in the presbytery of Alford, who, partly protected by lord Forbes, whose parish-minister he was, and partly by his infignificant benefice of 300 merks, continued many years, till he died, and Mr. Gilbert Clark, minister at New-Deer in the presbytery of Deer, having been chaplain to colonel Keith, afterwards earl marshal, and called king in Buchan, was protected in his church by him till the time of the test, when the earl could not keep himself in any publick office without taking that felf-contradictory oath. Mr. Wodrow has given a large list of the ejected ministers, &c. Appen. No. 87. to which I must refer.

Middle-

When the earl of Middletoun went to London, about the end of the last year, he met with a very cold reception turnedout from his majesty; for the earl of Lauderdale his rival had opened up his unjust proceedings with respect to the act of fines, whereupon his majelty wrote to his privycouncil in Scotland, dated January the 23d, ordering them to iffue out a proclamation for suspending the execution of the faid act till farther orders. The council received

Chap. 5 received fame da next da them, i fair, and mation write 1 fame to receiving he fent he had And th

to be 1

had the

having that M Dur go to the kir ing or Lauder to Lon Middle Laude ments never his p king i nal le to Shi crying for it refuse for th > was c M vern lord confe prela lo m derda

forgiv

and t

5.

nt

id

er

e-

h

.

y

,

teceived this letter on the 12th of February, and the 1663 fame day drew up a proclamation accordingly. next day they received a letter from Middletoun, desiring them, in his majesty's name, to do nothing in that affair, and therefore they stopt the publishing of the proclamation, and recommended to the lord chancellor to write to the commissioner Middletoun to signify the fame to his majelty. The king was fo displeased, upon receiving this information, that, on the 10th of March, he fent another letter to the council requiring the orders he had given in his former to be punctually obeyed. And therefore the chancellor ordered the proclamation to be published at the cross of Edinburgh, for which he had the council's approbation and thanks. Lauderdale, having now got the king's ear, managed his affairs fo well that Middletoun was obliged to refign all his places.

During these things ' Sharp was prevailed with to Sharp's go to court. He promised to the earl of Middletoun's conduct. friends that he would stick firm to him, and lay before Burnet, the king, that his standing or falling must be the stand- P. 200, ing or falling of THE CHURCH. Of this the earl of 201. Lauderdale had advice fent him. Yet when Sharp came to London, and faw that the king was alienated from Middletoun, he resolved to make great submissions to Lauderdale. When he reproached him for his engagements to Middletoun, he denied all, and faid he had never gone farther than what was decent, confidering his post. He also denied that he had wrote to the king in his favour; but the king had given the original letter to lord Lauderdale, who upon that shewed it to Sharp, with which he was fo struck, that he fell a crying in the most abject manner. He begged pardon for it, and faid, What could a company of poor men refule to the earl of Middletoun, who had done so much for them, and had them fo entirely in his power? Lauderdale, upon this, comforted him, and faid he would forgive them all that was past, and would serve them and the CHURCH at another rate than lord Middletoun was capable of doing. So Sharp became wholly his.'

Middletoun after this lived in obscurity, till the go-Middle-vernor's place at Tangier sell vacant by the death of the toun lord Rutherford, when the king was prevailed upon to governor confer that post upon him, as a reward for establishing of Tangerlacy in Scotland. And thus, after he had banished gier. It many worthy and excellent ministers, he was himfelf

663. felf fent to die in a foreign land. He lived in contempt there for a little while; and at last, by a fall, he broke the bone of his right arm, and the broken bone, at another fall down a pair of stairs, pierced his side, and wounded him in fuch a manner, that he first turned stupid, and very quickly died. Mr. Wodrow fays, that, at the time of taking the covenant, fuch was his zeal for it, that, coming from the place where he and feveral more had taken it, he faid to some gentlemen and others about him, 'That this was the pleafantest day ever he had feen, and if ever he should do any thing against that bleffed work he had been engaging in. holding up his right hand, he wished to God that ' might be his death.' Thus fell the great overturner of the reformation in Scotland.

Alterations.

Upon Middletoun's refignation Lauderdale had the management of the Scots affairs committed to him, and came down to Scotland along with the earl of Rothes, who was made the king's commissioner to the ensuing fession of parliament, and the earl of Tweeddale was made president of the council.

Ministers siected.

During these things the council had scarce done of Gallo- with persecuting the west country ministers, before they Dunkeld commenced a new process against a greater number in the fynod of Galloway, to which it is likely they were instigated by the bishop of that diocese, because few or none of them had conformed, or attended on their meetings. Accordingly, on the 24th of February, the council ordered about 26 of them to remove, with their wives, children, feryants and fubstance, from their houfes, and the bounds of their respective presbyteries, by the 24th of March, at the same time prohibiting them to exercise any part of their ministerial office, and to appear on the faid day before the council. Accordingly 9 of them appeared, and declared, that, rather than conform to the present establishment, they were willing to remove; however, the profcution against them was postponed, and all the others, who did not appear, were obliged to leave their churches and habitations, though some of them had been ordained before the year 1649. and consequently were not included in the Glasgow act of ejectment. And about 14 ministers of the diocese of Such were Dunkeld were served in the same manner. the desolations which were then made at the instigation of the prelates!

John ! now V with called byterio under At the postpo none

Chap.

On

An ed to to fup ed in they b for ro much

Th write should keep 1 ing th ment them meeti sters, gious bearts the re latick fociet

Th that t tion i Dumf oppol mous his ej the cu lion.

the w posed

nance

fecuti

On the 3d of March the council appointed one Mr. 1663.

John Wilkie to collect the vacant stipends, which were now very many, and would amount to a considerable sum, with power to distribute them among those whom they called sufferers in the late times; but though the present the sum of the strength of the sum of the

And though, on the 24th of March, they recommend-Faint efed to each of the bishops to use their utmost endeavours forts ato suppress the dreadful growth of popery, yet they act-gainst ed in this matter with a very slack hand; whereas, had they been as zealous for suppressing popery as they were for rooting out of presbytery, they would not have found much difficulty.

. 5.

not

oke

no-

and tu-

at

for ral

0-

eng

in,

er

he

nd

es,

ng

as

ne

ey

in

re

or

t-

n•

ir

u-

by

m

to

g.

an

ng as

re

gh

et

of

re

The same day they defired the lord chancellor to order awrite to Sir James Turner, or any other person he bout prishould judge proper, to take notice of all persons who vate meet keep up private meetings or conventicles, for alienat-ings. ing the hearts of the subjects from the present establishment in church and state, and to give an account of them to the council. These, it seems, were either the meetings for worship in the houses of the ejected ministers, or those among good people for prayer and religious conference: How far these tended to alienate the hearts of the people from his majesty, must be left with the reader: But it is too well known, that men of prelatick principles have ever been against such religious focieties, though they had much of the Lord's countenance and prefence among them, especially in this perfecuting period.

These things considered, it needs not be surprising Opposition that the settlement of the curates did meet with opposi- at Iron-tion in several places. Accordingly, at Irongray near gray and Dumfries, and at Kirkcudbright, the inhabitants openly opposed those that were intruded upon them. The famous Mr. John Welsh having been minister at Irongray, his ejection was most galling to the people; and when the curate found he could not obtain a peaceable admission, he returned upon them with an armed force: But the women there, headed by one Margaret Smith, opposed the party who were guarding the curate, and fair-1663. ly beat them off with stones. A tumult of the like kind happened about the same time at Kirkcudbright.

Commif- Upon this the chancellor wrote to the magistrates of fioners ap- Kirkcudbright to apprehend the persons principally concerned in the riot there, and at the same time gave a commission to the earls of Linlithgow, Galloway and Annandale, the lord Drumlanerk and Sir John Wauchon of Niddery, or any two of them, to repair to these places to examine into the affair, and to apprehend and imprison all whom they should find to have been concerned; and, the more effectually to execute their commission, Linlithgow was ordered to take along with him 100 horse and 200 of the king's guards, to take free quarters in the parish of Irongray, or to raise from the burgh and parish as much money as would amount to half a crown a day for every horseman, and one shilling for every foot foldier, during their stay there, befides the ordinary pay of the officers, and, by force of arms, to suppress all meetings or insurrections of the people, if any should happen.

Several

Those that were found most guilty at Kirkcudbright. imprison- were John lord Kirkeudbright, John Carfan of Sennick, and John Euart late provost there; and about five women, who were all carried prisoners to Edinburgh. There were about 14 other women who were found acceffory, and ordered to be imprisoned till they found bail to appear before the council. One William Arnot was found chiefly concerned at Irongray, and was fent to Edinburgh with the rest; all who visited them in prison were, by order of council, watched lest they should pray with them. Margaret Smith was likeways carried to Edinburgh, and sentenced to be banished: But, when before the managers, she told her tale so simply, that the fentence was not executed. What was done with lord Kirkcudbright I cannot tell: But Carfan, Euart and Arnot were fined to a most immoderate degree. Arnot was ordered to acknowledge his offence two feveral Lord's days at the church of Irongray, and the five women to stand two hours in the pillory at Kirkcudbright, for two feveral market-days, with papers on their foreheads fignifying their fault. And though they had no proof against any particular person at Irongray, yet, because there had been a tumult, the whole party of horse and foot were ordered to take free quarters in the parish, and this besides other oppressions. W.cre

Chap. were t womer rates. ment,

Wh bles o commi Kirkeu to be ministe returne lid rea mission an prin and th he met wards

On t counci for lear viscour for the were r their o every counci

On t the qua to do a people increas

On t Rothes' ment in rer in that of pointed Lauder ther C Rentous

On t the biff finess o on of were the proceedings of the managers, because a few 16632 women in two parishes had put some affronts on the curates. The rest, after a considerable time's imprisonment, were set at liberty.

When these commissioners were in the south the trou-Earlbles of the excellent laird of Earlestoun began. The stoun's commissioners, on the 21st of May, wrote to him from troubles kirkcudbright, requiring that he would order an edict to be served in savour of one Mr. Hay to be admitted minister at Dalry, of which he was patron. Earlestoun returned a very respectful answer, in which he gave solid reasons why he could not comply. But the commissioners, knowing his steddy attachment to presbyterian principles, were resolved to bring him into trouble, and therefore summoned him before the council, where he met with very severe treatment, as we shall afterwards find.

On the 24th of May a petition was presented to the The recouncil from Mr. James MacGill late minister at Largo, firaint on for leave to attend a meeting of the tutors of the late viscount of Oxenford's children, of which he was one; for the reader must observe, that those ministers, who were not reached by the Glasgow act, were confined to their own parishes as prisoners at large, so that, upon every emergency, they were obliged to apply to the council for liberty to come out of their confinement.

On the 2d of June they made a very good act against Ast at the quakers; but the bishops gave the council so much gainst to do against the presbyterian non-conformists, that these quakers, people were suffered to rest in quiet; and they mightily increased during this reign.

1

1

Ô

n

.

c

1

0

.

On the 15th of June were read in council the earl of Additions Rothes's commissions, to be commissioner to the parlia-to the ment in the room of Middletoun, and lord high-treasurer in the room of the earl of Crawford, who resigned that office because he could not sign the declaration appointed by the parliament last year. At the same time Lauderdale took his seat in the council, with his brother Charles, afterwards lord Hattoun, John Hume of Rentoun, and the two archbishops.

On the 18th of June the parliament sat down, when Parliathe bishop of Aberdeen preached before them. The bu-ment satisfies of this session went on according to the directi-down.

on of Lauderdale, and the whole former proceedings in

T

1662, the affair of ballotting was so laid open, as finished Middletoun's disgrace.

The former fessions had left very little for this to do, in favour of the prelates, unless to screen them from the opposition of the country, and lay a foundation for a more open and universal persecution than was ever in Scotland fince the reformation from popery.

Their 2d act.

Thus, by their 2d act, intitled, Act against separation and disobedience to ecclesiastical authority, all non-conform ministers, that shall presume to exercise their office in any manner whatfoever, were to be punished as feditious persons; and all withdrawing from, and not attending upon the worship of God in their own parishchurches, was declared feditious and of dangerous example and consequence; and therefore all who were found guilty, in this respect, were to incur the following penalties, viz. Each nobleman, gentleman and heritor, the fourth part of his yearly revenue; every yeoman, tenant or farmer, the loss of fuch a proportion of his free moveables, after paying his rent, as the council shall think fit, not exceeding a fourth part; and every burgess the loss of his freedom, and the fourth part of his moveables. And the council was authorifed to put this act in execution, to inflict fuch other corporal punishment as they should see proper, and do every other thing that they should see necessary for procuring obedience to this act, which was called The bishop's drag-net.

It is plain this act strikes both at ministers and people, for they who received their ministry from Christ were forbid to discharge the same under severe penalties, unless they renounced their principles, and, in opposition to the dictates of their own conscience, complied with abjured prelacy: The people must hear the intruders; and, in short, an unlimited power was given to the council.

Their 3d act.

By their 3d act all in publick trust were required to fign the declaration appointed last year * against the 11th *p. 126. of November; returns were ordered to be made to the conncil by the 1st of January; and, if persons elected to be councillors and magistrates refuse to sign, they were for ever declared incapable of being magistrates, and of merchandifing. So that, if a party had a-mind to get rid of any conscientious presbyterian who had a good trade, they had no more to do, but to get him chosen

Chap chofer he w

TI confi archo could It Wa God a and their took fyno T

be m

for th

adds.

much

telta ed u with the l read into valid in v cern use > this our 0 the dinb

own

mak

ry g

tent esta died

with ten of C Arn chosen a magistrate or councillor, for they were sure 1663. he would not sign the declaration *.

The 5th act was for establishing a national synod, Their 5th consisting of the archbishops and bishops, deans and act.

archdeans, &c. but then nothing was to be enacted that could not be confirmed by the king or his commissioner.

It was declared that it was necessary, for the honour of God and the good of souls, that there be a national synod; and if so, then the prelates had neither of these before their eyes; for, though it passed at their desire, they took effectual care to prevent the meeting of any such fynod.

. 5.

hed

do,

om

tor

ver

tion

on-

of-

25 tor

sh-

X-

ere

ng

or,

ın,

nis

cil

ry

of

ut

u-

er

et.

0-ift

3,

i-

ed.

1-0

0

h

C

d

y

d

This parliament, fays Mr. Wodrow, ordered a levy to All about be made, if need be, of 20,000 foot and 2000 horse, an army. for the preservation of christendom against the Turks; and adds, that, though it was never made, yet it had been much better employed this way, than in perfecuting protellants, Burnet relates it thus: Another act was look - p. 205. ed upon as a pompous compliment, and so it passed without any opposition. In it they made an offer to the king of an army of 20,000 foot and 2000 horse to be ready upon fummons to march with 40 days provision into any part of his majesty's dominions, to oppose invalions, to suppress infurrections, or for any other cause in which his authority, power or greatness was con-None dreamed, fays the bishop, that ever any ule was to be made of this; yet Lauderdale had his own end in it, to let the king see what use he might make of Scotland, if he should intend to set up arbitra-The rest of the acts of ry government in England. this fession, relating to civil affairs, do not come under our prefent confideration.

On the 24th of June lord Lorn, who was condemned the last session, was set at liberty from the castle of E-dinburgh, and, a sew days after this session rose, a patent came down restoring him to all his grandsather's estate; only, as his sather was much in debt when he died, his lordship was restricted to 15,000 L. Scots a-year till the debts were paid off.

Mean time Sir Archibald Johnston, lord Waristoun, met Account with quite different usage. For having, after the sen- of lord tence of forseiture and death passed against him by the Waristoun.

For refusing to sign the above mentioned declaration John earl of Grawford lost his office of lord treasurer, and Sir James Dundas of Armstown his post of one of the lords of session.

Chap

in a

of hi

proac

confr

exect

fwee

long

lamb

chee

next

after

cloc

of h

of t

nity

freq

Wh

quie

wor

ded

ry !

phy

in .

the

in '

. and

ref

vei

ba,

unt

we

pr

Wa

fri

fai

th.

cr

. 6

.

e:

Du

1663. first session of this parliament, gone abroad to escape the fury of his enemies, even there did their crasty malice reach him.

Apol. re- When at Hamburgh he was seized with a severe illlat. pref ness, during which Dr. Bates, one of king Charles's physicians, gave him poison instead of physick, and then ordered to draw from him sixty ounces of blood, by which he was brought to the gates of death, and so far lost his memory, that he could not remember what he had done or said a quarter of an hour before, and continued in that condition ever after.

Apprehended at Roan.

. 203.

At last, going unadvisedly into France, one Alexander Murray, being dispatched in quest of him, apprehended him at Roan, while engaged in fecret prayer, a duty wherein he greatly delighted. In January he was brought over prisoner and committed to the tower of London, where he continued till the beginning of June, when he was fent down to Edinburgh to be executed. His carriage, during his passage, was truly christian. He landed at Leith on the 8th of June, and was committed to the tolbooth of Edinburgh. From thence be was brought before the parliament on the 8th of July. His nephew, bishop Burnet, says, he was so disordered, both in body and mind, that it was a reproach to any government to proceed against him. When at the bar of the house he discovered such weakness of memory and judgment, that every person almost lamented him, except Sharp and the other bishops, who scandalously and basely triumphed over, and publickly derided him, though it is well known lord Warristoun was once in case to have reasoned before the greatest assembly in Europe, nay, and to have prefided in it.

Sentenced to die.

It feems that many of the members of parliament were inclined to spare his life; for, upon the question, Whether the time, of his execution should be just now fixed or delayed, Lauderdale interposed, upon calling the rolls, and made a most threatning speech for his present execution: Accordingly sentence was pronounced, that he be hanged at the cross of Edinburgh on the 22d of July, and his head placed on the Nether-bow port, beside that of Mr. Guthrie. He received his sentence with such meekness as all were filled with admiration; for then he desired that the best blessings of heaven might be upon his majesty, on the state and church, whatever besel himself, and that God would give his majesty true and faithful counsellors.

Dur:

ape

ma-

ill-esis

hen

by

fo

hat

ind

an-reer,

he

of

ne, ed.

m.

m-

he

ly.

d,

14

ar

y

n,

y

n,

n

1-

t

1,

d

e

t

t

During the whole time of his imprisonment he was 1663. in a most spiritual and tender frame, to the conviction of his very enemies; and the nearer his death ap- His behaproached, the composure of his mind became the more viour. conspicuous. He rested agreeably the night before his execution, and in the morning was full of consolation, fweetly expressing his assurance of being cloathed with a long white robe, and of getting a new fong of the lamb's praise in his mouth before night. He dined with cheerfulness, hoping to fup in heaven, and to drink the next cup fresh and new in his father's kingdom. after he had spent some time in secret, about two o' clock he was taken from prison, attended by several of his friends in mourning, though he himself was full of holy cheerfulness and courage, and in a persect serenity of mind. When going to the scaffold, he said frequently to the people, Your prayers, your prayers? When he was on the scaffold, he said, I intreat you quiet your selves a little, till this dying man deliver his last words among you; and defired they would not be offended at his making use of his paper, to help his memory fo much impaired by long fickness and the malice of physicians; then he read his speech, (which is recorded in Naphtali, and in Mr. Wodrow's appendix) first from the one fide of the scaffold, and then from the other, in which he bewailed his compliance with the usurpers, and declared his adherence to the covenants and work of reformation. After this he prayed with the greatest fervency, and, in a very rapture, beginning thus, Abba, abba, father, father, accept this thy poor sinful fervant coming unto thee through the merits of Jesus Christ, &c. There were no ministers allowed to be with him, but those present observed that God sufficiently made up that He was helped up the ladder by some of his friends in deep mourning, and, as he ascended, he laid, Your prayers, your prayers, I desire your prayers in the name of the Lord. Such was the value he had for that duty. When got to the top of the ladder, he cried with a loud voice, 'I befeech you all, who are the people of God, not to scare at sufferings for the interest of Christ, or stumble at any thing of this kind falling out in these days, but be encouraged to fuffer for him; for I affure you, in the name of the Lord, he will bear your charges.' At last he bid the executioner do his office, and crying out, Q pray, pray! praife.

1663. praise, praise! was turned off, and died almost without any struggle, with his hands lifted up to heaven. He was buried in the Grey-friers church-yeard, and his head was fixed on the Nether-bow belide that of his dear friend Mr. Guthrie. And thus fell the eminently pious and learned lord Waristown; fo that, as the foundation of prelacy was laid in the blood of the noble marquis of Argyll and the worthy Mr. James Guthrie, the building was cemented by the blood of lord Waristoun,

Mr. Wood's Eafe.

A little before the execution of this great man, the council, on the 14th of July, ordered Mr. James Wood, principal of the college of St. Andrews, and minister there, to be summoned before them on the 23d, for contimuing to exercise his office. He was scarcely allowed to fpeak in his own defence, and was sentenced to confine himself within Edinburgh till farther orders. Whereupon he told them, He was forry they had condemned a perfon without hearing, whom they could not charge with the breach of any law.

At the same time the council, at the instigation of the of other bishop of Glasgow, ordered messieurs Alex. Livingstone ministers. late at Biggar, Matthew MacKail at Bothwel, John Guthrie at Tarboltoun, John Blair at Mauchlin, John Schaw at Selkirk, George Johnstoun at Newbottle, John Hardy at Gordon, Archibald Hamilton at Wigtoun, George Wauch at Kirkinner, and Anthony Murray at Kirkbean, ministers, to appear before them on the 23d of July, under the pain of rebellion. Accordingly messieurs Hardy, MacKail and Livingstone appeared, and were confined within the city of Edinburgh till farther orders, and in the mean time discharged from keeping any private conventicles.

> The same day a deputation was appointed to wait upon the commissioner, to take some general course with all the non-conform ministers; and on the 30th of July, meslieurs Matthew Ramsay at old Kirkpatrick, James Walkinshaw at Badernock, Hugh Smith at East-wood, James Hamilton at Eglisham, and James Blair at Cathcart, were ordered to answer for their seditious carriage, i. e. for continuing to preach the gospel under pain of rebellion. Mr. Hardie appearing, and owning that he had preached, the council declared his church vacant, and ordered him, within 14 days, to remove 20 miles from his parish, six miles from any cathedral church, and three miles from any royal burgh, in all time com

Chap. prefent

ordere Earle/ ditious and hi Mr.

for for fined t Cuning the Ta Glafgo dered

For their o (i. e. reside minist ticles, comm the pu milies not to in fix > three thole

they a

He instru liame publi was t parlia the p this v were entire rian 1 must famil mere ple,

in th

the n

be at

ing.

50

out

/as

/as

nd

nd

· C - yll

e-

he

d, er

i-

to ne

e

le

1-

W

e

,

And this was a prelude to the mile aff we shall 16031 presently hear of. On this 30th of July letters were ordered to be directed to fummon Mr. William Gordon of Earlestoun to appear before them for his factious and feditious carriage, i. e. his refuling to hear the curate, and his favouring the ejected ministers.

Mr. MacKail ventured back to Bothwel, and escaped for some time; Mr. Living stone is said to have been confined to his parish till farther orders; messieurs Johnstoun, Cuning hame and Blair were confined to the north-fide of the Tay; Mr. Ramsay was remitted to the archbishop of Glasgow; and Mr. Smith and Mr. Walking haw were ordered to obey the mile act made a few days before.

For, on the 13th of August, the council taking under The Scots their consideration, that several ministers, who by law mile act. (i. e. the laws lately made) have no right to preach or reside in their parishes, do notwithstanding preach, administer the facraments, and keep disorderly conventicles, &c. made an act, and published a proclamation, commanding all fuch ministers, within twenty days after the publication of the fame, to remove themselves, families and substance out of their respective parishes, and not to relide within twenty miles of the same, nor within fix miles of Edinburgh, or any cathedral church, or three miles of any royal burgh. This act extended to those ministers who were ordained before 1649. unless they attended the bishop's courts.

Here we may fee, 1. That the council had neither Remarks. instructions from the king, nor authority from the parliament, to make this act, yea, they agreed to it, and published the proclamation, even though the parliament was then sitting; so that they assumed a power properly parliamentary under their very nose. 2. This shews the perfecuting spirit and temper of the bishops; for this was the first act of council after the two archbishops were members of it, and it is not unlikely that it was entirely owing to them, who could not endure presbyterian ministers in their neighbourhood. 3. Every person mult fee what hardships poor ministers and their small families were put to by this. They were removed, merely for conscience sake, far from their beloved people, who might, and doubtless would have relieved them in their necessities; may, by this they were deprived of the means of educating their children, at least they must be at double charges, and have them removed from under

1663. der their inspection when at school; for the tender mercies of the wicked are cruel!

Alt a-

Ireland, Gr.

The bishops being vexed that any presbyterian minigainst per- sters from Ireland should have shelter in Scotland, and fons from that numbers refused to hear the curates, the council, on the 7th of October, made an act, ordering all persons who should come from Ireland, without sufficient testimonials, either to return within fifteen days, or be imprisoned and treated as seditious persons; and declaring that all persons who withdraw from their parish-churches, after three admonitions given them by the ministers of the respective parishes, shall be proceeded against upon the minister's attestation of his having intimated the names of fuch perfons; and all noblemen, sheriffs, &c. and officers of the army, were required to affift and concur with ministers, in seeing the law, in that case made and provided, duly put in execution. How equitable it was to make ministers witnesses in their own cause, and put the executive power in the hands of the army, must be left with the reader.

Sideferfe died. The parliament rofe. P. 205.

On the 29th of September Sideserse bishop of Orkney died, and on the 9th of October following the parliament was disfolved, which, says bishop Burnet, gave a general fatisfaction to the country, because they were a furious fet of people. We shall hear no more of parliaments for fix years to come. When the fession was ended, several persons of quality went to London, amongst whom was the earl of Rothes, who met with a gracious reception from his majesty, and was made a member of the privy-council of England. But to return to the affairs of Scotland, where things were still growing worse and worse, and the effects of prelacy appearing more and more-difmal.

Soldiers fent to Kirkcudbright, Gc.

On the 13th of October the council gave orders to the earl of Linlithgow to march with a number of foot to Kirkcudbright, which, with the foldiers there already, might make 160 men, to quarter till farther orders; and at the same time commanded Sir Robert Fleming to march one squadron of the life-guards to quarter at Kilmarnock, and another at Paisley.

Fairfoul died.

On the 2d of November archbishop Fairfoul died at Edinburgh, and was interred with great funeral folemnity in the east end of the Abbey-church.

Earlefloun fummoned.

On the 24th of November, the council being informed that the laird of Earlestoun kept conventicles and private mivat again gainit to ani We fl On letter

Chap

pains duly o Th churc a strar plund fectly ed eit was re we fh the bo use to Th the w havin by pa the ftr bishop griev Th of Ga

The o any o The f but th dier e chear into l the la been i mily ' fent to the va longe good

In they diery gainst him, to appear before them the—day of—to answer for his contempt, under the pain of rebellion.

We shall find more concerning him afterwards.

On the same day Linlithgow was ordered to write a Thanks letter of thanks to Sir James Turner, for his care and given Sir pains in seeing the laws concerning church-government James Turner.

daly obeyed, &c.

5)

72

n-

nd

on

ns

ti-

n-

ng

Ir-

ni-

2-

ti-

n,

to

in

n.

eir

of

ley

ia-

a-

d.

gst

us

of

af-

fe

nd

to

ly,

s; ng at

at

ai-

m-

nd

ate

This Sir James, as the author of the memoirs of the His chachurch of Scotland observes, 'was a tool to their minds, rafter. astranger in the country, being an Englishman, bred to p. 164. plunder and rapine in the service of the French, perfectly void of the fear of God or man, and unacquainted either with religion or humanity.' But though he was ready enough to execute his orders with rigour, yet we shall hear afterward that he was obliged to exceed the bounds of his own inclinations to satisfy the bishop of Galloway, who was sierce and cruel, as all apostates use to be.

The council, finding that the body of the people in Forces fent the west and south were most dissatisfied with prelacy, and to the having given the army power to levy the sines appointed west and by parliament, sent a considerable body of sorces, with south, the strictest orders, to oblige all persons to submit to the bishops and their curates, which occasioned the most grievous oppressions and exactions under colour of law.

The process was very short in cases of non-conformity. Thir eximinate accused whom he pleased to Sir James, or assions any of the officers, and frequently to a private centinel. The soldier is judge, no witnesses or proof is required, but the sentence is summarily pronounced, and the soldier executes his own sentence, and with the greater chearfulness, that the money, generally speaking, came into his own pocket; and often the sine exceeded what the law appointed. They behaved just as if they had been in an enemy's country. If a tenant or head of a family was unwilling or unable to pay, the soldiers were sent to quarter upon him till they had destroyed ten times the value of the sine; and, when poor families were no longer able to sustain them, they were spoiled of their goods, which were sold for a trifle.

In these quarterings family-worship was ridiculed, and Their inthey who performed it were treated by the profane sol-silenes. diery as if it had been a conventicle. Multitudes were cruelly

1663. elly beat, and dragged to church or prison with equal violence. And thus hundreds of religious families in the west and fouth were scattered and reduced to extreme necessity, and their landlords obliged either to conceal themselves or leave the country. Now, whether this was not a more proper method for extirpating than establishing of church-government, the reader may judge. If it be faid, that none can account for the extravagances of foldiers; then the more to blame were they who intrusted them with such power, and did not cashier the officers for not restraining them.

However, it must be granted that the blood-thirsty Promoted by the cu- curates had no small share in this oppression; for in most parishes they made a list of their congregations, not for the performance of any part of their ministry, (that was the least of their care) but to expose their non-conforming parishioners to the ravages of the army. After fermon this lift was called over from the pulpit, and all who were absent, except some favourites, were delated to the foldiers; after which no defences could be heard, the fine must either be paid, or their houses quartered upon.

As the churches of the old presbyterian ministers, who were not as yet ejected, were much crouded, the foldiers, when the worship was near over, went armed thereto, and obliged the people to go out one by one, and declare, upon oath, whether they belonged to that congregation; and they who could not do this, though their own parishes were vacant, were immediately fined, and what money they had about them taken from them. If they had none, then their bibles, the mens coats and the womens plaids, were feized by these wretched executioners; so that the soldiers returned laden with spoil; nay, in some places they would enter the churches by force, and interrupt divine worship. One party would stand at one door, a second at another, and a third entred the church, and obliged the people to go all out at one door, and they who would not present-If fwear they belonged to that parish, were risted of all that they had, and fometimes dragged to prison; and after all the poor people were fometimes forced to give it under their hand that they were kindly used.

It would feem that even the council themselves were ashamed of the rigorous proceedings of these military gentlemen; for, on the 24th of November, they issued a proclamation,

Of the fer

Chap.

procla

my to menti

very p

the fa

restric

pains

the pa

time I

Abo

the co would yet fi the p prop gave they fen t becar thefe bert diner the l of th ed th than driv Glen info of th of t miff

to a

lion Billy proclamation, forbidding the officers of the standing ar- 1665 my to exact any of the penalties contained in the forementioned act, except the twenty shillings Scots from every person who absents from his own parish-church on the fabbath-day. But when foldiers are once let loofe, restrictions will not easily tame them.

About the end of the year the council were at much pains to press subscribing of the declaration imposed by the parliament upon all in places of trust*. But it is *p. 126;

time now to go on to,

5)

ual

in ex-

to

her

nan

lay

X.

ere

ot

fty in 15,

y,

eir y.

it,

re

be r-

10

i-

e-

d

14

h

d,

1.

d

.

h

-

y

2 ď

CHAP.

Of the erection and proceedings of the high-commission, and the acts of council, together with the state and sufferings of the presbyterians till the year 1666.

HE king being pleased with the conduct of his 1664. privy-council, relating to the declaration against the covenant, wrote to the chancellor, desiring that they Declaratiwould take all possible pains, that those who had not on present yet subscribed it might be enjoined to do it, and that the places of those who refused might be supplied with proper persons; this they readily complied with, and gave his majesty an account of their diligence; nay, they carried this point so far, that some who were choien to be magistrates were prosecuted for not accepting, because they could not, in conscience, comply with these terms of acceptance; for when John Porter, Gilbert Wylie, John Reid elder, John Gray, Alexander Gardiner, Ninian Holmes, and some others, who were out of the kingdom, were elected to be magstrates, or members of the town-council of Irvine, the privy-council ordered them to be summoned before them, because, rather than subscribe against their conscience, they had refused to accept the charge.

But the chancellor, and some others, were not for Rife of the driving so fast as the prelates would have them, and high-com-Glencairn, in particular, was highly displeased with the mission Wherefore, about the end court. insolence of the primate. of the last year, ' Sharp went up to London to complain of the privy-council, where he faid there was fuch remissiness, and so much popularity appeared on all occations, that unless some more spirit was put in the admimiltration, it would be impossible to preserve the church.

Cha

& the & nej

's in & far

5 16

that nine

mad

late

few fes (

who

crin

fice

at fi

too

pro

Joir

mol

dete

pole

thou

tho

his

find ling

Thi

call

tho cers

as t auth bro

on,

blig

wer

nor of t

legi

gui

ces Itan

of the

That was the word always used, as if there had been a charm in it. He moved that there might be a letter writ giving him the precedence of the lord chancellor, and that the king would grant a special commission to fome persons for executing the laws relating to the Abstract church. Accordingly the king granted a commission 'to the archbishop of St. Andrews, the lord chancellor, commissif the lord treasurer, the archbishop of Glasgow, dake · Hamilton, the marquis of Montrofe, the earls of Argyll, Athole, &c. or any five of them, an archbishop or bishop being one of the number, to call before them, when and where they should appoint, all popish traffickers, " &c. (but papists lived very quietly under this reign) f all obstinate contempers of the discipline of the church all keepers of conventicles—all who preached in private houses, or elsewhere, without licence from the bilbop - all who keep meetings at fasts and the administration of the Lord's supper, not approven by authority--all who speak, preach, write, or print to the scandal and detriment of the present government in church and state — all who do not attend divine worship at their parish-churches, &c. with power to the faid commissioners, or any five of them, with suspension or deposition; and to punish by fining, confining, &c. all who shall be found transgressors, according as they shall judge of their offence, not exceeding the fines and punishments appointed by the parliament and council: (They frequently found pretences to exceed this restriction.) 'Commanding the captains of his majesty's guards, the officers of the army and militia, &c. to fearch for and apprehend all an archbishop or bishop being one, to censure ministers fuch delinquents, and present them before the commissioners, upon warrant from any five of their number's - Ordaining, farther, the lords of the privy-council to direct letters of horning for the payment of the fines appointed by the commissioners, in case de-

Inquents should refuse to appear before them .-And, generally, the commissioners aforesaid are authorised and impowered to do and execute what they shall find necessary for his majesty's service, - And that a business of such importance may take a speedy successful effect, - it is his majesty's pleasure, that this his f commission shall endure to the first of November 1664.

and after, till it be discharged by his majesty, and that the first meeting thereof be at Edinburgh the first Wed- 1664.

f the

nefday of March next to come, and the after meetings in fuch places, and as often as shall be judged necesfary. - Given at Whitehall, January the 16th-

1664.-

een a etter

llor,

n to the

' to

Hor,

inke

gyll, 1 fhop

hen

ers,

ign)

irch

ichrom

and OV-rint ern-

atvith

em, ters

ing,

ors,

exthe

re-

the

the

all

m-

m-vy-

of

le-

10-

all

t a

11-

nis

4.

at 16

This was certainly one of the most infamous courts Remarks. that ever was erected in any protestant nation. In it were nine bishops to thirty five laymen; but the bishops were made necessary members, and four, with any one prelate, were declared to be a quorum, which were too few of fuch a number, though the better for the purpofes of their appointment. After the clause about papists, who were generally overlooked, all that follows is lewelled at the presbyterians. And, belides the ordinary crimes of conventicles and ministers exercising their office, all were exposed to prosecution who keep meetings at fasts and the sacrament of the Lord's supper. These were too serious exercises for the bishops, whose consciences, probably, fmote them, fo that they were afraid of the joint prayers of the Lord's people. Their power was most extensive, They were impowered to hear and determine causes without appeal, could suspend and depole churchmen, fine, confine, and imprison all who should be accounted transgressors; nay, they were authorifed to do and execute what they should find necessary for his majesty's service. And what will not these prelates and necessary for securing themselves and their underlings, if we may judge from their former proceedings? This court was of a heterogeneous nature, and, as one calls it, a hotch-potch-mongrel-monster. Here were bithops and peers, inferior magistrates and military officers, &c. all blended together. Their proceeding was as unaccountable, unjust and cruel, as their power and authority was extravagant and illegal; for persons were brought before them without any information, acculation, witness or accuser; but, being fetched in, were obliged to answer, super inquirendis, to whatever questions were proposed. Lawful defences were neither received nor admitted; and if any offered to propole any thing of that nature, he was required first to take the oath of allegiance or supremacy, the refusal of which was reckoned guilt fufficient. In short, the oppressions and grievances of this detestable court, whereof I shall give a few instances, were, in many things, noways inferior to that 1664. of the Spanish inquisition; mean time it will be proper to mention the most remarkable interveening occurrences.

Sharp

We have feen, that, when Sharp moved for the high. advanced. commission court, he at the same time proposed that himfelf might have the precedence of all the officers of state; which motion the king likeways complied with, and accordingly fent a letter to the privy-council, of the fame date with the high-commission, fignifying his royal pleafure, that the archbishop of St. Andrews should have place, both at his council and all other publick meetings, before the chancellor and all other subjects within the kingdom. This letter came down on the 26th January, and not a little disgusted the nobility, especially Glencairn the chancellor. However, they could not help themselves, nor remonstrate against the sovereign prerogative. Thus was verified what Lauderdale, about three years ago, told Glencairn, that fince he and Middletoun would have bishops, they should have them with a vengeance.

Alteratimong the hisbops.

About this time some changes were made among the bishops; for Mr. Alexander Burnet was translated from Aberdeen to Glasgow in the room of Fairfoul deceased; Mr. Scougal succeeded to the bishoprick of Aberdeen, and was reckoned one of the best of that order, and Mr. Andrew Honnyman was made bishop of Orkney in the room of Sideferfe deceased.

Proceedmgs on fines. P. 127.

On the 16th of February a letter was read in council upon the subject of the act of fines *, requiring them to the aft of issue a new proclamation, commanding such fined perfons as should be charged, in the name of the treasurer, or his deputy, or the advocate, before the first of Augult 1664. to make payment of the first half of the fines against Martinmass next to come, and the other half at or before the term of Candlemas's following. Accordingly, next council day, being the 18th of February, a proclamation was drawn up, approved, and ordered to be published at the cross of Edinburgh, declaring the same to be as sufficient as if it had been published at all the head-barghs of the kingdom.

Notwithstanding the payment was postponed some time longer; for the king fent another letter to the council, dated the 26th of July 1664. requiring such as should be charged betwixt that and the last day of August, to pay their first moiety at or before the 11th of December next, and the fecond at or before the 2d of March, and a proclamation was published in the terms of the letter.

What

What bly th spoils 3d of Septe counc closed lift fp of fuc ed up the o

and p

had b

On

Chap

they ' gers viz. a it be fubje his fa stribu would be fir > this 1 be fer thefe Scotl TI were exalt teria gethe tion bear 23d Edin ty, b they chan name

of an

A the I marra . 6.

per

ces.

gh-

im-

te;

ac-

me

ea-

ce,

ore

m.

t a

the

es,

lus

go,

ive

he

m

d;

en,

lr.

he

cil

to 74

er,

lu-

es at

d-

2

to

he ıll

10

n-

ld

ta

er

d

r. 12 What was the reason of this delay is not known, possi- 1664. bly the courtiers were not agreed about dividing the spoils. But what is delayed is not forgiven; for, on the ad of November, the king's letter, dated the 17th of September, with a warrant inclosed, was read in the council, who issued a proclamation in terms of the inclosed warrant, commanding all those mentioned in the lift specified in the warrant, or the heirs and executors of fuch as were dead, to pay the respective sums imposed upon them, the one half at or before Candlemass, and the other at or before Whitfunday 1665. under the pains and penalties mentioned in the act of parliament.

One would imagine that they who were thus fined Remarks, had been guilty of some very notorious crimes, whereas they were chargeable with nothing but what the managers themselves and the whole nation were guilty of, viz. a necessary subjection to the usurpers. And though it be alledged in the warrant, that many of the king's subjects suffered greatly for their loyalty to the king and his father, yet it is plain, that, had these fines been distributed among fuch sufferers, the presbyterian ministers would have had no fmall share, and many who were fined must have been exempted. Besides, how could persons. be fined without ever being brought to any trial? But this was a period where little justice or equity was to be feen. We shall afterwards hear with what severity these fines were exacted, though the west and south of Scotland were already sufficiently drained by the army.

This was a time of trouble, the faithful of the land All awere born down like a torrent, and the vilest men were gainst priexalted; and therefore, in fuch a time as this, presby- meetings. terian ministers, and others, used frequently to meet together for prayer in private houses: But, at the instigation of the bishops and their underlings, who could not bear the prayers of God's people, the council, upon the 23d of February, made an act, ordering the magistrates of Edinburgh to cause search be made concerning the keeping of any private meetings and conventicles, within the city, by the ministers deprived by the Glasgow act, whom they call late ministers; and that they acquaint the lord chancellor with what they discover, and the persons names, that order may be taken about the same.

And, as a farther proof of their vigilance this way, upon An athe 1st of March they passed another act, whereby, after game narrating ' that they had confidered feveral accusations flour. exhi-

366s. exhibited against Mr. William Gordon of Earlestoun, for keeping of private meetings and conventicles, contrary to the laws and acts of parliament, with his own judicial confession that he had been at three several conventicles, where Mr. Gabriel Semple, a deposed minister, did preach, viz. one in Corfack wood, and the other two in the wood of Airds, at all which there were great numbers of people; and that he did hear Mr. Robert Pa. ton, a deposed minister, expound a text of scripture, and perform other acts of worship in his mother's house; and that Mr. Thomas Thomson, another deposed " minister, did lecture in his own house to his family on a fabbath-day; and that, being required to enact him-· felf to abstain from all such meetings in time coming, and to live peaceably and orderly conform to law, he refused to do the same. They did therefore order the faid Mr. William Gordon of Earlestoun to be banished, and to depart forth of the kingdom within a month-and not return under pain of death, and that he enact himself to live peaceably and orderly during the faid month, under the pain of ten thousand or otherways to enter his person in prison.' What times must these be, when a worthy gentleman had fuch an act made against him for hearing presbyteridied.

Mr. Wood

an ministers.

Some time in the month of March died the learned and fingularly pious Mr. James Wood late principal of the college of St. Andrews. Sharp thought proper to visit him once or twice upon his death-bed, and then industriously spread a report, that Mr. Wood, being within the views of eternity, expressed himself concerning church-government as a matter of indifferency, and that he was as much for episcopasy as presbytery. Mr. Wood, coming to the knowledge thereof, thought himself His dying bound in conscience to leave a publick testimony against testimony. this false and malicious slander. In his testimony, dated the 2d of March 1664. he declared, that 'he looked ordering his visible church; that he never had the least change of thought about the necessity of it, nor of the · necessity of the use of it; and he declared before God and the world, that he still so accounted of it--and that, if he was to live, he would account it his glory to feal this word of his testimony with his blood; and of

upon the presbyterian government as the ordinance of God, appointed by Jesus Christ for governing and this his declaration he took God, angels and men for his witnesses.

Willia his br W fo net fumm

Chap

with public when ing fo him t But commi

teltim

that t was h the li fome them malic upon > absco ed as chanc the co Wood that ! once, presb ny it cated bled appe when ces (can l their A

Mi

T

unto men. chur their fome red.

teffin

witnesses.' And subscribed the same in presence of Mr. 1664. William Tullidaff minister of Dumbog, Mr. John Carstairs his brother-in-law, and Mr. John Pitcairn the writer.

When this testimony was published the archbishop was calumnics. fo nettled, that he ordered those who were present to be summoned before the high-commission, alledging, and even publickly reporting, that the notary told to himself, that, when Mr. Wood was exceeding weak, Mr. Carstairs, having formed the above paper, had imposed upon, and got him to subscribe it.

6.

OF

ry

al

S,

h,

ne

n-

4.

e,

's

d

2

n-

g,

V,

er

h-

nd

und

m.

1-

ed

of

to

n-

1

ng.

at

od,

elf

ıst. it-

ed

of.

nd

aft.

he

bc

nd

ry .

of

nis

es.

But when Mr. Tullidaff and the notary came before the Discovercommission, they both declared that Mr. Wood dictated the ed. testimony (of which I have given an exact copy) and that the notary wrote it at his defire, and attested it, as was his office to do. Thus the primate once more got the lie to his face. After these two had continued for some time in prison, the bishop was forced to dismiss them without any farther punishment, having shewn his malice, and been proved a spreader of lying calumnies upon those more righteous than himself.

Mr. Carstairs, for some reasons, thought proper to Mr. abscond; only, that his conduct might not be construct- Cared as the effect of disloyalty, he wrote a letter to the stairs's chancellor, wherein he excused his not appearing before conduct. the commission; and declared that none persuaded Mr. Wood to emit this teltimony, that it was his own motion, that he dictated every word of it, and that, more than once, in conversation, he declared his sentiments, as to presbyterian government, more fully than in the testimony itlelf; fo that, upon the whole, Mr. Wood was vindieated from the false aspersions of the primate.

The HIGH-COMMISSION court should have affem- Proceedbled on the first Wednesday of March, but it does not ings of appear that they fat down before the 15th of April, the highwhen they entered upon business. Tho' very few instances of the iniquous proceedings of this dismal court can be given, yet these following are sufficient to shew their unprecedented cruelty and injustice.

Among their first proceedings they ordered Mr. Wood's teltimony to be burnt, and some ministers accessory thereunto to be put in prison, and the west country gentlemen, who refused to give full conformity to the then church-government, to be fined in the fourth part of their yearly income. But it is proper to give the reader some particular instances of the hardships several endured.

Mr.

Х

Mr. James Hamilton of Aikenhead, near Glasgow, was fummoned before them, though nothing could be alledg-Hardships ed against him, only that he did not hear Mr. Hay curate of Aiken- in Catheart; a man most rigorous in exacting his stipend, particularly upon Aikenhead's tenants, which occasioned a squabble between the curate and some of them, from whom Mr. Blair the presbyterism minister of the place protected him, and got him, in a folemn manner, to promise not to delate any of them. But Hay, contrary to his promise, went to Glasgow and accused them to the bishop, who immediately ordered Sir James Turner, with a party of foldiers, to go and apprehend fome of them, whereof, and of the curate's cruelty and prevaled to that congregation.

When this gentleman was brought before the commisfion, he was fined in a fourth part of his yearly rent; and, when he afterwards was before them, he frankly owned that he neither did nor would hear that incumbent; and gave the court such a distinct account of Hay's conduct, that the archbishop of Glasgow promised he should be removed: But the commission urging this gentleman to engage to fubmit to and hear his fuccessor, he told them, he thought it foon enough to engage, when he had heard him, and knew who he was; and peremptorily refused all fuch previous contracts; whereupon he was fined in another fourth part of his yearly rent, and remitted to the archbishop of Glasgow to give him satisfaction as to his rication, Aikenhead being informed, he would never after own him as a minister, especially as he was never culloyal and peaceable behaviour.

But the bishop, it seems, not being satisfied, he was again brought before this court, and was charged with keeping up the fession-book of Catheart, and the utensils of the church, refusing to assist the minister in session when called, and fuffering some of his family to absent from the church. As to the first part of his accusation, he offered to declare his innocence upon oath. when the earl of Rothes required him to testify his loyalty, by taking the oath appointed by law, upon his refusing the supremacy in the oath, and to become surety for all his tenants, that they should attend the ordinances and live regularly, the court fined him in 300 %. fterling, and ordered him to prison till he paid it, and then to transport himself to the town of Inverness, being above 100 miles from his own house, and to remain there there half o relt, a giftrat and a not lo and a time v the to and re payme

Chap.

And appear in the man w ing th lay. becauf injurio a fuffic But th what ! rupted the oar fome) immed dered be ma shire o Reflec canno minati posed purely The Smith notice own h conven his ex ted; f by arc My lo whom lord,

5.

as

g-

te

i-

C-

n,

ne

r,

1-

m j*-

16

a-

er

1-

F-

d,

b d t,

6-

1.

n,

d

1+ ie

is 18

h

19

n

ıt

1, ıţ,

y

1.

d

4

there under confinement during pleasure. He paid the 1664. half of his fine, and his estate was sequestrated for the rest, and in three weeks he presented himself to the magistrates of Inverness, where he continued about a year and a half, till his confinement was taken off. He was not long at home till he was confined to his own house, and a mile round it, for fix months: And, before that time was elapsed, he was one day carried in prisoner to the tolbooth of Edinburgh, without any reason assigned, and remained there nineteen weeks; at length, by the payment of 80 guineas, he got out.

Another instance of the wicked severity of this court Mr. appears in the case of Mr. John Porterfield of Douchall Porterin the shire of Renfrew. The reason why this gentle-field's man was brought before the commission, was his not hear- case. ing the curate of Kilmacomb, where his house and estate lay. He told them that he could not hear the curate, because he had abused him with groundless, base and injurious reproaches. The court looking upon this as a sufficient defence, admitted him to bring in evidences: But the very first witness attesting all, nay, more than what had been alledged, the court immediately interrupted the examination, and required Porterfield to take the oath of allegiance; which he refusing to do, without some falvo as to the clause of supremacy therein, they immediately fined him in the fum of 500 l. sterling, ordered his estate to be sequestrated till payment should be made, and confined him to the town of Elgin in the thire of Moray, where he continued about four years. Reflections upon this are needless, as here the reader cannot but see the height of injustice, because the examination of witnesses was interrupted, a fine was impoled for mere non-conformity, and a gentleman banished purely for conscience sake.

Their proceedings against the reverend Mr. Alexander Mr. Smith minister at Cowend may also be well worth our Smith's notice. His great crime was preaching privately in his case. own house, or, in the stile of that time, for keeping of conventicles. When this worthy person was before them, his examination was in a very odd manner interrupted; for, in answering several questions proposed to him by archbishop Sharp, he calling him only Sir, and not My lord, the earl of Rathes asked him if he knew to whom he was speaking. Mr. Smith replied, Yes, my lord, I do; I speak to Mr. James Sharp, once a fellow minister

Chaj

nor

look

heri

and thin

high

crim

four

the

burg

ing

com

ther

only ty c

the

thei

rati

to thre

gou

tho

ma 5

wh Ha

oth

fro

we tha

the

du

to

. 1

6 1 W

eno

he Si

ar

W

fte

ta 63

4664. minister with myself. This was reckoned such a very high crime, that, without any further inquiry into the affair of conventicles, Mr. Smith was ordered to be laid in irons, and cast into that nasty place commonly called The thieves hole, where he had for his company a poor furious distracted man. And, to use the words of the

p. 157. author of the memoirs of the church of Scotland, 'here the godly minister lay some days in danger of being destroyed by the poor demented wretch, who every moment threatned to kill him; but God, who stopped the mouths of Daniel's lions, restrained him, so as he hurt him not.' He continued for some time in that dismal place, until the kindness and respect of the people of Edinburgh made the bishops ashamed of this unaccountable step. He was therefore removed to another room in the prison, where, through cold and other hardships, he fell fick, and was in danger of his life; yet fuch was their cruelty, that he could not get a few days liberty from prison. The author of the foresaid memoirs Ibid. fays, That these merciful judges hearing, that, by the grate of the thieves hole which looked to the street, he was relieved and comforted by the charity and compassion of many good people in the city, they were threatned for relieving him; and at length he was carried to a place called The iron-house, in the same prison, where none could come near him. After fome time, by another sentence, he was banished to one of the isles of

Shetland, where he continued many years in a wretched starving condition; for this is the coldest and wildest of all the Scots islands; and, as the author just now mentioned adds, here his only relief, as to this world, was the fociety of other bleffed fufferers who were banished thither for the same good cause.

Cafe of Some at

The treatment of some of the parishioners of Ancrum is not to be omitted. When their excellent minister Ancrum. Mr. Livingstone was taken from them, one Mr. James Seot, who was under the fentence of excommunication, was presented to that charge. On the day fixed for his fettlement several people did meet together to oppose it; and particularly a country woman, defiring to speak with him in order to diffuade him from intruding himfelf upon a reclaiming people, pulled him by the cloke, intreating him to hear her a little; whereupon he turned and beat her with his staff. This provoked two or three boys to throw a few stones, which neither touched him

nor

very the laid lled

. 6.

oor the ere ing ery

ped he hat

ple ac. her

rdyet lys

11.5 he

et, m.

re rn,

by of

ed of

n-

23 1-

77 er es

1, 13

le k -

d

nor any of his company. However, it was prefently 1664. looked upon as a treasonable tumult, and therefore the sheriff and justices of the peace in that bounds fined and imprisoned some of these people, which, one would think, might atone for a crime of this nature. But the high-commission, not thinking that sufficient, ordered those criminals to be brought before them. Accordingly the four boys and this woman, with two brothers of hers of the name of Turnbul, were brought prisoners to Edinburgh. The four boys confessed, that upon Scot's beating the woman they had thrown each his stone. The commissioner told them that hanging was too good for However, the fentence of this merciless court only was, that they should be scourged through the city of Edinburgh, burnt in the face with a hot iron, and then fold as flaves to Barbadoes. The boys endured their punishment like men and christians, to the admiration of multitudes. The two brothers were banished to Virginia, and the woman was ordered to be whip'd through the town of Jedburgh. Burnet Bishop of Glasgow, when applied to that the might be spared lest she should be with child, mildly answered, That he would make them claw the itch out of her shoulders.

Several presbyterian ministers were before them, of Other prowhom very imperfect accounts can be given. Mr. George ceedings. Hamilton, afterwards minister at Edinburgh, and some other ministers of Fife, were summoned, and discharged from administring the Lord's supper, for the bishops were galled at the vast numbers that came to partake of that ordinance. Sir William Cuningham of Cuningham-head was before Sir, W2them when they fat at Glafgow; he was obliged to pro-liam duce his chaplain Mr. John Hattridge, who, beginning ham. to fay, 'My lords, I hope none of you will take it ill that I declare before you some things that are preffures to my conscience, Sharp interrupted him, saying, What have we to do, Sir, with the pressures of your conscience? Go to the door presently. And, as he was removing, he called to him, without ever confulting the court, Sir, you are discharged to preach without a licence from the archbishop of Glasgow; and so he was no more called.

In one of their meetings at Edinburgh they fined Mr. Walter Pringle of Greenknows in some hundred pounds sterling, for no other reason but because he would not take the oath of allegiance without an explication.

I shall 1664. Mr.Black's cafe.

P. 157.

I shall conclude this account with the case of Mr. Black, mentioned by the author of the memoirs. This gentleman was charged by the commission with having been at a private meeting for prayer; whether any minister was with them or not was not alledged, neither had they any thing else to accuse him of, nor could they prove his being at that meeting, only they would have him confess, which he declined. Then they required he would declare upon oath who was at the faid meeting. And because he said this was against his conscience, and that he would not be an accuser of innocent men, he was fentenced to be scourged through the town, which he cheerfully fuffered.

From these few instances of the proceedings of this inquisition-court the reader may form a judgment of their cruelty, and of the fad state of the kingdom under the power of such oppressors. It is no wonder tho' the records of their proceedings are not to be found in the council-register for a long time. The council ordained letters of horning for the payment of all fines imposed or to be imposed by this judicature. And about the end of this year Sharp got the powers of the highcommission court, termed likeways the commission for church or ecclesiastical affairs, enlarged, by which they had authority to banish, stigmatize, and inslict all kinds of punishment, except death; but it is plain they took upon them all these powers before they received them.

It is now time to give some account of the more remarkable things that occurred during these proceedings of the high-commission.

AR against charity to Suffering ministers.

On the 29th of April the council published an act forbidding to give charity, or make any contributions in favour of fuffering ministers and others, who, they pretended, were disaffected to the government: So that now the poor sufferers were not only discharged to meet together, and pray to God in the time of their distress, but all subjects were expresly forbid to relieve them in their extremities.

Proclamation against Buch anan's de

At the same time the earl of Argyll and the archbishop of Glasgow were added to the council, and took the oaths and their places at that board; and a proclamation was published against that known and celebrated treatise of jure, &c. the great ornament of Scotland, Mr. George Buchanan, de jure regni apud Scotos, ordering all persons to deliver what copies they had of the translation of that treatile to t proi been to th and . 0

Cha

char he e Iters and he v gent an 1 they fay, thei Sha Twe She difp folu that be c take occ ed t ed 1 Sha on 11111 cho Goo mat but had to a mai that as t

the

for

Sha

and

Sha

the

to

r.

13

r

y

e ie

d

13

e

,

n

to the clerk of the council, under the penalty of being 1664. profecuted as seditious persons. But whether it had not been more proper to have ordered an answer to be made to the folid arguments in that dialogue against tyranny and arbitrary government, must be left with the reader.

On the 30th of May the earl of Glencairn, lord high The chanchancellor of Scotland, departed this life. At his death cellor's he earnestly defired to be attended by presbyterian mini-death. sters, especially by Mr. Douglass, who was then in Fife; and before Mr. Ker could be fetched from Haddingtoun he was speechless. Several other of the noblemen and gentlemen, however hard they were upon the presbyterian ministers in their life, wanted their fellowship when they came to die; which made the duke of York once fay, that he believed all Scotimen, be what they would in their life, were presbyterians at their death. Upon this Sharp, as bishop Burnet informs us, fearing lest the earl of p. 2084 Tweeddale should be advanced to that high post, wrote to Sheldon archbishop of Canterbury, signifying that upon the disposal of the seals the very being of the church did so abfolutly depend, that he begged he would press the king that he (Sharp) might be called up before that post should be disposed of. The king bid Sheldon assure him he should take special care of that matter, and that there was no occasion for his coming up. However, Sharp ventured to go up, and was coldly received. The king asked him if he had not received the archbishop's letter, Sharp faid he had, but he would chuse rather to venture on his majesty's displeasure, than to see the CHURCH ruined——and that fo much depended upon the good choice of a chancellor, that he could not answer it to God and the church, if he did not bestir himself in that matter: He knew many spake of himself for that post; but he was so far from that thought, that if his majesty had any fuch intention, he would rather chuse to be fent p. 209. to a plantation: He wished that he might be a churchman in heart, but not in habit, who should be raised to that trust. These, says Burnet, were his very words, as the king reported them. However, he went from the king to Sheldon, and pressed him to move the king for himself. Sheldon did so; but his majesty suspecting Sharp to have fet him on, asked if that was not the case; and when Sheldon owned it, the king told him what Sharp had faid to himself. However, Sheldon prayed the king, that whatever he thought of the man, he would confider

1664. confider the ARCHBISHOP and the CHURCH, which the king affured him he would do. Sheldon told Sharp, that he saw the motion for himself did not take, so he must think of somewhat else. Sharp then proposed that the seals might be put into the hands of the earl of Rothes, till his majesty should pitch upon a proper person, which was readily complied with. However, the great seal was, on the 1st of August, put into the archbishop's hands, till a chancellor should be named, and, about the latter end of the year Rothes was made keep. er of it. His lordship was likeways lord high treasurer, general of the forces by fea and land, and extraordinary lord of the fession, commander of his majesty's life-guards, and principal collector of the fines. The archbishop of Glasgow was made an extraordinary lord of fession. But as these things don't so immediately concern this history, I shall pass them over, for, notwithstanding the alteration of hands, there was little or no change of measures.

Argyll's on down.

On the 8th of June the head of the noble marquis of bead tak- Argyll was taken down from the tolbooth early in the morning, and conveyed to his body, and his fon continued in favour till his appearance for the protestant religion at the duke of York's parliament.

Dreghorn.

Meffrs.

Crook-

Mank and

Bruce.

Parish of On the 23d of June the council sent a party of soldiers to force the parish of Dreghorn to submit to the episcopal minister thrust in upon them, with power to oblige every one to pay twenty pence for every time he should be absent from the church *. The same day the council ordered Mr. John Grookshank and Mr. Michael Bruce, whom they called pretended ministers, to be summoned, at the cross of Edinburgh and pier of Leith, to appear before them on the 27th of July next, with power to the officers of the army to apprehend them. These worthy ministers were come from Ireland, and all their crime was preaching the gospel. This is the first time the council use the phrase, pretended ministers. It does not appear that either of them answered the summons, or were apprehended. We shall afterwards hear more of them.

On the 24th of July, that useful, faithful and zealous thrie e- fervant of Christ, Mr. William Guthrie minister at Fenjected.

wick W known Christ. noblem Standin mony

Chap.

But, Mr. Gi were at Kail at Gabrie Mr. W

No ! Mr. G faid to ceived have fe Guthri ple, ap ed by l er. I destroye them t was a for his that m ed twi thy he reader this w facrific

> The ral of Guthr the pr form t he car and, Mr. C churc occasi ntmo to use

to in came

The method of dragooning people to church was no less unknown to the Scots, than difagreeable to the spirit of christianity, until Short and the other prelates introduced it.

wick was ejected. He wrote that excellent little treatife, *664! known by the name of The trial of a faving interest in Christ. This worthy person, by the interest of several noblemen, had been for sometime overlooked, notwithstanding his plainness and faithfulness in bearing testimony for Christ at that time *.

But, when Burnet was made archbishop of Glasgow, Ministers Mr. Guthrie and the few remaining ministers about him attacked. were attacked; as Mr. Livingstone at Biggar, Mr. Mac-Kail at Bothwel, Mr. Gabriel Maxwell at Dundonald, Mr. Gabriel Cuningham at Dunlop, Mr. Andrew Hutcheson and Mr. William Castlelaw at Stewartoun.

No intercession could prevail with the bishop to spare The earl of Glencairn, in particular, is faid to have spoken to the bishop in his behalf, and received a short answer, which made his lordship say, We have set up these men, and they will trample upon us. Mr. Guthrie, finding that he must part with his beloved people, appointed Wednesday the 20th of July to be observed by him and them as a day of folemn fasting and prayer. He preached from Hof. xiii. 9. O Ifrael, thou hast destroyed thyself; from which he faithfully laid before them theirs and the land's fins; and indeed the place was a Bochim. The Lord's day following being fixed for his ejectment, he intimated that fermon would begin that morning betwixt four and five, and then he preached twice to them from the close of his last text, In me is thy help, and dismissed the people before nine. reader may eafily conjecture what a forrowful parting But, though they would have been ready to facrifice their all for his fake, he would not permit them to use the least violence.

The archbishop of Glasgow, after dealing with several of his curates to intimate his sentence against Mr. Guthrie, at last prevailed upon the curate of Calder, by the promise, as was said, of five pounds sterling, to perform this service. Accordingly, on the day appointed, he came with a party of 12 soldiers to Fenwick church, and, by commission from the archbishop, discharged Mr. Guthrie to preach any more there, and declared the church vacant. The holy good man behaved, on this occasion, like himself, and treated the soldiers with the utmost civility: But when the curate went to the church to intimate the bishops sentence from the pulpit, none came to hear him except the party he brought with him; 1664. a few children, who created him some uneasiness, were driven out by the soldiers.

It was reported that Mr. Guthrie, at parting, told the curate he foresaw some evident mark of the Lord's displeasure against him, and exhorted him to prepare for some sudden stroke. Be that as it will, this curate never preached after he lest Ferwick, for in a sew days he died, in great torment, of an iliack passion, or of a violent and dangerous kind of cholick; his wise and children died in about a year after, and none belonging to him were lest. Thus, by the malice of the prelates, this bright and shining light of the west of Scotland was extinguished, and he entered into his master's joy on the 10th of October next year.

P. Walker, P. 173, 174.

This excellent person had been much afflicted with the gravel during his life, which obliged him, contrary to his inclination, to use some diversion. time he was with his cousin Mr. James Guthrie, he happened to be melancholy, which made Mr. James fay, A penny for your thought, consin. Mr. William answer-There is a poor man at the door, give him the penny: Which being done, he proceeded and faid. 'I'll tell you, cousin, what I am not only thinking upon, but am fure of, if I be not under a delusion; and it is this, that the malignants will be your death, and this gravel will be mine; but you will have the advantage of me, for ye will die honourably before many witnesses, with a rope about your neck, and I will die whining upon a pickle straw, and will endure more pain before I rife from your table, than all the pain you will have in your death.' A certain minister observed, that this holy man died a sufferer, for he was deposed by the bishop, but in hope that one day the Lord would deliver Scotland from her thraldom.

Act against Waristoun's Speecb. Such was the inveteracy of the managers, that on the 9th of August the council made an act against selfing or printing of the speech which lord Waristown delivered at his execution, though there was in it nothing either treasonable or seditious. Sir Robert Murray of Cameron was by this act empowered to examine all booksellers and others, in order to find out how the said speech came to be printed, and to commit them to prison, as he should see cause: If any was prosecuted upon this act is not known, but this is certain, the bishops continued to persecute the ministers.

Thus

Th depos which intere ed be not w Accor the p ocels fore v of ful contin ber, 1 tice o large ; cured church bled t

Chap

But proceed Mr. L. Ship be be be be be be but conting provide parish Sharp, procured down ed, ditheir

Mr. L

prom

had be liberty Wylie, the co of the fide w miles

for th

ed to

6:

re

he

's

re

te

ys

3

nd

ıg

5,

as

n

h

1-

ft

ne

25

.

:

11

ıt

s,

el

of

s,

g

1

d

d

n

e

Thus, on the 10th of October, the bishop of Dunkeld 1664. deposed Mr. Andrew Donaldson minister at Dalgety, to which he had been admitted in the year 1644. By the Mr. interest of Charles earl of Dumfermling he was favour- Donalded beyond many of his brethren; and therefore could fon deponot well escape the malice of the prelates at this time. fed. Accordingly, when the earl was called up to London, the primate pushed the bishop of Dunkeld, in whose diocess Dalgety was, to deprive him. The bishop therefore wrote to him to attend the presbyteries under pain of fuspension; which Mr. Donaldson disregarded, and continued at his work till the diocesan meeting in October, when the bishop deposed him, and gave him notice of it in a letter, which Mr. Wodrow has inferted at large; and, that they might play fure game, Sharp procured a party to be fent to eject him, who came to the church on a Lord's day, when the people were affembled to hear him; however, for preventing disturbance, Mr. Donaldson got leave to preach that day also, upon promising afterwards to withdraw.

But when the earl of Dumfermling got notice of these proceedings, he got a warrant from the king restoring Mr. Donladson to Dalgety during his life, which his lordship brought down and shewed to the primate. The archbishop, knowing well how to dissemble, professed a great regard for the earl, and faid, The king must be obeyed; but craved as a favour that the earl would do nothing for three weeks in it, till he considered how to provide for a young man that was just settled in the parish, which his lordship yielded to. Mean while Sharp, by his interest at court in the earl's absence, procured a warrant under the king's hand, and got it down by express, before the three weeks were expired, discharging all ejected ministers from returning to their charges; and thus the mitre tricked the coronet; for though his lordship was vexed, yet he was obliged to fubmit. On the 3d of November William Dobbie a weaver, who had been for some time under confinement, was let at liberty. And the same day the reverend Mr. Thomas Wylie, formerly mentioned *, presented a petition to *p. 134 the council, that they would be pleased, on account of the bad state of his health, to permit him to refide with his family in any place of Lothian, being 50 miles from his former charge. With this the council thought

Ch

fter

roy

the

ling

and

gar

fan

hor

and

and

pla

ma

ver

he

inte oth

he

mu

to

done

his fay,

to k

gain

fait

er,

harv

of b crue

was chie

derd

comn

year

terec

befo

time

the i

and

unde

Febr

T

T

1664. thought proper to comply, upon his giving a new bond for his peaceable behaviour.

The same day, Sir John Nisbet's patent to be king's Sir John advocate was read and recorded in council; the former advocate. advocate, Sir John Fletcher, having been accused of bribery, partiality, and other pieces of mismanagement, and not being able to acquit himself sufficiently, was o. bliged to refign.

Procla-

On the 17th of November the council issued a proclamation of mation, ordering all ministers, who had been ejected fince 1661. to retire from Edinburgh within forty eight hours; and not to refide either there, or in any other place prohibited by act of council 1663. without a proper licence, under the penalty of being imprisoned, and otherways punished as feditious persons. Such were the restraints now laid upon ministers, that they were forbid to pray to God, or get relief from men, or to inspect the education of their children at schools, unless they would fo far own the prelates, as to get a warrant from them. Popish priests and professed papists were entirely at liberty, while some of the king's best subjects durst not refide in Edinburgh, or any royal burgh, for no crime but because they adhered to their principles against pre-

Great

The people of the presbyterian perswasion were every hardships. where harraffed, and the methods mentioned in the last chapter were continued. Every day the foldiers grew more and more infolent at the churches where any old presbyterian ministers ventured to continue. And thro' the west and south of Scotland multitudes of families were dispersed, the soldiers acting much in the same manner there, as the French dragoons did some years after among the protestants of that kingdom. Sir James Turner acted a very severe part wherever he went, tho' I am not able to give particulars.

Mr. Spreul.

On the 18th of December the council made an act against Mr. John Spreul, late town-clerk of Glasgow, for refusing to take the oath of allegiance and supremacy, ordering him to oblige himself, under the pain of death, to depart out of the kingdom by the first of February next, and not to return without licence.

The same day the council granted a licence to the re-Mr. verend Mr. Alexander Moncrief * to come to Edinburgh, Monand to continue there till the 24th instant about his necrief. * p. 100. ceffary affairs; for such were the times, that, let a mini-

fter's

ster's affairs be ever so urgent, he durst not go to any 1664:

royal burgh without licence.

d

s

r

-

t,

•

d-

it

e i-

-

d

ct

y

ıt

t

le

..

ſŧ

w

o'

es

ie f-

es

1-ľ

r-

After this good man had suffered much from one of the heritors of his parish, as is related in The fulfil-P. 182. ling of the scriptures, tho' his name be not mentioned, edit. and had been discharged from his parish, &c. people began to resort to him, and hear him preach in his own samily; wherefore he was obliged to remove from his house, and required to live 20 miles from his charge, and 7 or 8 miles from a bishop's seat, or royal burgh; and after that was constrained to retire to a remote place in the Highlands, where he was in a surprising manner supported, and was singularly useful in the conversion of many.

At length he came with his family to Edinburgh, where he preached for feveral years in private. After he was intercommuned, in the year 1675. his house and many other places about the city were fearched for him, but he was wonderfully kept out of their hands. He was much folicited, when in these hazardous circumstances, to leave the kingdom, and had an ample call to Londonderry in Ireland; but he always declined to leave his native country, and, in his pleasant way, used to fay, that he would suffer where he had sinned, and essay to keep possession of his master's house till he should come again. He left many seals of his ministry, being a most faithful and laborious minister. He was mighty in prayer, and had many remarkable returns. He lived till harvest 1688, and so he may be said to have kept possession of his master's house till he came again.

The year 1665. does not afford so many instances of 1665. cruelty as the former years. The earl of Rothes, who was loaded with places of trust and power, and was the chief manager in Scotland, under the direction of Lauderdale, was scarcely ever so severe as when in the high-

The first general calamity that befel the nation this The year was the war with the Dutch, which the king en. Dutch tered into in the winter. It does not ly so immediately war. before me to speak of the rise of this war. It is by this time pretty well known that his majesty was much under the influence of Lewis XIV. the young king of France, and that it was in concert with him that this war was undertaken. The declaration was dated the 22d of February, but was not published till the 2d of March;

and

Cha

Will

the

thro

fries

fubr

and'

pros

join

difa

zure

to t

the .

the

er li

and coal

flee

Eng

he

tion

ed t bish

ref

mit

and

till

Foh

the

ty (

Mr

no

cei

ed i

Edi

fup

C

7

N

pointing the 7th day of June to be observed as a publick a public fast, which was complied with by all the presbyterian ministers who as yet kept their churches. Mr. James Fergusson, minister at Kilwinning, when intimating this fast to his people, gave a particular account of the crying sins of the time as the causes of the threatned judgments, which he reduced to this one general, the contempt of the gospel, which was discovered by the rough handling of the messengers of Christ, the laying many congregations desolate, contempt of the sabbath and ordinances, and all kinds of profaneness.

The plague. Much about the same time the pestilence broke out in England, which increased in the city and suburbs of London, till eight or ten thousand died in a week. It was observed, in several papers written at this time, that the appearance of a globe of sire was seen above that part of the city where the SOLEMN LEAGUE and COVENANT was burnt. Whether that be true or not, it is certain the plague broke out there, and very sew were lest alive in the street where that open affront had been put upon the OATH of GOD.

It may, perhaps, be thought trifling to observe, with my author, that several remarkable signs did preceed and accompany the pestilence, such as the appearance of a large comet in the end of the last year, and of another in the month of March this year, together with such a violent frost and snow, that there was no plowing from December till the middle of March. How far these things were the prognosticks of severe judgments, I shall leave to the reader's own consideration.

Severities abated.

The raging of the pestilence in England, the Dutch war, and some other occurrences, a little abated the sury of the managers in Scotland, so that some small savours were granted to presbyteriam ministers and gentlemen, and the prelates began to be jealous of some of the noblemen, as not hearty enough in the interests of the church. Thus, on the 3d of May, Walter Pringle of Greenknows, who had been confined in the jail of Elgin, had his confinement enlarged, by obtaining the liberty of the whole town, and a mile round it, during the council's pleafure; and Mr. John Smith minister was permitted to come to Edinburgh for the advice of physicians.

Disturb-

But there happened a little disturbance in the Westkirk of Edinburgh, between the parishioners and Mr.

William

William Gordon their curate; some of them were put in 1665: the thieves hole, and a man and a woman were scourged through the city; and about this time several in Dumfries were imprisoned for not hearing the curates and submitting to prelacy.

Nothing could alter the cruel disposition of the bishops; Country and Sharp, pretending that the Fanaticks, a name of re-disarmed, proach now given to the presbyterians, would rise and join the Dutch against the king, orders were given for disarming the west and south of Scotland. The violent seizure of their arms, which ensued, was a very great loss to the country. But it does not appear that joining the Dutch was so much as thought of by them; howbeit, the presates judged themselves more secure, and at greater liberty to do what they pleased.

The duke of York sailed with the English sleet in May, Sea sight, and, before the Dutch could be ready, alarmed the Rapin. coasts of Holland. In the beginning of June the two sleets engaged, and the Dutch were overthrown by the English. The duke, seeing it was in vain to continue his pursuit, returned to the coasts of England, and after he landed repaired to Whitehall to receive the acclama-tions of the court and city of London.

On the 20th of June the council at Edinburgh publish- A thankfed the king's proclamation for a thanksgiving to be ob-giving. served on the 13th of July, recommending it to the bishops to order the ministers to read the same from their respective pulpits.

ap-

ick

mi-

er-

fast

ng

lg-

n-

gh

ny

or-

in

of

as

he

of

T

ne

in

n

h

d

a

r

2

n

The same day Mr. John Stirling minister was permitted to come to Edinburgh about his necessary affairs, and afterwards allowed to continue there for his health till the 1st of September. And on the 6th of July Mr. John Cameron, who had been confined to Lochaber since the year * 1662. had his confinement changed to the ci-*p. 137. ty of Glasgow, and two miles round.

About this time Mris. Trail, wife of the reverend Mr. Robert Trail, formerly banished *, and who was • p. 136. now in Holland, was imprisoned for sending and receiving letters from her husband, though they contained nothing but what related to their family-affairs.

On the 2d of August a convention of estates met at Conven-Edinburgh, in order to raise money for his majesty to tion of esupport him in his war against the Dutch. Sharp was states. chosen preses; for it seems this was for the honour of Ghap.

Laude

every faid a press i

lie in cline;

few ol

ed to

Lochw

fabbat

to he

them,

them

the de

of the

clefia

mand

had a accou

ver fir

ly on him g

law d

the la

to be ship,

vent

congr

there

his p clude the la

self.

of GI

ly he

fine

wher

ing c upor

gelti

men proc

W

The

1665. the church, that a bishop should be at the head of the conwww vention.

Academigrees.

It may be thought that by this time episcopacy was established in Scotland upon as sure foundations as human laws could go; but care must be taken to perpetuate this to futurity. Accordingly this fummer an order was made, appointing that no academical degrees be conferred upon any who would not take the oath of allegiance and supremacy; so that a great many of the most deferving youths of the nation were excluded from their degrees, and the rifing generation became gradually difposed to take any the most dubious and self-contradictory oaths that were imposed upon them.

It was a great eye-fore to the bishops that some of the ejected ministers continued to preach openly, especially in the shire of Galloway: Wherefore that country was grievously oppressed by Sir James Turner and the soldiers under his command, at their instigation, and several in the parish of Stewartoun in Ayr were fined, and others imprisoned, for hearing a presbyterian minister. Bishop p. 212. Burnet lays, that the whole face of the government looked liker the proceedings of an inquisition than of legal courts, and yet Sharp was never fatisfied; fo lord Rothes and he went up to court the first year of the Dutch war. When they waited first on the king, Sharp put him in mind of what he had faid at his last parting, that, if matters went not well, none was to blame but either Lauderdale or Rothes; and now he came to tell his majesty, that matters were worse than ever; and he must do the earl of Rothes the justice to say, that he had done his part. This exasperated Lauderdale, who, when Rothes and Sharp withdrew, told the king he was now accused to his face, but he would quickly let him fee what a man Sharp was. Accordingly he followed the archbishop home, and told him it was the king's pleasure that he should put the accusation with which he had charged him in writing, and that he mult either go through with it, else he would charge him with leasing-making. All this Lauderdale delivered in such a tone, that the upright prelate fell a trembling and weeping. He protested he meant no harm to him; only was forry that his friends, upon all occasions, were pleading for favour to the fanaticks. Lauderdale told him that would not do; he was not answerable for his friends, except when they acted by directions from him. In short Lauder-

6.

1-

13

1-

14

er

-

ff

ir ſ-

)-

of

.

15

8

n

S

1

d

le

3, ıt II

d

le

,

et

l-

e

h

ſŧ

m h

)-

15

n

s,

Lauderdale carried Sharp to the king, where he retracted 16652 every thing he had said in so gross a manner, that the king said afterwards, that lord Lauderdale was ill-natured, to press it so heavily, and sorce Sharp to give himself the lie in such coarse terms.

The high-commission court was now upon the de- Mr. cline; and tho' many were fummoned before them, yet Peebles few obeyed the summons. However, some were oblig-before ed to appear, particularly Mr. Hugh Peebles minister at mission. Lochwinnoch, in the shire of Renfrew, for preaching one Sabbath night, in his own house, to some people who came to hear him. When this worthy person came before them, he used as-much freedom as might have provoked them to banish, him had not this inquisition-court been on the decline. He told them he did not know what to make of their court; he could reckon it scarce either civil or ecclefiaftic; yet, fince his majesty's commissioner had commanded him, and felf-defence was juris naturalis, he had appeared innocently to defend himfelf, and to give account of plain matter of fact. He told them, that, ever fince he was a minister, he had exercised in his family on fabbath evenings, and the people who lived near him generally came to hear him. He alledged that the law did not militate at all against this, if the reason of the law be considered. The reason of their law behoved to be either to prevent people's leaving the publick worship, which could have no place in this case, or to prevent people's being alienated from the minister of the congregation, which could have no room either, fince there was no minister settled where he lived: And since his preaching to his neighbours, whom he could not exclude from his house, did not thwart with the reason of the law, it could not be faid to thwart with the law itfelf. But all he could fay had no effect, the archbishop of Glasgow was resolved to be rid of him; and accordingly he was ordered to leave the west country, and confine himself to the town of Forfar, near 100 miles from where he then lived and had his estate.

When the high-commission did not answer the persecut-West ing designs of the prelates, other measures were fallen country upon. Accordingly the prelates gave in groundless suggestions and innuendoes against many excellent gentle-ed. men, especially in the west, to such who found means to procure an order from the king to imprison them.

Bishop

7

1664. Bishop Burnet says, ' that his namesake, the archbithop of Glalgow, was fent up to possess the king with the p. 211. apprehensions of a rebellion in the beginning of the Dutch war. He proposed that about twenty of the chief gentlemen of those counties might be secured, and undertook for the peace of the country if they were clapped up. The earls of Argyll, Tweeddale and Kincairdin were cold in all these things.' However, about the beginning of September the following gentlemen, without the least previous notice, were apprehended by a written order from the commissioner, viz. major-general Robert Montgomery Brother to the earl of Eglintoun, Sir William Cuningham of Cuninghamhead, Sir George Maxwell of Nether-Pollock, Sir Hugh Campbell of Cefnock, Sir William Muir of Rowallan, major-general Holburn of Menstrie, Sir George Monro, colonel Robert Halket Brother to Sir James Halket of Pitfirren, Sir James Stewart late provost of Edinburgh, Sir John Chiefley of Carfwell, James Dunlop of that ilk, and William Ralstoun of that ilk. Sir Patrick Hume of Polwart, and others, were also imprisoned about this time. These excellent persons, when brought to Edinburgh, were, without any accufation or reason given, in a most arbitrary manner, imprisoned in the castles of Edinburgh, Stirling and Dumbarton, and other places, where feveral of them lay for many years. This could not but increase the people's hatred of the prelates.

On the 3d of October the council appointed the marquis of Huntley to be educated in the family of archbishop Sharp. We shall afterwards find that this nobleman was created duke of Gordon, and lived in the profession of popery; fo that it would feem the primate took but little care of his education; he had fomething else to mind than fuch a trifle as this.

Proclamntion concerning the fines.

On the same day the council issued a proclamation, ordering all persons who had not paid their fines, according to the act of parliament, to pay them in the manner following, viz. They that live on the fouth of the water of Esk, to pay their first moiety by the first of December, and those on the north fide by the first of February, under the penalties mentioned in the act. It was also published, that all who would take the oath of allegiance, and subscribe the declaration, should be remitted the second moiety. There were some other regulations made on the 23d of November, but none were few t with prod Or cefan paffe iter a fused fever He v befor pread acqu was : this tence

Chap

to ha

plied

byter

the e rest, hope of th Mr. the p char Glaf nods Mit next

V. 4

part

By

depo Geor Glaf appe they Ir fion and whe rian toun 6. bi-

the

the

the

nd

ere

171-

the

th-

a

ne-

un,

rge

ef-

ral Po-

en.

ohn

nd 01-

ne. zh,

oft

Th.

ral afe

ar-

op an

on

out

to

n, ache

of

of

e-

It

of

rere-

ere

to

to have any part of their fines remitted unless they com- 1666. plied with the terms just now mentioned, which no prefbyterian could confiftently do: And as there were but few that paid the first moiety, Sir James Turner was fent with the army to levy the fame by military force, which produced difmal effects, as we shall hear.

On the 11th of October, archbishop Burnet, at the dio. Mr. cesan meeting at Glasgow, got a sentence of deposition Maxwell passed against the reverend Mr. Robert Maxwell, mini-deposed. fter at Munktoun, in the presbytery of Ayr, because he refused to submit to the bishop, and baptized and married several who could not in conscience favour the curates. He was one of the old ministers, who had been settled before 1649. and having been a grave, pious and useful preacher in that place, for almost 25 years, had justly acquired the hearty affections of his people. But there was no continuing among them when the fentences of this period were executed by an armed force. His fentence was intimated to him on Saturday 18th of February; next day he preached his farewel fermon from Ecclef. v. 4, and had a very moving discourse at his forrowful parting with his beloved people.

By this time, many of the old ministers, who had feen Minithe church of Scotland in her glory, were got to their sters, &c. relt, several of whom died in peace, and in the folid in trouble. hopes of a glorious deliverance to this church. Others of them were harraffed by the prelates; for in October Mr. Matthew Ramsay minister at Kilpatrick-wester, in the presbytery of Dumbarton, a person of a most amiable character, was deposed by the bishop in the synod of Glasgow, merely for not attending on the diocesan synods and presbyteries. For the same cause Mr. Robert Mitchel minister at Luss was suspended, in order to be deposed next year; and, on the 14th of that month, George Porterfield and John Graham, late provolts of Glasgow, who had retired to Holland, were summoned to appear before the council, and upon their not appearing they were declared rebels and fugitives.

In the beginning of November Rothes the commiffioner made a tour with a splendid retinue to the west, and returned to Edinburgh about the end of the month, when some more severe acts were made against presbyterian ministers, as had been the consequence of Middletoun's circuit some years before.

Accord.

Ch

" ju s in

s th

6 tl

6 ly

was fro

of

the bill

the

this bec

dif

on

mo

tak

ers

be ftra

for

wh

and

no

ac

lan

cee

civ

ed,

cile

ing

wi

int

ob

1665. Accordingly, on the 7th of December, they made an act against all the presbyterian ministers, extending even All a- to those who had been settled before the year 1649. who gainst mi- had relinquished their ministry, or been deposed by their ordinary, and all fuch as should hereafter relinquish their ministry, or be deposed by their ordinary, commanding them to remove, with their families, 20 miles from their respective parishes, 6 miles from Edinburgh or any cathedral church, and 3 miles from any royal burgh, and not two of them to refide together in any one parish; and all heritors and others were forbid to give them any countenance in their preaching, or in any part of their ministerial office.

Proclamation a-

The same day a proclamation was ordered to be pub. lished and printed against conventicles, forbidding all gainst con-meetings for worship except those authorised by law; and declaring that all found at fuch meetings should be looked upon as feditious persons, and be punished by fining, confining, and other corporal punishments, as the council, or any having his majesty's commission, should think fit; and farther declaring, that all ministers that shall perform any part of the ministerial office at fuch meetings, and all who shall encourage them, shall be liable to the highest pains to be inflicted on seditious persons: And ordering all sheriffs, stewards, magistrates, and other officers, to search for such meetings, and apprehend every person who shall be found at

In the preamble to this proclamation these conventicles are faid to be the ordinary seminaries of separation and rebellion, and in themselves reproachful to the king's government ecclefiastical and civil. That they were separated from the prelates and their curates is certain; but the reader is to judge whether these had not separated from the reformation of the church of Scotland, and given just ground to ministers and people to withdraw from them; and whether it was not the greatest reproach to the king's government to overturn that very reformation, which his majesty and the most of the managers, the primate himself not excepted, had so solemnly sworn to maintain.

Meetings for exersife.

The same day an act passed in favour of the curates, wherein it was declared, 'That his majesty, with advice of his council, by virtue of his fupremacy, allows the bishops to depute such of their curates as they judge

p. 6.

e an

even

who

their ding

heir ca-

and ish;

n a.

ub.

all

w;

by

on,

ini-

fice

fe-

ds,

et-

at

en•

tiv

the

ley

18 ad of

ole

he

r-

he

d,

5,

d-

VS

cy

judge qualified, to conveen for exercise, and to assist 1665.

in discipline, as the bishops shall direct them. But the whole power of ecclesiastical censure is reserved to the bishop, except the parochial rebukes, and he only must suspend, deprive or excommunicate.' This was the form of the prelatical presbyteries, all slowing from the supremacy. They would not call it by the name of a presbytery, and in so far they were right; for the members of it were the creatures and tools of the bishops, as these were of the king. How unlike were these to the regular presbyteries that were formerly in this church! Might it not now be said, How is the gold become dim! How is the most fine gold changed!

The fame day the council granted a commission for discipline, and authorised ministers in each congregation to chuse proper persons for this end; of which more in the next chapter. And, at the same sederunt, taking into consideration, that there were several prisoners in the tolbooth of Edinburgh, who were willing to be transported to Barbadoes, they ordered the magistrates to deliver them up to George Hutcheson merchant for transportation. These were the remains of those who had been imprisoned by the high-commission court; and, considering the hardships they underwent, it was no wonder though they preserved transportation to such a consinement. The next chapter will open a more melancholy scene than any that has yet appeared.

CHAP. VII.

Of the occurrences preceeding the rising at Pentland, of the rising itself, the executions and other consequences of it, together with several other transactions during the year 1666.

WE have seen what cruel and unjust oppressions 1666. the presbyterians endured during the sive preceeding years; how their liberties, both religious and civil, were taken away, their ministers scattered, banished, or imprisoned, and the people exposed to the merciless ravages of the army, and all this for mantaining their religious principles; and yet they bore all Memoirs with surprising patience, hoping that providence would of the interpose for their relief: And therefore, as one justly scotland, observes, if the poor people, by those insupportable p. 159.

1666. violences were made desperate, who can justly reflect upon them, when oppression makes a wife man mad? But the measures pursued this year were such, as if there had been a formed defign to force the people into violent measures.

Commiffiston for discipline.

We have heard how the council granted a commiffion for discipline, in which the established ministers were to make choice of proper persons to assist them in the exercise of discipline; in case of refusal or delay to acquaint the bishop; upon his order to summon them before the brethren of the exercise; and, upon their not appearing, or perfifting in their refusal, to transmit their names to the council, in order to their being profecuted according to their demerit, and as the case re-They well knew that no real presbyterians quired. would so far abandon their principles as to incorporate themselves with the prelates; because that would have been a formal acknowledgment of the hierarchy, which they justly looked upon as contrary to the word of God. And so this was another designed occasion of fuffering to many, who chose that rather than finning.

Sufferings count.

It was common, in this period, first to punish for on this ac- what they reckoned criminal, and then to make laws against what they had already condemned. Accordingly, even before this commission for discipline was granted in the year 1664. several suffered for not assisting the episcopal incumbent, as John Crosbie in Eastercotes in the parish of Cambustang, who was harrasted from place to place. Robert Hamilton in Spittal, in the same parish, was this year profecuted on the same account; William Alexander and William Baird, in Drips of Carmonnock, were fined in 100 L. each; Jasper Touch in the parish of Kilmarnock, and Andrew Taylor joiner and carpenter there, suffered on the same account; nay, it was for refusing compliance with this order, among other things, that the laird of Aikenhead, with some other gentlemen, were confined to Inverness, Elgin of Moray, and other places at a vast distance from their own homes. But it is remarkable, that Mr. John Paterson bishop of Ross wrote to his fon, defiring him to acquiant Sharp, that the west-country gentlemen confined in Elgin, &c. had done more mischief by coming north, than they could have done in their own houses, and begging that they might be recalled, that so they might not spread their infection farther .- So that the fufferings of the persecuted

Chap fecut lacy.

A

ther-Aress 25th hend Mell week fever the r thro 70hm Dun bapt keep tran Kirk Fohn > false ed o 0 the cord the kno fhor

> > A

was

latio

to a

wha

were

and 166 by t was in t and ed mo pur ing

fhir

7.

ect

But

ere 10-

nif-

ers in

to em not

nit

-01

reans

00-ald

hy, ord

of 3.

for

WS

ng-

nt-

ng

in

ace

fh,

am

ck,

of

ter

for gs, en,

her

t it

cos

hat

nad

uld

ney

eir

cr-

ted

fecuted turned to the real prejudice of the cause of pre- 1666. lacy. The interior

As the council's commission for discipline, so the o- Letters ather proclamations emitted with it, brought great di-gainst sestress upon the ejected ministers. Accordingly, on the veral mi-25th of January, the council directed letters for appre-nifters. hending and profecuting the following ministers, viz. Melfrs. John Welsh late at Irongray, for preaching every week in the faid parish and other places, and baptizing several children; Gabriel Sempill late at Kirkpatrick in the muir, for the like grievous crimes, and for riding through the country in difguile with fword and pistols; John Blackader late at Traquair, Robert Archbald late at Dunscoir, and Alexander Peden, all for preaching and baptizing; John Grooksbank for holding conventicles and keeping by him Buchanan de jure regni apud Scotos, and translating the same into English; Samuel Arnot late at Kirkpatrick-Durham, John Douglas, William Reid and John Wilkie, with John Osburn in Keir, who prefumed to act as an officer, in giving notice to the people of what they called unlawful meetings. Though all thefe were disaffected to prelacy, yet none of them, as was falfely alledged in the general charge, had either preached or declared against the king's authority.

On the 1st of February the council gave orders that the excommunicated quakers should be prosecuted according to act of parliament, and that the laws against the papists should be put in execution; but it is well known that quakers and papists still increased. shops were only in earnest to bear down presbyterians.

Accordingly, on the 8th of February, a proclamation Proclawas published against a book intitled An apologetical re- mation alation of the particular sufferings of the faithful ministers apologeand professors of the church of Scotland since August tical re-This book, which was composed in Holland lation. by the reverend Mr. John Brown, formerly banished *, P. 1356 was ordered to be burnt by the hand of the hangman, in the high street of Edinburgh, on the 14th of February, and all persons who had copies of it were commanded to deliver them to the sheriffs of their respective thires, or else be liable to the payment of 2000 L. Scots money. Nevertheless this method did not answer their purpose; for the people were the more eager in seeking after prohibited books. But such was the popish and prelatick way of dealing with books which they Were

182

1666. were not able to answer. How vile it was to prosecute any for having that book before the proclamation was exhibited against it, must be left with the reader; yet, on the same 8th of February, the widow of the reverend Mr. James Guthrie, and her daughter Sophia Guthrie, were brought before the council, for no other reason but for having the faid book, in which Mr. Guthrie is fully vindicated; and, upon their refusing to discover the author, or from whom they had it, they were ordered to be fent to Zetland, where they were to be confined during pleafure, and to be kept prisoners till they should be fent thither. But, next council day, the members, being fensible of the harshness of this sentence upon a petition from these gentlewomen, referred the matter to the commissioner.

The archbishop of Glafgow's conduct.

The ejected ministers, as yet, for the most part, preached only to their own families, and to a few neighbours, who now and then stole into their houses; so that, unless in a few places in the fouth, there were but few fermons preached in the fields. However, the oppressions of the people were on the growing hand; and Mr. Burnet archbishop of Glasgow, being now a member of the privy-council, had no small share in the west country persecution. He was a mighty biggot for episcopacy, and ordained five or fix of his curates publickly after the English pontifical, the better to inure the west of Scotland to these novelties. He likeways grievously oppressed the city of Glasgow, so that some of the greatest episcopalians protested against his incroachments upon the magistrates of that city. He turned out several presbyterian ministers who had been connived at before his accession, such as Mr. William Hamilton minister at Glasford, and others: And his underlings were very affifting to him in his cruelties and oppressions.

Burnet's account, P. 215, 216, 217.

The historian Burnet says, that many of the episcopal clergy of Scotland were much offended at the proceedings of those times, and that he himself observed the deportment of the bishops was, in all points, so different from what became their function, that he had a more than ordinary zeal kindled within him upon it. They were not only furious against all that stood out against them, but were very remiss in all the parts of their function, -Whereupon he took a resolution of drawing up a memorial of the grievances he and the other clergy lay nnder 2 . 4

Chap. under wrote his ac the bi propo comm that. - not b In diers der th two c pleafe for no or ten nant i he an the f very | was fi throw and v was e milie mitie who ' lity, ty? the r count prodi ward foldie of G

TI were this, differ whon take Ther and f ing-m as th

CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 185 Chap .. 7.

7 -

te

as

et,

e-

e,

on

is

er

r-

n-

y

n-

0-

t-

t,

1-

o ut

)-

d

1-

ne

or

0-

re

ys.

10

1-

le

n

1771

1ıd

al

gs

tm

rre

1,

1,

2

Y

under by the ill conduct of the bishops - of this he 1666. wrote out some copies and fent them to all the bishops of his acquaintance. - Whereupon he was called before the bishops, and treated with great severity; for Sharp proposed that he should be summarily deposed and excommunicated, but none of the rest would agree to that. - Let the reader judge whether matters were not bad, when a BISHOP gives such an account.

In the spring, Sir James Turner marched with his fol- Sir diers to the presbyterians in the west, and laid them un- James Turner's der the most grievous oppressions; and any curate, with opprestwo or three of these armed apostles, fined whom they froms. pleased, and made as large exactions as they had a mind for now the gentleman must pay, if his lady, servant or tenants did not attend at the parish church; the tenant must be oppressed, if his landlord withdrew, though he and his family attended ever so closely. The widow, the fatherless, the old and infirm were not spared, the very poor must beg to pay the church fines. The meat was inatched from the mouths of innocent children, and thrown to the dogs; many houses were quartered upon. and when their provision was consumed, the furniture was either fold or burnt; fo that multitudes of poor families were scattered and reduced to the utmost extremities. Who then can be surprised, tho' the bishops, who were formerly hated for their perjury and immorality, were now the aversion of the people for their cruclty? for all this was by their iniltgation. I must refer the reader to Mr. Wodrow's * appendix, and to the ac- vol. I. count given in + Naphtali, where he will find what No. 2. prodigious sums were extorted from the south of Scot + 287, land, and what unheard of cruelties were exercised to- or. wards the poor people. In a few weeks the curates and soldiers levied above 50,000 l. Scots from the two shires of Gallowdy and Dumfries.

The farliamentary fines, of which we have spoken, Parliawere exacted with rigour this year; and, in order to mentary this, the troopers of the king's guard were ordered to fines exdifferent parts of the country, with a lift of those from whom they were to exact such and such sums, and to take free quarters till they had paid the utmost farthing. Then they must go to Edinburgh, report their discharge, and fatisfy the troopers besides. This was called rid-Ridinging-money, and sometimes the riding-money was as much money. as the fine itself to the common fort of people. No ex-

Aa

cufe

Cha

0 ding

dent

Supre

pani

ful f

Lond

chur

tures

fate

that merc

cumi

fcrip

mon

of th

in nir

the

be;

in in

ex:

ty,

ment

iffue

jefui

poin

papil

This

non-c

the n

low

the c

their ed th

prive

to ea

to th

parli

coun

rigor

clesia

0

1666. cufe was sustained, but taking the oath of allegiance and fubscribing the declaration; and they who could neither entertain the troopers, nor pay their fines, were immediately dragged to prison, where they lay a considerable time at the publick charges.

While matters were thus managed the primate repaired to London; and, as the high-commission was diffolved, some other method must be taken to carry on his wicked deligns. Accordingly it was proposed that some more forces should be raised for securing the quiet P. 214. of Scotland. Burnet tells us, that, when the king asked how they should be paid, Sharp very readily said, the money raised by fining was not yet disposed of, so he proposed the applying of it to that use, which was agreed to: and by this means our managers were baulked in their expectations of dividing the spoils among themselves. Burnet goes on, and fays, The blame of all this was laid on Sharp, at which they were out of measure enraged, and charged him with it. He denied it boldly. king published it so openly, that he durst not contradict him. Many, to whom he denied that he knew any thing of the matter, ---- affirmed it to the king, and Lauderdale laid before his majesty several of his letters which he had wrote to the presbyterians after the king knew he was negotiating for episcopacy, --- fo that the king looked on him as one of the worst of men. And yet we will find he was afterwards represented as a faint.

New forces raised.

In consequence of the above resolutions, two regiments of foot, and fix troops of horse were raised. Thomas Dalziel of Binns was made general, and William Drummond, brother to the lord Madertie, lieutenant-gene-These, with the guards and the earl of Linlithgow's regiment, made up about 3000 foot, and eight troops of horse; all were ordered to obey the general, who was a man naturally rude and fierce. This army was to be maintained by the fines collected and to be collected, and the general was to be accountable to the exchequer for every farthing; but, as most of these fines were otherways disposed of before they came into the general's hands, it was found necessary to lay new burdens on the subjects for the support of the army: Accordingly, about the end of the year, a proclamation was issued for calling a convention of estates to raise money for maintaining the foldiers in defence of the kingdom. their fitting was prevented for some time.

On

e and ither

nmerable

re-

dif-

y on

that ilked

the

pro-

to;

their

ves. laid

ged,

t the

dict

ning

dale

h he

v he

ok-

will

egi-

fed.

liam

enc-

צ'עור

s of

was be

ed,

uer

0-al's

on ly,

for

in-

But

On

On the 8th of June the council passed an act forbid- 1666. ding university degrees to be conferred upon any students who would not take the oath of allegiance and Arbitra-supremacy; for ecclesiastical tyranny is generally accom-ry propanied with encroachments on civil liberty.

On the Lord's day, the 2d of September, a most dread- The fire ful fire began in Pudding-Lane behind the monument, of Lon-London, which, within three or four days, confumed 80 don: churches, the city gates, Guildhall, many publick structures, hospitals, schools, libraries, a valt number of stately edifices, 13200 dwelling houses, 400 streets; so that multitudes of people lost their estates, goods and merchandise, and many families, once in flourishing circumstances, were reduced to beggary. From the inscription about the Plinth of the lower pedestal of the monument, it appears that the papists were the authors of this fire; for thus they fay, 'This pillar was fet up in perpetual remembrance of the most dreadful burning of this protestant city, begun and carried on by the treachery and malice of the popish faction, in the beginning of September in the year of our Lord 1666. 'in order to their carrying on their horrid plot for the extirpating the protestant religion and old English liber-'ty, and introducing popery and flavery.' The parliament, being of this persuasion, addressed the king to illue out a proclamation, requiring all popish priests and jeluits to depart the kingdom within a month; and appointed a committee, who received evidence of fome papists, that were seen throwing fire-balls into houses, and of others who had materials for it in their pockets. This fad difaster produced some kind of liberty to the non-conformists about the ruinous metropolis, whereas the managers in Scotland continued to oppress their fel-Accordingly, on the 13th of September, Increachlow subjects. the council wrote to the town of Ayr, fignifying it was ments on the royal their pleasure that provost Guningham should be continu-burghs. ed this year as he was the last, and thus they were deprived of their right of election; nay, letters were fent to each of the royal burghs, ordering them to fend in to the clerk of the council the declaration appointed by parliament, figned by all the members of their towncouncil and magistrates since the last returns were made.

On the 11th of October the council published a most Arigorrigorous proclamation, for procuring obedience to ec-ous proclaclessiastical authority; by which all masters were charged mation.

to

Ch

.

wo

fen

Ba

ho

abo

we fur

fol

wa:

ket

pro

an wit

fuc

pra

Ra

the

ed,

ho

the

the fay

M

Th had

fel

inf

infi tici

of .

 M_a

frie

nag

don

exp

qui ribl

tim

10

to fee that their fervants give obedience to all the acts relating funformity, and keep none in their fervice but sue sedid. All heritors are to see to their tenants edid. All heritors are to fee to their tenants conformit, and abstaining from conventicles, to oblige them to give bond for this effect, and to raise horning against them upon their refusal, &c. This proclamation was in consequence of a letter from the king, at the instigation of Sharp. Now, by all these impositions, exactions and terrible encroachments upon every thing that was dear to men and christians, the spirits of many could not miss being imbittered.

Nevertheless the poor people lay under all these miferies for the space of seven months and upwards, after Sir James Turner marched to the west in the spring, and not only discovered their patience towards God, but gave a greater testimony of their loyalty and submission to the king, than all the fulfom and flattering professions of their enemies.

Occasion of the rif-

Sir James continued to make terrible havock in the west and south, insomuch that the country was almost Pentland. ruined, families were dispersed, and many, both gentlemen and others, were forced to abandon their houses, and wander from place to place among the mosses and mountains, to escape the ravages of the merciless soldiers, without having the least thoughts of resistance, or rifing in arms for their own defence; for that which, in a little time, happened at Pentland, was entirely casual. Thus.

Soldiers

Upon Tuesday the 13th of November, four countrydifarmed men, refreshing themselves in Dalry a small country vilat Dalry lage in Galloway, were informed that three or four foldiers had feized a poor old man, and brought him to his own house, where they were going to strip him naked, and fet him upon a red-hot grid-iron, and using other unheard-of cruelties. Whereupon they immediately repaired to the house, and begged the foldiers to let the poor man alone; but they, instead of complying with this humane defire, attacked the countrymen, who got the better, disarmed the soldiers, and thereby relieved their fellow-sufferer; and lest the other soldiers in the parish, who were about twelve in number, should fall upon them, they were joined that same night by seven or gight acquaintances, and, next morning early, furprifed the party of foldiers, who all laid down their arms, except one who was killed in making relistance. The acts vice ants olige 1g ation inexthat ould mi-after and but llion Sions the most genufes, and folor, , in fual.

tryvilfolhis ked, ther

rethe this the heir rish, pon 1 or pri-

ms, The

The country upon this was alarmed, and being justly 1666. apprehensive of the reprisals which Sir James Turner would make, they resolved to stand upon their own de-SirJames fence the best way they could. Accordingly the laird of Turner Barfcob, and fome other gentlemen in the neighbour- made prihood, joined the countrymen, and, getting together foner. about fifty horse and a few foot, without loss of time went to Dumfries on the 15th of November, where they surprised Sir James, took him prisoner, and disarmed his foldiers, without hurting any of them except one who was wounded. This being done, they went to the market-crofs, and publickly drank the king's health and prosperity to his government. This was the beginning of the infurrection this year, False acand therefore it is false to pretend that it was in concert counts of

with the whigs in England, or the republicans in Holland, this rifing. fuch a correspendence, as my author observes, not being practicable, confidering the circumstances above related. Rapin justly observes, that it may easily be judged that the presbyterians in England would not have been spared, if they could have been proved guilty, confidering how the government flood affected towards them, Nei-Vol. II. ther was this the effect of any previous consultation with P. 233. their ministers, as bishop Burnet intimates; so that he fays, with ut any ground or proof, that Messrs. Sempill, Maxwell, Welsh and Guthrie, were the chief incendiaries. The reader is to judge whether the informations Burnet had from the perfecutors, or those of the sufferers themfelves, are most to be depended upon. Stephen Irvine, one of the magistrates of Dumfries, informed the council, on the 16th of November, of an infurrection by a confiderable number of armed men, particularly that he faw --- Neilson of Corfack, MacLellan of Barscob, Mr. Alexander Robertson a minister's son-MacCartney of Blaiket, and James Callum glover in Dumfries, among them.

This news struck a pannic into the prelates and ma- Proceednagers at Edinburgh, who immediately dispatched an ex-ings of The earl of Rothes had gone for Lon-the counpreis to court. don a day or two before the affair at Dalry; fo that the express reached the king before his lordship, who was quite surprised when his majesty told him of this horrible conspiracy, as the council termed it. At the same time the council wrote to the neighbouring noblemen to exert themselves in maintaining the peace, and to 1666. conour with and support the forces. Next day they ordered general Dalziel, with as many of the forces as could be got together, to march to Glafgow; and from thence to the place where he should find the insurrection come to any head, after they had taken care to fecure the metropolis, and given orders to several of the nobility to contribute their affiltance by coming in with their men and arms. On the 21st they issued a proclamation against the rebels in arms in the west, commanding and charging them to dealt from their rebelli> on, lay down their arms, and furrender their persons to the lieutenant-general, or some other of the king's officers or magistrates, within 24 hours after this publicaon; and discharging all persons from aiding, assisting, refetting, harbouring, or keeping any correspondence > with the rebels, or any of them, under the pain of trea-

fon.

Remarks. This proclamation contained no promise of indemnity: fo that, upon the matter, it was commanding people to come to the scaffold, and requiring them to submit to the severities of the prelates, who were the fountain of all their miseries. Besides, 24 hours after the date of the proclamation was fo short a time, that it would be elapsed before it could reach them in Galloway; fo that it was not possible for them to comply with the terms of it: Bishop Burnet therefore was misinformed, in faying that the general published a proclamation of pardon to all who should in 24 hours time return to

P. 235.

Proceedings of those in arms.

their houses. After those who were in arms had seized Sir James Turner, and were determined to defend themselves, their first care was to increase their numbers, and get all the affiftance they could from their friends: But feveral whom they hoped would have joined them thought it convenient to remain quiet. However, they were joined by colonel Wallace, Mr. John Welsh, Mr. Robertson, and others. When they were got to Ochiltree, Mr. John Guthrie minister at Tarbolton came to them with some from that parish; Mr. Gabriel Sempill preached to them, and here they modelled themselves, chose their own officers, and held their first council of war, where, after prayer, they resolved to march eastward to Edinburgh. When they were got to Douglas, after debating upon that important question, whether they should disperse or continue in arms, it was refolved upon the latter, beman this cauf die : pro caul the the lievi

Cha

Lan Kno ove exp the Ho 6 C

· fi

· d nex

had

the

COU lar a f por wa fon fol

the me nie to ed rea

ha

ler

of

The We dr

OI

lieving that God was able to fave by few as well as by 1666. many; and, if their delign should miscarry, they had this for their comfort, that they had engaged in the cause of religion and liberty, and were not unwilling to die as facrifices to thefe. They also resolved to carry Sir James Turner along with them; and though it was proposed to take away his life, yet they spared him, because it is said they sound, that, notwithstanding all the cruelties he had used, he had received orders from the bishops, and others, for a great deal more than he had done. They also unanimously resolved to renew the covenants.

Accordingly on fabbath morning they marched for Lanerk, to which they came at night. In the way. Knockbreck's two fons, with fome few from Galloway, overtook them, and fignified that no more were to be expected from the fouth; and here their numbers were the largest, being judged to be near three thousand; However, one who was among them fays, ' When we came to Lanerk, I know not if we were much above fifteen hundred horse and foot; several indeed were daily joining us.'

This night they gave intimation that they intended They renext day, being the 26th of November, to renew the newed the covenant at that place. In the morning they were a-covenant larmed with the news that general Dalziel was within a few miles of them; whereupon some were for postponing the renewing of the covenants, but that motion was rejected. And therefore, after they had fent out some parties, and placed proper guards, they began the folemn work. And as they could not, together with the townsmen and the people in the adjacent country, meet all in one place, they separated into two compa-The foot assembled in the high street of Lanerk, to whom Mr. John Guthrie minister at Tarbolton preached a fermon suitable to the occasion. After which he read the covenants, to every article of which, with their hands lifted up to heaven, they engaged with great folemnity and devotion. The horsemen met at the head of the town; Mr. Gabriel Sempill and Mr. John Crook-Shank preached to them. After sermon the covenants were read and fworn, as above. It is likely it was about this time that the principal persons among them drew up and agreed to the following short manifesto, or declaration, for present use, with a view to draw

Chap.

leag

be 1 ' and

we!

and

fam

our refo

' that

nati

And

' mif

Go

' vile

but,

the:

bro

deci

oft

of of

wit

for

be !

" fad

full

con

Th

the n

there

for th

it wa

this 1

wood

with apply

turne

Lane

The

ing n

midn

New

that :

In

W

1666. up a larger one afterwards; neither month nor day is mentioned.

Declaration of those in arms for the covenant, 1666.

HE nature of religion doth fufficiently teach. and all men almost acknowledge the lawfulness of sinless self-defence; yet we thought it our du-ty, at this time, to give an account unto the world of the occasion and design of our being together in arms, fince the rife and scope of actions, if faulty, may render a thing, right upon the matter, finful.

' It is known to all that the king's majesty, at his coronation, did engage to rule the nation according to the revealed will of God in scripture, to prosecute the ends of the national and folemn league and covenants, and fully to establish presbyterian government, with the directory for worship, and to approve all acts of par-· liament establishing the same; and thereupon the nobility and others of his subjects did swear allegiance, and fo religion was committed unto him as a matter of trust, secured by most solemn indenture betwixt him and his people.

Notwithstanding all this, it is soon ordered that the covenant be burnt, that the tye of it is declared void and null, and men forced to subscribe a declaration contrary to it; episcapal government in its height of tyranny is established, and men obliged by law not to plead, witness or petition against those things; grievous fines, sudden imprisonments, vast quarterings of foldiers, and a cruel inquifition by the highcommission court, were the reward of all such who could not comply with the government by lordly hierarchy, and abjure their covenants, and prove more monfrous, to the wasting their conscience, than nature would have suffered heathens to be. Those things, in part, have been all Scotland over, but chiefly in the poor county of Galloway at this day; and, had not God prevented, it should have in the same measures undoubtedly befallen the rest of the nation ere long.

'The just sense whereof made us chuse rather to betake ourselves to the fields for self-defence, than to flay at home burdened daily with the calamities of others, and tortured with the fears of our own approaching misery. And considering our engagement to assist and defend all those who entred into this

league

7.

h, ıl-

u-

of

IS,

1-

0-

to не

s, ie

r-

.

é,

75

tt

ıt

d

.

t

V

.

d

,

e

league and covenant with us; and to the end we may 1666. be more vigorous in the profecution of this matter, and all men may know the true state of our cause, we have entred into the folemn league and covenant; and, though it be hardly thought of, renewed the fame, to the end we may be free of the apoltacy of our times, and faved from the cruel ulages perions resolved to adhere to this have met with; hoping that this will wipe off the reproach that is upon our nation, because of the avowed perjury it lies under. And being fully perfuaded, that this league, however 'misrepresented, contains nothing in it sinful before God, derogating to the king's just authority, the privileges of the parliament, or liberty of the people, but, on the contrary, is the furest bond whereby all these are secured, since a threefold cord is not easily broken, as we shall make appear in our next and larger declaration, which shall contain more fully the proofs. of the lawfulness of entring into covenant, and necessity of our taking arms at this time for the defence of it; with a full and true account of our grief and forrow. for our fwerving from it, and fuffering ourselves to be divided, to the reproach of our common cause, and ' fadning the hearts of the godly; a thing we forrowfully remember, and firmly resolve against in all time coming.

Tho' this paper seems to have been made in haste, in Remarks. the midst of many insurmountable inconveniencies, yet there is nothing in it against the king's authority. As for the larger declaration promised, it is probable that it was never drawn up, they having been a little after this routed at Pentland.

While they were at Lanerk William Laurie of Black- Blackwood came up to them from duke Hamilton, to prevail wood with them to lay down their arms; but, as he did not fent. apply to colonel Wallace, or any of their officers, he returned without fuccess.

In the afternoon Dalziel with his army were entering Motions Lanerk before colonel Wallace and his men had all left it. of colonel. The latter marched that night to Bathgate, where, have Wallace, ing no accommodation, they renewed their march about midnight, and came, after inexpressible fatigue, to the Newbridge in the morning, and it was reckoned that that they lost that night near the half of their little army.

Bh

From

Ch

repr clud

the

B

the ing

ed

and

and

MNI

hill the

and wer wood

ala

the the

CO

on fen

 D_l

par an

Ire

ral

mo

the Rn

fc

th

ha

CO

fif

pr

th T

ar

1666. From thence they marched to Collingtoun, within three miles of Edinburgh.

By this time the king's forces were come to Calder, within five miles of them, and all gentlemen, and others, in Edinburgh, who had horses, were ordered by the council to mount them, and march under the command of the marquis of Montrole to join the general, fo that they could not have any of their friends to join them; for tho' a few gentlemen in Renfrew shire had affembled a small company of horsemen, about fifty in number, in order to join colonel Wattace, yet, hearing that Dalziel was between them and their friends, they thought proper to disperse. This small party was commanded by William Muir of Caldwell, and with him were Robert Ker of Kersland, Caldwell of that ilk, the laird of Ralston, John Cuningham of Bedland, William Porterfield of Quarreltoun, Alexander Porterfield his brother, &c. together with Mr. Gabriel Maxwell minister at Dundonald, Mr. George Ramfay minister at Kilmawers, and Mr. John Carstairs minister at Glasgow. The laird of Blackstown was likeways with this party, but was fo far from being a friend to the cause they were appearing for, that, upon hearing of the defeat at Pentland, it is faid, that he went to the archbishop of Glasgow, and, upon promise of pardon, difcovered and informed against the rest.

Blackwood's negotiati-

But to return to colonel Wallace and his decreasing While on their march to Collingtoun the laird of Blackwood came up again to them, with proposals from duke Hamilton to lay down their arms, in hopes of an indemnity, which the duke promifed to endeavour to obtain for them; but the colonel, and they who were with him, difmiffed Blackwood without complying with his proposals. When they got to Collingtoun, and found themselves disappointed of any assistance from their friends about Edinburgh, both their hopes and counsels were at an end. And here Bluckwood came a third time, and with him the laird of Barskimming, to renew the former propofal; withal fignifying, that he had obtained the general's word of honour for a cellation of arms till next morning, and that he had undertaken as much from them. Upon this colonel Wallace, by appointment, wrote to the general by these two gentlemen, representing their grievances, and fignifying that their delign was to apply to the council for redress, and defiring a pass for one of their number that might represent represent their grievances and desires more fully; con- 1666. cluding with a request that Blackwood might return with the general's answer as soon as possible. But the general, instead of returning any answer, sent the letter directly to the council; and, notwithstanding the affurances given of a ceffation of arms, marched his army streight towards them. Colonel Wallace and his men resolved upon the best retreat they could, and from Collingtoun they marched to the house of the muir, and from thence to Rullion-green near Pentlandhills, where they drew up the dispirited remains of their army, not exceeding nine hundered men, spent and fatigued. They had no delign of fighting, but were still in hopes of a peaceable conclusion from Blackwood's negotiation.

P. 7.

three alder,

hers,

the

mand

that iem ;

ibled

r, in alzi-

ught

nded

obert

Iston,

uar-

ther

Mr.

70hn foun

eing

up-

he

mise

fing

aird

fals

pes

lea-

hey

moun,

om

and

e a

to he Ta-

er-

ce,

n-

ng

ſs,

ht

They were scarce formed in this manner, when an Battle of alarm came that a body of horse was approaching them; Pentthey found it was Dalziel's van, which had cut through land. the ridge of Pentland hills, and came upon them undifcovered, till they were within a quarter of a mile, upon a hill over against them. Colonel Wallace upon this ient captain Arnot, who repulsed lieutenant-general Drummond, who was fent by the general with a felect party to begin the attack. Here Mr. John Grook (bank and Mr. Andrew MacCormock, two ministers come from Ireland, were both killed. When the lieutenant-general was driven back, there was no small confusion a, mong Dalziel's army, of whom not a few threw down their arms. Major Learmont made the second attack, and repulsed the enemy; duke Hamilton narrowly escaping. The last encounter was after sun-let, when the general's foot, flanked with their horse upon all hands, overpowered the colonel's little army, and compleatly routed them. There were fome more than fifty of the colonel's men killed, and as many taken priloners. The two ministers, and others who lost their lives in this action, were buried at Rullion green. There was afterwards a stone put on their grave, with an inscription, which the reader will find in the cloud of witnesses; 'several of Dalziel's army were wounded, but few of them killed."

After this action the people in the adjacent parishes Colonel were very cruel to the fleeing army, many of whom they Wallace killed, and others they took prisoners. Colonel Wal- and Mr. lace and Mr. John Welfb fled north ; the former got fafe escaped.

Welfh

nt enoi .

Chap. 7.

Chap

· fon the the

6 feat

4 to i

· upo

was

was p

were respo

Walla

er,---

Mac.

youn

More

Cornl

Broth

vid S

Naug

Dalr

trick

Gord:

of D

of A

lain-

fon I

the la

of K

field (

of W

Poe i

7ohn

Alex

ton,

Fame

conc

purft ways

My a bove

John

coul

as th be n

Or

1666. to Holland, where he lived feveral years. We shall meet with the latter afterwards. Thus was this body of good people dispersed and routed upon the 28th of November 1666. and an end put to this rifing, which by their enemies was termed a REBELLION, a horrible conspiracy, and what not; though they always protested, that their only delign was to present their grievances, and bear a testimony for their God and their country, for their religion and liberty.

Account mag.

The day after the engagement the council wrote to of the ac- the king, giving him an account of the suppressing of tion given the rebellion; in which, among other things, they fay, many of them are prisoners, against whom there fhall be fpeedy proceedings --- But although this rabble be totally dissipated for the time, yet we conceive ourselves obliged, in the discharge of our duty, to ref present unto your majesty, that those principles, which are pretended as the ground of this rebellion, are fo rooted in many feveral places through the kingdom, and there be such just grounds of apprehensions of danger from persons disaffected to your majesty's government, as it is now established by law, as will require more vigorous application for fuch an extirpation of it, as may fecure the peace of the kingdom, and due obedience to the laws. And we shall not be wanting in any thing in our power; and your majesty's commands shall be obeyed by

Your majesty's most, &c.

St. ANDREWS, &c.

Some con-Sequences of this rifing.

Though this small handful was provoked to rife in arms, great care was taken, not only to brand the whole body of presbyterians as rebels and traitors, but also to prevent any of those who had been in the Engagement from making their escape. On the 30th of November the lord treasurer was appointed by the council to fecure the goods and rents of all who had been at Pentland. After all this, it is easy to imagine that the hardships of these poor people must have been exceed-Besides those who, having escaped from the ing great. field of battle, were most cruelly murdered by the country people, multitudes were forced for many years to lurk and conceal themselves, and undergo intolerable difficulties.

Orders for a Jearch.

On the 1st of December the council gave orders to general Dalziel to fearch for and apprehend all perfons, 7.

et

er

e-

i-

11

d

F

of

e

fons, and their horses, who have been in arms with 1666; the rebels, or are suspected, since or before their defeat, or who have reset and been aiding to them, and 4 to intromit with their goods, and require him to quarter 4 upon their lands with his forces; and duke Hamilton was appointed to seize all such in Lanerksbire.'

On the 4th of December a very severe proclamation Proclawas published, in which all and every one of the subjects mation a were strictly charged not to harbour, reset, supply or cor-gainst the respond, hide or conceal the persons of colonel James rebels. Wallace, major Learmont - Maxwell of Moncrief younger, ---- MacLellan of Barscob, ---- Gordon of Parbreck, ----MacLelland of Balmagachan, - Cannon of Burn/balloch younger, - Cannon of Barley younger, - Cannon of Mordrogget younger,-Wellh of Skar,-Welsh of Cornley, -Gordon of Garery in Kells, Robert Chalmer Brother to Gadgirth, Henry Grier in Balmaclellan, David Scot in Irongray, John and William Gordons, John Mac-Naught, Robert and Gilbert Cannons, all in Midtoun of Dalry, - Gordon of Bar elder in Kirkpatrick-durham, Patrick Mac Naught in Cumnock, and his fon John,---Gordon of Holm younger, — Dempster of Carridow, --of Dargoner, - of Sundiwal, - Ramfay in the Mains of Arnistoun, John Hutcheson in Newbottle, --- Rew chaplain to Scotstarbet, Patrick Listoun in Calder, and his fon William, James Wilkie in the Mains of Cliftounhall, the laird of Caldwell, the goodman of Caldwell, the laird of Kersland. the laird of Bedland-Cuningham, ----- Porterfield of Quarreltoun, his brother Alexander, ----- Lockhart of Wicket shaw -- Trail fon to Mr. Robert Trail, David Poe in Pokelly, and messieurs Gabriel Semple, John Semple, John Guthry, John Welsh, Samuel Arnot, James Smith, Alexander Peden, - Orr, William Veitch, - Patton, - Crookfbank, Gabriel Maxwell, John Carftairs, James Mitchell, William Forsyth, or any others who concurred or joined in the late rebellion; but that they purfue, apprehend and deliver them up to justice, otherways to be esteemed and punished as favourers of it. My author was informed, that feveral of the persons a- Remarks, bove named were noways concerned in the rifing. Mr. John Crookshank was killed in the action, so that none could be in hazard of correspondence with him. And as the John Semple named amongst the ministers, might be mistaken for one Mr. John Semple minister at Garfphairn, 1866. phairn, who was noways concerned, he was obliged to crave redrefs, which was granted.

The fame day, the council defired the archbishops to order the bishops in their respective sees to oblige all the ministers in their feveral dioceses to give in a list of the names of ejected ministers, with the places of their refidence, and in what manner any of them have *p. 151. transgressed against the act of August 13th, 1663 *.

Cafe of the prifoners.

But to come to the case of the prisoners taken at this time. The victory was celebrated with almost as many guns from the castle, as there were men slain in the field. The prisoners, about fifty in number, who were taken in the action, were brought in by the foldiers to Edinburgh, and the country people brought in about thirty more. These were all crowded together in a place near the Tolbooth, called Haddow's-hole, now one of the churches of the city. When that worthy old minister Mr. Arthur Murray, who lived in the suburbs, opened his window, and faw Dalziel's army marching with their banners displayed, and heard the shouts of the soldiers triumphing over the prisoners, he was so impressed with grief, that he took his bed immediately, and died in about two days after.

Sharp's cruelty. p. 236.

Bishop Burnet says, 'That the best of the episcopal clergy fet upon the bishops to lay hold on this opportunity for regaining the affections of the country, by becoming intercessors for the prisoners, and the country, that was like to be quartered upon and eaten up for the Sevour they expressed to them; and that many of the bishops went in to this, particularly that Wisheart bishop of Edinburgh shewed a very christian disposition at this time, by fending every day very liberal supplies to the prisoners, which was likeways done by almost the whole town .- But Sharp, fays Burnet, could not be mollified; on the contrary, he encouraged the ministers in the disaffected counties to bring in all the informations they could gather against the prisoners, and all who had been among them, that they might be fought for and proceeded against .- And that the ministers, in thele parts, acted fo unbecoming a part, that the aversion of the country to them was increased to all posfible degrees. They looked on them as wolves and not as fhepherds.' There is one thing more that my author afferts, upon good information, viz. that, after several of the prisoners were condemned, and a few executed, a letChap a lett ing a fiden he h Mr. more ward come a lett they bloo the T futur fhou Burn lette lette Shur

ever

the ! 0 the ! for l And Pate breci Gav in / Stra Ren four judg plea that Frie arm fhou on, loch Fob Str mar righ

ed !

7.

to

to all ift

of

ve

nis

d.

en n-

ty

r.

nis

ir

TS

th

2-

al

r-

by

y, he

he

i-

at

to

he

be

TS

a-

all

ht

s,

a-

of-

ot

or

al

d,

t-

a letter came down from the king discharging the tak- 1666. ing any more lives. This letter came to Sharp as prefident of the council, who kept it up till as many as he had a mind should die. Bishop Burnet says, that Mr. MacKail's death, of which we shall hear, was the more cried out on, because it came to be known afterwards, that archbishop Burnet of Glasgow, who had come down before his execution, had brought with him a letter from the king, in which he approved of all that they had done; but added, that he thought there was blood enough shed, and therefore ordered that such of the priloners as should promise to obey the laws for the future should be set at liberty, and that the incorrigible should be sent to the plantations. Notwithstanding Burnet let the execution go on, before he produced his letter.' But I am apt to believe, if Burnet brought this letter from the king, he delivered it into the hands of Shurp, who wickedly and basely concealed it : But, however this was, it appears the king was more humane than the bishops.

On the same ath of December the council ordered The conthe king's advocate to profecute eleven of the prisoners demnation for high-treason, viz. Major John MacCulloch, captain of the pri-Andrew Arnot brother to the laird of Lochridge, Thomas foners. Paterson merchant in Glasgow, John Gordon of Knockbreck and his brother Robert, John Parker in Busbie, Gavin Hamilton, James Hamilton in Kilmuir, John Roft in Mauchlin, John Shields in Titwood, and Christopher They likeways appointed Sir John Hume of Strang. Kenton justice-clerk, and Mr. William Murray advocate, justice-depute, to be their judges, and allowed four advocates to plead for them. On the same day the judges fat down, for form's fake heard the advocates plead a little, and very quickly pronounced fentence, that they should be all hanged at the market-cross on Friday the 7th of December; their heads and rightarms to be cut off, and disposed of as the council should see fit. The council, the day before the execution, met, and ordered that the heads of major MacCulloch, John and Robert Gordons be let up at Kirkcudbright, John Parker, Gavin and James Hamiltons, and Christopher Strang, at Hamilton, John Rofs and John Shields at Kilmarnock, and captain Arnot's at the water-gate; and the right-hands of the above mentioned persons were ordered to be affixed on the publick ports of the town of La-

nerk,

1866. nerk, being the place where they took the covenant. Tho. mas Pater on received fentence of death along with the rest, but his dying of his wounds prevented the execution. The curious reader may fee the whole process against these excellent persons in Mr. Wodrow's appendix to book 2d, Vol. I. No. 9.

Ten executed.

These ten were accordingly executed on the 7th of December. Bishop Burnet says true, That it was a moving fight to fee ten of the prisoners hanged upon one gibbet at Edinburgh, especially if we consider that they were taken upon quarter and folemn parole to have their lives spared, as was argued at their trial. In their joint testimony, which, together with the dying speeches of some of them, are in Naphtali, they say, We are condemned by men, and esteemed by many as rebels against the king, whose authority we acknowledge. But this is our rejoicing, the testimony of our confeience, that we fuffer not as evil-doers, but for righteousness, for the word of God and the testimony of Iefus Christ, and particularly for our renewing the covenant, and, in pursuance thereof, for preserving and defending of ourselves by arms against the usurpation and insupportable tyranny of the prelates, &c? It is faid that when Knockbreck and his bother were turned off the ladder, they clasped one another in their arms, and thus endured the pangs of death.

Their heads and right-arms were disposed of according to the above order of council. The heads of John Parker, Gavin and James Hamiltons, and Christopher Strang, were afterwards buried in the church-yeard of Hamilton, and a grave-stone was put on them, with an inscription recorded in the cloud of witnesses.

Sufferings milies.

Great were the hardships which some of the families of some of of these martyrs were brought to; for instance, major their fa- MacCulloch, before Pentland, had several soldiers quartered upon him for thirty days, and, besides their entertainment, had eight pence a-day to pay to each of them, over and above 100 L. of fine to Sir James Turner. He paid likeways his whole parliamentary fine 1665. confisting of 1200 merks, together with 300 merks of riding-money to the foldiers who exacted it. His estate lay under forseiture from Pentland to the revolution. After Pentland, one Charles Campbel, without any warrant, feized a horse and cloaths from his Son William, who was not in the least concerned in the

was I cutio 1681 was . T Knock liame Gallo boull

Chap

tiling

CIS W to th politi 1684 destr Glenl from them and i all, and ' Fron > fone to be Dece them short the c orde wher mitie

this !

T

com Alex tray furre ly fo Gran gray Was

and are fuse le

1-ſs

1-

f

1-

21

e

S

.

f

C

Is

4

1-

of 10

g

e

r

-

12

*

of

n

r

-

1of

-

le

0

t.

e

S

SHOR .

rifing, to the value of 13 L. Sterling. His eldest fon 1666? was kept a whole year in prison after his father's execution, only because he was his son. And in the year 1681. his lady had those lands forfeited in which she, was happily infeft when her husband fuffered.

The harrassings and losses of the family of Gordon of Knockbreck cannot be expressed; for besides their parliamentary fine, and their common loffes with others in Galloway by Sir James Turner, in a little after Pentland their whole crop for that year was feized, and their houshold-furniture disposed of and destroyed; fix foldiers were quartered upon the house from the 6th of March to the 9th of July; near 400 1. of cels and other impolitions were levied from them and their tenants. 1684. captain Strachan and his troop leized upon and destroyed their whole houshold-furniture; next year Glenlyon, with near 200 Highlanders, stayed at Knockbreck from Thursday to Monday, consumed and took along with them all the victual they could find, broke the windows, and took the horses to bear away the spoil; and, last of all, cruel Lagg came with a party, plundered the house, and was with difficulty prevented from fetting it on fire. From these the reader may form a judgment of the calamities that befel the families of those who suffered at this time.

The last execution being over, other five of the pri-Other from foners were profecuted for high-treason, and condemned condemneto be hanged at the cross of Edinburgh on the 14th of ed. December. The judges did not, it feems, now give themselves the trouble of hearing advocates, but made shorter work, and went upon their own confession: And the council, being weary of disposing heads and arms, ordered the magistrates of Edinburgh to fix their heads where they thought fit, and to bury their bodies in the common place. Their names are as follow, viz. Mr. Alexander Robertson preacher of the gospel, (who was betrayed by his friend the laird of Mortoun, to whom he lurrendred upon promise of his life, and whom he expresly forgave at his death) John Neilson of Corfack, George Grawford in Cumnock, John Gordon in the parish of Irongray, and John Lindsay in Edinburgh: The last named was respited, but the rest were all executed at the time and place appointed. The speeches of the first three are in Naphtali, where, with their last breath, they refuled that their riling was rebellion; they all acknow-

Ch:

pon But

Mr.

they

wed

cam

pitc

pret

orde

Was

mel

wer

the

H

of .

tool

Nay

a fu

Sir l

ever

and

Arti

verf

wife

kept

had

her

and

oppi

go o duke

Arg

Dum

gome

Dal

brot

mery

or a fhire

jurn

amir

hall

0

1666. ledged the king's just authority; particularly George Crawford said, That which moved me to come along Naphta- with these men, was their persuasion and my defire to li,p. 237.6 help them, (which, with a fafe conscience, I could not well refuse) who, being tyrannically oppressed by the prelates and their dependents and upholders, and feeing no other way was left to be taken, took up arms for their own defence. And if this be rebellion, I leave it to the great God the supreme judge to decern; for, in my weak judgment, I found it warrantable from the word of God, and without prejudice of the king's authority, (which I pray God to direct and guide in the right ways of the Lord, and to make him prosper therein, so that he may be furely set in his kingdom, having him whom no enemy can refift to defend him) · feeing there was nothing intended by us against his or any others just and lawful authority, &c.' He was so pleased to die, that he pressed to be up the ladder, and, when upon the top of it, triumphed in Christ.

The peculiar fuf-John Neilson

John Neilson of Corfack, a gentleman of excellent parts, was fingled out to greater fufferings than any of ferings of his fellow-fufferers. When Sir James Turner came first into Galloway, Mr. Dalgliesh the curate of Partan delated Corfack for non-conformity; whereupon Sir James exacted fack and 400 l. Scots from him, and, contrary to promise, sent his fami- him prisoner to Kirkcudbright. After this, by the quartering of foldiers, which Sir James fent upon him, he fustained the loss of above 1993 1. Scots. By these hardships he was obliged to leave his house, and wander from place to place. During his wandering he lost his horse worth 100 l. was himself apprehended, and for some time kept a prisoner. When they had turned his lady and children to the doors, they next fell upon his tenants, obliging them to bring in sheep, lambs, meal and malt to them, till they were almost all ruined. And, last of all, they drove all his oxen and black cattle to Glafgow, and fold them; and all this for nothing but non-conformity. Was it then any wonder that he, and many others in the like circumstances, embraced the first opportunity to complain of, and relieve themselves, if possible, from such dreadful oppressions? But while attempting this he was taken at Pentland, and carried prisoner to Edinburgh. Sir James Turner wied his interest to get his life spared, because Corfack saved Sir James, when some moved to have him cut off, though none

7:

ge

ng

to ot

he ee-

ms

ve

or,

he

u-

he

er

m,

n)

is

23

T,

nt

of

rft

èd

ed

nt

he

n, ſe

1-

ft

d

d

n

le

ıt

1-

ſ

none suffered more from Sir James than this good man. 1666. But the bishops, at the desire of Dalgliesh the curate, prevailed above all the interest Sir James could make.

Mr. Hugh MacKail to be tortured with the boots, (for tortured they put a pair of iron boots close on the leg, and drove with the wedges between these and the leg, until the marrow came, out of the bone.) What moved the council to pitch upon these two is not known. A conspiracy was pretended, and by this torture they were examined, in order to force them to make some discoveries. Corfack was dreadfully tormented, so that his shrieks would have melted the hearts of any except those present, who were so far from being moved, that they still called for the other touch. These were the times of prelacy!

His lady being in Edinburgh, after his death, Maxwel The sufof Miltoun came to the house of Corfack with 30 men, ferings of took away every thing they could, and destroyed the rest : bis fami-Nay, they turned the family, in which was a nurse with his death. a fucking child, to the open fields. Some time after this Sir William Bannantyne came and took an inventary of every thing that was in the house, seized that years crop, and arrested the rents in the tenants hands. And because Arthur M'Gachie in Glenhead, one of his tenants, had conversed with him a day or two before Pentland, he, his wife and a young child, were carried off prisoners, and kept some weeks. Amongst other hardships lady Corfack had all her moveables feized, merely for converting with her own son, who had been intercommuned or outlawed, and paid near 100 /. This family endured many other oppressions which I cannot insert here. And therefore I go on to the proceedings against the other prisoners.

On the 5th of December a commission was given to Commisduke Hamilton, the marquis of Montrose, the earls of son for Argyll, Linlithgow, Kelly, Galloway, Wigtoun, Nithsdale, trying the Dumfries, Callender, Airly, Annandale, the lords Mont-prisoners. gomery and Drumlanerk, the master of Cochran, general Dalziel, lieutenant-general Drummond, James Crichton brother to the earl of Dumfries, colonel James Montgomery, Charles Maitland of Haltoun, and Mungo Murray, or any three of them, with justiciary power to go to any shire, burgh or place, where there was any rising or insurrection, and there to hold courts, cite parties and examine witnesses, and take all other courses which they shall think sit, for trying and discovering all such per-

More condemnecuted at Edinburgh, Execution .

gow.

Drums

beat at depute condemned Mr. Hugh MacKail, Thomas Lennox, ed and ex- Humphrey Colqubon, Ralph Shields an Englishman, clothier in Ayr, William Pedin merchant there, John Wodrow merchant in Glafgow, Robert MacMillan, John Wilson in the parish of Kilmawers, and Mungo Kaipo in Evandale, to be hanged at the cross of Edinburgh on the 22d of December, Three of these, viz. Robert Mac-Millan, William Pedin and Thomas Lennox, together with John Lindfay formerly respited, got off, either on account of their making some partial compliances, or perhaps the reason was the king's letter formerly mentioned, wherein he declared he would have no more lives ta-Their be- ken; the rest were all executed, and died with christian baviour. resolution and courage.

John Wodrow merchant in Glafgow, in his testimony John Woand letter to his wife, was observed to exceed one of drow, his education and circumstances; the reader will find both in Naptbali; he concludes his letter to his wife in these words. And now I give you and my four children f unto the Lord, and commit you to him as your covenanted Chap

4 na

s ed

" de

4 cer

f me

4 all

& th

s fin

& So

Golgi

one peri

laid

on

wit

site A 11

6 k

6 1

4 a

1

6 8

5 2

f t

4 (

1

-

4

3 af121

6 -6 1

6

in

W

th

75

fo

2

C

FC.

s of

laf-

art

and reted

n'a

ce,

rn-

er-

he

to

an

W

ed

1:

e.

7-

R

n

r

annted God and husband, and my children's covenant- 16661 sed father. I fay no more, but either study to be indeed a fincere christian, and a seeker of his face in fincerity, or else you will be nothing at all. I recommend you and your young ones to him, who is God .45 all-fufficient, and aboundeth in mercy and love to them that love him and keep his covenant. The bleffing of the covenant be upon you; so fare you well. So faith your loving and dying husband, Go. Humphrey Hum. Colquiton spoke not like an ordinary townsman, but like phrey one in the fuburbs of heaven, related his christian ex- Colperiences, called for his bible from one of his friends, quhon. faid it on his wounded arm, and spoke to the admiration of all that heard him. John Wilson began his speech John with these remarkable words, Good people and spectators, I am here condemned to die upon alledged rebelflion against the king and his authority, which God knoweth I never intended; for, in my judgment, a man's endeavouring to extirpate perjured prelates and abjured prelacy, according as he is bound by oath in a fworn covenant, may very well frand with a man's loysalty to king and country; for I am fure the king and his subjects may be happy, yea, more happy, in the extirpation of prelates and prelacy, than in their flanding; yea, the throne shall never be established in peace, until that wicked plant be plucked up by the roots, which hath fo much wasted and made desolate the Lord's vineyard. For my part, I pray that the Lord may bless our king with blessings from heaven, and make him a friend to the interest of Christ, as the best way for the standing of his throne to many generations: And I pray for all that are in authority under his majelty, that the Lord may not lay to their charge the innocent blood of his faints, which they have shed, Ge. There was likeways fomething very moving and affecting in the last testimony of Ralph Shields on this occasion, in Ralph which he not only declared his respect for authority, as Shields. the ordinance of God, appointed for the punishment of evil doers, and his fincere wishes for his majesty's welfare, but likeways the encouragement he had in luftering at this time for the cause of Christ; and speaking concerning his native country, for which he could not but have a real affection, he expressed himself thus: 'O that it were the happiness of my nation of England, fonce to subject themselves to the sweet yoke of Christ's CHRIST P reforme

Cha

quel

cauf

acci

his

land

he r opp

take he e

he l

but

cou

ver

imp

the

den

der

De

cil-

not row

agai

of

he i

quis

to c thar

ed t

ceed

with pref

ed 1

laft

God

of h

thei

app

ture

a fe

ther

the

ther

lo t

0

A

1666. 4 reformed government, under which this nation of Scot-' land hath enjoyed so much of the power and life of the gospel, by a faithful ministry according to the covenant fworn by them both, &c.

Mr. Mac-Kail's sufferings. He is li-

But as the circumstances of Mr. MacKail's fufferings at this time are more fingular, I must be excused for giving the particular relation thereof recorded in Naphtali, Mr. Hugh MacKail having finished his studies at the cenfed. university of Edinburgh, and under the care of his uncle of the fame name, was licensed by the presbytery of E. dinburgh 1661, being then twenty years of age. He was fometime chaplain to Sir James Stewart of Kirk-* p. 134. field *. All his publick performances met with univerfal acceptance, until the 21st of September 1662. when he preached his last publick sermon in the great church His last of Edinburgh, from Song i. 7. in which, speaking of the many and great perfecutions that had befallen the church, fermon. he faid, among other things, That the church and people of God had been persecuted by a Pharaoh upon the throne, a Haman in the state, and a Judas in the church. And though he made no application, yet the cases of Haman and Judas appeared, to the conviction of his adversaries, to have such a resemblance to the condition of the rulers of the state and church at that time, particularly of Lauderdale and Sharp, that a few days after a party of horse was sent to apprehend him, but he happily escaped, retired to his father's house, and soon after Goes a- went abroad, where he accomplished himself in his stu-

broad.

Foins the dies for a few years. When he came home he was the more qualified to people in be the object of the prelates spite and malice. At last the west. he occasionally joined those who rose in arms in Galloway, and continued among them a little time, till Tuefday the 27th of November, when, not being able to endure the fatigues of constant marching, he left them near the new bridge upon Grammond water, and was tak-Is taken, en by some countrymen as he was passing through a place called Braid's Grags.

Imprison-When he was brought to Edinburgh, he was carried ed. first to the council-house, and, after being searched for letters, and none being found, was committed to the tolbooth.

Next day, by order of council, he was examined before the earl of Dumfries, lord Sinclair, Sir Robert Murray of Prieffield, and others; but he waved the question, 24140 34 question, and refused to fign any thing they wrote, be- 16661 cause he conceived he was not obliged to be his own accufer. On the 29th he gave in a declaration under his own hand, teftifying that he had been with the westland forces, with whom he occasionally met, and that he resolved to have withdrawn from them upon the first opportunity, which he was about to do when he was taken, without either offering to flee or relift, which he defired the council the rather to believe, because he had told fo much to William Lawrie of Blackwood; but though Blackwood owned this to be truth, yet the council, suspecting Mr. MacKail to have been a contriver of the infurrection, and privy to all their deligns, importuned him to be ingenuous in declaring who were the ringleaders of their late rifing, and what correspondence they had either at home or abroad. And, in order to extort such a confession, on Monday the 3d of December the boots were laid before him on the council-table, and they gave him to know, that if he did not confess he should be tortured with them to morrow.

Accordingly, on Tuesday December the 4th, he was again brought before the council, and, after the torture of John Neilson of Corfack, of which we have heard, he was again examined by the earl of Rothes, the marquis of Montrofe, and several others; and, being urged to confess, he folemnly declared that he knew no more than he had already confessed; whereupon they ordered the executioner to put his leg into the boot, and pro- Tortured. ceed to the torture. He received ten or eleven strokes, with confiderable intervals, to the extraordinary compression of slesh, sinews and bones, all which he endured with a most christian patience. Before he got the last three strokes, he protested solemnly, in the fight of God, that he could fay no more, though all the joints of his body were in as great torture as that poor leg.

0

0

n

d

r

On the 10th of December he and other feven received Received their indictments of treason, and were summoned to bis indistappear before the justices on the 12th. But, his tor-ment. ture and close imprisonment having thrown him into a lever, he was not able to make his appearance, and therefore on December 11th he gave in a petition to the lords of council, begging a respite, since he was neither able to walk nor stand, and seeing his accession to the crimes with which he was charged was so very flender,

1666. Slender, being only simple presence; and that too but occasional, which was mitigated by his purposed and actual coming off from them. Together with his petition there was presented an attellation under the hands of feven furgeons, declaring his weak and fickly condition: Whereupon the council ordered two phyficians and two furgeons, viz. Sir Robert Cuningham. doctor Hay, James Borthwick and Thomas Kincaid, to vifit him, and return their attestation, upon foul and conscience, to the justices, by 10 o'clock next day. They were also to give in their attestation concerniag other three indicted with him.

But as their attestation did not bear foul and conscience. and the phylicians refuling to rectify it in these terms. though they declared they could confirm the truth of it by their oath, the justices postponed their proceed. ings against Mr. MacKail and the other two, but appointed John Neilson of Corfack, though also contained in the attestation, with other four, to be brought to the bar, when they were condemned to be hanged on the

p. 201. Friday following *.

Brought to the bar.

Mr. MacKail was brought before the justices on the 18th, with the other three who were arraigned with him; and being permitted to speak after the indistment was read, he declared, among other things, that he was not ashamed to avow that he was one of that afflicted and persecuted party and persuasion called presbyterian. Then he spoke of the tyes and engagements that were upon the land to God; and having commended the institution, dignity and blessing of presbyterian government, he faid, that the last words of the national covenant had always great weight upon his spirit. Whereupon the king's advocate interrupted him, and defired he would forbear that discourse, since he was not called in question for his persuasion, but for the crime of rebellion, in rifing in arms against his majesty's authority. To this Mr. MacKail replied, that he was moved to speak in the manner he had done, from that weighty and important faying of our Lord Jesus, Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall the Son of man confess before the angels of God; but he that denieth me and my words before men, shall be denied before the angels of God. As for rebellion, he faid his accession was only simple presence with a sword, and that occasional. The advocate replied, that not only presence, such as he was char-700000

Chap. ged w ing co The what l and h crofs (

* Wh The L name o telboo cut us

Bei time i him, terwa ed, he מו שינות other ney to not fo a meetin On of his lowin i T

and

a ferm

in th me ; who belle ' fwo ed t retra first. to l vou

and

as a on and to

vou exp ing ged with, was treasonable, but all intercommuning or keep- 1666: ing company with rebels, though for half an hour only.

Though they could prove no more against him than Sentenced what he had owned, yet the jury brought him in guilty, to die. and he was condemned to be hanged at the market-cross of Edinburgh, December 22d, with several others.

* When he received his sentence, he cheerfully said, Praced The Lord giveth life, and the Lord taketh, blessed be the name of the Lord. And, as he was carried back to the tolbooth, he said to the lamenting people, Though men

Being returned to prison he immediately spent some His behatime in prayer, for himself and those condemned with viour in him, with great fervency and enlargement. Being af-prison. terwards asked how his leg was that had been tortured, he answered, with chearfulness, The fear of my neck now maketh me forget my leg. After that he said to another friend, O how good news, to be within four days journey to enjoy the sight of Jesus Christ! And protested he was not so cumbred how to die, as he had been sometimes to preach a sermon. His father got liberty to see him, and their meeting was very affecting.

On the 20th of December, to fatisfy the importunity of his friends, he gave in to the privy-council the following petition.

That whereas, upon Tuefday last, I was indicted His petiand condemned for the treasonable deeds contained tion to the in the general and special indictment exhibited against council.
me; in the which special indictment, containing my whole accellion to the faid crimes, there is only libelled presence in several places, with an ordinary sword, likeas my own confession, which is the naked truth, doth declare how the same was occasional; and seeing that it was also in some fort purged and retracted, by my withdrawing and deserting with the first conveniency, whereby not only my case appears to be different from that of others, but also as favourable as possibly can be, next to innocence itself, as appeared to many of those gentlemen who were upon my assize; and, seeing the torture I sustained, and the ingenuity I then used, as in the sight of God, to the utmost of my knowledge, deserve that savour that was at that time insinuated: And that it is expected that his majesty, whose mercy I beg, according to his great elemency, and the most usual practice

1666. in the like cases, will interpose his mercy for the re-" fcue of many who are equally with me involved; May it therefore please your lordships, graciously to consider the premises, and to pardon my great rashness and precipitancy, and therefore to indulge fuch a reprival as your lordships shall think convenient, until his ma' jesty's gracious pleasure anent the premises shall be fully known, at least till the commissioner's grace do return. And your, &c.

N. B. The words in italick characters were inferted without his knowledge, when the petition was transcribed by his friends: However, the petition was rejected, and all the interest made was to no effect.

The last night of his life, being Friday December the 21st, he proposed and answered some questions. As, I. ' How should he, going from the tolbooth through a multitude of gazing people and guards of foldiers to a scaffold and gibbet, overcome the impression of all these?' To which he answered. 1. By conceiving a deeper impression of a multitude of angels who are also onlookers; according to that, we are a gazing-stock to the world, angels and men; for the angels, rejoicing at our good confession, are present to convey and carry our fouls, as the foul of Lazarus, into Abraham's bosom, not to receive them, for that is Iefus Christ's work alone, who will welcome them to heaven himself, with the songs of angels and blessed fpirits: 'But the angels are ministring spirits, always ready to serve and strengthen all dying believers. 2. As Stephen faw the heavens opened, and Jesus standing at the right-hand of God, who then faid, Lord · Jesus receive my spirit, so, said he, do I believe, that Jesus Christ is also ready to receive his dying suffer-II. He enquired, 'What is the way for us to conceive of heaven, who are hastening to it, since the word fays, Eye hath not feen, nor ear heard, &c?" To this he answered. 'The scripture helps us thele two ways. 1. By way of similitude, as Rev. xxi. when heaven is held forth by a representation of a glorious city there described; but in the same place it is also termed the bride. But O how unlike are these two, a bride and a city? Which shews the insufficiency and vast disproportion of all such similitudes. And therefore he added, 2. That the scripture furnisheth yet a more excellent way to conceive of heaven, viz.

an an · lo is is

Chaj

by

6 hin of of in · sta ftr ot!

of of

fus · ve

H bout Wodi in be hang forta comi er ar · mo in,

> fathe faid go to with care,

f the

A were plead he d hear in I that trial thofe ther de de or or · Go

f to 6 m 6 bo

e-

y

li-

nd

al

a-

be

lo

ed

b-

d,

he

s, gh

rs

of

nels

a

n-

to 15,

is

to

ed

ys

2.

d-

rd

at 1-

us

ce

le

n

1 15

0,

nd

Z.

byconceiving the love of Christ to us, even the breadth 1666. and length, the depth, height and immenseness of that love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, and which is also the highest and sweetest motive of praise unto him that loved us, &c. and by holding forth the love of the faints to Christ, and teaching us to love him 'in fincerity, which is the very joy and exultation of heaven, Rev. v. 12. Worthy is the lamb, that was fain, to receive power, and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honour, and glory, and bleffing. And no other thing but the foul breathing forth love to Je-' fus Christ can rightly apprehend the joys of heaven.

He went to bed a little after eleven, and, rifing about five in the morning, he called his companion John Wodrow, and faid pleafantly, Up, John; you are too long in bed; you and I look not like men going this day to be hanged, fince we ly fo long. He fpent his time most comfortably in prayer and edifying discourse. His father coming to him that morning, his last words, after prayer and a little talk, were, 'That his fufferings would do more hurt to the prelates, and would be more edify-'ing to God's people, than if he were to continue in ' the ministry for 20 years.' And then he defired his father to leave him, else he would trouble him. And, faid he, I desire it of you, as the best and last service, to go to your chamber, and pray earnestly to the Lord to be with me on that scaffold: For how to carry there is my care, even that I may be strengthned to endure to the end.

About two o'clock he and his five fellow-lufferers His behawere carried to the scaffold; his countenance was most viour at pleasant and serene. When at the foot of the ladder his execuhe directed his speech northward to the multitude, who tion. heard him with great attention. His speech is printed in Naphtali, in which, among other things, he faid, that he heartily acknowledged his fainting in the day of trial, and in endeavouring to conceal his joining with those who rose in arms in their own defence; and farther expressed himself, 'Although I be judged and condemned as a rebel amongst men, yet I hope, even in order to this action, to be accepted as loyal before God. Nay, there can be no greater act of loyalty to the king, as the times now go, than for every man to do his utmost for the extirpation of that abominable plant prelacy, which is the bane of the throne

Cha

f Sp

6 0

6 th

· m

6 1

you

· yo f m

· ly f to

6 m

(R

4 G

6 y

the

cor 4 3

f c

6 0

6 y

ft

1 0

· 1

4 0

4.1

4 1

6 1

to 6

of

1666. ' throne and of the country, which, if it be not done. the throne shall never be established in righteousness, until thefe wicked be removed from before it. Sure I am these, who are now condemned as rebels against him, f by them, are such as have spent much time in prayer for him, and do more fincerely wish his standing, and have endeavoured it more by this late action, fo much condemned, than the prelates by condemning them to

Having done speaking to the people, he sung a part of Pfalm xxxi. and then prayed with fuch power and fervency, as drew tears from many. When taking hold of the ladder to go up, he faid, with a loud voice, I care no more to go up this ladder, and over it, than if I were going home to my father's house, And hearing a noise among the people, as he was going up, he called down to his fellow-fufferers, faying, Friends and fellow-fufferers, every step of this ladder is a degree nearer beaven. Then, having feated himself upon it, he said, I do partly believe, that the nobles, counsellors and rulers of the land, would have used some mitigation of this punishment, had they not been instigated by the prelates, so our blood lyes principally at the prelates door. But this is my comfort now, that I know my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at, &c. And now I willingly tay down my life for the truth and cause of God, the Covenants and work of reformation, which were once counted the glory of this nation; and it was for endeavouring to defend this, and to extirpate that bitter root of prelacy, that I embrace this rope (the executioner putting the rope about his neck.) Then hearing the people weep, he faid, Your work is not to weep, but to pray, that we may be honourably born through, and bleffed be the Lord that supports me. And that you may know the ground of my encouragement in this work, and what my hope is, I will read the last chapter of the bible.' Which having done, he faid, Here you see the glory that is to be revealed upon me; a pure river of water of life, &c. where the throne of God is and the lamb is in it, where his fervants serve him, and see his face, and his name is in their foreheads, and the Lord God giveth them light, and they shall reign for ever and ever; and here you fee my access to my glory and reward. Let him that is a-thirst come; and whosoever will let him take of the water of life freely. And here you fee also my welcome, The · Spirit

one,

un-

am

iim,

yer

and

uch

n to

art.

and

old

, I

rere

a-

wn er-

en.

do

of Jh-

0111 is

hat

my

ind

of 15,

200

nis

rk

17.72

e-

ad

he

on

he

rin

t, u at

0-

he

f fpirit and the bride fuy, Come. Then he faid, I have 1666. one word more to fay to my friends, (looking down to the scaffold) Where are you? You need neither lament me, nor be ashamed of me in this condition; for I may make use of that expression of Christ, I go to your father and my father, to your God and my God, to your king and my king, to the bleffed apostles and f martyrs, and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, to an innumerable company of angels, to the general affembly and church of the first-born, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant. And fo I bid you all farewell, for God will be more comfortable to you than I could be, and he will also now be more refreshing to me than ' you can be : Farewell, farewell in the Lord.' Then, the napkin being put over his face, he prayed a little within himself; after which he put up the cloath, laying he had one word more to fay, in order to fhew them the comfort he had in his death. And thus he faid, 'I hope you perceived no alteration or discouragement in my f countenance and carriage; and as it may be your wonder, fo I profess it is a wonder to myself; but I will tell you the reason of it. Besides the justness of my cause, this is my comfort, which was faid of Lazarus when he f died, that the angels did carry his foul into Abraham's bosom; so that, as there is a great solemnity here, of a confluence of people, a scaffold, a gallows, and people f looking out at windows; fo there is a greater and more folemn preparation in heaven, of angels to carry my foul to Christ's bosom.' And, after speaking a little to the same purpose, he concludes thus; And now I leave off to speak any more to creatures, and turn my ' speech to thee, O Lord! And now I begin my intercourse with God, which shall never be broken off. Farewell father and mother, friends and relations; farewell the world and all delights; farewell meat and drink; farewell fun, moon and stars : Welcome God and father; welcome sweet JESUS the mediator of the new covenant; welcome bleffed spirit of grace and God of all confolation; welcome glory, welcome eternal life, welcome death.' Then he defired the executioner not to turn him over till he should put his own shoulders over herst, which within a little he did, saying, 'O Lord, in-

Cha

ham,

of A

his way

wou

the

the-

ftra

prif

rest

if h

give

was

oth

ter

he

fon

and

Irv

we

vie

Mr

COL

701 tho

We

7th

34

Ir

wl

Va

di

lig

W

ur

pi h:

bi

1666. 6 to thy hands I commit my spirit; for thou hast redeemed my foul, Lord God of truth.'

History of I cannot but here insert a paragraph of an English historian, in which he says, Were the compleat historians arts, sensible of the pathetick and sublime in eloquence, they would own there is nothing like it (viz. the last words of this martyr, from farewell, &c.) in whatever they have seen of antiquity; and, it being a suffering minister's dying words, adds a truth to the beauty, which cannot be met with in profane learning. This, adds he, is one of the covenant-martyrs, which the Scots curates gave over to damnation, tho' I doubt not every good christian, after reading the divine exultation of Mr. Mac-Kail, will be ready to say to them, 'Be my portion with this good man, and take ye your lot with one another.'

His cha-

Thus died Mr. Hugh MacKail, a youth of about 26 years of age, singularly pious, and of no small share of learning. He had seen the world. Never was a death more lamented; for, among all the spectators, there was scarcely an eye that did not run down with tears. It is said that he used to fast one day in the week, and had frequently before this signified to his friends the impressions he had of his dying in this manner. His share in the rising was known to be small. And, when he spoke of his comfort and joy in death, heavy were the groans of those who were present.

The commissioner's progress.

resolved upon a progress through the west and south, that he might come at the bottom of some imaginary conspiracy and plot; but no discoveries could be made. He came first to Glasgow, and from thence to the town of Ayr, with a committee of noblemen and others, who were vested with a justiciary power.

Twelve more condemned.

Accordingly the earl of Kelly, lieutenant-general Drummond, Charles Maitland of Haltoun, and James Crichton brother to the earl of Dumfries, fat down in judgment at Ayr on the 24th of December, two days after the execution of Mr. MacKail. Twelve more of the prisoners were brought before them, who were found guilty of treason, and ordered to be executed at Ayr, Irvine and Dumfries.

banged at execut Ayr. Mach

Thursday the 27th of December was appointed for the execution of James Smith, Alexander MacMillan, James MacMillan, George MacCartney, John Short, John Graam,

7.

e+ li-

ns

ev

ds y

ot

ne

0i-

C-

n

1-

6 ρf

h

e

d .

e

e

bam, John Muirhead and Cornelius Anderson, at the town 1666. of Ayr. But the executioner, being unwilling to embrue his hands in the blood of these men, got out of the way. And the provoft, not being able to find one that P. Wala would undertake the hateful work, proposed that one of ker of the eight should have his life on condition of executing p. 133. the other feven. Accordingly, in the morning, the magifrates went to prison and laid the proposal before the prisoners. Upon which Cornelius Anderson faid, if the rest would forgive him he would do it. They answered. if he did it, they should wish him repentance and for-He was kept intoxicate till the execution was over. When he came off the gibbet, the boys and others stoned him out of the town. His conscience after this troubled him, every one shunned him, at last he retired to Ireland, where he built a little house in fome common place near Dublin, and there his house and he were afterwards burnt to ashes.

James Blackwood and John MacCoul were executed at Four at Irvine on the 31st of December. Some of these sufferers Irvine were ignorant, and very much discouraged at the near and views of eternity; but, by the pains taken by the minister fries. Mr. Nisbet, who visited them, they died full of joy and courage, to the admiration of all who were prefent. John Grier and William Welfh, the remaining pair of those condemned at Ayr, were executed at Dumfries on Wednesday the 2d of January 1667. And thus, from the 7th of December to the 2d of January, were no less than 34 executed out of 40.

The steddiness of William Sutherland, executioner at Behavior Irvine, is too remarkable not be recorded here; for, of the when the executioner at Ayr deserted, nothing could pre-bangman vail with him to supply his place.

He came of poor parents in Strathnaver, the wildest own declapart of the north Highlands, and had no education till ration. after he came to be executioner at Irvine, and then with Woddifficulty he learned to read English, and took great de- row, V. light in his bible; and the more he became acquainted I. B. 2. with it, the more he began to fcruple to execute any, unless he was clear they deserved to die. When he was prelled to go to Ayr his scruples increased, because he had heard the prisoners were godly men, persecuted by the Bishops, whom, fays he, I never liked fince I loved my These words, Heb. iv. 12. made great impres-

at Irvine.

216

1666. fion upon him, fo that he was refolved not to have a hand in that execution, Ayr.

Forced to He was brought from the church before the provoft of Irvine, and, refuling to go to Ayr, was put in prison till Monday night, when a ferjeant with fix foldiers came from thence to fetch him ; but, still perfisting in his refufal, he was remanded to prison till next morning, when they forced him to go. And, being then brought before the provolt of Ayr, he continued resolute to have no hand in executing the prisoners, notwithstanding all the promifes that were made him; fo that he was committed again to prison, curate.

Baffles the Upon this one Mr. White, a curate, came to persuade him to do his office, faying, Don't you know that thefe men are guilty of rebellion? And that rebellion is as the fin of witchcraft? To which he artwered, That the rebellion fooke of there was Saul's rebellion against the immediate command and revealed will of God. In short. he so baffled the curate, that, instead of answering him. he faid, Away with thee, the devil is in thee, and thou hast dealing with familiar spirits. To which William replied, If the devil be in me, he is an unnatural devil; for, if he was like the reft, he would bid me take as many lives as I could, that he might get many fouls; but the spirit that is in me will not suffer me to take good mens tives .

His condust before lord Kelly, 66.

He was next brought before the lord Kelly, the provost, and others; and, after they had threatned and ridiculed him, the boots were called for. Then he faid, You may bring the boots and spurs too; you shall not prevail. therefore threatned to pour a cruse full of melted lead upon his hands; but, when they faw how ready he was to receive it, they were aftonished. Then lord Kelly tried what wheedling might do; but all proved ineffectual. And, observing what pertinent answers he gave, the lieutenant-general faid, Tell me, quickly, who learned you theleaniwers; I perceive you have got a paper from some of these rebellious ministers, and have got your answers perquire. William faid, 'Not fo, my lord; but God, that faid, Fear not; when ye shall be brought before kings and rulers, for my fake, it shall be given you in that hour what you shall say. I will give thee a mouth and wisdom, that thine adversaries shall not be able to answer: He makes his promise good to me.' Then Leveral gentlemen faid, Away with him; the devil is in him ?

Chap bim, Spok

faid, mout · Ev & ma

col me " me it i

no b with hang you chap the f God the t devil place > pere and But t " WC

fle the the · fo

H ers v a cap findi their hang flock thou " the wa no

br m in in 6 th

" aff · C

G

him, he has dealing with familiar spirits. To this he 16661 spoke as to the curate. Then the lieutenant-general faid, Tell me, quickly, who put these words in your mouth, else you shall be hanged. To which he replied. Even HE who made Balaam's afs to speak and reprove the madnefs of the prophet; and marvel not, for he that could make a dumb ass to speak, can much more make me a reasonable creature to speak. It is he that gave me these answers, and likeways forbids me to do this: it is he and no other.' Then lord Kelly faid, he thinks no better sport than to bring scripture to confound us with it, but you shall rue it when you are going to be hanged. To this he answered, If this confound you. you shall be better confounded yet; read ye never that chapter, I Cor. i. 26. How that not many wife men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called; but God hath chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the things that are might, &c. Then faid Kelly, take the devil out of my fight, and put him in the narrowest place of the stocks. At the same time the provost whispered him in the ear, and offered to give him 50 dollars, and fuffer him afterwards to return to the Highlands. But the honest man answered with a loud voice, 'What, would you have me fell my conscience? Where can I ' flee from God? Remember Jonas fled from God, but the Lord found him out, and ducked him over the lugs; ' so shall he me if I go over the light of my conscience.

He was put therefore in the stocks. Then four soldi-Put in the ers were sent, and, having charged their pieces, brought stocks. a cap to cover his face, and threatned to shoot him; but sinding him so undaunted as to open his breast to receive their sire, one of them said he shall not be shot, but hanged and given to the dogs. While he was in the stocks, where he suffered much, some asked him what he thought of the bishops. His answer was, 'I truly think His the bishops take more on them than Christ did, who thoughts was a better preacher than any of them; for he would of the bishop not meddle with dividing the inheritance among the shops. The being a spiritual teacher resused to meddle with civil-law. But why will our bishops sit in parliament, and go in before earls? I am informed they sit and ride in parliament, and judge in worldly affairs; they have their coaches to ride in, but neither Christ nor his apostles had them; they are lords over God's heritage; but our Saviour says to his ministers,

. The

Ee

fon me fu-

e a

oft ore no

he

de ese

re-

rt,

ou e-

l, ne ns

ı,

ay Y

ad as

ly 1.

il ie

es it

t

h

0

12

,

2.3

Ch

rifi

thi

tha

of

acc

the

to

is

wa

cafi

me

kne

the

the

me

all

the

gai

ed

of

on,

Tui

ing

pro

4.

cor

ed

low

got

cor

afte

We

arn

ing

dea

kin

5.

ma

for

fwe

the

1 1

$666. The princes of the gentiles exercife dominion, but it shall not be fo among you, but he that will be greatest shall be servant of all. The bishops are like the scribes and pharifees, against whom the Lord pronounced many a woe. Wo be to you scribes and pharisees, ye love the chief feats in the synagogues, so love our bishops the chief seats in parliament. - Wo be to you scribes and pharisees, for ye love to wear long robes, and to be called of men Rabbi: The bishops desire side gowns, and a man to bear up their tails too, and they think they never get their right stile, till they be called my lord, and some of them your grace : You give grace to a graceles face : They oppress the poor people to feed their own bellies; for which the Lord pronounces many a woe against them.' Then said they, Timothy and Titus were To which he replied, they were preaching bishops, but not bishops over whole dioceses. And, as the apostle says, I Tim. iii. A bishop should be blameless, the husband of one wife, so I think a preaching bishop

Then they asked what he thought of the King? He faid, Would you have me speak treason? The King is set over us all by God, and all his subjects should pray for him, and defend his person and government, and obey him in all things according to the word of God. But I wish his majesty and all kings may take good heed to the law of the Lord, &c.

Still reso-

berty.

His

thoughts

of the king.

After a good deal of conversation to this purpose, he was next threatned to be rolled up and down in a barrel filled with iron pikes; however, he was in nothing terrified by his adversaries, but continued still resolute, till

Set at li- at last they thought proper to let him go.

Whereupon lord Eglinton fent for and examined him concerning what had befallen him, and said, Poor man, you did well in not doing what they would have had you. To this he replied, 'My lord, you say I have done well, whereas you persecute them from first to last; this tells me, in my experience, that you go against the light of your conscience. Wo will be to you that go against the light of your conscience.' Eglinton said, Know you not that I have kept you from being hanged, and are you telling me that? William replied, Keep me from drowning too, I will tell you the verity. Thus they made this poor man feel the fear of death, though he escaped the pain of it.

iot be

vant

fees,

Wo

ts in ts in

for bbi:

rup

heir

e of

bele a-

vere

bi-

, as

less,

hop

G?

NG.

uld

ent,

iod.

boo

, he

rrel

ter-

till him

an,

had

ave

to 1 2-

to

ce.'

om

re-

ity.

th,

nd

And thus I have given as particular an account of this 1666. riling, and of the executions that followed upon it, as this history will admit of. It is not to be expected Remarks. that I should offer a full vindication of this rising, and of those worthy and excellent persons who fuffered on account of it, that having been frequently done by others , and as I shall afterwards have an opportunity to shew how far defensive arms are to be justified. is therefore fufficient to observe, I. That this attempt was no premeditated thing, but entirely accidental, occasioned by the violent oppressions of the country by the merciless soldiers. 2. Upon their first attempt they knew they had nothing to expect but all the cruelties their perfecutors could inflict upon them; and therefore the law of felf-prefervation required them to take the best measures they could for their own security and defence, all application to the king being discharged by the laws 3. It is plain they had no deligns athen in being. gainst his majesty's person or government; all they wanted was the redress of their grievances, the enjoyment of their liberties, and the free exercise of their religion, as is evident from their treatment of Sir James Turner, when in their power, from their readily agreeing to a suspension of arms, and their having, in part, proposed their grievances, and fent them to the council. 4. When, in some respects, they were under terms of accommodation, they were fuddenly attacked, and obliged to relift force by force, when no indemnity was allowed them, and, when taken at the engagement, they got quarters and a promise of life; so that it was contrary to all rules to be treated as they were, after quarters given and taken; befides, several who were executed were not in the action, nor had born arms, but were only in company with the rest when going through the country, and some of them were put to death, merely to gratify Sharp's revenge, contrary to the king's express orders, that no more lives should be taken. 5. All of them owned the king's authority; so that, if matters be truly considered, they suffered, not so much for their riling in arms, as for their not renouncing their fworn covenant, and refusing to take the declaration; and therefore it is surprising how † Sir George MacKenzie could ^{} See Jus populi vindicatum, Hind let loofe, &c.

† N. B. Sir George MacKenzie was one of the advocates who pleaded for the first ten prisoners who were executed.

1666. could fay in his vindication, page 8. that, generally, no man was executed in this reign, who would fay God blefs the king; for it is well known that none of these perfons, who fuffered at this time, had their life offered to them on that condition. The perfecutors, faith the author of The memoirs of the church of Scotland, for fuch this very thing will prove them to be, as if they were fond of having it faid that these men died for religion, and not for being in arms, ordered several of them to be offered their lives if they would take and subscribe the DE. CLARATION to renounce the COVENANT. Whether they did this fraudulently, or fincerely, providence never gave them an opportunity to discover; nor whether, if the weakness of any had brought them to yield, they would have performed their promife to them; for not a man they ever offered it to, (I mean of those condemned to die for the rifing at Pentland) but refused it with indignation, and chose to die rather than to yield to that unconscionable proposal. So, in that point, they gained an undeniable testimony, that they suffered for religion, not accepting deliverance; for none of them esteemed renouncing the covenant to be any thing more or less than renouncing GOD and his church, to whom, and for which that covenant was first entred into. The very fame reasons which vindicate the REVOLU-TION 1688, are in favour of those who rose at this time; and, had their measures been as well concerted, and their fuccess been as great as their cause was just, nothing could have been faid against them. But though the attempt of these worthy men was not so successful as that of the revolution, all that can be faid is, that God's time was not yet come for rescuing a bleeding nation. 7. These valuable persons were fairly vindicated, when ever the nation recovered its senses, by the revolution parliament, in the act July 4th 1690. by which the forfeited persons were restored, not ex gratia, but ex justitia, and all decreets and sentences passed against them, by any judges, were declared void and null from the beginning. And thus I have given a pretty full account of this matter, which had no small influence upon the interest of episcopacy in Scotland; for, after so great a number of executions, prelacy gradually and fenfibly decayed till the revolution, when the prelates, the chief instruments of cruelty, were at last laid aside as a publick nufance, Whereas nothing more strengthned the intereli reff VIO Th beg jeć lich Iab of mil Bif fay is i for COL

fed

Wh

beg

for

we noc pla val bro fur ed, me thie

Itar oul bec po

cor the rest of presbyterians, than the cheerful and stedfast beha- 1666. viour of the sufferers, concerning whom it may be faid, The more they were oppressed, the more they grew. People began more generally to leave the churches, and the ejected ministers ventured to preach a little more publickly, particularly the reverend Mr. John Welsh, whose labours were bleffed with eminent suecess; multitudes reforted to hear them, and the poor honest people, by way of ridicule, were called Whigs, from wigg, the thin part of milk, which they were forced to drink in their wandrings. Bishop Burnet gives another original of this name; he fays, that, in the fouth-west counties of Scotland, there is scarce corn enough to serve out the year, and therefore people repair to Leith to buy of the stores that come from the north. And from a word Whiggam, ufed in driving their borfes, all that drove were called Whiggamors, and shorter, The whigs, which afterwards became the name of all the patrons of liberty.

CHAP. VIII.

n

dn

e

1,

-

S

t,

25

's

1.

n

272

r-

11-ıft

m

Ç-

at

ly

ef

Of the cruelties of Dalziel, &c. The forfeitures of gentlemen, &c. The disbanding of the army, and the bond of peace.— Mr. Mitchel's attempt on archbishop Sharp,— the proceedings of parliament,— the first INDULGENCE, and other things, to the end of the year 1669.

COON after the victory at Pentland, Dalziel, with 1667. a confiderable number of troops, marched to the welt, took up his head quarters in the town of Kilmar- Dalziel's nock, and grievously oppressed the country. From that cruelties. place and the neighbourhood was extorted upwards of the value of 50,000 merks. All whom Dalziel suspected were brought before him, and if they were not guilty, were fure to be held so. He passed what sentence he pleased, and tortured whom he had a mind. Many, upon mere suspicion of being at Pentland, were put into the thieves hole at Kilmarnock, where they were obliged to ltand night and day. And one of them, falling dangeroully fick, was not suffered to go out till two persons became bail to return him either dead or alive. The poor man dying, the fureties were forced to bring the corps to the prison-door, where it lay some time till the general thought fit to let it be interred.

When

David frot .

When one David Findlay, of the parish of Newmills, was brought before the general and examined, he acknowledged that he was by accident at Lanerk when Findlay colonel Walles and his men came that way, but did not join them; but, because he would not tell whom he saw there, Dalziel ordered him to be shot to death, stript naked, and left on the place, though he was no foldier, nor under his command; and though the poor man begged but one night's time to prepare for eternity, it was absolutely refused him.

A woman cruelly used.

Another instance of barbarity was acted on a poor woman in the neighbourhood of Kilmarnock. A party of foldiers ordered her to be put into a deep pit under the house of Dean, full of toads and other vile creatures, for no other reason, but because a man, whom they were in pursuit of, had run through her house, and she could not tell them what was become of him. Her shrieks were heard at a great distance; but none durst interceed for her, for fear of being fent to bear her company. Whether she died there, or what became of her, I know not.

the thumbs.

Sir Mungo Murray, who commanded fome foldiers hanged by under Dalziel, having intelligence of two men who had given a night's lodging to two of the Pentland people, ordered them, without any proof, to be bound with cords, and hanged up by the thumbs upon a tree all night; so that, in all probability, they would have died before next day, had not fome, even of the foldiers, been so humane as to cut them down, at the hazard of their own lives. How fad must the case of the country be, when the army was permitted to exercise such cruelties upon poor innocent people! Mean while the poor whigs, either fled abroad, or concealed themselves in dens and caves of the earth, to escape the fury of the times, this being the severest winter of persecution Scotland had known for a long time.

Sir William Bannantyne's cruelties.

Much about this time Sir William Bannantyne was fent with a confiderable party to Galloway, where he committed excessive cruelties, and took free quarters This party came to the house of wherever he pleafed. Roger Gordon of Holm, confumed his victual and sheep, though nothing could be laid to his charge. From thence they went to the house of Earlestoun, which they made a garrison of, and from whence they sent parties through the parish and round the neighbourhood. And because one David MacGill had, by his wife's means, escaped esca bou for ed; afte Som hear and com

Cha

man Dal Car leaft and liam have exce wor bert the

mou

coul

Lona

1 keep In blick mift to n Sir I calle neck kept and banc Was. land of th let t afhar Stanc to W

In fl

Gc.

escaped in womans clothes, they took the poor woman, 1667. bound her, and put lighted matches between her singers for several hours; the torture made her almost distracted; she lost one of her hands, and died in a sew days after. They pillaged the country at their pleasure. Some they brought to their garrisons, though under heavy sickness, stripped them almost naked by the way, and threw them into nasty places without the least accommodation.

The foldiers exacted many fines in the most arbitary Fines eximanner. Thus, from two countrymen in the parish of alled.

Dalry, they raised about 363 l. Scots. In the parish of Carsphairn, Gilbert Monry in Marbrack, without the least alledged fault, had 50 merks imposed upon him; and, when he asked the reason of his being fined, Sir William Bannantyne replied, Because you have gear, and I must have a part of it. Alexander Gordon of Knokbreck suffered exceedingly; John Gordon in Carnevel had his estate worth 16000 merks taken from him, and his brother Rabert, who succeeded him, had his house often spoiled by the soldiers, and was himself forced to wander in the mountains. In short, they made all the havock they could; so that the gentleman was forced to retire to London, and, after he returned in 1683. was obliged to keep concealed till 1687.

In the parish of Balmagie, Sir William being in a publick house, and attempting to commit lewdness with the miltrefs, he struck her husband almost dead for offering to make refistance; and a gentleman in company feizing Sir William, and proving too hard for him, Bannantyne called in the foldiers, who took the gentleman, tied him neck and heel, bound his hands behind his back, and kept him on the ground in that posture all Saturday night, and part of the fabbath, till his friends came and gave band for him. The reader must observe this gentleman was no whig, but had been with the king's forces at Pent-Bannantyne and his party drank in the house most of the Lord's day, and, when they could drink no more, let the liquor run on the ground, and rifled the house. In short, his oppressions, rapes, adulteries, murders, Gc. were fo many, that the managers themselves were ashamed of him. The reader will find many more in-Stances of this nature in Naphtali, edit. 1. p. 291, Oc. to which I must refer him.

Thefe

Chap

bargb

tembe

tation

he h

was I

ther

neare

vears

next

Ja

fome

ed th

parlia

mer.

dom

his re ed at a hal

Afte

confi

to w tains

time

take

wher

lengt

itrun

Glen his c

by r

Scott estat

was char

R

224

These hardships continued on the west and south of Scotland till the beginning of June, when a squadron of the Dutch fleet came into the Frith, fo that the army was obliged to march into the east country to guard the coaft.

Other op-

But many other hardships were put upon good people pressions. by others as well as by the army. Many were imprisoned upon mere suspicion, as James Grierson of Dalgoner and John Hamilton of Aldstain, and one Carmichael, though nothing could be proved against any of them.

Gordon of Ro-

John Gordon of Largmore, with his brother-in-law William Gordon of Robertoun, being at Pentland, William was bertoun. killed, and John forely wounded; fo that, through the loss of blood, and lying in the fields some nights after the engagement, he died a few days after he got to his own house, and thereby escaped the fury of the persecutors, who were rosolved to carry him to Edinburgh in a litter. Mris. Mary Gordon of Robertoun was grievously harraffed after the death of her husband and brother. chiefly by the instigation of the curate of the place. We shall afterwards meet with more of the sufferings of this family.

Kirkco of Sundaywell.

The family of Sundaywell suffered not a little on this occasion. James Kirkco of Sundaywell had, during the last fix years, gone through a series of oppressions, by fining, quartering of foldiers, and the like. Last October he was forced to disperse his family, and to wander from place to place to avoid the depredations and cruelties of the foldiers, which made him fuspected to have been at Pentland, though that could never be made appear. However, he was forced to leave the kingdom for the space of three years, and, after his return, he was harrassed by a process of forfeiture; but a comfortable death put an end to all his forrows.

James land.

James MacCleland, who succeeded him in the lands of MacCle- Sundaywell, being only suspected, was forced to flee to the mountains, when only 16 years of age, where he and fcveral others kept concealed from November till the 15th of February this year, that he was apprehended by a party of Sir William Bannantyne's men, brought to their garrison at Earlestoun, and put in a vault with other priso-Sir William most cruelly tortured him with fiery matches between his fingers, to force him to confess what he was entirely ignorant of. In short, he was carried prisoner from place to place, and at last to Edinburgh;

fame and he l hold he w tion пнаг

ther Terr tember, he, with 15 others, were banished to the plantations, because he refused the declaration. Mean while he happily broke prison and escaped. This gentleman was harrassed by processes, sines, imprisonments and other oppressions, for many years. But that which went nearest his heart of all, was his sinful compliance, some years after this, in taking the test, of which oath in the next volume.

James Callane merchant in Dumfries was forfeited, James fometime after Pentland, though it could never be prove Callane. ed that he was there; he sustained great losses by the parliament sine, and other exactions by Sir James Turmer. Upon his being declared rebel he lest the kingdom, and lived seven years in the East-Indies; and at his return he was taken by Claverhouse, and imprisoned at Dumfries 14 months, and at Edinburgh a year and a half, and then banished to Carolina, where he died. After his death, his wife and daughters, for their non-conformity, were deprived of their goods, and forced to wander up and down through the hills and mountains for three years and a half.

Robert Lenox of Plumpton suffered likeways at this Robert time; for his estate, worth 2000 merks yearly, was Lenox, taken from him, and he forced to flee into England, where he continued as a wanderer for three years. At length he went with his family to Ireland, but, being instrumental in getting a presbyterian minister settled at Glenevie, he was excommunicated by the bishop and his official, fined upwards of 430 L. sterling, and thereby reduced almost to beggary. At last he ventured to Scotland; and, though a papist was in possession of his eltate, yet he, having produced the charter of his lands, was put in prison, and when he got out lived upon charity till the revolution. One Thomas Lenox of the Thomas same place met with peculiar hardships, both before Lenox. and after Pentland. By exactions and imprisonments he lost above 679 L. besides a years crop and his houfhold furniture, and that without any process. One time he was imprisoned at Edinburgh 33 weeks, and at another 3 months, for refuling the test.

While these things were thus carried on, a conven-A contion of estates met at Edinburgh, on the 23d of Ja-vention of nuary, in which, as Burnet relates, the king, by a spe-estates.

1667. cial letter, appointed duke Hamilton to preside, and, in a letter to lord Rothes, ordered him to write to Sharp to stay within his diocese, and to come no more to E. dinburgh. Upon this, the historian fays, Sharp was struck with so deep a melancholy, that he shewed as great an abjectness under this slight disgrace, as he had shewed insolence before when he had more favour. The convention, according to my author, laid on a subfidy for the army, amounting to 64,000 L. monthly, for a year's time, and, in the excess of their loyalty, offered to maintain all the forces the king should be pleased to raise: So that a blank was put in his majesty's hand to raise and keep up as great a standing army as his arbitrary counsellors should, for their own ends, advise him to.

Drum. mond goes to court. P. 240.

Ibid.

The bishops and their party used all their interest to keep up the standing army. 'Accordingly, when the convention was over, lord Rothes fent up Drummond, as Burnet tells us, to represent to the king the ill affections of the western parts;' for nothing could be more averie to prelacy than they were. Drummond proposed, as an expedient, the pressing of the declaration, and the keeping up of a standing army. Burnet says, 'A slight accident happened, that raised a jest which spoiled his The king flung the cover of the letter from Scotland into the fire, which was carried up in a flame, and fet the chimney on fire; whereupon it was faid, That the Scottish letter had fired Whitehall. And it was answered, The cover had almost set Whitehall on fire, but the contents would certainly fet Scotland all on a flame.'

The king's letter.

The king was prevailed with by Lauderdale to fend his letter to the council, dated March the 12th, in which he impowered them, 1. To tender the oath of allegiance and the declaration unto fuch active and leading persons of the disaffected party as they should sufpect, and to secure the recusants. 2. To emit a proclamation, requiring all within the most disaffected shires to bring in, by a limited day, all arms and powder, under what penalties the council should see proper, only allowing gentlemen to wear their fwords. feize all serviceable horses belonging to disaffected or suspected persons, after being apprised by honest and indifferent persons. 4. To model a militia of horse and foot to join the regular forces, that they might speedily proceed to put the kingdom in a posture of defence defer that from orde of el in t they guilt

Man

Cha

puri on one nerk brig ry i yen full FI · ft 6 d 6 a if a mu arn By Wit > fac an ha ge We W

the

abo

th ki

Ĭu P r

0

1

f

fence. 5. To provide arms and ammunition for the 1667? defence of the kingdom. 6. To take effectual course that every parish secure the persons of their ministers from violence and affronts. And, 7. to give present orders for the criminal pursuit of all heritors, or men of estates, all preachers and military officers, who were in the late rebellion, before the justice-general, that they may be tried according to law, and, being found guilty, be forfeited without delay,

This letter being read in council on the 20th of The coun-March, they appointed a warrant for the advocate to cil's propursue heritors, &c. in terms of the seventh article; and ceedings on the 25th two proclamations were published, the upon it. one for bringing in of arms from the shires of Ayr, Lanerk, Renfrew and Wigtoun, and stewartry of Kirkcudbright, against the first day of May, and that under very severe penalties. One pretence for this was, to prevent invading ministers of the gospel, who were lawfully admitted preachers among them. It was added, That if any injury or affront was done to their minifter, the parishioners who shall suffer the same to be done, and not oppose the same, shall be reputed as art and part of the same crime and violence.' So that if a curate's house should be robbed, his parishioners must be charged with the robbery. There were but a few arms brought in, notwithstanding this proclamation. By the other proclamation, of the same date, all who withdrew from publick ordinances, and did not keep their own parish churches, were forbid keeping horses Though this gave fome fatilabove 100 merks value. faction to the prelates, yet it did not fill their churches; and, had this been rigoroully executed, the king would have a had good many fine horses from many of the managers, nay, and from some of the bishops themselves, who were not very punctual in their attendance on publick That same day they answered the king's letter, acquainting him with what they had done, and farther intended, as to every article of it. After which, there does not feem to have been any more federunts of council till the 6th of June.

When the council met at that time, a letter from the Letter king, dated the 4th of May, was read, wherein his ma- and projesty recommended to them the encouragement and clamation Support of the fober and orthodox clergy. Whereupon a concerning proclamation was published, much of the same import the clergy.

Cha

the

Rot

fore

tune

colo

Ma:

geic

Can

Wel

Cha

Dat

Will

Gill

Gri

Sun

chij

tric

in goo

Wil

der

Da

Me Fol

Ga

Wi

we

bei

the Bef

urg

the

juf

tife

COL

jul

· jul

pro

ed:

. . .

parishioners were made liable for all the damages done to ministers. That the fober and orthodox clergy, as they were now called, by their violent persecuting temper, together with their immoralities, brought upon themselves the odium of the people, is very certain, and consequently there was no other way to support them but by the fecular arm, from which all their authority was derived. It was indeed hinted in the king's letter, and afferted in the proclamation, that many affronts had been given to those sober and orthodox clergy; and it was proper, for the designs of the managers, that such things should be alledged, let the proof of them be ever so slender.

That same day another letter from the king, of the same date, was read, pressing, in the warmest terms, the forseiting of those who had been in the late rising, and had hitherto made their escape.

bert
Murray
comes from
court,

But before any thing could be done in this affair, Sir Robert Murray came from court, to get a true account of the state of the country, and, in the month of June, was admitted to the office of justice-clerk. While he was in Scotland, all pains were taken, by the prelates and their military affessors, to shew the necessity of continuing the forces now in pay, there being a design on foot for dibanding the army. But this was not thought proper to be put in execution, till once peace was concluded with the Dutch.

The case of the Pentland prisoners.

Mean while several of the Pentland prisoners were set at liberty upon their signing the declaration, and some favour was shewn to other gentlemen under consinement, such as William Lawrie tutor of Blackwood, and James Hamilton of Aikenhead. And on the 11th of July the council gave the following orders relating to the Pentland prisoners, viz. 1. That they who refuse the allegiance and declaration be sent, with the first opportunity, to Barbadoes.

2. That the two prisoners, who were willing to take the allegiance and declaration should have the king's pardon.

3. That they who were taken up upon suspicion should remain in prison till farther examination. And,

4. that these suspected persons should be set at liberty upon their taking the allegiance and declaration.

Account of After these things, on the 15th of August, the earl of forseitures Athol justice-general, and Sir John Hume of Rentoun justice-of such as clerk, with the earls of Linlithgow and Dumfries, held a justice-court at Edinburgh, before whom Sir John Nishet,

the

3 d

ne

ey

85

t-

ne

d.

in

to 10

be

ne

ıd

ir it

e,

ıd

0

h

t

t, il

.

e

,

the king's advocate, produced a commission, signed by 1667. Rothes the commissioner, for pursuing criminally, and forefeiting the following persons in their lives and fortunes, as being in the late infurrection in the west, viz. colonel James Wallace, major Joseph Lermont, William Maxwell of Monerief younger, John Macleland of Barfcob. John Gordon of Knockbreck, Robert Macleland of Barmageichan, James Cannon of Burnsbaloch younger, Robert Cannon of Montdrog at younger, John Welsh of Star, -Wellh of Cornley, - Gordon of Garrary in Kells, Robert Chalmers brother to Gadgirth, Henry Grier in Balmaclellan, David Scot in Irongray, John Gordon in Middleton of Dalry, William Gordon there, John Mac Naught there, Robert and Gilbert Cannons there, Andrew Dempster of Carradow, James Grier on of Dargoner (who was delayed) James Kirco of Sundaywell, - Ramfay in mains of Arnifloun, John Hutchison in Newbottle, - Row chaplain to Scotstarbet, Patrick Listoun in Calder, with his fon Patrick, James Wilkie in mains of Cliftounhall, William Muir of Caldwell, the good-man of Caldwell, Mr. John Cuningham of Bedland, William Porterfield of Quarreltoun and his brother Alexander, Robert Ker of Kersland, William Lockhart of Wicketshaw David Pe in Pokellie, and the following Ministers, viz. Mesheurs Gabriel Semple, John Semple, John Guthrie, John Welfb, Samuel Arnot, James Smith, Alexander Peden, --- Orr, William Veitch, --- Paton, John Grooksbank, Gabriel Maxwell, John Carstairs, James Mitchel, and William For Syth.

Now the reader will observe, that, in this lift some Remarks. were dead, as Mr. Grookshank, and others of them had no being; nay, several of their names were corrected in the indemnity which came down in the end of the year. Besides, all these persons were absent, and the advocate urged to have fentence of death passed upon as many of them as he thought fit to profecute; and, the better to justify this illegal proceeding, having before-hand practised upon the lords of session, produced their answer in court to a query he had proposed, viz. Whether or not a person guilty of high treason may be pursued before the justices, though he be absent and contumacious, so that the justices, upon citation and sufficient probation and evidence, may pronounce sentence and doom of forfeiture if the dittay be proved? To which the lords of fession gave it as their opinion, 'That, upon the justices citation, and sufficient probaf tion taken before the judges and affize, they may pro-

Chaj

with all h adva

made

ter,

emp

two

was rity

an e

and to h pel 2

nage a li

was

the

coul

resp

for peri

BO

who poi

whi

6 0

« m a as

· h ir ir

· to

6 TI

· if

· is

· d

e n

6 6

· f

6 b

. 1

V

A

1667. ' ceed and pronounce sentence thereintill, and forfeiture against the persons guilty of high treason, though they be absent and contumacious.'

> Things being thus prepared, the advocate purfued the following persons, viz. colonel Wallace, major Lermont, Barfcob, Mr. John Welfb, Mr. James Smith, Patrick Lifton, his fon, and Quarreltoun. It was with difficulty they could get a jury, and the one they got was made up of officers in the army, the general's servants, and some papists. Sir James Turner was the first witness that was examined, though it is plain he could not well * purge himself of malice, and was afterwards condemned for his oppressions, as we shall hear. Sentence was pronounced the same day, by which all these eight were forseited in life and fortune. Next day, August the 16th, William Muir of Caldwel, John Caldwel of Caldwel younger, Robert Ker of Kersland, Mr. John Cuningham of Bedland, Alexander Porterfield, Maxwel younger of Moncrief, Barmagachan, Montdrogat, Robert Chalmers, and Messieurs Gabriel Semple, John Guthrie, Alexander Peden, William Veitch, John Grooksbank, and Patrick Mac Naught, had the same sentence passed upon them; but two years after this Robert Chalmer obtained the king's pardon. Why the same sentence was not passed upon Mr. Gabriel Maxwel till the 22d of December 1671. cannot now be accounted for. The rest in the advocate's commission were delayed till the month of November, when it does not appear they were profecuted, the indemnity and bond of peace being before that in agitation, Some time after this Caldwel's estate was given to Dalziel, Kersland's to Drummond, Lermont's to Mr. William Hamilton of Woolshaw, Quarreltoun's and his brother's to Mr. John Hamilton of Halcraig.

Civil al-

By this time feveral civil alterations were made, which terations. tended to make things run in a moderate channel. In England Clarendon's party were losing ground; and of late a difference arose betwixt Lauderdale and several great men in Scotland, particularly with duke Hamilton, Rothes, Newburgh, Linlithgow, Dalziel, the officers of the army, and the most of the bishops. Those who adhered to Lauderdale, in the council, were the earls of Argyll, Tweeddale, Kincardine, lord Cochran, Sir Robert Murray, and others, Lauderdale had fuch interest with

According to the law of Scotland in criminal cases, before a witness be admitted, he must swear that he has no malice against the defendant, and that he has received no good deed, or promise of good deed, to swear,

8

re

y

he

ıt,

m, ld

rs

s.

d,

of

s,

y,

e,

d,

d,

t,

4-

d

d I.

s

r,

1-

١,

7+

.

h

n

f

1

1,

f

.

f

•

lt

h

S

with the king, as to be able to keep his ground against 1667; all his enemies, and several alterations were made to his advantage. The earl of Airly and lord Cochran were made counsellors, Sir Robert Murray justice-clerk. And,

At last, when peace was made with the Dutch, a let-Army difter, dated the 13th of August, came from the king, per-banded. emptorily ordering the army to be disbanded, except two troops of horse and Linlithgow's soot-guards, which was complied with. And by this means Rother's authority as general, as well as his commission, was now at an end. The prelates were greatly distatisfied therewith; and particularly the archbishop of Glasgow was reported to have said, Now that the army was disbanded, the gostal around an out of his discase.

pel would go out of his diocefe.

When the army was disbanded matters were ma-Band of naged with some moderation, and the presbyterians had peace. a little breathing. But the first question that arose, was, How should the country be kept in peace without the army? This gave occasion to both parties in the council to endeavour to the utmost to prosecute their respective designs. The bishops and their party were for violently pressing the declaration upon all suspected persons. Tweeddale and the other party proposed A BOND of peace to be taken and subscribed by all to whom it should be tendered, which last carried their point by a majority on the 13th of September. Of the which bond the tenor follows.

' A. B. do engage, bind and oblige myself, to keep the publick peace, under the pain of a year's rent of all and whatfomever lands and heritages pertain to ' me, to be paid in case I contravene: And also I bind and oblige me, that those who are, or at any time hereafter shall be, my men-tenants and servants, dur-' ing the time they shall be men-tenants and servants to me, shall keep the publick peace, under the pains respective after-mentioned, to be paid toties quoties, ' if they, or any of them, shall do in the contriar: That is to fay, of the payment of the full value of a year's duty payable to me for the time by the tenant or teants that shall happen to contravene: And for my fervants, in case any of them shall contravene, the full value of a year's fee. Which fums aforefaid I bind and oblige me, my heirs, executors and fuccelfors, in the case aforesaid, to pay the commissioners of 1667. the treasury, treasurer or treasurer-depute, who shall happen to be for the time, for his majesty's use. And consent thir presents be registrate in the books of privy-council.

This bond became a matter of warm debate among Remarks. conscientious people, who feared an oath; for the words were so general, as at first view they seemed to contain. nothing inconsistent with presbyterial principles, yet they were so ambiguous, that the judge who tendered this bond might affirm, that they who subscribed it did homologate the present government both in church and To obviate this ambiguity an expedient was proposed by some, of a declaration of the subscribers fense and meaning, with a consent of the imposers to it, and a protestation taken against the supposed unlawful meaning of the words, and all done by way of instrument in the hands of a publick notary, before witnesses. But my author could not tell whether this method was taken. They who pleaded for the bond faid, That it contained nothing but what every person is antecedently obliged to by the second table of the law, even to keep the publick peace. It was urged, on the other hand, that when two persons enter into a solemn treaty, they are bound not only to all moral duties lying upon them before, but even to every article of the treaty; though to Accordingly fome took it, and their own detriment. others refused; which last were represented by Sir George MacKenzie, and the Jacobites in after times, as a wilful obstinate people, for refusing such a reasonable thing, as to engage to keep the publick peace. But then it was Hind let faid in their vindication, ' 1. That this BOND of peace loofe, p was a confederacy with God's enemies, whom we should 529.66 reckon as our enemies, and hate them, because they hate him, Pfalm cxxxix. 21. 2. This cannot be taken in truth, judgment and righteousness, because of the fallacy and ambiguity of the terms; for there are divers kinds of peace, some of duty, and others not. It must then be peace rightly qualified; for we can profess and pursue no peace of confederacy with God's enemies, no peace inconsistent with the fear of God, no peace obstructing the gospel or testimony, --- no peace prompting to preposterous prudence, in palliating fin, or daub-ing defections with untempered morter, no peace inconjelty

wic cou fenf livin felli

Ch:

fifte

the mea

rate the nan with lacy

T

to b tion to a ed, don hou was the ved that beer cufe Ir

jesty

in Pther and com hou with exte

Sc ty, 1 very were abov gage lick ;

· T terat 11

d

i-

ls

n.

18

d

ď

IS

8 ul

1.

.

8

1-

y

ıt

e .

0 d

e

1

$

15

8 d

y . e

3

ft

d

0

fiftent with truth, &c. 3. If we farther inquire into 1667! their meaning by living peaceably, -it is plain they mean fuch a peaceble living as gives obedience to their wicked laws, and is a compliance with their established courses; such a peaceable living as is opposite to their sense of sedition, rebellion, schism, Gc. such a peaceable living as is contrary to the duties of our covenanted profession, as going to meetings, withdrawing from the curates, &c. which, according to them, is inconfistent with the publick peace. 4. This is contrary to our covenants, by which we are obliged to a constant contending with, and opposition to all the supporters of popery, prelacy, &c.

The council had likeways ordered some propositions to be fent to the king: Among others, that a proclamation be issued, bearing a general pardon and indemnity to all in the late rebellion, except those who were forseited, or under process of forfeiture, or who have since done violence to the persons of ministers, invaded their houses, or robbed them of their goods. This last clause was inferted to throw an odium upon all engaged in the late rising, although nothing like this could be proved against any of them. Whereas it was alledged, that some of the army personating these people had been thus employed, and so the innocent were falfly accufed.

In consequence of this an answer came from his ma- Indennijesty, with a proclamation of indemnity to all concerned b. in Pentland, except those mentioned, p. 229. and all other who were forfeited, or under process of forfeiture, and fuch as between this and the first of December next to come shall be found guilty of having robbed ministers houses, or committed violence on their persons; but with this express condition, that this pardon shall only extend to those who shall give bond for keeping the pub-lick peace before the 1st of January following.

Some made this observation concerning the indemni- Remarks, ty, that in the beginning it pardoned all, in the middle very few, and in the end none at all. The bond they were to give was much the same with that mentioned above, except that they were likeways exprelly to engage never to rife in arms against or without his majelty's authority, under the highest pains.

The council, on the 9th of October, ordered some al- Alteratiterations to be made in the names of the persons except- ons.

Gg

1667. ed in the king's proclamation of indemnity. Thus, find. ing there was no fuch person as - Row chaplain to Scotstarbet, they ordered that name to be scratched out, and Caldwel and Kersland to be defigned younger, Mr. Trail to be designed chaplain to Scotstarbet, and Paton to be called late preacher; which are proofs of their rafh. ness and inconsiderateness. The clause of non-resistance, in the bond to be figned by all who were to have the benefit of this indemnity, rendered it entirely useless to the most concerned, for few of them ever could comply with it.

Other alls

Jointly with the indemnity the council published their of council. act, of the same date, containing the names of the perfons, in the different shires, appointed to take subscriptions from those who claimed the benefit of the indemnity; and ordered all the prisoners to be dismissed upon figning the bond. The same day they took off the restraint that was upon persons in the western shires, as to their carrying arms, allowing fuch as should take the oath of allegiance, &c. that privilege. They likeways gave orders to all magistrates and ministers of justice, upon intimation made by the bishops, to apprehend all persons who were not only scandalous in their lives, but disobedient to ecclesiastical authority. In confequence of this, many, who could not fubmit to the ecclefiastical authority as then established, were harrassed and imprisoned, while papists, quakers, and the openly vicious, were fcandaloufly overlooked.

In November the council issued some orders for the ons of the better regulating the army, viz. that no officer or foldier shall levy money from any of the subjects, but by express order in writing from Sir William Bruce, for the · cels and fines, or others authorised by parliament, &c. that satisfaction be made for any abuse, and they who are guilty of making any abuse be punished. But these B. 2. No. and feveral fuch regulations were little looked after by the managers, and as little observed by the soldiers.

Some fet

30.

Upon taking the bond of peace feveral who were conat liberty fined 1665. were fet at liberty. Thus Sir Hugh Campbell of Cefnock, James Dunlop of that ilk, James Holborn of Menstry, the laird of Blackstoun, William Ralstoun of that ilk, Robert Halket, and major-general Montgomerie, were all released from their confinement.

Others kept confined.

Mean while other gentlemen were still kept confined without any reason given, such as Sir George Maxwel of NetherStew Edini Smith banif And west In 26th cond

Cha

Neth

west, ster, Dru Fam com earl and Befo pear vou und who thei 1 > to t pifts ry 1 par exe and wh

cil,

aga wr be ne wh Sci

> the hi Bi

8.

ıd-

to ut,

Ir.

ton

fh-

ce,

he

efs

ld

eir

T-

pii-

on

e-

as

he

y's

e,

s,

c-

d

y

-

y

0

e

72

f

Netherpollock, Cuning hamhead and Rowallan. Sir James 1667. Stewart and Sir John Chiefly were fent from the castle of Edinburgh to the tolbooth of Dundee. Mr. Alexander Smith was brought from Zetland*, whither he had been *p. 163. banished, to Leith, and presented before the council. And Mr. Hugh Peebles † was permitted to go to the †p. 177. west to settle his affairs.

In consequence of a letter from the king, dated the Sir James 26th of November, requiring them to examine into the Turner's west, the council appointed the lords Hallanter inquired west, the council appointed the lords Halkertoun, regi- into. fler, advocate, justice-clerk, Cochran, lieutenant-general Drummond, and Sir Robert Murray, to examine Sir James, and make report. Their report produced a commission from the council, December the 8th, to the earl of Nidsdale, lord Kenmure, the laird of Graigdarroch, and others, to make trial of Sir James's conduct, &c. Before this committee many gentlemen and others appeared, and gave clear evidence of a great many grievous and atrocious things against Sir James and those under his command, which not a little vindicated those who by these oppressions were driven to take arms in their own defence.

While this matter was under examination, the coun-Couneil's cil, in the month of December, ordered the clerk to write letter ato the two archbishops, to see that a list of all the pabout the pists of the kingdom be given in to the council, by every minister's giving in a list of those in their respective parishes, that so the laws against papists may be put in execution. But the prelates had little zeal against papists, and therefore these orders were generally neglected; which could not but tend to the increase of popery, and to pave the way for a papist to mount the throne.

On the 12th of December a proclamation was emitted Proclaagainst that known book, intitled Naphtali, or, The mation awrestlings of the church of Scotland, ordering the same to gainst be burnt, and all copies of it to be brought in to the Naphtali, next magistrates by the 1st of February next, and any who had copies after that were to be fined in 10,000 l.
Scots. This book was composed by two very great men;
the reasoning part by Mr. afterwards Sir James Stuart of Goodtrees, one of the best lawyers of his time, and the historical part by Mr. James Stirling minister at Paisley.
Bishop Honnyman pretended to answer it; but the weakness

C

fH

be

te

fc

W

ir

th

ti

0

W

n

t

h

10

t

il

C

V

t k

t

N

i

t

0

r

2 f

t

. 0

1 7

t

4 7 1

1

118

ness of his performance was sufficiently exposed by Mr. Stuart, in that useful book, intitled Jus populi vindicatum.

On the 9th of January 1668, the council ordered Sir William Cuningham of Cuninghamhead to be brought from the castle of Stirling to that of Edinburgh, because of his business with the lawyers there; but, in less than two months time, he and the laird of Rowallan were remanded back to Stirling.

Mean while, on the 16th of January, the council re-The king's letter. ceived a letter from the king, requiring them to transmit an account, both of those who had, and of those who had not figned the bond of peace, and of the perfons who had been accessory to the late rifing, and had, or had not, accepted of the indemnity; and likeways requiring them to restrain conventicles, which were called rendevouzes of rebellion, and to execute the laws feverely against the ringleaders of such faction and schism.

But, before an answer was returned to this letter, the Act of council, on the last of January, ordered the magistrates of Edinburgh to execute the act and proclamation dated *p. 172. 17th November 1664 *. against outed or ejected ministers, and to take special care that none be permitted to remain within their liberties without a licence from the council, the archbishop of St. Andrews, or the bishop of Edinburgh, and requiring them to take special notice that no conventicles be kept in the city or liberties.

On the 20th of February the committee appointed concerning to examine into the conduct of Sir James Turner gave Sir James in their report, by which it appeared, that, upon informations from the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, given in upon oath, many illegal exactions had been made, and disorders committed; such as, quartering soldiers for levying fines and impositions; -- exacting cess, or quartering money, for more foldiers than were actually prefent ; --- fining fuch as lived orderly, as appears by ministers certificates ; -----fining fathers for their daughters having their children baptized by outed ministers;----fining in whole parishes promiscuously ;-----fining one The that lay a year bedfast; -----taking away cattle. reader may fee the whole report at large, and the defence that Sir James made, in my author's history; I have only excerpted these few particulars, from which he may form a judgment of what case the country must have been in when exposed to fuch oppressions; and, if fuch 3.

Mr.

um.

red

ght

use

lefs

llan

re-

nf-

ofe

er-

ad,

re-

led

ely

the

ted

ni-

ted

om

bi-

rial

li-

ted

ave

or-

in

ind

for

ar-

re-

ni-

ers

he

le-

I

uft

, if

ich

fuch things appeared only from the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, what addition must have been made to the number of his disorders, if the like information had been taken from the shires of Dumfries and Galloway?

We may well conclude that his defences were poor; He is diffor, when the council transmitted the report, together charged with them, to the king, he ordered him to be dischar-the serged his service; accordingly, on the 10th of March, he vice.

delivered up his commissions. Bishop Burnet seems to intimate, that he could have made a better desence than he did, had he been able to produce his papers in time. It is certain he affirmed, that all the commissions and instructions were taken from him by the rebels, when he was made prisoner, and that therefore he had nothing to shew in his own vindication; and it was thought that his severities were not by far so great as his instructions bore him out in.

'This inquiry, fays Burnet, was chiefly levelled at p. 246. ford Rothes and Burnet archbishop of Glasgow, to cast the odium of the late rebellion on their injustice and ill conduct. And it was intended that Turner should accuse them; but he had no vouchers to shew. were believed to be withdrawn by an artifice of lord Rothes; but, before the matter was ended, they in whose hands his papers were left fent them sealed up to his lodgings. however, he was by that time broken, and, being a man of spirit, would not then shew his vouchers, nor expose his friends; so that matter was carried no farther.' Now, when we consider that it was entirely owing to these and the like oppressions, that the poor people were forced to take arms in their own defence, and that so much blood was shed, the reader is to judge, whether the punishment inflicted was adequate to the crimes; whether the breaking of an officer or two, without making a publick example for deterring others, was a fufficient reparation for the mifchiefs that were the consequences of their conduct.

After the council had fent up the report against Tur-Answerner, on the 27th of February they returned an answer to the to the letter they received on the 16th of last month, letter, wherein they signify that the bond of peace was generally signed; that of those who were accessory to the late rebellion, 218 had accepted his majesty's indemnity, and 300 had refused. And, for the farther securing the peace of the kingdom, they proposed, 1. That a pro-

cla-

1668. clamation be iffued, discharging all persons who would not fign the bond of peace from wearing any kind of arms, and from keeping any horses above the value of 50 l. Scots. 2. That a farther time be granted for persons to come in and accept of the indemnity, by figning the bond required. 3. That his majelty may give warrant for a proclamation, wherein the names of all fuch of the rebels as shall not then take the bond may be inserted, and power may be granted to the magistrates to apprehend them; and that all who shall receive, or harbour them, may be declared rebels. They concluded, by fignifying that they can do no more against conventicles, and that they would see the laws put in due execution; and acquainted his majesty with what they had enacted on the last of January. Accordingly the council had permission to receive persons upon their figning the bond of peace.

Banantyne ordered to be tried.

On the 10th of March, when the king fignified his pleasure to have Turner dismissed his service, he ordered Sir William Bannantyne to be taken to an account for his conduct : Accordingly Sir William was imprisoned, and a committee appointed to examine his accounts; but, as the council came to no final resolution concerning him till the month of August, I shall therefore lay before the reader some of the principal occurrences in the mean while.

Procedings against conventicles.

Though hitherto there were few field-meetings, yet presbyterian ministers ventured to preach to considerable affemblies in private houses and barns, at the pressing follicitations of the people; which practice was a great eye-fore to the prelates and the other managers, who were at all pains to suppress them: Accordingly, May 7. Miller of Waxford was fined in 300 merks for being at a conventicle in the shire of Ayr, and obliged to give a bond for 1000 l. Scots, that neither he nor any of his family should frequent these meetings for the future. The same day the council gave orders for apprehending and imprisoning all ejected ministers, or others who should keep conventicles. And, on the 9th of May, all the officers and foldiers had orders to apprehend the faid ministers, dissipate their conventicles, and seize on the principal persons at such meetings; nay, and to feize upon any person they had a warrant for apprehending from a privy counsellor. And, the better to execute fed ma

ing

ed

Ch

1 and Jan Cu Ad

Jol

]

ton Jan ber clai Joh hea Jol

> Jo fon fon fon Ge Da

Fra mas Kin

fent bone to . Will ed mag

thou

cute these orders, the fines were as conveniently disposed of as they could.

The same day, May 9th, the council issued a procla- Persons mation, ordering all magistrates and officers of the stand- to be aping forces to seize the following persons, who refus- Prehended. ed to accept of the indemnity, viz.

In Carfphairn parish.

Nathanael Cannon, James MacMitchel, John, William and Alexander MacMillans, and John MacMillan junior, James MacKilney, John Logan, John Crawford, John Cuningham, John Hannay, George, James and ----MacAdams, GeorgeFerguson, DavidCubbison, WilliamSmith, John Wylie, Roger and Robert Malcolms.

In Dalry parish.

David Cannon, Edward, Robert and Andrew Crightons, James Ferguson, John MacHutcheon, John, James, William and John Welshes, Robert Wallet, Herbert and James Biggars, Thomas Smith, Robert Sinclair, John, Robert and David Curriers, Robert Colvin, John Hunter, John Wallet, John Wright, John Whitehead, James MacBirnie, John Wilson, Andrew Haining, John Gaw.

In the shire of Dumfries.

John Kirco, James Callane, James Grier, John Grierfon, John Law, William Harvey junior, George Wilfon, John Gilkerson, James Aitoun, Thomas Robertfon, Matthew Hamilton, Thomas Brown, John and George Jacks, Robert Rea, Patrick Murray, Robert Davidson.

In Lanerk parifb.

)

d

S

,

n

0

John Wilson, Thomas and James Hasties, James Fisher.

In Carluck parish.

William Loch, William and John Gilkersons, William Frame, Archibald, Robert and Gabriel Forrests, Thomas Martin, John Skouller, James Armstrong, William King, Archibald Hart, Robert Smith, William Brown.

As for the Pentland prisoners, Thomas Lenox, under Pentland sentence of death, was set at liberty upon signing the prisoners bond. Andrew Robertson got leave to transport himself banished. to New-England. John Bryce, William Ferguson and William Adam, for refusing to sign the bond, were banished to Virginia; nay, the council, a little after this, made a general order to banish all the prisoners who should refuse the bond, the king having referred every thing 1668, thing relating to the rebellion, as it was called, to their pleasure; and, at the desire of the prelates, particularly pressed them to rid the kingdom of preachers at conventicles: But, notwithstanding all these severe laws, conventicles increased.

Bruce's

Letters

Mr. Michael Bruce, a worthy minister from Ireland. and one who was not afraid to preach to great numbers sufferings. in houses, and sometimes in the fields, about the 2d or 3d of June was apprehended, in his own hired house, by captain G. Erskine. When he found his house in a manner besieged, he attempted his escape, but was forely wounded, and confined to the castle of Stirling. It was the 18th of June before he could be carried to Edinburgh, and, when confined there, none were permitted to speak with him unless in the presence of a privy counfellor. When he was examined he was always candid and open, without refuling to answer any question proposed to him.

Before he was brought to his trial, the council, on Torphi- lord Torphichen, and other heritors of West-Calder, and the 25th of June, ordered letters to be directed against then, &c. others to answer for harbouring, instead of apprehending, John Gilchrift, James Nimmo and Thomas Finlay, who were accessory to the rebellion in 1666. This process, being long in dependence, brought many innocent people to trouble.

But to return to Mr. Bruce. On the 2d of July he was brought before the council, and, owning that he had preached and baptized both in houses and in the fields, was sentenced to be banished out of the three kingdoms, and forced to fign a bond never to return upon pain of death. When about to leave the kingdom he was ordered to be fent prisoner to London, where he was confined to the Gatehouse; and, after continuing fome time there, was sentenced to go to Tangier in Africa. The reader must determine what to think of this Here, a Scotsman, who had been tried and condemned by the council in Scotland, gets a new fentence passed upon him at London. However, it seems, this good man met with some connivance, and retired after all to Ireland.

Notwithstanding these hardships upon presbyterian for an in-ministers in Scotland, the king this year allowed some dulgence. breathing to the non-conformists in England; and the earl of Tweeddale, in the month of June or July, called for f cenc conc be pr atten measi

Chaj

Th archb of Fi were wynd in at the ff Sharp in th tempt ration escape

Th shop I congr Sharp in thy the fir from them.

AJ

upon

offerin cover Edinb urbs, or wh city-g one o whom pointe that g ing fu ned at fpecia their :

Peo videnc

house

for some of the ejected ministers of Scotland, who were 1668; cencealing themselves, and made proposals to them concerning some favour and indulgence he hoped might be procured. The news was very agreeable; but the attempt of Mr. James Mitchel, a preacher, interrupted all measures of this kind for some time.

This Mr. Mitchel took a resolution to dispatch the Mr. archbishop of St. Andrews. Accordingly, on the 11th Mitchel's of July, when Sharp and Honnyman bishop of Orkney attempt. were going into a coach at the head of the Blackfriers wynd in Edinburgh, Mitchel discharged a loaded pistol in at the north-side of the coach. Honnyman received the shot in the wrist, which was designed for Sharp. Sharp was so universally hated, that, tho' this was done in the high street, and in full day light, yet none attempted to seize Mr. Mitchel, who, with great deliberation, went down the wynd, changed his clothes, and escaped. The cry soon arose that a man was killed; upon which some replied, It was only a bishop.

This accident made a little impression on Sharp. Bishop Burnet fays, that he thought it decent to go and p. 227. congratulate him on this occasion, and tells us, that Sharp faid, with a very ferious look, My times are wholly in thy hand, O thou God of my life. This, fays Burnet, was the fingle expression favouring of piety that ever fell from him in all the conversation that passed between

A proclamation was issued out, on the 13th of July. offering a reward of 5000 merks to any that should discover the actor; and the same day the magistrates of Edinburgh were ordered to fearch the town and fuburbs, for all persons concerned in the late rebellion, or who could not give an account of themselves. The city-gates were all shut, except the Netherbow, where one of the magistrates was placed, to let none out whom he did not know, and 100 foldiers were appointed to give their affiltance; fo it was furprifing that great numbers were not apprehended, the town being full of Whigs, and of those who had been concerned at Pentland, many of whom narrowly escaped, especially William Maxwel of Moncrief, who escaped their scrutiny by getting under a meal-barrel in the house of one Moffat.

People could not but observe the righteousness of pro- Remarks, vidence in disabling Honnyman at this time, who had H h appeared

1868. appeared most zealous against prelacy when it was defigned to be introduced, and yet, being feduced by Sharp with the temptation of a bishoprick, was the first who wrote against presbyterian government, which he once so keenly espoused.

This affair made a great noise, and the odium of it was cast upon the whole body of presbyterians, though not one knew any thing of the matter except the actor Whether it is to be justified or condemned the reader may judge, after he fees what he offered in his own defence when brought to a trial fome years after this. But the measures taken with some, who were noways accessory to it, seem to be very severe and unjustifiable, as will appear from these following instances.

Severities.

Soon after this there was a quarrel between one Mris. Gray and her fervant, who thereupon quitted her fervice, and went to Sharp, and told him she could inform him of feveral houses where the whigs usually resorted, and concerning the person who made the late attempt upon himself. Robert Gray, on this information, was brought before a committee of the council, and, sufpecting what his fervant had done, owned that, upon fuch a day, his cousin Major Lermont, one Welsh, and Mris. Dnncan a minister's widow, had dined with him; but denied that he knew any thing of the affaffination of the bishop. Sir John Nisbet the advocate, after some pretended frankness, took his ring from his hand, telling him he had use for it; and immediately sent it with a messenger to Mris. Gray, to acquaint her that her husband had discovered all he knew as to the whigs, of which that ring was a token that she might do the like. And accordingly the poor woman, being brought before the committee, told more than her husband had done, particularly of Mris. Kello, where the reverend Mr. John Welsh lodged and preached, the foresaid Mris. Duncan, and John Crawford messenger, who, having notice given him, made his escape, but his wife and the other two were apprehended. Mr. Gray upon this broke his heart and died. Mris. Duncan, when before the council, was threatned with the boots, and had been tortured with them, had not lord Rothes interposed, and told them, That it was not proper for gentlewomen to wear boots. Mris. Kello confessed that Mr. Welsh had preached in her house: She was fined in 5000 merks, ordered to be banished nished long were good

Chap

Ab on pr appre had g recov the w westfome he w noth his c ed in

> Oı ed to fine l ral o ing i More Thon Killi

> > A ticle bond with fund cord burg if an lege ever fupp

A min ing and min the in h whe

nished with the other two, and continued in prison a 1668. long time; and it was with no small difficulty they were at last set at liberty, after Mris. Kello had paid a good part of her fine.

ne

it

h

70

d

d

rs

10

re

g

S.

m d,

pt

es f-

n

ıd

;

n

1-

h

ſ-

of

e.

re e,

hn

71,

n

rt

as

th

n,

5.

d

About this time some soldiers, going from Edinburgh on pretence of searching for the assassing of the bishop, apprehended one Mr. John Gilon minister at Gavers, who had gone to Gurry, a sew miles from the town, for the recovery of his health, and made him run the most of the way before them, for the space of sour miles, to the west-port of Edinburgh, where he was forced to stand some hours before the gate could be opened. When he was, the next day, brought before the council, and nothing being alledged against him, he was dismissed to his chamber, but was so excessively satigued that he died in 48 hours.

On the 23d of July Mr. Alexander Smith was ordered to be transported to Orkney, and required to confine himself to the island of North-Ronaldshaw. Several other ministers were imprisoned in Forres for preaching in their own houses, and keeping conventicles in Moray, as Mr. Thomas Hog minister at Kiltearn, Mr. Thomas Urquhart minister at — and Mr. John Mac-

Killigen minister at Alves.

Another method used at this time against conventicles was, to oblige the magistrates of burghs to give bond to pay a certain sum if any conventicle was kept within their jurisdiction, and ordinarily they were refunded from the persons they could apprehend. Accordingly, on the 29th of July, the magistrates of Edinburgh gave a bond to the council to pay 50 L. sterling if any conventicle should be found within their privileges; and this practice was for some time renewed at every election: But, notwithstanding all these efforts to suppress them, they increased the more.

About the end of July, Mr. John Wilkie, some time Mr. minister at Twinham in the south, an old infirm man, hav-Wilkie's ing come in to Edinburgh for his health, was imprisoned, case and then examined, sirst before a committee, and afterwards before the council, on the 29th. Upon his examination he declared that he was noways accessory to the attempt upon the bishop, and that he only exercised in his own family, which he did daily. He was asked, whether he invited any to his family-exercise. He answered, he invited none, nor debarred any. And when they

faid,

1668. faid, that they supposed he was clear to admit all that came to his family worship, he replied in these words, Yes, my lord, you should be welcome, and the archbishop of St. Andrews (bould not be debarred. In fhort, the only thing against this good man was his expounding the scripture, finging and praying in his own family, and in two or three others. Nevertheless he was ordered to be confined to Cowpar of Angus within ten days after he should be let out of prison; but, not being able to travel fo far, he remained in prison for some time, and at last his confinement was altered, first to Moffat, and then to Musselburgh.

Mean while the council met on the 4th of August.

Sufferings of Sir Tames Stuart, &c.

tyne.

when Sir James Stuart was ordered to be made close prisoner in Dundee, and Sir John Chiefly in the tolbooth of Perth; and orders were fent to the captain of the castle of Stirling to put Cuninghamhead and Rowallan in distinct rooms; and Sir George Maxwel of Netherpollock was ordered, in eight days, to enter himself prifoner at Kirkaldy under the penalty of 500 L. sterling, but next day his place of confinement was fixed to the castle of Stirling. The same day James Anderson, John Wright and Robert Grier were banished to Virginia for Sir Will, being at Pentland. And, at the same time, the council Bunnan- fined Sir William Bannantyne of 200 L. sterling; and, as he had given fecurity for his removing from the kingdom by the 1st of September, they freed him from all other pains and punishments. This was justly looked upon as too mild a fentence, confidering the horrid extortions, filthiness, rapes and cruelty he had been guilty of; for, besides what has been above related, he made great fires and laid down men to roast before them, when they would not, or could not give the money he defired, or give those informations he wanted. He was barbarous to one gentleman in Galloway, supposed to be Gordon of Largmore, who, through the wounds he received at Pentland, and the hardships he endured before he got to his house, fell sick, and was at the point of death when orders came from Bannantyne to bring him dead or alive. He raised himself a little on his bed, and told those who were fent, that he now defied Sir William and all his perfecutors, whom he forgave, fince in a little he would be in better company. Having faid this, he leaned down, and in a few minutes expired.

Bannon

ford ly and cam whi prec fent WOU

V

Chr

saft L

the

hon thei guso plai been pro was his 1 not hold

U

the gow on t fent burn How fears Mon nity gers land mers Willi nifhe nigh gray, mati bond 01

In

agair other the n Bannantyne upon this sentence went to court, and put 1668. the best face he could upon his affairs; however, he was forced to leave the king's dominions, and according- His death. ly he repaired to the army then in the Low-countries, and ferved at the fiege of Grave, where a cannon-ball came and drove his heart at some distance from his body, which, my author fays, was answerable to a wicked imprecation he commonly used. So that however mild the sentence was that was passed upon him, yet vengeance would not fuffer him to live.

When Turner and Bannantyne were thus profecuted, Partialis honest people began to hope that now they might lay ty. their grievances before the council; but when John Ferguson, one of the magistrates of Ayr, gave in his complaints against William Cuningham the provost, and had been at great charges in bringing above 40 witnesses to prove him guilty of many violences and oppressions, he was told by fome of the council, that, unless he dropt his profecution, the declaration would be put him; and, not being able to comply with this, he was forced to hold himfelf quiet.

at

s,

of

ly

ne in oe

ne

el A

0

7.

ſe h

10

171

-

0

72

r i

e

n

r

n

t

r

f

0

1

Upon a false alarm of another rising, the council, on False athe 12th of August, gave orders to the earl of Linlith-larm. gow to affemble the forces and disperse the rebels; and on the 3d of September lieutenant Mungo Murray was fent with 60 horse, and another party under one Cockburn, to fearch for and apprehend any rebels in arms: However there was not the least ground for any of these fears. It was about this time that Robert Cannon of Montdrogat, who was always excepted out of the indemnity, was apprehended; but, being seduced by the managers, he afterwards acted a very ill part.

In the month of November several concerned in Pent-Persons land were admitted to take the bond; and Robert Chal-banished. mers, (who was afterwards pardoned) William Millar and William Murdoch were banished. John Donholm was banished to Tangier, for receiving some of the others one night in his house. William and James Welshes in Irongray, whose names were wrong inserted in the proclamation May the 9th, were dismissed upon figning the bond of peace.

On the 23d of November, the council being informed Att aagainst Mr. Daniel Cargil, for coming to Edinburgh and gainst other places, at his pleasure, fince he was confined to Cargil, the north-side of the Tay, appointed him to appear before them on the 11th of January next. His only crime was coming to Edinburgh, without license, after fix years * p. 134. confinement *. But when he appeared, and was heard in his own vindication, he was difmiffed, and only ordered to remain within the bounds of his appointment,

them

The year 1669. which I am now entering upon, was 1669. remarkable for the INDULGENCE granted to several of the ejected ministers; but, as the king's letter upon that subject did not come down before the middle of July, it will be proper to mention the most remarkable occurrences preceeding that event, in the order wherein they happened.

We took notice of the council's letter concerning Lift of papists. fending in lists of the papists *. Accordingly, on the 4th P. 235. of February this year, some lists were brought in; but the council recorded that many were wanting, for the zeal of the times ran in another channel.

The hardships of those concerned at Pentland were Cuningham of still continued, and all pains were taken to discover such Bedlane of them as had retired to Ireland. Accordingly John appre-Cuningham of Bedlane was apprehended there. The counbended. cil, being informed of this, on the faid 4th of February ordered the magistrates of Ayr to receive him as prisoner. When he was brought over, he was committed to prison, first at Glasgow, then at Stirling-castle, and after that in Dunbarton, where he continued a long time. The west country gentlemen * met with some favour; * p. 178. for, on the 25th of February, Sir George Maxwel got liberty to transact his affairs for some time in Edinburgh, and had his liberty continued from time to time till the month of June. The fame day Sir William Guningham was allowed to repair to his house till the middle of March. However, they were remanded to prison after the time of these favours was expired.

fined.

The perfecution for conventicles still went on; for the Magistrates of council, being informed that Mr. David Hume late mini-Edinster at Coldingham had preached at a conventicle, in the burgh house of Mris. Paton a widow gentlewoman in Edinburgh, P. 243. on the 2d of March, fined the magistrates in the sum of 501. sterling, according to their bond *. And the same day small parties of soldiers were sent to quarter in Glasgow, Newmills, Mauchlin and Kilmarnock, to suppress conventicles there, and a party was ordered to Inverness to keep the presbyterians in awe in that part of the country.

was froi thei tor, par and ten rea adn tena But fifte rife An

Chi

. 3

fhir Kir ord difo fho mig Iher mai forn nev

tion

the be 2 Fan wer mer Rou wit thei they 7 forn plac bett they thei B

Coch

A

The better to find out conventicles, an act of council 1660. was made, on the 4th of March, discharging all persons from having their children baptized by any other than All atheir own parish minister; and fignifying that every heri-gainst irtor, who should act otherways, should pay the fourth regular part of his yearly valued rent, each tenant 100 l. Scots, and fix weeks imprisonment, and each cottar, or subtenant, 20 1. Scots, and the like imprisonment. The reason given for this act was, because baptism otherways administred was a scandal to the protestant religon, and tended to the increase of popery, schism and profaneness. But where the scandal upon the protestant religion confifted in children's being baptized by persons not authorised by a prelatical church, must be left with the reader. And it is an indubitable fact, that popery and profaneness never increased so much in Scotland, since the reformation, as under this period, when prelacy was established.

This act was ordered to be published throughout the Published. shires of Lanerk, Renfrew and Ayr, and the stewartry of Kirkcudbright, and the commissioners of the militia were ordered to inform themselves of all conventicles and disorderly baptisms since last November, that those who should be found guilty, whether ministers or hearers, might be prosecuted; and instructions were sent to the sheriffs and their deputes, in the western shires, as to the manner in which they were to proceed against non-conformists.

The same day the council ordered more soldiers to Several the west, doubting perhaps that the malitia would not fined. be zealous enough in prosecuting their neighbours. And James Row and George Mosman merchants in Edinburgh were fined, the first in 100 l. and the second in 200 merks, for being at Mris. Paton's conventicle, and John Row, agent, in 100 l. for the same crime, and threatned with banishment if ever they should be found at another; and in the mean time they were imprisoned till they paid their sines.

About this time collectors of the fines for non-con-Collectors formity, appointed by law, were named, and fent to those of fines. places where conventicles were most frequent; and, the better to encourage these publicans and tax-gatherers, they had 500 merks a piece from the council; however, their reign was short, continuing only to the 1st of June.

But the archbishop of Glasgow stirred up the lord Cochran to harrass the presbyterians in his diocese; and accord-

Che

ed,

Suf

445

6 be

(Lo

fel!

6 10 1

" ne

the

tha

the

is ! 4 kin

'kin c line

kin

alt

pri

of c pol

mi!

'kin

fro

(to da

' yes

a v fro

· bli

for · lor

in in

oth

ten

int

" for · op

T

atte

mille

hous

Cochi

Shall:

44

248

1669. accordingly his lordship ordered major Cockburn to fummon, before a committee of noblemen and gentlemen at Ayr, several ministers whom the bishops alledged had acted contrary to law, and preached and baptized irre-

Ministers gularly : Such as messieurs William Fullerton late at St. fummon- Quivox, John Spalding at Dreghorn, Alexander Blair at Galstoun, Hugh Archbald at Evandale, James Alexander at Kilmacolm, Andrew Dalrymple at Auchinleck, . John Hutchison at Maybole, James Veitch at Mauchlin, Hugh Campbell at Riccartoun, John Gemble at Symingtoun, and John Wallace at Largs. When the major came with his men to some of their houses, he compelled them to give bond for their appearance, without producing his warrant, and most rudely treated the families of others, obliging them to leave their houses in 24 hours, to their great detriment and lofs. The council was so sensible of this, that Mr. Veitch and Mr. Blair were allowed 300 merks for their losses.

committee at Ayr.

All the ministers appeared before the meeting at Ayr, before the and answered the questions put to them, with that meekness and candour, that most of the members were for difmissing them. But, the archbishop wanting to get rid of these good men, Cochran prevailed to get them cited before the council next week at Edinburgh. They Before the obeyed, and appeared before a committee of the coun-committee cil on the 6th of April, and all frankly acknowledged of the they had preached, and admitted more to hear them council. than their own families, and promised that, for the future, they would behave peaceably and foberly, as they had always done, and as became ministers of the gospel: Then they subscribed their answers, upon which they were dismissed, and ordered to appear before the council on the 8th.

Before the council.

Being then called in, the lords told them that they deferred passing sentence at this time, but declared that, if any of them should afterwards keep conventicles, they should be punished as the law directs. Upon this Mr. Fullerton, as had been concerted among themselves, defired liberty to speak; which being granted, he delivered himself thus:

My Lord Chancellor,

Abstract of Mr. Fullertoun's Speech.

WE have already----confessed-----what hath been our carriage, and-----that as, in all our ' actings, we have carried with due respect to authority, as it became the ministers of the gospel, so we resolved to continue: And it is no small addition to our 1669. fufferings, that we should be---looked upon by any as justing with authority. Yet, considering that it hath been, in all the ages of the church, the case of the Lord's faithful servants, from which our Lord himfelf was not exempted, to be flandered as no friends to Cæfar, we need not think it strange; for our witnels is in heaven-that, as we defire to give unto God the things that are God's, fo also unto Cafar the things that are Cafar's .-- For we judge the fearers of God are the only loyal people in the world, only our loyalty is with subordination to our Lord Jesus Christ, who is king of kings and lord of lords, --- and under him to the king's majesty and inferior magistrates, and in this line of Subordination we shall deny nothing to the king that shall be demanded .--- And, withal, our loy-'alty is not founded upon extrinsick grounds or selfprinciples and motives, but allenarly upon the basis of conscience .--- Hence it was, that, when the royal fa-' mily was in a low condition, we lay in the dust, and poured out our supplications to God in behalf of the ' king's majesty .---

'And now, feeing we have received our ministry from Jesus Christ, and must one day give an account to our master how we have performed the same, we dare have no hand in the least to unminister ourselves, yea, the word is like a fire in our bosom seeking for a vent. And seeing, under the force of a command from authority, we have hitherto ceased from the publick exercise of our ministry, and sare wearied with forbearing,---it is our humble supplication to your lordship, that you would deal with the king's majesty in our behalf, that at least the indulgence granted to others of our way, within his dominions, may be extended to us also. Next, that Mr Nathaniel Fife be inhibited to meddle with us,---and that you would do something or other for the ease and relief of the poor

' oppressed people in our country, &c.

The council-house was very full, and all were very Ministers attentive, so that at this time these ministers were dis-disinisted. They went home and preached in their own houses; and thus the archbishop was disappointed; and Cochran is reported to have said in a pet, The ministers shall turn all apside down before I meddle with them again.

-1660. But though these ministers were thus dismissed, yet that very day, April the 8th, the council issued a pro-Procla- clamation against conventicles, declaring that every hemation a- ritor in the thires of Lanerk, Renfrew, Ayr and flewartry gainst of Kirkeudbright, upon whose estate any such shall be convenkept, should be fined in the sum of 50 L. sterling. There ticles. was no limitation nor restriction. Notwithstanding whereof ministers did preach, and the people received the word with all readiness of mind. Burnet says,

P. 278. this was plainly against law, for the council had no power, by their authority, to fet arbitrary fines.

In the months of May and June several ministers onconcern- were brought before the council; however, as they generally were not profecuted, I shall not mention them, conven-But, on the 3d of June, the council gave a commission ticle. to the archbishop and provost of Glasgow to make inquiry who were present at a conventicle lately kept in that city; for Mr. James Hamilton, late minister at Blantyre, had been informed against for preaching in his own house.

* p. 135, Next day Mr. Thomas Wylie * obtained his liberty, 171. upon giving bond to appear when called; and by this Mr. means feveral of the ministers and others got out of their Wylic. long confinement.

> On the 10th of June, Robert Gibson, Robert Paton, Robert Harper and William Cuthbertson were ordered to be transported for being at Pentland, as were several others whose names I know not.

Mr.Hamil-

Mr. Hamilton, just now mentioned, was fent in prifoner to Edinburgh, and, without being in the least ton's be- damped, owned, before a committee of the council, that he had preached in his own house at Glasgow. And, when they fpoke to him of the bishop's lenity and favour, in permitting him to live so long in Glasgow, he replied, That it was eafy to speak of lenity and favour; but he was affured he had not so much liberty and fayour as Paul enjoyed under a violent perfecuting heathen at Rome, where he remained two years in his own hired house, and preached the gospel, and none was forbid to come to hear him; whereas the honest people of Glasgow and himself had been frequently thereatned if they did not forbear. And, when they wanted him to give bond to preach no more this way, he faid that he had his commission from Christ to preach the gospel, and he would not lay himself under any restrictions,

Aric der. and com faid that of 1 25 E befo to cife that cour white fumi inter laws impa Silve

> B and from indul ly, t ftipe to b ties.

> > N

merl

was, defig I sha off (coun bout fo th the crue hot lay. on fi being gran

and 1700 Arichions, whatever force others might bring him un- 1660. der. The chancellor asked him where his commission was. He answered, Matth. xxviii. 19. Go, teach and baptize. The chancellor replied, that is the apostles commission, Do you set up for an apostle? No, my lord, faid he, nor for any extraordinary person either; but that place contains the commission of ordinary ministers of the gospel, as well as extraordinary ambassadors, as the apostles were. Mr. Hamilton, adhering to all this before the council, was, on the 24th of June, ordered to be kept in prison till he gave security not to exercife his publick ministry; and a general rule was made that all ministers who should be apprehended, on account of conventicles, should be served the same way, which hindred ministers afterwards to appear when fummoned; and this paved the way for denouncing and intercommuning of ministers, or declaring them outlaws. Mr. Hamilton, after his health had been greatly impaired, was, by the interest of Robert Hamilton of Silvertoun-hill, fet at liberty, upon giving bond for 1000 merks to appear when called.

But by this time the INDULGENCE was expected, A comand the bishops, in order to prevent one part of it mitee apfrom taking place, viz. the 400 merks from the non-pointed. indulged, got, it feems, the council, on the 8th of July, to appoint a committee to examine into the vacant stipends, which, by act of parliament, were ordered to be applied for the increase of the stock of universities.

1

e

Whether the indulgence, that was now in agitation, Rife of was, by the first proposers of it, as is very probable, the induldesigned to divide the presbyterians among themselves, gence. I shall not determine. Burnet says, that the people fell p. 273. off entirely from all the episcopal clergy in the western counties, and a fet of hot fiery young teachers went about among them inflaming them still more and more; so that it was necessary to find a remedy for this. If the people were inflamed, it was by the irregular and cruel behaviour of the prelates, &c. and not by any hot fiery young teachers, as that historian is pleased to lay. Leighton proposed that a treaty should be set 276. on foot for accommodating differences. But this not being agreed to, the earl of Tweeddale proposed the granting to some of the ejected ministers leave to go and serve in those parishes, by an act of the king's in- 277. dulgence.

El

104

61

36

14.5

of the file

1511

6

110

4

.60

6

6

4

45

. 6

6

16

.6

.

.6

4

6

4

6

1

6

4 cite

6

.

160

395

1669. dulgence. Leighton was against this. Burnet fays far.

ther, that Mr. Mitchel's attempt upon Sharp made him turn his thoughts to more moderate measures; and, being called to court, he, in general terms, approved of the methods of gentleness and moderation then in vogue. When he came back to Scotland, he moved the model of the model of the model of the model of the model of the model.

of the publick refolutioners with some restraints, such as, that they should not speak or preach against episopacy, though he could not but know that such similations would not be complied with. However, this author tells us, that the letter he (Burnet) sent to the lord Tweeddale, giving a long account of the state of the country, and advising to put some of the more moderate presbyterians into the vacant churches, gave the deciding stroke to this affair.

Mr. Wodrow says, that the earl of Tweeddale had at this time frequent conferences with some presbyterian ministers, particularly Mr. John Stirling, Mr. Robert Douglass, and others, and prevailed with them to send up a letter to court to be a handle to their friends at London. Tweeddale went to court, either with this or soon after, and sound his work the easier, that the presbyterians in England were at present connived at in their meetings; so that his lordship, on the 15th of July, presented to the council the following letter from the king.

CHARLES R.

King's letter of indulgence.

280,

281.

D IGHT trufty and right well-beloved coufins and counsellors, we greet you well. Whereas, by the act of council and proclamation at Glafgow, in the year 1662. a considerable number of ministers were at once turned out, and so debarred from preach-' ing of the gospel and exercise of the ministry, we are s graciously pleased to authorise you, our privy council, to appoint so many of the outed ministers, as have lived peaceably and orderly in the places where they have refided, to return and preach, and exercise other functions of the ministry in the parish-churchses where they formerly refided and ferved (provided f they be vacant) and to allow patrons to present, to f other vacant churches, fuch others of them as you fhall approve of; and that fuch of these ministers as f fhall take collation from the bishop of the diocele, and keep

8 ar.

him

beof

in red

me

ich 00-

ti-

Or ord

he ate

id-

an ert nd

at

or

es-

eir

to,

he

2 .

ns

e-

w,

TS

h-

re

n-

as

re le

)d

to

u 15

d

* keep presbyteries and fynods, may be warranted to lift 1009. their stipends as other ministers of the kingdom : But for fuch as are not, or shall not be collated by the bishop, that they have no warrant to meddle with the graciant Ripend, but only to possess the manie and selebe; and that you appoint a collector for these f and all other vacant stipends, who shall issue the same, and pay an yearly maintenance to the faid not-collated ministers, as you shall see fit to appoint.

That all who are restored, and allowed to exercise the ministry, be, in our name and by our authority, enjoined to constitute and keep kirk-lessions, and to keep presbyteries and synods, as was done by all mi-' nisters before 1638. And that such of them as shall not obey our command in keeping prelbyteries, be ' confined within the bounds of the parishes where they preach, ay and while they give allurances to keep

f prefbyteries for the future.

'That all who shall be allowed to preach be strictly enjoined not to admit any of their neighbours, or any other parishes, unto their communions, nor baptize their children, nor marry any of them, without the allowance of the minister of the parish to which they belong, unless it be vacant for the time. And if it be found, upon complaint made by any prelbytery to you our privy-council, that the people of the neighbouring or other parishes resort to their preaching, and defert their own parish-churches, that, according to the degree of the offence or diforder, you filence the minister, who countenances the same, for horter or longer time, and, upon a second complaint verified, that you filence again for a longer time, or altogether turn out, as you shall see cause. And, upon complaint made and verified of any feditious difcourse or expressions in the pulpit, or elsewhere, uttered by any of these ministers, you are immediately to turn them out, and farther punish them according to law, and the degree of the offence.

That fuch of the outed ministers who have behave ed peaceably and orderly, and are not re-entered or presented, as aforesaid, have allowed to them four hundred merks Scots yearly out of the vacant church+ es, for their maintenance till they be provided of churches ; and that even such who shall give assuaregreg a saverone, and miles religion and 1669. ' rance to live so, for the future, be allowed the same ' yearly maintenance.

And feeing, by these orders, we have taken away all pretences for conventicles, and provided for the wants of such as are and will be peaceable, if any fhall be found hereafter to preach without authority, or keep conventicles, our express pleasure is, that you proceed with all feverity against the preachers and hearers, as feditious persons and contemners of our authority. So leaving the management of these orders to your prudence, and recommending them to your care, we bid you farewell. By his majesty's command.

Given at our court at White-

LAUDERDALE.

N

1110 aft

for

wi

tio

Wa

up

the tin

T

wa br

of

nit

ed

fho

ha

Br

it

be

to

mi

tal

thi

gil

the

of

the fur

Ra

 H_{l}

lat

001

ran

Whether the following remarks, which have been made upon this letter, are just and well grounded, must be left with the reader: 1. That the civil magistrates take upon them to depose ministers from, and restore them to the exercise of their ministry, as they fee proper, and to what places they judge convenient. 2. This letter fays, That certain ministers were turned out and deprived of the exercise of their ministry by an act of council, and now the king gives authority to the council to restore them; and consequently all the power granted to the council to act in this affair was derived from the king alone, and therefore the indulgence itself was the effect of the supremacy. 3. That the ministers to be indulged were laid under unlawful restrictions, particularly to use no seditious discourses or expressions, in the pulpit or elsewhere, which all preaching or speaking against prelacy and the ecclesiaflical supremacy was then accounted: That, unless they keep presbyteries and fynods, viz. those held by the bishops, they must be confined to the parishes where they preach: That they were not to admit any, except thole of their own parishes, to partake of the ordinances, unless those who belonged to vacant parishes, under high penalties, &c. 4. That the delign of this favour to be granted to some ministers was to prevent others from preaching to any but their own families, for, fays his majesty, by these orders we have taken away all pretences for conventicles. 5. That the 400 merks, mentioned in the last paragraph fave one, was seldom made good. Now,

Now, how far they were to blame who complied with the 1660. indulgence, is not for me to determine; the reader will afterwards hear what some said in their own defence for refuling to accept it. See the history of includence, p. 5, 6,000.

me

. 1

ay

the

ny

y,

nat

rs

of

efe

to 7's

en

d,

nd

y

t.

ď

y

ty

II

ir

1

at

H

1-

h

e ñ

S

When the above letter was read in council it met Opposition with a good deal of opposition; so that the favour men- made to tioned was delayed for some time, and a committee ". was appointed to consider the contents of it, to pitch upon the ministers to be indulged, and to make draughts of the acts of council relating to this matter. And the bishops and others of the clergy met in the mean time to hinder its taking place as much as possible. They could not prevent it altogether; but Sharp, who was a compleat master of dissimulation, to comfort his brethren, promised to make it a bone of contention : And, as I have hinted, this feems to have been the defign of it.

About this time a proposal was set on foot for n- Proposal niting the two kingdoms. 'The king, fays Burnet, lik- for an ued it very well, because he reckoned, that, at least in nion. his time, he should be fure of all the members that P. 279, should be fent from Scotland. The duke of Buckingham went in easily to a new thing, and lord-keeper Bridgeman was much for it. Lord Lauderdale preffed it vehemently; but then this affair made it necessary to hold a parliament in Scotland, where he intended to be the king's commissioner.

Accordingly, on the 15th of July, a proclamation was A new issued for calling a new parliament; and care was taken parliato manage the elections to as the king and bishops ment calmight be well ferved, and any arbitrary and illegal steps led.

taken by the council approved of. But to return. The committee above mentioned having prepared The mithings, and the ministers with whom they were to be-nisters ingin having notice given them, on the 27th of July dulged. the lords of his majesty's privy-council, in pursuance of his majesty's letter, dated June the 7th, did appoint the following ministers to preach and exercise their other functions at the following vacant kirks, viz. Meffrs. Ralph Rogers late at Glasgow, at Kilwinning; George Hutchifon late at Edinburgh, at Irvine; William Violant late at Ferrie, at Cambufnethan; Robert Millar late at Ochiltree, at the same church; John Park late at Stranrawer, at the same church ; William Maitland late at Whitehorn, 1669. Whitehorn, at Beith; John Oliphant late at Stonehouse, at the same kirk; John Bell late at Ardrossan, at the same kirk; John Cant late at Kells, at the same kirk, and John MacMichan late at Dalry, at the same kirk. The fame day the council made an act concerning ministers indulged, or to be indulged, almost in the terms of the king's letter; but without taking notice of the 400 merks.

> On the 29th of July colonel Robert Barclay, who had been apprehended on suspicion, was permitted to refide at his own house at Ury till January, and some months after was wholly freed from his restraint. And on the same day William Wallace of Carnhill got up a bond that was extorted from him by Sir William Ban-nantyne.

Other feven indulged.

On the 3d of August Mr. Robert Duncan, late minister at Dumbernie, who had been several years under restraint, was fet at liberty, and the following ministers were indulged, viz. Messrs. John Scot late at Oxnam, there; William Hamilton late at Glassford, at Evandale; Robert Mitchel late at Luss, there; John Gemble late at Symingtoun, there; Patrick Campbel late at Inverary, there; Robert Duncanson late at Lochanside, at Kildochrenan; and Andrew Cameron late at Kilfinnan, at Lochhead in Kintyre.

Received their alls of indulgence.

This day all the ministers who were indulged appeared before the council to receive their acts of indulgence, or licenses, of which there were two forms, the one relating to those who were to serve at their own churches now vacant, the other relating to those who were appointed elsewhere.

The tenor of Mr. Rogers's act is as follows.

Tenor of them.

'The lords of his majesty's privy-council, in purfuance of his majesty's commands, signified the 7th of June last, do appoint Mr. Ralph Rogers, late minister at Glafgow, to preach and exercise the other functions of the ministry at the kirk of Kilwinning."

The tenor of Mr. Millar's was.

' Forafmeikle as the kirk of Ochiltree is vacant, the lords of his majefty's privy-council, in pursuance of his majesty's commands, signified by his letter the 7th of June last, and in regard of the consent of the patron, do appoint Mr. Robert Millar, late minister there, to teach and exercise the other functions of the ministry at the faid kirk of Ochiltree.

When

act o to ea chifon havin M fulne and t restra your and t the u taker

W

with must And ing to exerc ful ar us m to be with ful n towa judgi jects.

the I vern strati mind tion in du his n

"

T ent t It is lette were 60mp rians,

When the clerk had read both these, and then the 1660 act of council above mentioned, a copy was delivered to each of the ministers. After which Mr. George Hutchison, as had been concerted, asked leave to speak; which having obtained, he said:

My Lords,

A M desired, in the name of my brethren here present, to acknowledge in all humility and thankfulness his majesty's royal favour in granting us liberty and the publick exercise of our ministry, after so long a restraint from the same; and to return hearty thanks to your lordships for the care and pains taken therein; and that your lordships have been pleased to make us, the unworthiest of many of our brethren, so early partakers of the same.

We having received our ministry from Jesus Christ, with full prescriptions from him for regulating us therein, must in the discharge thereof be countable to him: And as there can be nothing more desirable or refreshing to us upon earth, than to have free liberty of the exercise of our ministry, under protection of lawful authority, the excellent ordinance of God, and to us most dear and precious, so we purpose and resolve to behave ourselves, in the discharge of the ministry, with that wisdom and prudence which becomes faithful ministers of Jesus Christ, and to demean ourselves towards lawful authority, notwithstanding our known judgments in church-affairs, as well becomes loyal subjects, and that from a principle of conscience.

'And now, my lords, our prayer to God is, that the Lord may bless his majesty in his person and government, and your lordships in your publick administrations, and especially in pursuance of his majesty's mind testified in his letter, wherein his singular moderation eminently appears, that others of our brethren may in due time be made sharers of the liberty that, through his majesty's favour, we now enjoy.'

This speech was much censured, as not being a sufficient testimony against the plain erastianism in the indulgence. It is indeed certain that these ministers owned the king's letter as the only rise and sountain of the savour they were then partakers of; and therefore, how far their somplying was consistent with their principles as presbytesy60: rians, or how far they could be justified in receiving this favour for themfelves, while their brethren were still exposed to fevere hardships, must be left with the reader.

Procla-

For this very day a severe proclamation was issued amation a- gainst conventicles, commanding all heritors to inform aventicles. the metal any who, within their bounds, should take upon them to preach or carry on worship in such assemblies, to the stewards, lords, bailies of regalities, &c. who were commanded, under the highest penalties, to search for, apprehend and imprison such preachers in order to their being profecuted. And indeed one defign of the indulgence was to bear down and suppress all such private assemblies, as is expresly declared in the king's

Mr. Park's cafe. † p. 80, 256.

· I cannot here omit the peculiar case of Mr. John Park, t one of the first ten indulged. The bishop of Galloway, in order to prevent his return to Stranrawer, admitted one Nasmith to that church about three days after Mr. Park was indulged by the council. The town and parish opposed this admission, and unanimously adhered to their old minister. Upon which the bishop ordered all parties to be summoned to Edinburgh, that the council might determine in this competition. When Mr. Park was before the council, Mr. Nasmith accused him with ordering the church-doors to be locked after his admiffion, and exciting feveral gentlemen to leave the church, Oc. But tho' all appeared to be false, and tho' his att of indulgence was prior to the curate's admission, yet the latter was sustained.

Mr. Cargil.

On the 1st of September, Mr. Daniel Cargill, in confequence of his petition, had his confinement taken off, providing he obliged himself not to reside, on any account whatfoever, within the town of Glafgow, nor in the town and fuburbs of Edinburgh, without warrant from the lords of fession and exchequer.

Seven more indulged.

Next day the following feven ministers were indulged, viz. Messieurs Robert Douglass late at Edinburgh, at Pancaitland, (tho' only during the present vacancy, till a process should be decided;) Matthew Ramsay late at Kilpatrick, at Paisley; Alexander Hamilton late at Dalmeny, there; Andrew Dalrymple late at Auchinleck, at Dalgen; James Fletcher late at Newthorn, there; Andrew Mac-Lean late at Craignies, at Kilchattan; and Donald Morison late at Kilmaglass, at Ardnamurchan.

The

Chap Th

vocat forfei were yet n

Th and t archb enrag histor peare ing (fuch : institu were he wa king' ceedi move up, 1 der, it as fo bo gentl geniu could > being griev gow, faid coun Ram who the f him who ing : bail merl indul at H Jam 1000

A

· O

The same day the council ordered the king's advo- 1669. vocate to commence, before the parliament, a process of forfeiture against those guilty of rebellion 1666. who were excepted out of the king's indemnity, and have as yet neither been forfeited nor pardoned.

This month the episcopal synod of Glasgow sat down, The synd and their proceedings issued in the deprivation of the of Glafarchbishop, who with his clergy were out of measure gow's res enraged at the indulgence. To use the words of a noted firance. historian, When it came to be discanted upon, it ap- Burnet, peared to be plainly against law; for, by the act restor- p. 283. ing epilcopacy, none were capable of benefices but fuch as should own the authority of the bishops, and be instituted by them. So now the episcopal party, that were wont to put all authority in the king, as long as he was for them, began to talk of law. They faid, The king's power was bounded by law, and that these proceedings were the trampling of law under foot.' It was moved in the fynod, 'that an address might be drawn up, representing to the king the miseries they were under, occasioned by the indulgence; they complained of it as illegal, and like to be fatal to the church.' It also bore hard upon the king's supremacy, which these very gentlemen had fworn to support and maintain. The true genius of passive obedience men! Such a paper as this could not but make a confiderable noife.

Accordingly, on the last day of September, the council Order of being informed that such a petition, remonstrance, or council grievances, had been debated in the late fynod at Glaf- concerning gow, required the archbishop forthwith to call for the faid papers, in order to their being presented to the council on the 14th of next October, and that Mr. James Ramfay, dean of Glasgow, and Mr. Ross parson there, who drew up these papers, appear before the council the fame day, and that the clerk do bring along with him the records of the fynod.

1

t

H

ıt ,

16

e

....

On this same 30th of September, William Southram, William who had been a prisoner in the Canongate jail for be-Southing at a conventicle, was fet at liberty, upon finding rated. bail to appear when called, under the penalty of 500 merks. And the same day the council granted their indulgence to Messieurs John Stirling late at Edinburgh, Fivemore at Hownam; Robert Mowat late at Temple, at Heriot; indulged. James Hamilton late at Eaglesbam, there; Robert Hunter the last open if har store to all her a mine days will 1669. late at Corstorphin, at Dunning; and John Forrest late at Tulliallan, at Tillicultry.

The fynod's remonfirance condemned.

On the 14th of October, LAUDERDALE, who was appointed commissioner to the ensuing parliament, produced before the council a paper sent by the archbishop of Glasgow; and, after reading, it was remitted to the consideration of a committee, who made their report on the 16th, when the council declared it to be a paper of a dangerous nature and consequence, tending to the depraying of his majesty's laws, and misconstructing of the proceedings of his majesty and his council; and, in the manner of the conveying thereof, to be most illegal and unwarrantable; and therefore ordered it to be suppressed, and that the principal paper, with the depositions of the dean and parson of Glasgow, be delivered to the commissioner, and an extract of this act of council transmitted to the king.

Parliament sat down.

The parliament sat down on the 19th of October, before his majesty's pleasure could be known in this affair; and the session was opened with reading the king's letter, which chiefly related to the designed union, which the commissioner most earnestly recommended; and, to engage the bishops and their party, who were chagrined at the indulgence, he insisted upon the king's fixed resolution inviolably to maintain episcopacy, and suppress conventicles. All the members signed the declaration, obliging themselves to maintain presacy.

Mr.
Row's
and Lyon's affair.

The day after the parliament met, the council, being informed of an horrid infolence committed upon Mr. John Row minister at Balmaclellan in Galloway, ordered all accessory to it to appear before them; The parishioners were likeways commanded to come, and hear and fee themselves fined, and otherways censured according to the acts of council in March and June 1667. Mr. Row complained, that three persons in womens clothes came in the night-time, took him out of his bed, beat him and broke open his trunks, and took away what they had a-mind. And Mr. Thomas Warner, his father-in-law, James Grier of Milmark, Gordon of Holm, Gordon of Gordonstoun, John Carfan and James Chalmers, heritors of the parish, were charged as being either actors or accessory to this violence. Tho', considering their distance from Edinburgh, they could not come at the first sederunt of council, yet they were all found guilty for not appearing; and the heritors and liferenters of the parilh pari And as p mittimp Lyon for lette be coare pun ther

Cha

yet pass wer T but

parl

pav

beer

and aftic have declored and ty a cleff there were long right fors and

ed i

nal

g.

at

P+

u-

qc

ne

n

eof parish were ordered to pay to Mr. Row 1200 L. Scots: 1669. And the they, and the other heritors, came as soon as possible, and offered to stand trial, they were not admitted; but were ordered to pay their part of the sine imposed. Of the like nature was the complaint of Mr. Lyon, curate at Orr, who was insulted in the night-time: for which the parish was ordered to pay him 600 L. and letters were directed against one John Smith alledged to be concerned in the attempt. Though these attempts are not to be justissed, yet why the innocent should be punished for the guilty, and why those who offered themselves to trial should not be heard, must be left to the determination of the reader. But to return to the parliament.

Though one chief design of this parliament was to Burnet, pave the way for an union between the two kingdoms, P. 284. yet all that was done relating to that, was, that an act passed for a treaty about it; whereas the two first acts were of more importance, and had a deeper design.

The first explained and asserted the king's supremacy, Ibid. but carried it in such general words, that it might have been stretched to every thing, as the reader will see from the act itself, which I here insert.

ACT anent the Supremacy, November 16. 1669. HE estates of parliament, having seriously con- At confidered how necessary it is, for the good and cerning peace of the church and state, that his majesty's power the supreand authority, in relation to matters and persons ecclesiaftical, be more clearly afferted by an act of parliament, have therefore thought fit it be enacted, afferted and declared; like as his majesty, with advice and consent of his estates of parliament, doth hereby enact, affert and declare, that his majesty hath the supreme authority and supremacy over all persons and in all causes ecclesialtical within this his kingdom; and that, by virtue thereof, the ordering and disposal of the external government and policy of the church doth properly belong to his majesty and his successors, as an inherent right to the crown; and that his majesty and his succesfors may fettle, enact and emit such constitutions, acts and orders, concerning the administration of the external government of the church, and the persons employed in the same, and concerning all ecclesiastical meetings and matters to be proposed and determined therein, as Mine

1669. they, in their royal wisdom, shall think fit; which acts, orders and constitutions, being recorded in the books of council, and duly published, are to be observed and obeyed by all his majesty's subjects; any law, act or custom to the contrary notwithstanding. Likeas his majesty, with advice and consent foresaid, doth rescind and annul all laws, acts and clauses thereof, and all customs and constitutions, civil or ecclesiastick, which are contrary to, or inconfiftent with his majesty's fupremacy, as it is hereby afferted, and declares the fame void and null in all time coming.'

Remarks. The reader cannot but see, that, by this act, the king may do what he pleases with respect to church-asfairs. If he should think fit to pull down episcopacy, and fet up presbytery, the bishops could not complain, since they had voted him such an absolute supremacy; nay, did he, or his fuccessors, introduce popery, they might p. 284. justly plead this act of parliament. Bishop Burnet fays, Lord Lauderdale very probably knew the fecret of the duke [of York's] religion, and had got into his favour; to it is very likely he intended to establish himself in it, by putting the church of Scotland wholly in his power. But, fays he, that was yet a fecret to us all in Scotland. The method he took to get it passed was this. He told all those who loved presbytery, or that did not much favour the bishops, that it was necessary to keep them [the bishops under, by making them depend absolutely on the king.—He made the nobility fee they needed fear no more the infolence of the bifbops, if they were at mercy, as this would make them. Sharp did not like it, but durst not oppose it. Leighton was against any such act; -yet he gave his vote for it. He farther fays, At that time there was no apprehensions of the danger of popery. Many of the best of the episcopal clergy, Nairn and Charteris in particular, were highly offended at the act. They thought it plainly made the king our POPE. So far the doctor. It is eafy then for the reader to imagine what the sentiments of all true presbyterians must be. I shall make no farther remarks on this act, than to obferve, that the earl of Tweeddale protested to Dr. Burnet, p. 285. as he tells us himself, that his chief end in it was to justify the indulgence, which was certainly granted contrary to several laws then in force; and consequently, as this indulgence flowed from the supremacy, so nothing

but

fter real 1 in t in a the mal

Cha

but

fcre

his con to of o wei of

tho

my into fen tio if t kir kir be > th in fo no in

the

fto D la C

21 b fi

ke

8.

ts,

ks

nd

or

113 nd

Ill

ch

u-

ne

f-

d

ce

ıt

s,

le

r.

d

10 n

r

ıt

e

.

-

but the act of Jupremacy, renewed and extended, could 1660. fcreen the members of council in granting it to miniflers who had the laws against them; and this was one reason why their acceptance was condemned.

The next act that passed related to the militia, where- All ain the power of arming the subjects, and raising them bout the in arms, is likeways placed among the inherent rights of militia. Burnet fays, It was enacted, That the Ibid. malitia should still be kept up, and be ready to march into any of the king's dominions, for any cause in which his majesty's authority, power or greatness should be concerned; and that the orders should be transmitted to them from the council-board, without any mention of orders from the king. Upon this great reflections were made; for, when jealousies broke out in England of the ill deligns that lay hid under this matter, it was thought, that, if the king should call in the Scottish army, it would not be necessary that he himself should fend any orders for it; but that, upon a fecret intimation, the council might do it without order, and then, if the delign should miscarry, it should not ly on the king, but only on the council, whom, in that case, the king might disown, and so those about the king would be blameless.

The fifth act was for the fecurity of the persons of Fifth act. the clergy, ratifying the proclamations of the council the 25th of March and 6th of June 1667 *. * p.227.

By the eleventh act, concerning the forfeiture of persons Eleventh in the late rebellion, what the council and justiciary had act. formerly done *, was ratified and approved of, so that possible persons power is a parliamentary forseituee of these persons parliamentary forseituee. The parliament rose the 23d of December.

Mean while, on the 9th of December the following Five five ministers were indulged, viz. Messrs. James Veitch more inlate at Mauchlin, there; Alexander Blair late at Gal-dulged. stoun, there; John Primrose late at Queensferry, there; David Brown late at Craigie, there; and John Crawford late at—, at Lamington. But the same day, the council being informed that — Hamilton of Kinkell; John Balcanqual brother to the laird of that ilk, and John Geddie steward to the town-clerk of Fife, had been present at a conventicle in that shire, they were summoned to appear on the 16th instant, under the pain of rebellion; but no more is mentioned concerning them.

However,

Ch

ed

tak

2 T

fon

afte

Th

fhal

Roll

per

the bei

art

Boy

wej

fely

the

cen

pra

tur

of

fho

cil,

thi eve

mi the

oth

der

Wil

25 the

ftr

ke

the

the

the

Wi

ag

pa

ea

wi

1660. However, on that day the council, confidering that Mr. Matthew Ramfay, who was appointed to be mini-One more ster at Paisley, was not able, by reason of his bodily inindulged. firmities, to officiate, did, with the content of the patron and of Mr. Ramsay, appoint Mr. John Baird, late minister at Innerwick, to the church of Paisley; so that this year there were 35 indulged by the council in confequence of the king's letter.

Some time in this month, Sir William Cuningham of Gentlemen set at Cuninghamhead, Sir William Muir of Rowallan, Sir George liberty. Maxwel of Netherpollock, Sir James Stewart and Sir John Chiefly, were all fet at liberty. Much about this time a letter came from the king turned out. laying afide the archbishop of Glasgow from acting any more in that station. The historian of his own time

p. 286. lays, 'That, by the act of supremacy, the king was now master, and could turn out bishops at pleasure. had its first effect on Burnet, who was offered a pension if he would fubmit and refign, and was threatned to be treated more severely if he stood out. However, he complied, and retired to a private state of life, and bore his disgrace better than he had done his honours.' This change was very agreeable to the presbyterians, who suffered exceedingly at the instigation of this man. I now proceed to

CHAP. IX.

Of the indulged, the proceedings against conventicles, the actings of the western committee, Leighton's accommodation, the laws and acts of parliament; with an account of the second indulgence, and other things, till the end of the year 1673.

HE indulgence granted last year afforded, doubt-1670. less, some relief to those who could accept of it, while others were still exposed to the hardships of the times, though not to that rigour as when Burnet was archbishop of Glasgow.

On the 1st of January 1670. Mr. William Tullidaff, One more indulged. late minister of Dunboig was indulged to officiate at Kilbirny. The same day the council ordered the stipends to be paid to the indulged ministers.

On the 6th of January the commissioner signified to resignati- the council that the archbishop of Glasgow had resigned his office and dignity, and defired his name might be 1670. taken out of the rolls of council, as being no more a member of it. At the same time the dean and parfon of Glasgow were reprimanded by the council, but afterwards were pardoned and restored to their charges. The archbishop was, after some years, restored, as we shall relate in its proper place.

te

1-ì

13 n

9 e

3

0

I

t

f

t

The fame day the council, being informed that Mr. Sir Ar-Robert Boyd, curate of Carmonnock, had been robbed by chibald persons unknown, ordered letters to be directed against Stuart Accordingly, the parish fined. the heritors of the parish. being fined in the sum of 50 L. sterling, Sir Archibald Stuart of Castlemilk paid the fine, which was given to Mr. Boyd. This, with fuch like attempts, gave rife to the western committee, of which we shall hear in its place.

Mean while the indulged ministers soon sound them- Alt afelves in more straitning circumstances than at first gainst they apprehended. Thus, when they received their li-lecturing. censes, they agreed among themselves to keep up the practice of lecturing, or expounding a portion of scripture before the forenoon's fermon, which had been out of use fince the establishment of episcopacy. But the bishops complaining of this, as an innovation, the council, on the 13th of January, passed an act forbidding this useful and edifying exercise, signifying, that whoever used it should be discharged the exercise of their ministry within the kingdom. Though, according to the indulgence, ministers were to preach and perform the other functions of the ministry, yet they were forbidden to expound the scriptures; how consistent this was with their licence the reader must judge.

It is not to be denied but the indulgence was granted Instruction as the most effectual method to suppress conventicles, and ons to the therefore the same day the military received new in-foldiers. structions, upon information of a numerous conventicle kept fince last November, to apprehend the minister and the most considerable heritors and tenants, and, upon their refusing to give security for their appearance before the council by a certain day, to fend them in prisoners with a party, together with a lift of persons to witness against them. This not only made the soldiers severe, but likeways obliged both ministers and people to repair to the fields, where they could, with the greater eafe, difperfe themselves, and excited some to take arms with them to defend themselves and their ministers.

The same day a very good proclamation was issued by the council against papists, but little or no pains was taken to put it in execution, the great thing being to bear down the protestant non-conformists.

Mr. Mor-

Accordingly, the very next day, being January the 14th, Mr. Andrew Mortoun, minister at Carmonnock, was, toun, &c. by the council's order, committed prisoner to Edinburgh, for preaching in the faid parish; and was afterwards fent to Stirling, where he continued under confinement till November, when, by reason of his bodily indisposition, he was set at liberty; only he must remain at his own house at Glasgow during pleasure. He preached there almost every day to such of the citizens as came to hear him, except on Wednesdays, which he referved for those of his own congregation, who, being but four miles distant, came in great numbers. Much about the same time Mr. Hugh Archbald minister at Strathaven, and Mr. John Rea Minister at Symingtoun, were apprehended and fent prisoners to Edinburgh, and afterwards to Stirling, for preaching and baptizing in houses.

Another indulged.

Mr. Alexander Wedderburn late minister atupon the 27th of January, indulged to officiate at Kilmarnock, and, Kersland.

On the 3d of February Kersland * was sent from E-* p. 230. dinburgh to Dumbarton castle. When this gentleman was forfeited, he thought proper to retire for fafety to Utrecht, where he continued with his family some time, till his friends thought necessary he should come home, though as private as possible. His lady came over about the latter end of last year, and he followed her in a little time; but when he came to Edinburgh he found her in a fever. She lodged with a gentlewoman who was a well-wisher to the suffering cause, and he lodged in a more retired place, and generally came to fee her in the evenings; which being observed by Cannon of Montdrogat, the chancellor got information, and an order was procured from Lauderdale, then in town, to apprehend Mr. Welsh for a conventicle he kept in lady Kersland's chamber, though the chief design was upon Kerstand himself. Accordingly a party was fent, and finding no conventicle there, the officer begged the lady's pardon, and retired. But Montdrogat having informed one of the party, that Kersland usually concealcd ed hi comf peati ploug was i

Chap

T upon not (milit and a atten mini them

Dumi

O of tv Glass pread Some in Id next

> O indul Geor ding ----Kille at K

bond

the ! but, then ticul M

havi

fity

thei the the v that fible they mig

ed himself behind the bed, he went and apprehended 1670. him. His lady behaved with a becoming calmness, comforted him, and intreated him to do nothing to wound his conscience, for her sake or his childrens, repeating that scripture, No man having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is sit for the kingdom of God. He was imprisoned at Edinburgh, and this day was sent to Dumbarton, where he remained near a year and a half.

The same day a very severe proclamation was agreed Proclaupon in council against conventicles; by virtue of which, mation anot only the magistrates, but also the officers of the gainst militia, were empowered to search out such meetings, conventant apprehend the preachers and principal persons who attended upon them. These violent measures obliged ministers and people to take to the fields, and defend themselves the best way they could.

On the 10th of February, the council, being informed Convenof two numerous conventicles about Kirkintilloch near ticles at Glasgow, ordered Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Mitchel the Kirkinpreachers to be apprehended and sent to Edinburgh. tilloch.
Sometime after one Robert Burns of Glasgow was fined in 100 merks for being present. The beginning of next month the magistrates of Edinburgh renewed their on the 3d of March the following ministers were Six more indulged, viz. Messers. John Lauder late at Dalziel, there; indulged. George Ramsay late at —, at Kilmawers; John Spalding late at —, at Dreghorn; Thomas Black late at ——, at Newtyle; Andrew MacLean late at ——, at Killaro and Kilquhanan; Andrew Duncanson late at ——, at Kilchattan in Lorn. These were the last who reaped the benefit of the first indulgence, who were in all 42; but, as we have already observed, they soon found themselves abridged in the liberty they expected, particularly by the act of council against lecturing.

Mr. Gilbert Burnet, afterwards bishop of Salisbury, Western having been chosen professor of divinity in the univer-commitsity of Glasgow, tells us, that the clergy came and laid tee. their grievances and complaints before him, and that P- 287. the gentlemen of the country made such complaints of the vices, irregularities, and indiscretions of the clergy, that though he could not believe all, yet it was impossible not to believe a great deal. He says farther, that they were very ill used; and it is not unlikely this might be the case of some, for the people were generally 1670. fet against them. And therefore he proposed that a committee of the council might be fent round the country to examine matters, and give such orders as were at present necessary for the publick quiet, and prepare a report against the next session of parliament, that proper remedies might be found out.

Their

Accordingly, on the 7th of April, the duke of Hamilcommission, the earls of Linlithgow, Dumfries, Kincairdin, Dundonald, the lord clerk-register, and lieutenant-general Drummond, or any four of them, received a commission from the council to execute the laws against the keepers of conventicles, to examine into the abusive attempts committed against the orthodox ministers, to call before them fuch persons as they shall be informed have transgressed the acts of parliament, &c. And, among other particular instructions, they were to inquire into the affair of the minister at Maybole, the abuse done to Mr. Irvine minister at Kilmacolm, &c. and to examine how the indulged ministers have observed the act of council against lecturing, &c.

At the same time orders were fent to the officers of the army to obey the commands of the faid commissioners, or of any one of them. And the same day the council passed an act in favour of such of the episcopal incumbents as had been thrust from their charges, appointing them to be maintained in their benefices and stipends according to their rights thereunto.

Maybole affair.

When this committee was at Ayr, Mr. Faffray the curate at Maybole renewed his complaints, that some of his parishioners had attempted to murder him, by discharging a pistol at his breast. He said the ball came upon a book which he had in his breast under his coat, which was the only thing that faved his life. But the story appeared to be forged; for though the book was peirced, yet it was found that the coat, which was over the book, was whole and entire; fo that, the curate failing in his proofs; the matter ended in laughter.

Mr. Irvine's cafe.

Mr. Irvine at Kilmacolm was very ill liked among his parishioners. While he was preaching one Lord's day, fome boys threw a piece of a rotten flick at the pulpit; upon the noise it made Mr. Irvine left the pulpit, and went to his own house, being followed by some of the boys with huzzas and cries. Upon this a report was spread, that a minister had been stoned out of his pulpit, and forced to flee for his life to the manfe: But, when the committee examined this affair, they found it only a fro

Cha a fro ing lon, guil to t yout kno fente The crea of Dchar Upo ly fa mitt

> A cord indu act o appi met they of o char dire upor praé gree were cour cond

in / have cour T

expe

to t ders prov the appr bettle at a

)•

1-

ıl

n

S

.

n d

f

a frolick of some idle boys. However, the matter be- 1670 ing transmitted to the council, they found James Watfon, James Ranken, John Hattrick and William Sinclair guilty of the riot, and ordered them to be transported to the plantations; but the last two, because of their youth, were pardoned, upon their making a publick acknowledgment before the congregation. Whether the fentence was executed against the first two is not known. The parish was first fined in 50 L. sterling, and then increased to 100 L. to be paid to the curate. And the lairds of Douchal and Carncurran, then at Edinburgh, were difcharged to leave the town till they paid the faid fum. Upon examination the members of this committee plainly faw, that all, or most of the alledged disorders committed by the common people, were owing to the ill conduct of the incumbents.

As this committee examined into these abuses, so, ac- The case cording to their instructions, they took account of the of the inindulged ministers with respect to their observing the dulged. act of council against lecturing. These ministers being apprehensive that they would be examined as to this. met together and agreed to keep up the practice, altho' they used different methods. Some, it seems, forbore it, but others altered their former method, and, instead of one chapter, or part of a large one, read two or more chapters, which came nearest to the prescriptions in the Others read a whole chapter, and pitched upon some verse of it for their text, and in opening the text explained the context. But these different practices neither fatisfied the committee, nor were agreeable to many of their hearers. However, when they were examined before the committee, they gave an account of their different practices, and yet, contrary to expectation, moderate measures prevailed.

While the committee fat at Glasgow the curates gave Commitin lists of many non-conformists who were alledged to tee's prohave kept conventicles. Several were fined on that ac-ceedings count, but the particulars are not known.

The town of Edinburgh having been a great shelter ticles. to the ejected ministers the magistrates received or- Mr. ders from the council to turn them all out. And the George provost having got a list of them from the bishop, sent from the town-officers to seize them; however, none were apprehended except Mr. George Johnston minister at Newbettle, who being examined, and owning his having preached

Cha

to ti

was

it w

one Willi

row

ken i

and,

500 And

Robe

were not t

ther

tran

roga ty.

for t

gent

prife

time

coun

those

A

1670. preached on week-days, and on the Lord's day after four o'clock, when the publick worship was over, and refusing to engage not to keep conventicles, the council banished him the town of Edinburgh, and confined him to the parish of Borthwick during their pleasure; and it was the end of the year before his confinement was taken off. The hardships of other presbyterian ministers, by the soldiers having orders to quarter in their houses till their families should remove, were so great, that they were forced to feek a new shelter; for many were in danger of their life. But tho' many of them were reduced to straitning circumstances, yet God wonderfully provided for them.

Mris.

On the 13th of May, Mrs. Elifabeth Cuningham, lady Cuning- Hilderstoun, was fined by the council in 400 merks, for ham, &c, a conventicle in her house; as were Nichol Gardiner merchant in Edinburgh in 200 l. and to be imprisoned till he discovered the minister, and James Clarkson, Archibald Henry, William Leick and David Jamie, in 100 1. each, all for being at the same meeting. And the magistrates of Edinburgh, according to their bond, were fined in 50 L. sterling. Such were the hardships of the times ! And, on the the 9th of June, the heritors of the parish of Neilstown were fined in 1000 l. Scots for a riot on Mr. Kinnier the incumbent, and Allan Stewart of Kirktoun was ordered to continue at Edinburgh till it was paid.

The multitudes who went after the preaching of the meetings, word were so great that houses could not contain them, fo that now field-meetings, which, of all others, were most violently opposed, became frequent, three of which made great noise. About the middle of June, Mr. John Blackadder and Mr. John Dickson preached to a numerous assembly at Beeth-hill in the parish of Dumfermling. One Lord's day a licutenant of the militia rode up on horse-back, and gave the meeting great disturbance; Whereupon a person more courageous than the rest came up to him, and having in vain intreated him to withdraw peaceably, took his horse by the bridle, presented a pistol, and threatned to shoot him if he was not filent. The lieutenant continued upon this peaceably till the worship was over, and then had liberty to go where he pleased. The news of this horrid infult, as it was called, foon reached Edinburgh, and Sharp knew well how to improve it. So that many were brought piou and, prese iron brea > it wa liber merl Black in Ic gang

with

T at th inter cord Was M fries the # vera to trouble on account of it. Robert Walwood of Touch 1670. was fined in 500 merks, and ordered to ly in prison till it was paid. Mr. Alexander Hasty (after the revolution one of the ministers of Glafgow) Adam Stobie of Lufcar. William Adam merchant in Culrofs, James Slofs in Borrowstounness, David Mather elder in Brignies, John Ranken in Bonhard, and James Duncan in Grange, were taken, and, refusing to inform against others, were each fined in 500 merks, and ordered to ly in irons during pleasure : And afterwards they, together with Mr. John Vernor and Robert Orr in Milnbank, who had a child baptized there, were ordered to be banished the king's dominions, and not to return upon pain of death. James Dundass, brother to the laird of Dundass, was likewise ordered to be transported, but, upon giving his oath upon some interrogatories relating to this conventicle, was fet at liber-Many others were brought under great hardships for this conventicle, as Margaret Martin lady Colvil's gentlewoman, and Beffie Young her fervant, who lay in prison a long time.

Another field-meeting was held, much about the same Fieldtime, at Living feat in the parish of Carnwath, on ac-meeting count of which many suffered in the same manner as at Livthose mentioned in the last paragraph, particularly that ingseat. pious youth Mr. John Vernor, who, it feems, was at both; and, refusing to inform upon oath against any who were present, was committed close prisoner, ordered to ly in irons during the council's pleasure, and to be fed with bread and water. During this confinement his leg gangrened, which had almost cost him his life; and, notwithstanding all the intercession that was made for him, it was November before he and Robert Orr were fet at liberty, upon giving fecurity, under the penalty of 500 merks each, to appear when called. John Carmichael in Blackburn and David Carmichael in Potishaw were fined in 100 merks each for being at this meeting.

ŧ

0 ŧ

The council, being informed of a third field-meeting Fieldat the Torwood, ordered the earl of Callender to use his meeting interest for suppressing conventicles in Stirlingsbire; ac-at Torcordingly Charles Campbell in Airth, refeling to inform, was sentenced to be transported for being at this meeting.

Mr. John Menzies, minister at Carlaverock near Dum- Extract fries, observing the severities against protestants, while Mr. the papifts remained unmolelted, notwithstanding the se- Menveral remonstrances he had made to the bishop in the dio-zies's cefan testimony.

1670. cefan meeting, and to the brethren of the exercise, against the growth of popery, at first withdrew from their meetings, and at last, on the 12th of July, sent in his written testimony to the presbytery of Dumsries, in which he says,

HAT which hath been matter of lamentation to many, is, that when - the abomination of popery was almost rooted out of our land, that noisom weed hath, of late years, got a great footing among as again. And when not only - popery but also profanity of all forts abounds among all ranks and degrees: --- And while many of the godly --- are mourning in fecret for these abominations, as being a fad prognostick of the Lord's departing from us, and a judicial stroke of his vengeance.—It is not unknown to some of you, that, in some of the later synods, I did regret the growth of these ills, and intreat that some effectual remedy might be used for preventing their farther increase; albeit much was promised, yet nothing hath been performed. I likeways often represented the abounding of these in most parishes of this presbytery, and particularly within the bounds of my charge. -The last day I was at your meeting, I defired that, by an act of the presbytery, papists might be prosecuted, as well as the profane, &c. but was plainly refused that day,—it being declared not to be feafonable; and some of you afferting them to be the presbytery's useful friends. In confideration whereof - my beholding this your way hath occasioned my more serious thoughts of the course of conformity with prelacy. And albeit popery and profanity may be very accidental to the course of conformity with prelacy; yet beholding that these two pernicious weeds thrive fo kindly in your foil, it hath moved me now, more than ever, to fearch out what of God can be in that way. And—this is the result of what I have attained to, that I, through scripture-light and other engagements, --- cannot any longer adhere to conformity with prelacy, without the grievous wounding of my own conscience, and that by my former conformity I have exceedingly offended God, and have been a stumbling-block in the way of his people, for which, as I desire to be humbled before God, so I crave pardon of all his people whom I have offended. This I declare upon account of no worldly advantage; but my witwith the e

U

fente fhoul with who have the whise this to but weral

and

to in

he di licen who at fe fore be be not to fuafie this the a the gree, make impo to d by w

came

-

it

.

it

d

c â

2

n

d

e

t

d ıl

0

h

f

t

e

witness is in heaven, I do it only for the glory of God, 1670. the edification of his people, and the exoneration of my own conscience.

Upon this, in a most moving, faithful and affectionate manner, he exhorted them to confider their ways; reprefented how difinal it was that so many of the faithful should be cast out of God's inheritance; and concluded with these words, 'Finally brethren, as for prelacy, whereupon the Lord hath stamped this mark of his dif-' pleasure, that under it truth and godliness hath been ' under a fenfible decay, so ye would consider and ponder the fame impartially in the balance of the fanctuary, then, who knows but you shall discover it to be a ' plant not fet by the hand of God, but of man, and which the Lord in his own time may cause to be pluck-'ed out of his vineyard again?' He defired that this his testimony might be registred in the presbytery records, but whether this was complied with is not known. veral others also fell off afterward from the prelates.

The time of the fitting of the parliament drew near, and Lauderdale, when he came to Edinburgh, in order to ingratiate himself with the prelates, renewed the severities against the ejected ministers; for, by proclamation, he discharged any of them from coming to town, without licence, upon pain of death. And as those of them who were most frequent in preaching were summoned, at several times in the month of August, to appear before the council, so they, finding that they would either be banished or imprisoned, resolved among themselves not to appear, and sent a letter through all of their persuasion to stir them up to prayer and solemn fasting in this day of distress and treading down. See Wodrow's appendix, vol. II. No. 40.

The parliament fat down on the 28th of July. And Parliathe acts of this session, though short, continuing only for ment sat the space of a month, were fanguinary to the last dedown. gree, and, while they remain on record, must brand the makers of them with indelible disgrace. The first act First act. impowered—the king to name commissioners for treating of an union between the two kingdoms; but this came to nothing.

The 2d act related to those who refused or delayed Second to depose or swear against delinquents when required; act, by which every person, of what quality or sex soever,

Mm

Ch

arts

mer

for thre

thou

The

had

Rob

plea

chie

by d

that befo this

to

onl

did

froi

cho

tifm

omi

refo

ord

rish

in o dale

cov

refo

by

of :

put

tha

Selo

form

the

frai

the

red the

in

wa

leq

I

1

1670. was obliged to answer upon oath, and swear as to their knowledge of any crimes against the publick laws and peace of the kingdom, and particularly of any conventicles or other unlawful meetings, and of the several circumstances of the persons present, upon pain of fining, imprisonment or banishment, at the pleasure of the coun-The reader cannot but fee the iniquity of this act, by which the nearest relations were obliged to swear against one another under the penalties mentioned in it; parents were obliged to accuse their children, and children their parents.

Act a-

But the 5th, intitled Act against conventicles, was of all gainst con- others the most barbarous. By this it was enacted, venticles. That no outed or ejected minister, not licensed by the ' council or tolerated by the bishop, presume to preach, expound scripture, or pray in any meeting, except in ' their own houses, and to those of their own family; and that none be prefent at any fuch meeting.' So that if any fuch minister should be found praying in any family except his own, he was a transgressor of this law. Whether this be not a scandal to christianity itself, let the reader judge. Strange times! When a minister's praying in any house but his own was reckoned sedition. However, this was the case, and the minister or preacher, by this famous act, was to be imprisoned till he found bail not to keep another conventicle under the penalty of 5000 merks, [a greater fum than most of them were worth] or else consent to leave the kingdom, never to return without his majesty's licence. And as for those present at fuch house-conventicles, they were to be fined according to their qualities; if heritors, in the fourth part of their yearly rent; if tenants, in 25 l. Scots; and if cottars, in 12 l. Scots. These were peculiar severities. But the other part of this act, relating to field-preaching, was still more severe; for thereby it was ordained, that the minister or preacher be punished by death and confiscation of goods, and the fines for those present were to be twice as much as for house-meetings. And there Remarks. are only these three things the reader is to observe, I. That if any person should be without doors, when an ejected minister was preaching or praying in any house, that, by this act, was deemed a field-conventicle, and the penalties were the same. 2. Five hundred merks were appointed for those who should apprehend any of the preachers at field-meetings. 3. The sheriffs, slewarts 9.

nd

11-

r-

g,

n-

t,

1-ŀ

11

l,

e

١,

n

0

e

1

arts and lords of regalities, for their better encourage- 1670. ment, were allowed all the fines below heritors, &c. w for themselves. This act was to continue in force only three years, unless his majesty [or rather the prelates] should think fit to prolong it.

I shall leave the reader to make his own reflexions. The ministers who could not accept of the indulgence had now their fentence. Bishop Burnet says, ' that Sir p. 292. Robert Murray told him, that the king was not well pleased with this act, as being extravagantly severe, chiefly in that of the preachers being to be punished by death. He faid that bloody laws did no good, and that he never would have passed it if he had known it The half of the parliament abhorred before hand. this act; yet so abject were they in their submissions to Lauderdale, that the young earl of Cassils was the only person who voted in the negative.' This however did neither deter ministers from preaching, nor people from hearing, as we shall relate in the sequel.

chose to suffer rather than fin.

I shall fay nothing of their act against disorderly bap- Seventh tisms *; but their 7th act against separation must not be act omitted, because all his majesty's good subjects of the * P. 246. reformed religion are hereby commanded to frequent the ordinary meetings for divine worship in their own parish churches, under the penalties mentioned in the act in case of failure. Bishop Burnet says, ' that Lauder- p. 292. dale, with his own hands, put in a word in the act that covered the papists, the fines being laid on such of the reformed religion as went not to church. He pretended by this to merit with the popish party, with the duke of York in particular. Lauderdale told him, that he put in these words on design, to let the world know that they were to be worse used than the papilts themfelves.' And so it was in reality; for those of the reformed religion could neither in conscience attend on the worship of God in parish churches, nor yet refrain to attend upon ordinances where they could have them dispensed; and such was the dilemma they were reduced to, that they were exposed to the severities of the laws then made whatever course they took. Thus, in this short session of parliament, a large foundation was laid for a most severe persecution; the dismal consequences of it will be related in the sequel.

On

On the 11th of August there was a decreet obtained by the advocate against Mr. James Hamilton late at Mr. Ha- Blantyre, Mr. James Mitchel, Mr. James Porter, Mr. John Dickson late at Rutherglen, and Mr. John Blackadnounced. der late at Traquair. They were charged for holding conventicles in houses and in the fields; and not appearing, when fummoned, they were denounced and put to the horn, which obliged them to wander up and down the country, and preach in the fields as they had opportunity.

Mr Lan-About the 15th of August Mr. Robert Landas, for dass. performing worship in a private family about a year before, was apprehended, and kept prisoner at Edinburgh for fix weeks before he was fet at liberty. And Mr.

* p. 177, Hugh Peebles * was brought before the council on the 28th of August. And though nothing could be proved against him, yet, because he would not engage not to keep conventicles, and refrain from preaching and worfhipping God in any family but his own, was confined to Dumbarton and a mile round it. The same day the heritors of Glassford in Lanerksbire were fined in 1000 l. Scots, because the curate's house had been robbed by thieves, fome of whom, being afterwards apprehended for other crimes, confessed this robbery at their execution, and declared that there was not one person in the parish concerned.

This summer the laird of Meldrum, an officer of the guards, apprehended feveral good people in fome parishes in the shire of Renfrew, for hearing the ejected ministers, and put them to no small trouble. Sundry other ministers were likeways harrassed; for, notwithstanding all the difficulties to which they were expofed, they could not but pity the crying necessities of the people who thirsted after the word, and their ministry was remarkably successful among them.

The purging committee.

235.

As all methods of feverity were used to suppress the presbyterians, so attempts of another nature were made for accomplishing this end. Accordingly, when bishop Leighton entered upon the administration of the diocese of Glasgow, he received many complaints concerning the fcandalous conduct of the clergy, and therefore appointed a committee of his underlings to receive these accusations, and the council ordered seyeral to affift them. However, when this committee met in September, it was urged that none should be permitted perm figne autho they

Chap

of the to a fland man the ed, ticul pari fwea was his : ftry com A cler

was to t Lau and by 1 was the Burgen wer ter fpr ier com abo

ble

the

int wa fire Say the the

ral Wi 1-

ıt

It

d

d

r

h

d

0

permitted to give in a complaint, till they had first 1670. figned the declaration, but, finding they had no legal w authority to require this, the motion was dropt, and they fell upon another way to discourage complaints of this kind; for, if any failed in his proof, he was to appear in fackcloth before the congregation as a flanderer. Notwithstanding whereof, the proofs, in many cases, were so clear, that there was no avoiding the evidence. The incumbent of Killellan was depofed, and others removed from their charges: And particularly Mr. Jaffrey of Maybole, who had accused his parishioners *, was himself now accused of profane * p. 268. fwearing, drunkenness, &c. and, when the committee was like to have discharged him, Leighton interposed his authority, and forbid him the exercise of his mini-Notwithstanding this the purging stry in that parish. committee was of little effect.

Another method taken to retrieve the credit of the The biclergy, and to cast a vail upon the presbyterian ministers, shops ewas the fending some of the most noted episcopal divines vangelists. to the west, as doctor Burnet, Mr. James Nairn, Mr. Laurence Charteris, Mr. James Aird, Mr. Patrick Cook, and Mr. Walter Paterson, who were ironically termed by the country people, The bishops EVANGELISTS. It was expected these would have made prosclytes of all the west, but they soon found themselves mistaken. Mr. Burnet fays, in his history, the people of the country came p. 293. generally to hear us, though not in great crouds. We were indeed amazed to fee a poor commonalty fo capable to argue upon the points of government, and on the bounds to be fet to the power of princes in mat-This measure of knowledge was ters of religion. ipread among the meanest of them, their cottagers and icrvants.

The last attempt bishop Leighton made was the ac-The accommodation proposed to sundry presbyterian ministers, commodation proposed to sundry presbyterian ministers, commodation about the end of this year, with a view to draw them into an unperceived subjection to prelacy; but the snare was seen and avoided. Lauderdale, at Leighton's desire, wrote to messieurs Hutchison, Wedderburn, Ramsay, Baird and Gemble, to meet him at Edinburgh on the 9th of August, which they did. And, upon hearing the proposals, they replied, that, as these were of a general concern, they could not give their private judgment without consulting their brethren. They farther desired 1670. fired the proposals might be given in writing, which the bishop promised to do, but did not perform. However, the commissioner allowed presbyterian ministers, indulged and not indulged, to meet among themselves, and gave them till the first of November to think of an answer.

The ministers, meeting among themselves, put the Proposals. proposals in this shape, to be communicated to their brethren. ' Presbyteries being fet up by law as they were established before the year 1638. and the bishop ' passing from his negative voice, and we having liberty to protest and declare against any remainder of frelatick power retained, or that may happen at any time to be exercised by him, for a salvo for our confciences from homologation thereof; queritur, whether we can, with fafety to our consciences and principles, join in these presbyteries? or what else it is we will defire or do for peace in the church, and an accommodation, episcopacy being always preserved? Accordingly, at a numerous meeting of ministers, it was unanimously agreed, that the above concessions were not fufficient to be a foundation for their fitting and acting in presbyteries and fynods with the prelates; for they justly reckoned this accommodation inconfistent with their principles. They could not comply with this without complying with episcopacy itself, and owning the king's ecclefialtical fupremacy, which was eltablished by law.

A confe-

On the 14th of December bishop Leighton, the provost of Glafgow, Sir John Harper of Camnethan, Mr. Gilbert Burnet, and Mr. James Ramsay dean of Glasgow, met with about 26 presbyterian ministers, indulged and not indulged, at Ayr; at which a conference began concerning the power of bishops; and Mr. Alexander Famison reasoned so closely with Leighton on that point, that he became very uneafy, his nose fell a-bleeding, and he was obliged to retire for a little. And when feveral others were inclined to enter the lifts with him and professor Burnet, they were told that the meeting was not for debates. The meeting was adjourned till next day, when, receiving farther proposals, they got till the 12th of January to consider of them. In the mean time the ministers, observing that the last were more unsatisfactory than the first, appointed messieurs Hutchifon,

Cha Hui deli

IIt

lor, cou The feve flers fatis decl gair fpea infu ed t fent acco

ple c

12th

A

of I who fuch fame dom

W

rian

fonal difgurejeć maximilta pofal presb their chy.

26th their ries : bishop Hutchison, Wedderburn, &c. to repair to Edinburgh, and 1671. deliver in their answers in writing.

Accordingly these ministers got to Edinburgh by the Accom-11th of January 1671. where they found the chancel- modation lor, duke Hamilton, earl of Tweeddale, and fome other at an end. counsellors, with bishop Leighton and professor Burnet. There were two meetings at Holy-rood-house, besides feveral private conferences. And in short the minifters gave in their reasons why the proposals were not fatisfactory. At one of these meetings Leighton offered a dispute with them, which Mr. Hutchison modestly declined, observing that he was not safe to dispute against episcopacy, considering the laws in force against speaking or writing in opposition to it. The professor insulted upon this; whereupon Mr. Wedderburn accepted the challenge, if the chancellor and counfellors prefent would allow him; but that not being granted the accommodation broke up.

About the beginning of this year Sir James Dalrym- Jus popuple of Stair was admitted a privy-counsellor. On the li vindica-12th of January the council fell foul on that noted tum. book, intitled, Jus populi vindicatum, and on the 16th of February published a proclamation, ordering all who shall have any copies of it in their custody, after fuch a limited time, to be fined in 10,000 merks. The fame day colonel Gilbert Ker, who had left the kingdom fince the restoration, got liberty to reside in Scot-

1-

s,

n

e

ir

y

i-

f

.

1-

S

it

S

g

ıt

h

1-

.

)-

1-

d

n

90

t,

d

.

g

t

e

S

When the accommodation was at an end, the presbyte- Presbyterian ministers were represented as obstinate and unrea-rian mi-Bishop Burnet says, that their behaviour misters censured. ionable men. disgusted all wise, moderate and good men, when they rejected propositions that came so home even to the maxims they themselves had set up. But in this he was miltaken; because there was nothing offered in the proposals that was inconsistent with prelacy; neither could presbyterian ministers yield to them, without renouncing their known principles and submitting to the hierar-

However, the council upon this made an act, the AR of 26th of January, confining all the indulged ministers to council. their respective parishes, who would not keep presbyteries and fynods, those namely which were held by the bishops, insomuch that Mr. John Bell, minister at Ardrof-San, durst not go to visit his dying father, though with-

cil. Some indeed received more favour than others.

But as none of them kept the 29th of May according to act of parliament, and as they generally kept up the practice of lecturing, they were exposed to no small hardships, and it was with difficulty they could get their stipends.

Troubles But the ejected ministers who were not indulged were of the e-exposed to still greater hardships; for such of them who jested miresided in the parishes where episcopal ministers were settled, were ordered either to keep their parish churches, or remove with their families elsewhere; and not a few were brought to trouble for baptizing children.

Mr. Mr. John Menzies, minister at Carlaverock, having been Menzies. obliged to appear before the commissioner, was confined to his own chamber at Edinburgh. When he had continued there for some time, without any notice being taken of him, he went home and preached to his people: Whereupon the council, finding he had broke his confinement, ordered him to appear before them upon pain of rebellion. But what was the consequence of this I do not find.

Mean while the advocate pressed for severity against conventicles. Accordingly, on the 2d of March, the council appointed a committee to consider what was farther to be done for suppressing them, but what they did this year is not known; only, on the 7th of March, p.271. the sureties for messieurs Hastie, Stobie, Adam, &c *.

were ordered to produce these persons; and when they appeared before the council, they were commanded to attend the sirst meeting in May, but there is no more concerning them.

Several gentlemen were likeways brought to much trouble; for, on the 2d of March, Sir Charles Erskine, lord Lyon, got a commission from the lords of the treafury to enter upon the estates, &c. of such as were forfeited for the rebellion 1666. in the shires of Dumfries, Wigtoun, and stewartry of Kirkcudbright; and though Mr. George MacCartney of Blaiket was neither at Pentland, nor forseited on that account, yet, some way or another, his name having been inserted, none of them suffered more than he. His father was fined in Middleton's parliament, and otherways harrassed, and himself suffered exceedingly before this by sines, exactions, and depredations; and resusing this year to compound for his e-been liber thele the was durin than

Cha

state

burgi

miles 10,00 his find diouse by he close out be the close of w

Uı

mists over fuch manı is tru to be regis in a in th pear deen. upon the c fay o great it wa prefb thoug on at be m rend

CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 281 Ghap. 9.

-

e 11

r

0

1

n

$

flate with lord Lyon, he was carried in prisoner to Edin- 1671. burgh. After some time, it being found that he had been neither forfeited, nor excepted, he was ordered his liberty upon giving bond to appear when called; nevertheless he was by ways and means detained in prison for the space of fix years, during which time his estate was feized and his lands laid waste, so that his losses, during this time of perfecution, amounted to no less than 9827 L. 16 s.

Mr. Cuningham of Bedlane * was continued prisoner Mr. in Dumbarton castle, only got liberty to ride out some Cuningmiles every day for his health, on giving a bond for *p. 246. 10,000 merks to return to the castle at night. Kerstand, his fellow-prisoner +, petitioned the council, on the + p. 266. 5th of September, to be sent to some place more commodious for the education of his children. Accordingly he was ordered to Aberdeen, where he was kept close prisoner in a cold room for three months, without being allowed a fire; and in the month of December he was brought from Aberdeen, and committed to the castle of Stirling, where he continued several years, of whom more will be related afterwards.

Under all this feverity towards protestant non-confor-Increase milts popery fensibly increased; swarms of priests came of popery over with large cargoes of relicks, pictures, beads, and fuch like trumpery, and vast numbers of father Turbevill's manual of controversies were industriously dispersed. It is true the council in August ordered four popish priests to be apprehended, and appointed Argyll and the lord register to seize some popish books and trinkets that were in a ship lately come to Leith. Some episcopal ministers in the north, where popery was barefaced, did also appear against it, particularly Mr. John Menzies at Aberdeen. But though several representations were made upon this point, yet little regard was had to them at the council-board, where Sharp had the impudence to lay one day, that his majesty's government was by far in Sharp's greater hazard from presby terians than papilts; and that declaratiit was his opinion the council ought to look more narrowly to on. presbyterian meetings, in which they were very flack, although the great danger lay there.

If the primate was let into the fecret intrigues carrying Remarks. on at this time, it is likely he fpoke what he thought to Rapin, be matter of feet. It is likely he fpoke what he thought to Rapin, be matter of fact; for the king had formed a design to 655, 6c. render himself absolute, and to overturn the protestant

Chaj

Two

up a him l

for th

Glasg

Itrate

the e

move

fmall

Carm

brou

cil fo

derec

lingu or 16

worl

ed at

Carm

disco

ed th

burgi

not v to th

Walt

glass

dulg

been

king

all fo

the f

yet

priva

they

the a

Was

nue

But

thin

ther

ptos

O

In

TI

TI

1671. religion; and, as he could not communicate his intentions with fafety to his whole council, he established a cabinet-council of five persons only, viz. Clifford, Ar. lington, Buckingham, Albley and Lauderdale. The initi-The CA- al letters of these five names composing the word CA-BAL, this fecret council was from thence called by that name. If to these we add the king and the duke of York, it will be found that all the feven were for arbitrary government. And as to religion, the king, the duke, Arlington and Clifford were papists, and the other three of no religion at all. In this cabal, as father Orleans has declared, a war with the Dutch was resolved. The abbot Primi tells us, at the fame time, that 'king Charles figned a private treaty with France, and, and to give him farther assurances in that matter, Henrietta of England, dutchess of Orleans, king Charles's fifter, went to England 1670. and, in the name of the most chriflian king, made a proposal to her royal brother, of infuring to him an absolute authority over his parliament, and re-establishing the catholick religion in the three kingdoms; but that, in order to this, there was a " necessity of lowering the pride and power of the Dutch, and reducing that state to the narrow compass of the province of Holland, &c.' It is not my business to enter into these intrigues; it is sufficient to my purpose to observe that a design was now on foot to subvert the protestant religion; and if the managers in Scotland were privy to it, we need not wonder at their le> nity to papists and severity to presbyterians. About the end of this year the laird of Lee was made justice-clerk, and Lauderdale captain of the Bass, which the king bought and turned into a prison; and indeed Lauderdale and his friends at this time possessed all the chief posts in Scotland. But leaving these things, I now go on to the transactions of the year 1672. about the beginning of which Mr. Ramsay, the episco-Astrange pal incumbent of Auchinleck, happened to have his house commission robbed in the night-time, whereupon the council, on on. the 23d of January, gave a commission 'to some officers of the army, in that neighbourhood, to hold courts, call witnesses, and examine into the affair, and to fine the absent heritors in 200 /, tenants in 40 /. and cottars in 10 1. and each woman according to ' the quality of her husband, dead or alive.' So that here a justiciary power was lodged in the military officers.

Two

Two days after this Gordon of Dundeugh in Galloway got 1672. up a bond of 600 merks, which had been extorted from him by Sir William Bannantyne.

i-

2

i-

1-

at.

of 7-е,

e

IS

)-

es

e of

it

.

1-

t,

e

a

e

0

-

.

e

d

C

n

The persecution against conventicles still went on; Order afor the council being informed that several were kept in gainst conGlasgow, ordered, on the 22d of February, the magistrates of that city to suppress them, and to enjoin all the ejected ministers, either to attend the church, or remove out of the town, which put many of them to no small difficulties.

The same day the learned and pious Mr. Alexander Mr. A-Garmichael, having been apprehended at Kirkaldy, and lexander brought in prisoner to Edinburgh, was before the coun-Carmicil for keeping conventicles, and on the 26th was or-sufferings. dered to be transported by sea to London, where he was singularly useful, and finished his course with joy 1676 or 1677. This excellent person is well known to the world by his accurate treatise on mortiscation, published at London after his death 1677. His brother Mr. John Carmichael and he had for some time conformed, but, discovering their error, quitted their livings and joined their suffering brethren.

In March many of the ejected ministers about Edinburgh were obliged to leave the town, and go they knew not whither. However, several of them at this time got to their rest out of the reach of all their enemies, as Mr. Walter Greig, Mr. David Ferral, and Mr. Robert Douglass.

On the 15th of March his majesty's declaration of in-English dulgence to the non-conformists in England, which had indubeen communicated to and approved of by the French gence, king, was published, in which the penal laws against IV. p. all fort of non-conformists were suspended; and though 443,6c. the papists were not to have publick places for worship, yet they were allowed the exercise of their worship in private houses. The protestant non-conformists, though they had now liberty granted them, had no opinion of the dispensing power. They were sensible the indulgence was not granted out of love to them, nor would continue any longer than it served the interest of popery. But the breaking out of the Dutch war made the court think it necessary to grant them an indulgence, that there might be peace at home while there was war abroad,

Two

C

6

6

B

ry

an

ar

la

th

fa

th

in

V

tr

to

to

Y

cl

to

ti

fe

I

la

L

fi

7

a

W

p fi

f

2

2

H

6

1672. Two days after this the king published his declarati. on of war against the States, dated the 17th of March, and the like was published by the French king at Paris, who in War against the the beginning of May assembled an army of 120,000 men. Dutch. and with a rapid fury over-run the greatest part of the Rapin, Netherlands; and the Dutch were reduced to fuch extre-Neal. mities, that the populace rose, and having obliged the States to make the young Prince of ORANGE stadtholder. they fell upon the two brothers Cornelius and John De. Wits, and tore them to pieces. This Prince, by the blef. fing of God, was raifed up, in that time of extremity, to check the progress of the French arms, and disconcert the measures that had been formed, not only for ruin. ing his country, but also for subverting the protestant Burnet.

At this time lord-keeper Bridgeman lost all credit at court; for he refused to put the seal to the indulgence, as judging it contrary to law; so he was disinissed; and Shaftsbury was made chancellor, Clifford treasurer, Arlington had a garter and was made an earl; and Lauderdale had a garter and was made a duke on the 2d of May. All the members of the cabal had great presents religion, and establishing popery and arbitrary power.

them a picture of the king of France set in diamonds to the value of 3000 L. sterling. And thus, to use the words of a noted historian, was the nation and our religion, as well as the king's faith and honour, set to sale and sold. But to return to Scotland, the managers there took no notice of these things, but carried on their persecution against the presbyterians.

Alls of parlia-

In the month of June the parliament fat down at Edinburgh, and made several persecuting acts. By their first none were to be officers of the militia but episcopalians; both officers and foldiers were to take the oath of allegiance and declaration, and upon refusal to be imprifoned and banished. By their 9th act, against unlawful ordinations, none were to ordain to the ministry who were not authorised by law; all pretended ordinations since 1661. were declared to be void and null. The ordainers and ordained, contrary to this act, were to be imprifoned and banished by the council; and persons married by fuch were denuded of all they could claim jure maviti vel relictæ, &c. By the 11th act, about baptisms, it was ordained, 'That every person who wants a certificate, from the minister of the parish where he lives, f that that his child was baptized within thirty days of its 1672.

285

birth, shall be fined, heritors in a fourth part of their yearly valued rent, merchants 1001. Scots, &c.'

By the 12th act, all who do not observe the anniversary of his majesty's restoration were ordered to be fined, and otherways punished, according to their condition and estate *. By their 17th act, the acts passed in the p. 76.' last session, concerning conventicles and withdrawing from publick ordinances, are to continue in force for three years after the expiration of the time limited by these acts. The last act of this session was against profunences, and was an excellent act, had it been only put in execution; but the ecclesiastick gentlemen had somewhim also to mind thing else to mind.

. 9.

rati-

and no in men,

f the ktre-

the

lder,

De

blef-

, to cert

uinstant

it at

, as

Ar-

Land of

ents h of

s to

ords

, as

old.

no

ion

at

pa-

b of

ri-

010-

ere

nce

in-

ri-

ied

na-

it

ti-

cs,

iat

During this fession of parliament a great many were Persecutiimprisoned, fined, and denounced on account of con-onforconventicles: Accordingly, on the 11th of July, Mr. Pa-venticles. trick Hay laird of Lees was ordered to be confined to his chamber at Edinburgh, and Mr. James Mercer, governor to the laird of Meggins, to be confined to the His pupil Mr. John Drummond of Meggins younger, Alexander Christie and Thomas Keltie merchants in Perth, were ordered to be carried prisoners Those who were at this to the tolbooth of Edinburgh. time fummoned, and did not appear, who were not a few, were denounced and put to the horn. 14th Meggins elder was fined in 500 L. sterling for his lady's being at a conventicle, and his fon, the faid Mr. Drummond, was imprisoned till his father should pay the fine. At the same time the said Alexander Christie and Thomas Keltie were fined in 500 merks Scots each, the laird of Lees in 1000 merks, and George Hay of Balhousie, afterwards earl of Kinnoul, in 1000 L. sterling; and all of them to remain in prison till their fines On the 24th of July, Anne counters of Wigwere paid. toun, an excellent widow lady, was obliged to appear personally before the council, and, upon owning her being at a conventicle in the house of Boghall, was fined in 4000 merks. Mr. James Duncan at Duplin, for being at another at the bridge of Earn, was fined in 2000 merks, and the following persons were imprisoned, viz. James Grighton, John Dalziel, James Paterson, William Cleghorn, Malcolm Brown, Peter Gilles, Thomas Crighton, James Glasgow, James Lindsay, James Thom-Jon, James Forrest, John Newbigging, John Hutchison,

Cha

land

five

cil 1

man

ever

thou

gou

net

he e

for wer

ftoo

the

and

agai

Bur rebe

that cut

all a

of

ple

had

gen

as

ter,

rep

brie

and

wh:

pet

mit

hor

tho

ed

und

Hug

ty,

Nou

feri

day

I

F

1672. and Malcolm Gibson. They who did not appear were Such was the mildness of this adminidenounced. stration!

During these proceedings against conventicles, on the * p. 266. 13th of July Mr. John Rae and Mr. Hugh Archbald * were fent from Stirling-castle to Dumbarton, along with

t p. 246. Mr. John Cuningham of Bedlane +. The same day Mr. John Scot, fon to Andrew Scot in Tufbilaw, having been imprisoned for writing to the reverend Mr. John Carstairs in Holland, was brought before the council, and after examination was fet at liberty upon a bond of 1000 merks to appear when called. From this bishop Burnet would make the world believe that there were deligns in Holland to raise a rebellion in Scotland. His

p. 279. words are these: 'That which gave duke Lauderdale ' juster ground of offence was, that one Carstairs, much employed at that time in greater matters, was taken in a ship that came from Roterdam. He himself e-' scaped out of their hands, but his letters were taken.

'They had a great deal writ in white ink, which shewed that the defign of fending him over was to know in

' what disposition the people were, promising arms and other necessaries if they were in a condition to give ' the government any disturbance. But the whole was

' fo darkly writ, much being referred to the bearer, ' that it was not possible to understand what lay hid under fo many mysterious expressions.' This must be a very dark story indeed. It is true Mr. Scot was imprifoned for corresponding with Mr. Carstairs, as, after the beginning of the Dutch war, fundry, amongst whom was Mr. William Livingston, were brought to trouble for writing to their friends in Holland. But there is no ground to affert that there were any fuch defigns as the bishop represents; neither is that historian obliged to his information, when he favs that Mr. Carstairs escaped out of their hands. When he came home, he did not feek to escape, but on the 3d of September this year appeared before the council, and found bail to appear again when called, under the penalty of 2000 merks; after which

As a second INDULGENCE was granted on the 3d of September, I shall now give some account of it. gence de- When Lauderdale came down to Scotland, it was generally faid he had one in his pocket. And as a toleration had been granted to the non-conformists in Eng-

I find little more concerning him.

Another indulfigned.

e

e

n

d

f

P

e

le

h

n

1.

1-

n

ıd

re

18

r, id

a

er

m

or

nd

e-

r-

of

to

ed

en

ch

he

t.

e-

c-

g -

d,

land, the like favour was expected in Scotland, exclu- 1672. five of rapists; but the bishops and lords of council that were of their party violently opposed it, and many letters were writ to the court against it. However, Landerdale had full instructions in this matter, though he kept them close, and carried with great rigour to presbyterian ministers and others. Bishop Bur- p. 340. net fays, Lauderdale looked on near two months after he came down to Scotland, waiting for an application for liberty of conscience; but the defigns of the court were now clearly seen into. The presbyterians underflood they were only to be made use of in order to the introducing of popery; fo they resolved to be filent and passive: Upon this he broke out into fury and rage against them, 'and carried matters so far, that when Burnet asked him, Was that a time to drive them into p. 341. rebellion ? Yes, faid he: Would to God they would rebel, that so he might bring over an army of Irish papists to cut all their throats .--- But, fays the historian, he calmed all of a fudden.

About 20 ministers met at Edinburgh on the 8th Ministers of August, and agreed to write to Sir James Dalrym-meet. ple of Stair, now a privy-counsellor, on whom they had great dependence, that the terms of the indulgence might be free from straitning conditions. But, as they could not agree upon the contents of the letter, they next resolved to send two of their number to represent their case to Stair. Accordingly Mr. Gabriel Cuning ham and Mr. James Kirkton waited upon him, and received very kind assurances that he would do what he could for them.

Mean while, on the 29th of August, Mr. John Spreul* Some set petitioned the council for his liberty, since he had submitted to banishment for eight years, and, having come home for his health, had been taken up for conventicles, tho' he had never been at any. His petition was granted upon giving bond and security to appear when called under the penalty of 2000 merks. The same day Mr. Hugh Archbald and Mr. John Murray were set at liberty, only the former was confined to the parish of Gal-sloun in the shire of Ayr, and the latter to that of Queensferry, and both were ordered to abstain from conventicles.

At length, on the 3d of September, being the Lord's Second day, the council came to a determination as to the in-indul-dulgence, and made the following acts.

Holy-

Holy-rood-house, September 3. 1672.

Ch

Bla

Mr

ryn

Ger

Car

Kel

Mr

clel

plac

ny-

Jan

Wi

Jan

Th

wit

buf

Lar

Me

Liv

mic

Cul

Lar

Bai

lar

iter

We

Joh

wit

Ox

nan

---}

Kil

Du

Lo

wit

Du

. 6 lore

to

ter

rifh fine

ines

Blair,

1672. History of indulgence, P. 35.

History of HE lord commissioner his grace, and the lords of his majesty's privy council, considering the diforders which have lately been by the frequent and numerous conventicles, and being willing to remedy so great an evil in the gentlest manner that could be thought on, and his majesty's commissioner being sufficiently instructed herein, they do order and appoint the ministers hereafter named, outed fince the year 1661. to repair to the parishes following, and to remain therein confined, permitting and allowing them to preach and exercise the other parts of their ministerial function in the parishes to which they are or shall be confined by this present act and commission after specified, viz. PAISLEY .- In Eglisham parish, with Mr. James Hamilton, Mr. + Donald Cargill. Paifley, with Mr. John Baird, masters William Eccles and Anthony Shaw. Neilstoun, masters Andrew Miller and James Wallace. He did not Kilmacolm, masters Patrick Simpson and William Thomson. Kilbarchan, masters John Stirling and James Walkinshaw. Killellan, masters James Hutchifon and Alexander Jamieson. --- IRWIN. --- Newmills, masters John Burnet and George Campbel. Fenwick, masters Thomas Wylie and William Shiels. Stewartoun, masters William Castlelaw, Andrew Hutchison, and Andrew Mortoun. Dunlop, masters Gabriel Cuningham and William Mein. Largs, masters John Wallace and Alexander Gordon. Kilbride, masters Robert Boyd and Gilbert Hamilton. Comray, masters Archibald Porteous and John Rae. Kilwinning, with Mr. Ralph Roger, Mr. Robert Fleeming. Irwin, with Mr. George Hutchison, Mr. John Law. Kilmarnock, with Mr. Alexander Wedderburn, masters James Rowat and William Hay. Kilmawers, with Mr. George Ramfay, Mr. John Park. Dreghorn, with Mr. John Spalding, Mr. James Donaldson. Beith, with Mr. William Maitland, Mr. William Crichton. Kilbirny, with Mr. William Tullidaff, Mr. Patrick Anderson. Ardrossin, with Mr. John Bell, Mr. James Bell. Ayr. Cultoun, Mr. William Fullerton. Riccartoun, masters Hugh Campbel and Hugh Crawford. Dundonald, masters John Osburn and John Hutchison. Mauchlin, with Mr. James Veitch, Mr.

Robert Archbald. Ochiltree, with Mr. Robert Miller, Mr. Patrick Peacock. Galstoun, with Mr. Alexander accept.

He was baptized by the name of Daniel.

9.

2. ds

ng

nt

lebe:

of-

nt

I.

in nd-

in

by a-: hn

W. e.

m

nd

ni-W-

n-

s.

ıt-

a-

rs

1-

y, n-

g.

W.

1-

rs,

n,

h,

n.

ck

es

n.

W-

m

r.

r,

er

r,

Blair, Mr. Adam Alifon. Craigic, with Mr. Dav. Brown, 1672. Mr. Robert Maxwell. Dalganie, with Mr. Andrew Dalrymple, Mr. John Campbel. Symington, with Mr. John Gemble, Mr. Francis Irvine .---- KIRRCUDBRIGHT-----Carefairn, mafters John Semple and William Erskine. Kells, with Mr. Cant, Mr. George Wauch. Dalry, with Mr. John MacMichan, Mr. Thomas Thomson. Balmaciellan, malters James Lawrie and Thomas Vernor *, in * He did place of John Rofs when he shall be transported to Sto-not accept. ny-kirk. HAMILTON. Avendale, mafters lames Hamilton and Robert Young, Glasford, mafters William Hamilton and James Nafmith. Shots, mafters James Currie and Alexander Barton. Dalferfe, masters Thomas Kirkaldy and John Carmichael. Stonehouse, with Mr. John Oliphant, Mr. Matthew MacKell. Cambusnethan, with Mr. William Violant, Mr. Robert Lamb. Dalziel, with Mr. John Lawder, Mr. Thomas Melvil. — LANERK. — Carlouk, masters Alexander Livingston and Peter Kid, now at Carlouk. michael, masters John Hamilton and Will. Somervell. Culter, malters Anthony Murray and Robert Lockhart. Lamington, with Mr. John Crawford, Mr. William Bailie. Lesmahago, with Mr. Thomas Lawrie a regular incumbent, Mr. James Balderstones. Carstairs, mafters James Kirkton and John Greg .--- LINLITHGOW. ----- Welt-calder, masters John Knox and William Weir. Borrowstounes, masters Robert Hunter and John Inglis. - LOTHIAN, &c. - Lintoun, with Mr. Robert Elliot, Mr. Robert Elliot his fon. Oxnam, with Mr. John Scot, Mr. Hugh Scot. Hownam, with Mr. John Stirling, Mr. --- Ker .--- ARGYLE. ---Killern, mafters Cunninson and Alexander MacLean. Kilfannan, Mr. John Cameron. Campbelton, masters Duncan Campbel and Edward Keith. Kilchattan in Lorn, malters J. Duncanfon and A. MacLean. Knapdale, with Mr. Dougal Campbel a regular incumbent, Mr. Duncan Campbel. South Kintyre, Mr. David Simplon.

And yet, notwithstanding the said confinement, the lord commissioner his grace, &c. give full powerto the lord chancellor, &c. or any four of them, to alter any of the persons foresaid from any of the said parishes, to another of those parishes, or to allow and confine other persons in their places, they always pitching on some outed ministers from that diocese, wherein the parishes, to which they are to be confined, do lie; Council

and

Gha

cour

and to t erv.

very

enfu

200 min

13,

ter,

then

mat

poir

to f thei nin

the

miff

cell

the

Dut

dep

give

gain

pre

lick

fore

nec

con

of

muc

bur Hog

his

ata

rate

dut

the

ou the two

ne 101

the

ing

1672. and allowing none to preach who were outed before 1662. or, being outed fince 1661. are under - fentences of any court of this kingdom; with power to the faid commissioners, or their quorum, to confine to and allow outed ministers in the parishes of Tarbolton, Barn. well, Stevenson, Lochwinnoch, Inchinnen and Mearns; and that fo foon as the present incumbents in these parishes shall be provided and transported to other kirks. Recommending to patrons to give them presentation at kirks that shall vaik; and particularly to - patron of the kirk of Galashiels, to give a presentation thereto to Mr. Alexander George; to - patron of the kirk of Burghton, to present thereto Mr. William Nasmith; to -patron of the kirk of Maclue, to present Mr. Robert Kincaid; to — patron of Gartney to present Mr.

Stuart — .' The rest of this act relates to the stipends, and gives affurance to the episcopal clergy-that no more shall be indulged.

Rules to ... The fame day the council made another act containing be observe the rules to be observed by all who were indulged. As 1. They must not marry or baptize except those who belong to their respective parishes, or to any neighbouring parishes if vacant. 2. They must administer the Lord's supper on one and the same day, and admit none to partake with them from other parishes, without a certificate from the ministers thereof. 3. They must preach only in the church, under the pain of being punished as keepers of conventicles. 4. They must not go out of their parishes without a licence from the bishop of the diocese only. 5. That, as to discipline, all such cases as were formerly referable to presbyteries must continue still in the same manner; and where there is no presbyterial meeting, that these cases be referred to the presbytery of the next bounds. 6. That the ordinary dues payable to burfers, clerks of presbyteries and synods, be paid by the faid ministers as formerly.

There was a 3d act of council made the same day, relating to the rest of the ejected ministers not as yet indulged, by which they were required to hear the word, and communicate in those parish churches where they resided, or elfe to remove to some other parishes, where they can hear and communicate, under the pain of imprilonment. This act discharged all other presbyterian miniiters, except the indulged, from exercising any part of the ministerial function, under what punishment the council

.p. .

efore

ien-

er to

and

Barn-

and ifhes

Re-

n at tron

reto

k of

; to

Ro-

Mr.

the

that ning

As be-ur-

the

one

cer-

ach

as

of

the

3:25

nue

by-

byues

ds,

at-

ed,

m-

d,

ey

n-

i-

of

ne

council shall think proper to inslict; and the sheriffs 1672. and other magistrates were commanded to examine into the conduct of the indulged, with respect to their obferving the rules above mentioned, and make report every fix months, and some time before the first of June enfuing:

When the account of these acts came abroad, many ministers were diffatisfied. And at a meeting of about 13, which was held at Edinburgh about a day or two after, it was proposed, and all the brethren present declared themselves against it. But this being found to be a matter of general concern, another meeting was appointed for the 24th of September, and letters were fent to several ministers in the country to attend and deliver their fentiments as to this matter.

Mean while, as one great delign of the indulgence was Commifthe suppressing of conventicles, so, on the 16th, ' the com- sion conmissioner and council gave a warrant to the lord chan-cerning cellor, the archbishop of St. Andrews, duke Hamilton, ticles. the earls of Argyll, Athol, Tweeddale, Kincardin and Dundonald, the prefident, register, advocate, treasurerdepute, juffice-clerk, or any four of them, to meet and give proper orders for executing the acts of council against the outed ministers, and for preventing and suppressing conventicles and other disturbances of the publick peace of the church, with power to call persons before them, commit them to prilon, and do all things necessary for these ends. In difficult cases they are to confult with the council,' But I can give no account of their proceedings.

To return then to the meeting of ministers at Edin- Meetings burgh the 24th of September, 32 met in Mr. Thomas of mini-Hogg's room, and agreed that every one should declare fers. his opinion at the next meeting. Being again affembled at an after meeting, Mr. John Inglis was choien moderator. When the question was put, Whether it was the duty of ministers to go and exercise their ministry at their churches? four were of opinion that ministers ought to go to their churches when they had once given their teltimony against what was wrong in the indulgence, two were undetermined, and the rest present were in the negative, to mag out about a sentummus

When copies of the council's acts came to the welt, there were fundry meetings; and many were for accepting of the indulgence providing a sufficient teltimony

Mete

Grievances as to the indulgence.

Cha

in I

the

es,

peo

ther

03.1

that

fter:

this

Chi

larl

whi

....

the

out

whi

thr

ver

and lefs

pro

are

fity

the

por

nif

tha

tha

lov

fer

cit

TI

tw

do wi

acl

ou

de

an

greed, that but one minister ought to go to one parish, except in those places where formerly there had been two. There were great debates concerning the testimony to be given in to the state. At last Mr. William Violant and Mr. Alexander Wedderburn were appointed to draw up a paper to this purpose. They complied, and their paper, after some amendments, was generally liked at a meeting held at Irwin in the month of October. I shall give the reader the following abstract of it.

Grievan- I. ces as to the indulgence.

INT E the ministers of Jesus Christ, who have been debarred from our respective flocks --- and restrained from the free exercise of our miniftry these many years, do, with all thankfulnes, acknowledge his most excellent majesty's royal favour in granting to some of us the publick exercise of our miniitry; -- yet confidering the offered indulgence, as contrived in the complex, and cast in its present mould in three acts of council, to be clogged with many involvements contrary to our principles, and confciences, and with many inconveniences as to our persons and families, and to the congregations both from which we are separated and to which we are assigned, we are execedingly straitned in our liberty to accept of the fame, because the whole draught appears to be nothing but the actual exercise of erastianism, in so far as the council is pleased, not only to dispose of persons and places, but to make application of persons to plaees for the exercise of their ministry, as if it were proper to the magistrate to judge of the spiritual state and condition of the people, of the qualifications of ministers, — and to form and prescribe rules; — so that the --- yielding to these acts may be interpreted an homologating with and subjecting ourselves to erastianism, contrary to our known judgments in these matters.

II. Though we disallow all tumultuary and seditious meetings, which the meetings of the Lord's people for hearing his word cannot be reputed,—we are not a little grieved that the narrative of this present act seems to involve the accepters into an interpretative condemning of the same, which we dare not.

III. Albeit there be a very great necessity of a free call from the people,—yet the indulgence, as contrived, deprives the people of the liberty of a free election.

n

the council's act, preremptorily confined to the parishes, without so much as the previous knowledge of the people; and so a necessity is laid upon the people, either to call the confined, or want a minister.

IV. This way offers violence to that special relation that is between pastors and people, —— so that ministers formerly by violence pulled away from their flocks, —— are still kept divorced from one another, though this union and relation, being made up only by Jesus Christ acting in and by his church, can never be regularly dissolved by any other authority——— than that which made it.

9. 1 a-

ish,

mo-

Vio-

to

and

ked

I

1111

ave cks ini-

ac-

in

ini-

on-

ve-

ces,

and

nich

are

the

be far

ons

pla-

ro-

and

ni-

hat

ho-

ifm,

ous

for a je

act ive

free

riv-

107

in

the kingdom. T. In that their own pastors are, without necessity, shut up from them in a corner, at a time when profanity, popery and quakerism are—fpreading through the land.—2. In that the people will have several necessary duties to perform for the accommodation and encouragement of two, which they will judge needless, one being sufficient for the charge.—3. It will prove afflicting to many brethren, in that, by it, they are obtruded upon other mens labours, without a necessity, to the detriment of the necessary maintenance of them and their families.—

VI. We acknowledge that the magistrate hath the power of confinement, and of all other - external punishments in actu signato, - but when he is to apply that power in affu exercito, - we humbly conceive that the law of God, --- of nature, --- of nations, and of the land, requires an orderly procedure, and allows the party the benefit of defence. But here, 1. this lentence contains punishment against persons without citations or --- conviction of any crime or guilt, the like whereof is not done to the groffest of ill-doers. 2. This sentence is drawn out, not against one person or two, but against all the presbyterian ministers in the kingdom, a very few excepted, which makes the practice without -a precedent in any reformed church. acts carry not only a confinement of our persons, --- but of our ministry, and we are hereby---bound up from the discharge of those duties we owe to our national church, and deprived not only of all benefit of mutual converie---in presbyteries, but also of more private communion with one another: --- All which are --- the more grievous to us, as

they

C

m

in

wh

an

mo

gri

the

the

hel Th

joi finf

wh tell

in t acc

Th the

dro

chu

a ca

con hop

the

the

fell

relat

liam .

in p liber

pove

ly fe

was

bond

castle

lands

the e accor

this y

to be refuli

floor

Ser

D

1672. they are trysted at a time when papists and quakers are fo vigorously driving on their designs, without---any real or effectual restraint put upon them .--- Tho' we know our confinement will put no ftain upon us in the account of many----people, ---- yet the nature and tendency of it is weakening to the necessary reputation of ministers of Christ among the people, in that, by the same breath, ministers are permitted --- to preach, and yet sentenced as evil-doers .---- And all who get not a call from the people----will be exposed to far greater difficulties and fufferings than formerly.----MOTO WARE BUSINET

VII. The declaration, in the close of the first act. will prove a grievous --- ftroke to the peaceably difposed people of the kingdom, who have been longing for their pastors, -when by it they shall fee all hopes cut off of ever recovering them again.

VIII. We will not fall on a particular confideration of the rules of the 2d act, which we cannot approve of, unless we would renounce our principles .-All of them appear to be framed in favour of the conformed party, and to the disadvantage both of ministers and people of the presbyterian perfuasion. - And as the whole draught is, ---- at least, an interpretative subjection to erastianism, so the fifth and last rules, but especially the fifth, thrusts us under a direct and formal subjection to prelacy.

IX. We shall not mention how this is diffelished by the most part ---- who ---- adhere to the pure government of the church of Scotland; but the peremptory order given to sheriffs and magistrates, to inquire how the ministers confined and allowed to preach do observe these rules, shews that the ministers who fail-----will be undoubtedly cenfured, according to their supposed demerits, and we, being straitned in our conscience to give obedience to these canons, judge it will beprovoking to the magistrate, prejudicial to the people, and hurtful to ourselves, to step in, and within a short time to be thrust out again for our contravention.'

They conclude with a humble request for the removal of the penal statutes, and for liberty without such restraints as are burdensom to their consciences and inconfistent with their principles. 49 194430 141442

About the end of October, Mr. Gabriel Cuningham concerning with some others were fent to Edinburgh with this paper, to fee if the brethren in the east, who appeared a testimolt mony.

most averse to the indulgence, would concur with them 1672. in it. When Mr. Cuning ham presented it to them, they who were against the indulgence took it for a paper of reasons why the indulgence should not be complied with. and so it became the subject of debate. But viewing it more narrowly, and finding that it was a complaint of grievances, upon the presenting of which to the council the complainers resolved to comply with the indulgence, the meeting divided upon it. They that were against the indulgence said, that this was but a smooth way to help foreward ministers who were clear to their churches. The others complained that the other party would not join with them in a testimony against what both reckoned finful in the manner of granting the indulgence. They who could not comply answered, they were willing to testify jointly with them against what evils appeared in the indulgence, providing all would stand out and not accept. Sundry meetings were spent in these debates. Their last meeting was on the 23d of December, when they came to no agreement, so that the above paper was dropt. A good number of the ministers entred into the churches where they had been formerly, and others upon a call, where the congregation was vacant, with the content of the ministers of the bounds. And, fince all hopes of a joint testimony was lost, several gave it from the pulpit upon their first entrance, declaring against the erastianism in the indulgence. And some of them fell under no small difficulties on this head, as we shall relate in its proper place.

During these debates, on the 5th of December, Wil- William liam Porterfield of Quarreltoun, having been a long time field of in prison for his accession to Pentland, petitioned for Quarrel; liberty on account of his indisposition and the great toun, poverty to which he was reduced. He was accordingly sent from Edinburgh prison to Dunbarton castle, and was suffered to go abroad in the day time upon giving bond and fecurity under 10,000 merks to repair to the caltle every night. During the last year and this, the lands of Barfood and those of Mr. Gabr. Maxwell, with the estates of Rugland and Bedlane, were all forfeited on account of Pentland.

.

.

11

d

0 rt

)=

h

d

178

1-

d

Several meaner persons suffered during the course of this year. A poor parishioner of Abbotsfrule was taken to be a foldier for not hearing the curate, and upon refuling was fined in 100 l. Scots. John Ranken and James floort-Dunlop.

510

296

1672. Dunlop in Eglisham, James Brown in Muirzet, and John Foulis in Mearns, were brought in prisoners to Edinburgh for alledged corresponding with and receiving of some concerned in riots upon ministers. The earls of Dam. fries and Dundonald were appointed to examine into the ing that it was a complaining more arrrowly, and !

A curate pardoned for murder.

1673. Matters were managed much the fame way through the year 1673. But fuch was the partiality of the times to some, that though Mr. Archibald Beeth, curate in Arran, had foot one Allan Gardiner Merchant in Irvine, for which he was condemned to be hanged at the cross of Edinburgh, yet he was pardoned, and his remission read in council on the 9th of January.

Hift. of indul. p. 54.

On the 6th of February the council, in consequence of a petition from Mr. Robert Hunter now minister at Borrowstonness, ordered the stipend of the parish of Dunning, for the two last years which he served in that parish, to be paid him, and that letters of horning be directed for that effect.

On the 20th of that month they ordered the chancellor for Fife, and duke Hamilton for the west country. to inquire what magistrates and councillors for burghs had not figured the declaration; and on the 7th of March; upon receiving a complaint that Mr. Row, who had been translated from Balmaclellan to the parish of Stonykirk, was hindred from taking possession of it, ordered the cause to be inquired into; but no prosecution followed, Row at this time turning papist.

Proceedings against the outed minifters.

As the 2d indulgence, of which I have given a pretty large account, was attended with no small difficulties to those ministers who accepted of it, it involved the rest of the ejected ministers, who could not comply, in great distress: And some have thought it would have been a great happiness if none had accepted it, but strenuously adhered to their presbyterian covenanted principles. There were many named who did not and could not comply: Wherefore, on the 7th of March, the council, resolving to force them to their confinements in those parishes allotted for them, ordered all the outed ministers to remove five miles from Edinburgh, unless they immediately gave bond not to keep conventicles. And, on the 12th, fuch ministers as had not entered on their confinements were called before the council. There appeared messieurs George Waugh, Robert Young, James Kirktoun, James Donaldson, Robert Lockhart, Matthew Mac-

Ha rep def fam ftra

C

M

the tha mif who his bish Th der Mr of I met ny cil's ıst .

jud bilbe thou plex Lau mifo

a fe

plea

the A Eng difc late But, dref in I 261 clin on t fuad of th he i his guft 9.

hiz

gh

ne

7-

he

gh

es

1-

or

of

d cė

at 11-

h,

d

n-

y,

hs

h;

ad

19-

ed

ol-

ty

es

he

in

ve

re-

es.

ot

n-

ofe

ni-

ey

id,

eir

pies

ew

16-

MacKail, Patrick Anderson, Alexander Barton, James 1673. Hamilton, and William Thomson, and were appointed to repair to their respective parishes of confinement by the iff of June next, under the pain of being apprehended as despifers of the king's authority. Orders were at the same time given to the king's forces, sheriffs and magifrates, to seize them wherever they could be found, if they did not obey this appointment. They generally thanked the council for the time allowed them, and promifed to take the matter under ferious confideration. But Mr. when Mr. Young came before them, he complained of Young's his having been unjustly turned out of his charge by cafe. bishop Sharp, and begged their lordships to consider it. The bishop rose up, and alledged that he had been orderly and justly deposed by him and the fynod of Fife. Mr. Young offered to prove upon his peril, by the date of his fentence, that he was deposed before the fynod met. Nevertheless the chancellor, without taking any notice of his complaint, told him it was the council's pleasure he should go to his confinement by the ist of June. He answered, That he was forry that such a sentence was passed for no other reason than their pleasure, and humbly protested that it might not prejudge him of reparation of the wrong done him by the bishop, and that his obedience to the council's pleasure should not involve him in any approbation of the complex act of indulgence. Messieurs Robert Maxwell, John Law, William Weir, James Walkinshaw, Alexander Jamison and James Wallace were called, but being absent the matter was delayed.

About this time a great turn of affairs happened in Alterati-England, by which the measures of the CABAL were ons in disconcerted, whose great project was, as has been re-Rapin. lated, to establish popery and render the king absolute. But, soon after the parliament met, the commons addreffed the king to recal his declaration, fince penal laws, in matters ecclesiastical, cannot be suspended but by act of parliament; and, perceiving his majesty not inclined to this, they stopt their money-bill. Whereupon the king, being in want of money, was eafily perfuaded to give up his indulgence, contrary to the advice of the CABAL: And accordingly, on the 8th of March, he called for the declaration, and broke the feal with his own hands. This pleased the commons, but difgulted the CABAL. Arlington had in some measure de-

PP

1673. ferted them before; but when Shaftsbury faw how unfleddy his majesty was, he concluded that he was not to be trusted; and so, from being the head of the CABAL, he became the head of the country-party. Immediately after this change in the earl of Shaftsbury, the commons passed the test-act, intitled, An act for preventing the dangers which may happen from popish recufants; which having received the royal affent, most of the Roman catholic officers quitted their places. The duke of York refigned the office of lord high-admiral, and Clifford that of high-treasurer. Thus the CABAL was divided. But the king adjourned the parliament to the 20th of October, and from thence to the 27th, in order to defeat feveral bills which were disagreeable to him.

Had the managers in Scotland followed the example mation a- of the commons of England, instead of prosecuting their gainst con- protestant brethren, at the instigation of a pack of impiventicles. ous prelates, religion would have flourished, and a stop had been put to the growing progress of popery. It is true a clogged indulgence was granted, which many faithful ministers could not in conscience comply with. But then, to gratify the bishops, a most rigorous proclamation was emitted against conventicles, requiring all heritors, liferenters and wadletters to inform the council, or the sheriff of the shire, steward of the stewartry, &c. of house or field-conventicles kept within the bounds of their respective lands; and fignifying, that, if they do not give fuch information in three days after the conventicle is kept, they shall be fined in the fourth part of the yearly valued rent of their whole lands within the shire where the conventicle shall be kept: One third part of which was for the sheriff, and the other for the informer, and the rest for the king's use. Which furious proclamation occasioned very terrible oppression in many places.

Mr. Gilto the Bafs.

Two days before this Mr. Robert Gillespie was before lespie sent the council, and owned he had kept one conventicle in the town of Falkland; but, refusing to inform against any present, was ordered to be sent prisoner to the Bass, where he continued till the beginning of next year, when he was let out for some time on account of his health.

A falle

On the 7th of May a letter from the king, dated the immendo. 29th of April, was read in council, fignifying that the States, with whom he was at war, had a design to raise troubles in the west of Scotland, and therefore requiring

exc leaf han of thei as 1

Ch

the

try

and

the

wer

And cou nerk 1

cam

con

cute

pead

a co Dun of t cil wha that

&c.

the

gula

reac it, give mac N

men upo ties. A

min

piet able burn rick

The 26tl

them to suppress conventicles, and secure the west-coun- 1673. try. Upon this letters were wrote to duke Hamilton and the earls of Eglington and Cassils. But it is plain the king had not more loyal subjects than these who were now perfecuted, who complied with every thing except abjured PRELACY, fo that there was not the least ground for any innuendo's of this nature.

When the 29th of May came the bishops got another 29th of handle for oppressing the presbyterian ministers. None May not of the indulged observed this anniversary. If indeed kept by the their week-days-fermon fell on that day, they preached indulged. as usual, but without taking notice of that folemnity. And therefore, on the 12th of June, letters were by the council directed against them in the shires of Ayr, La-nerk and Kirkcudbright.

un-

to

L, ely

m-

nt-

ts;

Ro-

ike

ind vas the

der

n.

ple

eir

piop

is

ny

th.

0-

all

n-

ry,

ds

ey

n-

of

he

rd

he

ri-

in

re

in ny

15,

en

.

he he ife

ng

m

The same day another letter, dated the 31st of May, The king's came from his majesty to the council, approving of their letter did conduct as to the indulged, and requiring them to profecute those who would not comply; and, for preserving peace and order within the diocese of Glasgow, to give a commission to duke Hamilton, the earls of Linlithgow, Dumfries and Dundonald, and the president, or any two of them, to put in execution the laws and acts of council in relation to church affairs, and to inquire into what disorders have been, or may be committed within that diocese, and to call before them sheriffs, justices, &c. who have been, or shall be negligent in executing the laws against conventicles, deferting the kirks, irregular baptisms and marriages, &c. When this letter was read in council, all the members were not pleased with it, especially with the commission they were ordered to give; fo that it was the end of July before a return was made, which shall be related in its proper place.

Mean while the council, on the 19th of June, recommended to the lords of fession to grant no suspensions upon fentences passed on account of church irregularities, that fo nothing might hinder their execution.

About the end of June, Mr. Alexander Peden late Mr. Peminister of New-Glenluce in Galloway, a man of singular den sent piety, zeal and faithfulnefs, and of whom many remark- to the able things are related, was apprehended by major Cock- Bass. burn in the house of Hugh Fergusson of Knockdow in Car- Walker's rick, who had obliged him to stay that night in his house. &c. They were both carried prisoners to Edinburgh. On the p. 43. 26th of June the council appointed the register and ad- 44.

vocate

1673. vocate to examine him; and upon their report he was fent to the Bass, where he continued to the year 1678. Mr. Fergusson was fined in 1000 merks for harbouring and conversing with him, and the council ordered so L. sterling to be paid to Cockburn out of the fines, and 25 L. to be distributed at his pleasure among the soldiers under his command. Mr. Patrick Simpson, the indulged minister at Kilmacolm, sent him and the other prisoners a charitable supply of money, for which Mr. Peden afterwards thanked him.

Ministers not objerving the 29th of May.

About this time began the profecution of the indulged appear for ministers for not observing the 29th of May. On the 3d of July many of them appeared and owned they had not observed that day, and were not clear in their own minds to keep any anniversary holy-days of human institution. While they were before the council some of them were interrogated as to other things belides the anniver (ary, fuch as their baptizing children in the parishes of conformists without testimonials, and if they had obferved the council's instructions which were fent them with their acts of indulgence; and when one of them answered, that he had not seen the instructions spoke of, he was told by the chancellor, that that had been a neglect, but they should all fee them; and accordingly they were ordered to attend on the 8th for that purpose, and to receive their fentence for not observing the 29th of May.

Mean while the ministers had frequent meetings among themselves, to consult how to act when the instructions should be delivered to them. A paper was drawn up by way of testimony; but they not agreeing to fubscribe it, Mr. George Hutchison was appointed to speak, in the name of the rest, the sense of these impositions, in case they were intimated to them. But then fome condemned their conduct in not fixing the time when Mr. Hutchison should have delivered their sentiments, that being left to his own prudence; for they thought he should have delivered his own and the sentiments of his brethren whenever the council's instructions were proposed to be presented. Others again thought it was time enough when Mr. Hutchison himself should be called for. However, as the instructions related to them all, and as a testimony was judged proper against every unlawful encroachment upon the exercise of their ministry, I leave it to the reader to judge whether this should

Hift. of indul. p. 68.

fho nur 11 bef

Ch:

Ha 70h DaFan Rai Hu

Ma the ed Bas reb

the pre the of t if live nar

que

rof

Mr mo wa inf of bal dre per COL end let dif

of

otl fte to the 13

3.

g L.

1-

i-

2

r-

ed

ne

y

ır ın

of

ne

es

b-

m

m f,

eid

of 1-nas

to

to

li-

en

ne

ti-

ey

ti-

i-

ht

ld

to ılt

ir

118

ld

should not have been delivered before any one of their 1673. number had received them. But to come to matter of fact.

On the 8th of July the following ministers appeared Ministers before the council, viz. messieurs Anthony Murray, John fined for Hamilton, John Oliphant, James Curry, John Lauder, not keep-John Stirling, James Hutcheson, John Eccles, Andrew 29th of Dalrymyle, John Gemble, Hugh Campbel, Alexander Blair, May &c. James Veitch, John Hutcheson, Robert Miller, George Hist. of Ramfay, John Bell, Ralph Roger, William Tullidaff, George indul. P. Hutcheson, John Spalding, John Wallace, and William 51. Maitland, and were fined in the half of their stipend for the crop and year 1673. except the three last, who preached on that day. And messieurs John Crawford, John Baird and William Fullerton not appearing, were denounced rebels.

This being done, the lords, on the same day, ordered They rethe instructions to be delivered openly to the ministers ceived present, that none might pretend ignorance. A list of their inthem was drawn up, and every one was called in order of the lift, and asked if he had a copy of his instructions; if he had he was diffmiffed, but if not the clerk delivered him a copy. It happened that Mr. Hutchison's name was towards the end of the lift; and he not offering to speak till his name should be called, some began to question whether he would speak at all, and therefore rosolved to speak for themselves.

Accordingly, when the clerk delivered the paper to Mr. Mr. Alexander Blair, minister at Galstoun, he, being Blair's moved with zeal, and remembring whose ambassador he Hist. of was, told the council plainly, that he could receive no indul. p. instructions from them to regulate him in the exercise 52, 53. of his ministry, otherwise he should not be Christ's amballador, but theirs; and then he let their instructions drop out of his hand, knowing no other falvo or manner of testifying for the truth. This plain dealing so exasperated them, that they immediately ordered him to be committed to prison, where he continued till near the end of the year, when, by reason of his fickness, he was let out, upon finding fecurity in the sum of 5000 merks that he should re-enter in a month's time; but, his indisposition continuing, his liberty was lengthned for another fortnight, and before that expired his glorious mafter fent and rescued him from the rage of his persecu- p. 54. tors, and the reproaches of his deferting brethren; and the found of, Well done, good and faithful fervant, filling 1673. his ears, made him shut his eyes singing, and give up the ghost with joy, and in full affurance of faith.

Sundry of his brethren looked upon his testimony as unseasonable; but whether it had not been better for them all to have unanimoully joined him in the fame open and free declaration, must be left with the reader. When Mr. Hutchison was called he discoursed concerning the difference between the civil and church government, and their different powers formal and objective, intrinsick and extrinsick, and endeavoured to qualify what Mr. Blair had faid. But it is plain that they who could not comply with the indulgence never questioned the magistrate's lawful authority. After Mr. Blair was imprisoned, Mr. Hutchison and some others went to the chancellor, and other counsellors, and spoke to the same purpose with him, and begged favour for him; but that was not granted; for the chancellor told them, it was not the matter, but the manner of his speaking, that had irritated them.

Other mi-On the 10th of July, messieurs John Mac Michan of nisters fin- Dalry, John Semple at Carsphairn, and John Cent of Kells, were fined for not observing the anniversary.

On the 25th the commission to the five persons men-A kind of tioned in the king's letter of the 31st of May was agreed remon-Strance. upon, and the council at the same time wrote to his majesty, signifying ' that they had granted the commission 'appointed; but humbly proposed that his majesty would consider, whether the right settling the affairs of the church and publick peace in the diocese of Glasgow---be proper to be left in the hands of fo few.' It was some time before they had a return.

More ministers fined. Mr.Wedderburn.

Mean while, on the 31st, they fined messieurs John Scot at Oxnam, James Fletcher at Newthery, and Robert Mowat at Herriot, as above, for not keeping the 29th of May. The same day Mr. Alexander Wedderburn was committed to prison, because he confessed that he had preached and prayed in his own house, several being present besides his own family, till he either found security, under 5000 merks, not to keep another conventicle, or take upon him a voluntary banishment. However, in about a month's time they ordered him to to be confined to the town of Kilmarnock.

And on the said 31st of July they ordered a party of the guards to bring in Mr. William Weir, the indulged minister at West-Calder, prisoner to the tolbooth of Edinburgh, of indid. P. 41.

Mr.

Weir

History

ceiv his leag er e chu Supi app by at t

Cha

dint

I le to . call mai

Bla

ed !

pri

the

nal

of (the 20t den his Th nist phr triv per in t had

Foh

as a tol of t ftir lent had per was faid oth

ry ten dinburgh, because, for satisfying his conscience, he received a call from some of the heritors and people. In his first sermon he declared his adherence to the folemn league and covenant, and did not acknowledge the power either of king or bishop in matters belonging to the church of Christ. In short, he preached against the supremacy, prelacy and anniversary holy-days of human appointment. This plainly shewed that the council, by their act of indulgence, aimed, among other things, at the establishment of the supremacy and prelacy; so that the very speaking against these things was judged criminal. How far then they who kept slence are to justified, I leave with the reader. Mr. Weir soon after this went to Ireland, where he continued till 1687. when he was called to his former charge at Linlithgow, where he remained till his death in July 1695.

The gentlemen formerly mentioned, as Kersland, Blaiket, Quarreltoun, Bedlane, and others, imprisoned for non-conformity, were this year continued in their prisons. But the severity against Sir Andrew Kennedy of Clawburn, after the revolution lord-confervator in the Low-Countries, is not to be omitted; for, on the 20th of August, he was, by a sentence of the justiciary, denounced a rebel, ordained to be put to the horn, and his moveable goods confiscated for his majesty's use. The sentence bears, that Mr. Robert MacWard late minister at Glasgow, Mr. Robert Trail at Edinburgh, Mr. John Livingston at Ancrum, Mr. John Brown at Wamphray, and others, having retired to Holland, had contrived most treasonable designs against his majesty's person and government, and for involving their country in the calamities of a civil war; and, in order to this, had composed fundry feditious books and pamphlets, as Naphtali, Jus populi vindicatum, &c. and fent them to be dispersed through the country, to confirm those of their own principles, and to seduce others; that they stirred up the States to make war against the king; had fent home, or endeavoured to fend home, arms, &c. had kept correspondence with disloyal and feditious persons, among whom the said Mr. Andrew Kennedy was employed; that he had received and dispersed the faid books, &c. kept correspondence with them, and otherways promoted their deligns, and so was accessory to the crimes of treason, and was in absence sentenced as above. The reader is here to observe,

that

C

vel

vil

cel

Th

Alt

St.

ties

pre

def

Au

ord

ing gav 6 C

· jı (ta e m 6 C (m · fe 6 a · be in · ag re m · la CO · fo 4 di

· fe 6 ha

fic

tr:

' th

in!

pe

T ly co

thre

row'

fert

1672. that this sentence was grounded on notorious falf. hoods; for the ministers above mentioned never stirred up the States to war, nor promised the least assistance in Scotland. And though some of them were the authors of the books mentioned, yet the books speak for themselves; and what is said concerning Mr. Kennedy's dispersing those books is absolutely false.

Gentlemen fined.

Many were the exorbitant fines that were imposed upon gentlemen in the shires of Dumbarton, Lanerk, Ayr, Galloway, Dumfries and Renfrew. To give the reader a specimen of the oppressions of some of the king's best fubjects, merely for non-conformity, I shall in this place fubjoin an account of the fines imposed on some gentlemen in the shire of Renfrew alone. Thus,

Sir George Maxwel of Newark, for three years absence from his parish-church, 31,200 l. For a weekly conventicle during that time, 62,400 l. For three L.	s.	d. disorderly baptisms, 1200 /. in all 94,800	0	0
The laird of Douchal, now Porterfield, for the like atrocious crimes 84,400	0	0
William Cuningham of Carncurran 15,833		8
John Maxwel of Dargavel 18,900		0
John Brisbane of Freeland 3,900		0
Gavin Walkinshaw of that llk 12,429	0	0
Sir George Maxwel of Netherpollock 93,600	0	0
Matthew Stewart in Merns 6,399	0	0
John Pollock of Falside 3,510	0	0
James Hamilton of Langtoun 18,427	0	0
Mr. James Pollock of Balgray - 15,833		8
Extending in all to 368,031	13	4

And in Sterling to 30,669 A monstrous sum to be imposed upon eleven persons in one shire; and, had the whole been levied, the gentlemen must have been ruined. There was a composition made, and they were greatly harraffed till it was exactly paid. My author could not give the date when these fines were laid on; but, as this was the third year fince they were enacted by the parliament, he inferts them in this place. And, as the facts are certain, the impartial reader cannot, I am persuaded, think of such a government without abhorrence.

Thefe

9.

16-

ed

ce

u-

or

e-

ed

ir,

er

est ce

ed.

0

8

0

0

0

0

0

0

I

in tle-

ion

ict-

refe

nce

tial

rn-

refe

These hardships and severities opened the eyes of se- 1673. veral ministers who had conformed to prelacy, to see the evil of their way. We related the conduct of the two ex- Mr. Focellent brothers, masters Alexander and John Carmichael. rester This year the reverend Mr. Thomas Forester minister * at renounced Alva, and after the revolution professor of divinity at prelacy. St. Andrews, having had, for some time, several difficulties in his own mind concerning conformity, abandoned prelacy. He had ever fince the beginning of this year deferted their meetings; and therefore, on the 7th of August, the clerk of the presbytery of Stirling, by their order, fent him a letter, finding fault for his non-attendance, and ordering him to attend at their next meeting on the 26th. To which Mr. Forester, in a letter, gave in his reasons why he could not attend; as, ' 1. Because it was evident, by the then standing acts relating to religion and church-government, that all power or ' jurisdiction in the church, or its assemblies, was fountained in, derived from, or ultimately referable into the ' magistrate's civil power, which, says he, I judge to be contrary to the word of God, the confessions of refor-' med churches, and our own church's judgment; con-' sequently the keeping of the meetings (a badge of the acknowledgment of the lawfulness of this frame) to be unlawful, this frame of church-government be-'ing clearly proved unlawful by fuch as have written against erastianism. 2. Because I find, since our first reformation, feveral oaths, vows, and folemn engagements upon this church and nation, against the prelatick frame of government, the obligation whereof I could never find convincingly disproved, but upon Some search am perswaded that the same are still binding on the nations and posterity. 3. Upon some fearch into the controversy of church-government, I have for a confiderable time entertained the persua-' sion of the unlawfulness of the prelatick frame, as contrary to the prescriptions set down in the word. ' these foundations hold, the unlawfulness of the meet-' ings cannot be questioned, and, so long as I am thus ' persuaded, I cannot attend upon them in faith." These reasons he enlarged, illustrated, and abundantly confirmed in a long paper which he fent to the brethren of the exercise, which the reader will find in Wodrow's appendix to book II. No. 66. which I cannot in-

Qq

fert in this place. Mr. Forester was upon this obliged 1673. to quit his charge at Alva. Then he joined the perfecuted presbyterians, and preached, or, according to the dialect of these times, kept conventicles, as he had occasion, which brought upon him the rage of the perfecutors, as shall be related in the course of the following year.

Proceedletter.

On the 3d of September the council had a letter from the king's his majesty, wherein he complains that the outed ministers had not been cited in the terms of his letter of the 31st of May; and tells them, that the power of the five proposed was not at all privative of the council's power. In short, in the close, the commission was dropt, and the council warned to take special care of the diocese of Glafgow. Several were pleased with this, and immediately all the ejected ministers in and about Edinburgh were called to hear their fentence to repair to the parishes of their confinement; and power was given to the chancellor and earl of Athol to authorife whom they pleased to apprehend all who had been at field-conventicles, and either fend them to Edinburgh, or oblige them to find fecurity for their appearance.

> Next day those ejected ministers, who had no particular parish assigned, were ordered to repair to such parishes as should be named by the council. Accordingly Mr. John Park was ordered to confine himself to the parish of Kilmawers, Mr. John Knox to West-calder, messieurs Robert Fleming, Thomas Hogg, John Lidderdale and Alexander Hutchison, not appearing, were ordered to be apprehended wherever they should be found. And on the 30th of September fentence was passed against all the ejected ministers who had not accepted the indulgence, (except two or three who made some excuse) and they were ordered to be denounced on the 6th of November; this was the case particularly with messieurs William Mein, James Donaldson, and William Creighton. But messieurs James Kirkton, Robert Lockhart, John Waugh and Thomas Melvil were excused.

Cunduct of other

Of Mr. Burnet.

But the ministers who continued in the country, and could not comply with the council's orders, were brought ministers. to no small difficulties. About eight of them met together, and drew up the reasons of their non-compliance, among whom was the reverend Mr. John Burnet, minister at Kilbride near Glafgow, who, being summoned before the council, could not appear on account of his bodily indisposition. Nevertheless he thought it his duty to give an open and plain account of his reasons to

to t to b abo the stile the follo

Ch

not : thef the o Scot 1660 firm ly fi foun who intr thefe the o back athe fuffe 4. 1 mag Itate any and chur gifte be n in e knov Sacra by h comm the God chur erci

my 1

and

I.

9.

r-

he si-

13,

r.

om

ers

ro-

er.

e of

di-

rgh

Iri-

the

ney

en-

nem

cu-

ari-

gly

pa-

eurs

A-

ap-

the

jec-

ex-

vere

this

ein,

eurs

omas

and

ught

t to-

nce,

ini-

d be-

f his ions

to

to the council, and therefore drew them up in writing 1673. to be presented; but tho' his sickness, of which he died about the end of this year, prevented this, yet he sent the paper to the chancellor without altering its form or sile. As he left it as his testimony, it is fully recorded in the history of INDULGENCE, from whence I give the following large abstract thereof.

DEING called before his majesty's privy council, Mr. to give an account of the reasons why I have Burnet's not accepted of this present indulgence—I shall premit gainst the these things briefly. I. That it is well known. - that indul. p. the constitution and government of this —— church of 42, 66. Scotland, for many years, and particularly in the year 1660. was framed according to the word of God, confirmed by many - laws of the kingdom, and folemnly fworn to by all ranks within the same. 2. It is also found----that this ancient and apostolick government is wholly overturned in its very species and kind----by the these things are conspicuously apparent on the face of the church this day, such as involving the land in great backsliding and defection; the abounding ignorance and atheism,----the increase of popery and error,----the sharp fufferings of many of his majesty's loyal subjects, &c. 4. Whatever power found----divines acknowledge the magistrate to have,----in a troubled and extraordinary state of the church, yet it is not yielded----that he may any ways alter its warrantably established government, and so turn that same troubled and perplexed state of the church, made so by himself, to be the subject of his ma-5. That I gifterial authoritative care and operation. be not mistaken, as denying to his majesty his just power in eccleliastick matters, I,----with great alacrity, acknowledge that the civil magistrate hath a power circa facra, which power is objectively ecclefialtick, to as he, by his royal authority, may enjoin, that what fover is commanded by the God of heaven may be diligently done for the house of the God of heaven; which power also is by God's appointment only cumulative and auxiliary to the church, not privative nor destructive, and is to be exercifed always in a civil manner. As to the reasons of my not acceptance---they are,

I. That our Lord Jesus Christ, Mediator, the King and Lawgiver of his own church, hath committed all ministerial

C

re

of

in

ho

in

th ati

no

w

it

re

te

fo

COI

20 po

CO

th

W

m

pr

m

fa

an

th tin

fin it/

by an

fel

m:

fw

the

fai

ma

th

1673. ministerial authority, for government of his house, to his own church-officers, as the first proper subject and receptacle of it. John xx. 21. Matth. xxviii. 18, 19, 20. 2 Cor. x. 8. But - the act explanatory of his majesty's fupremacy in the church (whereupon the act of indulgence is grounded) doth not only claim the power to belong of right to his majesty and his successors, as an inherent privilege of the crown, but doth actually also invest him with the formal exercise thereof in his own person, and that --- he may convey it to others, as in his royal wisdom he shall think fit; for his majesty is pleased to design and make application of ministers to congregations, and that without the previous call of the people and power of the presbytery; — to frame and prescribe ecclesiastical rules relating to the exercise of the ministerial office, and appoint a commission to plant and transplant ministers as they shall think fit, notwithstanding it hath been unanswerably evinced, that presbyterian government is founded on the word of God, and confirmed otherways abundantly.

II. Although I freely—condemn all — feditious meetings, (among whom it is fad-that the peaceable meeeings of the Lord's people for worship — should be reckoned) yet I am so convinced ——of the Lord's blesfing attending the preaching of the gospel, though not in a parish-church, that I judge the narrative of the first act to go near to involve my acceptance of this indulgence, as being an interpretative condemning of the faid meetings.

III. There is a standing relation between me and another flock, over which I was fet by the appointment of Jesus Christ in his word, which tye can never really be dissolved by any other power than that which at first did make it up and give it a being. And after I had ten years, during the English usurpation, wrestled in opposition to quakers and independents, --- I was, without any ecclesiastick sentence, thrust from the publick exercise of my ministry in that place, where there will be 1200 examinable perfons, of which there were never 50, to this day, who have subjected themselves to him who is called the regular incumbent. —— Now what a door is hereby opened to error, atheism and profaneness? ----- And what a grief must it be to those to have their own lawful pastor shut up in a corner? Or how can any new relation subsist between another flock and me, by virtue 1673. of an act of a mere civil judicature? Besides, the people in whom I have present interest are utterly rendered hopeless by a clause in the end of the first act, That the indulgence is not hereaster to be extended to any other congregation than those mentioned in the act, whereof they in that parish are none.

1p.9

to ect

18,

his

t of

wer

as

alfo

wn

in

y is

to

of

and

of

ant

ot-

od,

ous

able l be

lef-

not first

dul-

Said

ant of

be firlt

ten

ofi-

any e of

ex-

this

cal-

nd

wew

ROI

IV. Though I will not—debate the magistrate's fentence of confinement, yet----there are so many things attending the application of it to my person, that it cannot be expected I should give that obedience to it which might infer my own consent or approbation; for, 1. This confinement —— is a very sharp punishment as it is circumstantiated. 2. All punishments—ought to relate to some cause or crime, and cannot be done arbitrarily without oppression, Acts xxv. 27 .-- vet I am sentenced and fent in fetters to a congregation, without fo much as being charged with any crime. 3. If my confinement relate not to any crime, it-must needs relate to a design, viz. that I should preach, &c. wholly at the appointment and disposal of the civil magistrate. -- Now this design, however closely covered, I dare not, in conscience, yea, I cannot (with the preservation of my -principles) concur with, or confent thereto. 4. By the confinement I am put to an open shame before the world, and particularly in that place where I am permitted to preach the gospel: For what weight can my preaching or ministerial acts of discipline and government have, while I myself am----dealt with as a maletactor and transgressor, a rebel or traitor to my prince and nation? Or how can I preach - against the sins of the times, ---- while the fword of the magistrate is continually at my throat? ______5. This confinement is not simply or mainly of my person—but it is of the office itself, ---- while it is not of me alone, but of all the presbyterian ministers in Scotland, a very few only excepted; and, while the propagation of the gospel is hereby manifeltly obstructed, we are cut off from the discharge of many necessary duties we owe to the church and nation, -while she is in hazard to be swallowed up with a Iwarm of jesuits, quakers, &c. and while three parts of the kingdom are groaning under the want of the word faithfully preached, and some few shires in the west are made, as it were, the common jail of all the ministers that are permitted to preach. By this confinement I lole

Ti

fe

CC

pa

for

2 uf

W

th

lik

of

of

th

al

of

no

th

pa

vei

ca

the

as fht

ch

ho

gri

We

Wa

in ag

bla

of

CO

ro

wh

fur

by

1673. an effential part of my ministry, which is the exercise of jurisdiction and church-government—a principal part of which is ordination, for preserving a succession of faithful men in the church.—

V. As for the permission I have to preach when confined,—while I look on it abstractly,—it is a very great favour,—but take it without the previous call of the people, the authority and affishance of a presbytery,—and without the exercise of discipline and government—it is lame. Again, take it with the confinement, and other clogs and caveats contained in the 2d act, &c.—I have it to consider, whether this my permission be not putting my neck under a heavier yoke than—before.

VI. The last reason, for brevity, is from the dependence this act---- of indulgence hath upon the late explanatory act of his majesty's supremacy, when----the estates of parliament ---- declare, that his majesty hath the fupreme authority and fupremacy over all persons, and in all causes ecclesiastick within this kingdom ;----that, by virtue thereof, the ordering and disposal of the external government of the church doth properly belong to his majesty and his successors, as an inherent right of the crown; and that his majesty and successors may settle -fuch constitutions, &c. concerning the external government of the church, and the persons employed in it, and concerning all ecclefiaffical meetings and matters, --- as they, in their royal wisdom, shall think fit, Again, --- the particulars of the act of indulgence are of the fame nature and kind with the articles explanatory of his majesty's supremacy, viz. to settle, enact, emit, acts and orders, concerning matters, meetings and perions ecclefialtick, according to their royal pleafure.---The rules and instructions, for limiting ministers in the exercise of their office, ---- are such as I declare I cannot accept of them, or any other favour whatever, upon fuch terms and conditions; because they contain the down-right exercise of erastianism.'-

He concludes with an earnest desire that God would put it in the king's heart to grant ministers liberty to make full proof of their ministry, that they might have an opportunity to shew that that government which Christ has appointed, doth well consist with the magistrate's civil government in the state; and that presbytes

rian

rian ministers may have access to his majesty for repre- 1673.

fenting just grievances.

f

.

.

f

y,

7-

t,

c.

n

••

1-

1-

e-

he

nd it,

X-

ng

of

tle

nal

in

at-

lit,

of

ry

it,

er-

the

an-

on

the

uld

to

ave

ich

agi-

110-

1413

The eight ministers drew up their reasons why they could not comply with the council's orders, but their paper was never presented; and as it is to the same purpose with Mr. Burnet's, I shall not insert it here. It was Subscribed by messieurs Hugh Smith, John Burnet, Robert Fleming, John Blackadder, David Hume, Alexander Jamefon, George Campbel and Daniel Cargil. Mr. Burnet was a minister of great folidity and learning, and fingularly useful in reclaiming quakers in that neighbourhood. And, fays my author, though he had no freedom to fall in with the indulgence himself, yet he both heard some of the indulged ministers, and preffed his people to do fo likeways. He died in great peace and full affurance 22d of December this year.

We have hinted a little concerning the proceedings Proceedof the English parliament, which had been adjourned to ings in the 27th of October. On the 31st the commons went in Rapin. a body, and presented a dutiful address against the duke v. II. of York's marriage with the princels of Modena. But p. 672.

not receiving any fatisfying answer, they proceeded farther, and voted the standing army a grievance, and prepared an address accordingly. But, on the 4th of November, when the commons were to prefent it, the king came unexpectedly to the house of peers and sent for them. It happened that the speaker and the usher of the black-rod met both at the door of the house; but, as the speaker was within, the door was immediately shut against the usher. The speaker was forced into the chair; and, while the usher continued knocking, the house voted, 1. That the alliance with France was a grievance. 2. That the evil counsellors about the king were a grievance. And, 3. that the duke of Lauderdale was a grievance, and not fit to be trusted or employed in any office or place of truft. Upon which there was a general cry, To the question, to the question! But the black-rod continuing knocking, the speaker leaped out of the chair, and rose in great confusion. When the commons went to the house of lords, the king prorogued the parliament to the 7th of January, during which prorogation the duke of York's marriage was consummated on the 21st of November.

The duke of Lauderdale, being thus voted a grievance Session of by the commons of England, made the best of his way parliato ment.

fur

not

If

ord

fter

for

was

give

ed t

166 grea

for i

pror

hop

and

ance

draw

1. 7

avov

tered

by the

Wodr

and I acts (

fters

ing-h

Kilfy!

all the

the pr accust

5. T were

conven

horric

0

(

1673. to Scotland, where, in the month of December, he held his fourth fession of parliament. When the parliament was opened the king's letter was read, defiring their affiftance in carrying on the war with Holland, and affuring them of his affection in very kind words; and likeways vold them, 'That one of the principal reasons of keeping this fession of parliament is, that effectual courses may be laid down for furnishing and curbing the infolent field-conventicles and other feditious practices, --- and that if fairness will not do, force must compel the refractory to be peaceable and obey the law.' The duke feconded the letter with a speech to the same purpose; but providence interposed, so that no new laws were made in this fession against the presbyterians; for the duke foon found that a strong party was formed against him; for when it was moved ' that a committee be appointed to draw up an answer to his majesty's letter, duke Hamilton moved that the state of the nation might first be considered, in order to the redress of grievances, some of whom he mentioned. And then, according to concert, about twenty members, one after another, spoke to several particulars. Some mentioned the falt, others the tobacco and brandy: Some complained of the administration of justice, and others of the coin.' In short, warm debates arose. And when the commissioner appeared with some briskness for a supply to his majesty, one of the members asked, Whether this was a free parliament or not? Sir Patrick Hume of Polwart, and feveral other gentlemen, spoke with great freedom and plainness. So that now Lauderdale had the mortification to find himself voted a grievance by the commons of England, and his measures opposed in Scotland, and therefore he had no other shift but to adjourn the parliament.

About this time a breach happened between Lauderdale and Dr. Burnet, afterwards bishop of Sarum, the effect of which was, that the doctor, in the year 1675. turned informer against the duke in the house of com-But I now go on to

CHAP.

9.

ld

nt

ıſ-

nd

ns ial

ng

es,

he

e;

ere

he

nst

er,

ght

an-

10-

the

ned

n.'

nif-

his

is a

and

and ations

and

lia-

ler-

the 75.

m-

P.

CHAP. X.

Of the state and sufferings of the presbyterians during the Years 1674 and 1675.

THE managers in Scotland still persisted in prosecuting the non-conformists, so that many of them were forced to wander from place to place to avoid the sury of their oppressors. Lauderdale stood his ground notwithstanding all the attempts made against him. But I shall relate the transactions, as near as possible, in the order of time wherein they happened.

On the 8th of January Mr. Matthew MacKail, mini-Mr. fler at Bothwell, was let out of prison, where he had been MacKail, for some time, but, resusing to engage not to preach, was confined to the parish of Carlouk, and a bond was given for his appearance when called. He had preached to upwards of 1000 people in the fields, in the year 1669. from Isa. xxxii. 5. but though that sermon made great noise, yet it does not appear he was troubled for it.

On the 25th of January the parliament was farther Parliaprorogued to March. The bishops had conceived great ment farhopes of accomplishing their deligns at this parliament, ther proand for this end many things were collected as griev- regued. ances to be laid before the house, particularly in a paper drawn up by the fynod of Glafgow in October last, viz. 1. That conventicles still abounded more publickly and Geveravowedly than ever, and that by some who never en-ces drawn tered upon trials before any church-judicatory, which, up by the by the way, was FALSE; for mellieurs Maxwel, Grawford, fined of Wodrow, Corbet, and others mentioned, were examined and licensed by presbyterian ministers, according to the acts of general assemblies. 2. That the indulged minifters did not observe the council's rules. 3. That meeting-houses were erected. 4. That in one of them, at Killyth, the preacher curfed the king, his council, and all the royal family; but, had that been true, it is surprising the preacher was not laid hold on, the managers not being accustomed to let such affronts slip through their fingers, 5. That the tutors of noblemen and gentlemen's fons were ill principled, and poisoned their pupils. 6. That conventicles and indulged ministers preached feditien. 14. The 29 of May not observed. 15. Several horrid crimes were, fay they, committed at convensicies of February he was A fined before the council.

1674. ticles, as incest, bestiality, murder of children; besides frequent adulteries, and other acts of wickedness. But this is altogether calumnious, and may put us in mind of the reproaches cast upon the meetings of the primitive christians by their virulent persecutors. From such innuendoes as these, that vile pamphlet, intitled, The spirit of popery speaking out of the mouths of fanatical protefants, was published some years after this, but was softciently answered, and the lies and forgeries contained in it abundantly detected by the reverend Mr. Matthew Crawford. The 16th and last grievance they mention was the increase of popery; but that gave them little uneafiness. As for some of these things, they were owned. by the sufferers, as practices upon which they did suffer, and what they judged confonant to their principles, Whether these grievances were presented I know not; but if they were laid before the commissioner and council, yet the proceedings at this time in England, and the difference between the two dukes in Scotland, prevented the gratification of the perfecuting clergy at this juncture.

As foon as the prorogation of the parliament was known, duke Hamilton and others went to court, to lay before the king the grievances of the nation. Religion was overlooked by both parties. And though the king blamed Hamilton for railing heats in the parliament, yet he dismissed them with promises that it should sit in March, and all their grievances be considered. Accordingly they all hasted home; but, when they were met, Lauderdale produced a letter from his majesty adjourning them till October.

Mr. James Mitchel taken. * p. 241.

Mean while, about the beginning of January, Mr. James Mitchel * was discovered, and apprehended by Sir William Sharp and two of his brother's servants, and was, by the chancellor's order, made close prisoner. On the 10th of February he was examined by the lord chancellor, lord register, lord advocate, and lord Halton, and denied the affaffination of the archbishop (but, being taken apart by the chancellor, he confessed, having got affurance of his life) that it was he who shot the bishop of Orkney while aiming at the archbishop. Lord Halton, in a letter to the earl of Kincairdin, faid, that he thought his punishment would be the loss of his hand, and perpetual imprisonment in the Bass. On the 12th of February he was examined before the council, and pri the I Mr Stin for than that

an

rec

ha

tur to fay

ran

chai to L a gu Man B he v dicte temp ed n gain affai M

whic

fesse upon mitte and : freely has g accou prom justic any 1 TH

for di by th regin

del

and faid nothing but what he had faid before the com- 1674. mittee. He was then remitted to the justice-court to receive his indictment and sentence; to have his righthand cut off at the cross of Edinburgh, and the forfejture of his goods and posterity, which last part was not to be executed till his majesty be acquainted, because, fays lord Halton in a second letter to Kincairdin, affurance of life was given him upon his confession.

On the 16th of February he wrote a large letter from prison, to a friend, vindicating his practice, and owning the principles upon which he went.

t

f

i-

.

d

W

n

11-

d, r,

S.

;

n-

he

ed

C-

125 ay

on

ng

yet

in

rd-

et,

rn-

Mr.

by

and

er.

ord

lal-

out,

av-

the

ord

that

his

the

ncil, and

elil.

But, while this affair was on the carpet, the reverend Mr. Mr. Forester * was apprehended by the magistrates of Fore-Stirling, for preaching in private families in that town; fler. for which good services the magistrates had a letter of *P. 305. thanks from the council, and had blanks fent them that they might fill them up with names, and with the charges they were at, to bring in whom they pleafed to Edinburgh, whether Mr. Forester was carried under a guard, and where he continued till the indemnity in March, when he was fet at liberty.

But to return to Mr. Mitchel. On the 2d of March Mitchel he was brought before the lords of justiciary, and in-before the dicted for being concerned in Pentland, and for the at-lords. tempt on the archbishop of St. Andrews. But he pleaded not guilty, and infifted that the things alledged against him should be proved. The lords postponed the affair till the 25th.

Mean while the council made an act, March 12th, in Act of which it was specified, that Mr. James Mitchell 'con-council. fessed his firing the pistol at the archbishop of St. Andrews, upon assurance given him of his life, by one of the committee who had a warrant from the lord commissioner and fecret council to give the same; and therefore did freely confess, &c.' In the said act, which Mr. Wodrow has given at length, p. 376. it was declared, that, on account of his refusing to adhere to his confession, the promises made to him were void, and that the lords of julticiary and jury ought to proceed against him without any regard to thele,

The 19th, several who were imprisoned at Edinburgh, for disorders, (church-irregularities perhaps) were given by the council to captain James Hay to be recruits to a regiment he was concerned with in France.

About

1674. About five days after this Lauderdale complimented the nation with an act of indemnity from the king. But Aft of in- though it was of little fervice, on account of the many demnity. limitations and restrictions wherewith it abounded, yet the common people looked upon it both as a remission for what was past, and a kind of security for the future in their following conventciles, which was the real cause of their taking more liberty at this time, and whereof Lauderdale, when he went to court, laid all the blame upon duke Hamilton and his party, which occasioned many letters to the council in order to suppress them.

> Next day Mr. Mitchel was brought before the justiciary, but, as there was no proof against him, except his own confession, they, with the consent of the advocate, protracted the affair, and remanded him to prison.

On the 26th of March, Mr. Forester, Thomas Lennox, Mr. Forester, and some others, were set at liberty, possibly in consequence of the indemnity. And the same day William Por-* P. 229, terfield of Quarrelton * got his confinement changed from 295. Dumbarton to Paisley, with liberty to walk abroad.

But though the state had indemnissed Mr. Forester, yet the prelates and their underlings renewed their attacks upon him. And accordingly the diocesan synod of Dunkeld passed a sentence of deposition against him on the 29th of April, which was confirmed by the bishop on the 4th of May. The curious reader will find his judicious remarks on this fentence, and on the bishop's ra-tification, in Mr. Wodrow's appendix, No. 66.

Proceedings in Rapin, vol. II. P. 673.

At this time the house of commons in England discoyered a laudable zeal against popery and arbitrary power. England, The English parliament sat down on the 7th of January, and the lords presented an address, praying the king to iffue out his royal proclamation, requiring all reputed papifts to remove out of London and Westminster during the fession of parliament. Next day both houses joined in an address for a general fast, to implore God's blessing against the efforts of popery, &c. The commons likeways proceeded against the remaining members of the CABAL, viz. Bucking ham, Lauderdale and Arlington, It is fufficient, for my purpose, to observe, that they unanimoully voted that an address should be presented to his majesty, to remove the duke of Lauderdale from all his employments, and from his majesty's presence and councils for ever, being a person obnoxious and dangerous to the government. These and such like addresses were very difagr ecable difa fee fide to I to 1 the the pro fore

Cha

1 difr cour Scot free care a pr The the

ceiv

par

A della Dun and and kept feldo cred a ver of a all b

T

7une fmall ons t folve when ment Stuck at th Fuda. hand behov The fente Chap. 10. CHURCH of SCOTLAND.

¢

.

13 ,

Ľ,

6.

r.

m

7, tbo

n op

u-

a-

Q-

r.

ry,

to

ed

ng ed

ng

iys L,

uf-

ni-

his

his

un-

the

ery

ble

difagreeable to his majesty, who could not be pleased to fee every part of his conduct fo strictly examined : Befides, he was obliged, for want of the finews of war, to make peace with the Dutch, which he communicated to the parliament on the 11th of February. However, the commons still proceeded on their grievances; but the king, to defeat their deligns, came to the house, and prorogued them to the 10th of November following, before any bill was ready for the royal affent.

Notwithstanding all their proceedings, Lauderdale, Parlia-difregarding the vote of the commons of England, went to ment difcourt after the last prorogation of the parliament of folived. Scotland; and though duke Hamilton followed and spoke freely to his majesty concerning him, yet the king still carefied Landerdale, infomuch that, on the 19th of May, a proclamation was iffued for disfolving the parliament. The reason given was the peace lately concluded with the Dutch; but the truth is, Lauderdale plainly perceived that he durit not venture upon any more Scots parliaments. About the end of May he got the privy-council mo- Council delled to his mind. Tweeddale, Queensberry, Tester, modelled. Dumfries, Roxburgh, and some others, were turned out; and Kinghorn, Mar, Wigtoun, Ross, Collingtoun, Graigy, and others, put in their places. Duke Hamilton himfelf was kept in, but, as he was never much in favour, he very seldom attended. And the king, to keep Lauderdale in credit in Scotland, after being disgraced in England, sent a very long letter to the council of Scotland, approving of all Lauderdale's proceedings, so that he still carried all before him. The new modelled council fat down on the 4th of The meet-June, when an incident happened which made no ing of wosmall noise, As men were not fafe to give in any petitions to the council, a confiderable number of women resolved to appear for the persecuted cause. Accordingly, when the counsellors came up, they found the parliament-close almost filled with women. The archbishop stuck close by the chancellor, being in no small pannick at this female-assembly. Some of the women called him Judas, and others Traitor; and one of them laid her hand on his neck, and said, Ere all was done, that neck behoved to pay for it. But no other violence was offered. The widow of the reverend Mr. John Livingston presented their petition to the chancellor, setting forth the 1674.

fad

C

th

fer

pe

th

vi

aff

fte

cie

ful

ne

Wi

ado

ver

pla

me

kno

to t

pre

gui

Ch

gre

and of j

WOL

dera

fent

with

con

ther

abov

quer

muc

difgt

most

meet

in or

on t

purp

use t

ing t

pits,

A

V

7

1674. fad condition of the country in being deprived of their faithful ministers, and praying that these might again have their liberty, without moleftation, to exercise their ministry. The earl received the petition with civility, read it directly, and heard what she had farther to offer. He talked a little with some of the rest, jested with them, and feemed to be pleafed with the fright that Voted cri- Sharp was put into. Notwithstanding, when the counfellors got within doors, and found the petition figned, it was voted criminal. About a dozen of the subscribers were called in, one by one, and declared that no man had any hand in what they did, but that they were moved with the fense of their perishing condition for want of the gospel, having none to preach to them except ignorant and profane men, whom they could not hear. Then they were all put into a room by themselves, and the provost was fent to dismiss the rest. However, they resolved not to withdraw till their friends were sent out, and declared they would all take the same lot. Upon which the council were pleased to liberate the rest, and fo this tumult was ended.

Women prosecuted.

Next council day the subscribers were all called, and, upon their not appearing, were denounced rebels, except Mris. Margaret Johnston, daughter of the excellent lord Wariston, Mris. Cleland, and Lilias Campbel, who were apprehended and imprisoned. And about the end of the year Mris. Elizabeth Rutherford, Mris. Margaret Johnston, lady Mersington, and several other women concerned in this affair, were, by the council, banished the town of Edinburgh and the liberties thereof.

fed and ordained.

Before I come to relate the proceedings of the new men licen- council, it will be proper to give the reader a short view of the conduct of the presbyterian ministers about this time. Both indulged and not indulged met frequently among themselves, licensed several promising young men, fent them to preach in those parts of the country, where they were most wanted, excited vacant congregations to call them, and, upon the people's call, ordained them with all the folemnity the times would admit of.

In this month of June the presbyterian ministers, in Overtures. every corner of the church, sent delegates to Edinburgh to concert upon proper rules and overtures to be transmitted to the several meetings of ministers through the country. Accordingly they met, and, among other things,

0

ir

in

ir

у,

r.

at

n-

d,

ers

an

V-

int

ept

ar.

ley

ut,

on

ind

ed,

els,

cel-

bel.

out

ris.

ther

icil,

ere-

new

riew

this y a-

nen,

here

ions

ined

of.

s, in

urgh

ranf-

h the

other

ings,

things, agreed that the several meetings take care to 1674, send preachers where the necessities and desires of the people required them, and to warn them faithfully of the evils and dangers of the time, &c. that it be provided, that no offers from the state, relating to churchassiairs, be rejected or accepted by any particular minister, without the previous knowledge of the several societies; and that ministers in this, as in other things, subject themselves communi presbyterorum consilio; that neither ministers nor probationers settle with a people without consent of the meeting in the bounds, &c.

Together with these overtures the materials of an Material address to the government were transmitted to the se-als of an veral associations of ministers, in which they justly complained of their hardships, of the change of the government of the church, of their not being allowed to acknowledge their allegiance to the sovereign, according to the scriptures, unless they allow him to have that supremacy which does not belong to him, and so be found guilty of encroaching on the sovereign authority of Jesus Christ, the only king and head of his church; — that a great number of valuable young men are kept useless; and that little or no care is taken to stop the growth of popery; and therefore prayed that their lordships would take these things under their most serious consideration.

These overtures and materials for an address were Are gefent round the country, and generally consented to, nerally awith some amendments and additions; but, as all their greed to. consultations came to nothing, I shall not insist upon them.

We have observed, that, from the act of indemnity Convenabove mentioned, people took encouragement to fre-ticles aquent conventicles, so that about this time these pretty bounded. much abounded through the kingdom, which greatly disgusted the prelates, and therefore they used their utmost endeavours to suppress them, especially the fieldmeetings, which produced several letters from the court in order to bear them down.

Accordingly, at the first meeting of the new council, The king's on the 4th of June, a letter from his majesty to this letter.

purpose was read, wherein the council was required to use their utmost endeavours for trying and apprehending the preachers at field-conventicles, invaders of pulpits, and the ring-leading heritors at such meetings:

and

1674. and to use the standing forces and militia for that end. leaving the punishment of other transgressors to the ordinary magistrate according to law.

A com-Upon this the council appointed a committee to take mittee ap- these things under their consideration, and at the same time ordered the chancellor to fend out parties to apprehend all conventicle-preachers; particularly mef-fieurs John Welfh, Gabriel Semple, Ro. Ross, Samuel Arnot, Gabriel Cuningham, Archibald Riddel, John Mofman, John Blackadder, William Wisheart, David Hume, John Dickson, John Rae, Henry Forsyth, Thomas Hogg, Robert Law, George Johnston, Thomas Forester, Frazer of Brae, John Law, Robert Gillespie. And any of the guards who shall apprehend Mr. Welsh, or Mr. Semple, were promised 400 L. sterling, and 1000 merks for each of the rest; nay, the foldiers and their affiltants were indemnified of any flaughter committed in apprehending any one of these persons, in case of resistance.

The most venticles.

The eminent, faithful and laborious Mr. Wellh had, remarka- at the defire of many, made a journey through Fife, where he preached frequently, fometimes in vacant churches, and oftner in the fields. Other ministers alfo preached in vacant churches. Sharp was an eyewitness to a numerous congregation at Wolmet-chapel. And Mr. William Weir preached to a crouded affembly in Magdalen-chapel in Edinburgh; other ministers likeways preached there, for which the town was fined in 100 L. sterling; but the meetings most taken notice of were those by messieurs Johnston and Kirkton in the church of Gramond.

Accordingly, on the 11th of June, the council paf-Mr. Infed a decree or judgment against the heritors of Craglis of Cramond mond. And Mr. John Inglis of Gramond appearing, and fined. confessing he had been six times at the said kirk when conventicles were held there, was fined in the fourth part of his valued rent, amounting to 1036 l. Scots, and appointed to ly in prison till it was paid, and longer during the council's pleasure; however, he was fet at liberty when he paid his fine. The same day Balmeri- lord Balmerino and Sir John Young of Leny, denying that no, &c. they had been at any of these conventicles, and taking the oath of allegiance, were dismissed; as was likeways Mr. Charles Oliphant of Langtoun-law, upon declaring that he went to one of these merely out of curiolity, and promising not to go any more, and taking difmiffed.

law cla lige

CI

wh

the

ord ing

01 c ta 6 CC · fa

· h in in fiv

tw. e ma " th

dre dre do e per

whic form In horn

their lige fepar And

charg behav flectio lition

TI and o ventic feize at the fines, whoe should Welfb. the oath of allegiance. Thus the reader may see with 1674. what briskness the new council went to work. And, the more effectually to suppress what they called unlawful and seditious meetings, they issued two proclamations on the 18th of June; the first was to oblige heritors for their tenants. In this all masters of samilies were ordered to dismiss from their service all who repaired to conventicles, and all heritors, &c. were ordered to require their tenants to subscribe the following bond, viz.

or any of my children in family with me, my cottars or fervants, shall not keep or be present at any conventicles, either in houses or in the sields, as the same are defined by the 5th act of the 2d session of

'his majesty's second parliament, under the pains therein contained; being for ilk house-conventicle twenty five pounds Scots for each tenant labouring land, twelve pounds for each cottar, and for each fervant-man a fourth part of his year's fee; and the husbands the half of these fines for such of their wives and children as shall be at any house-conventicle; and the double of the respective fines for each of the said persons that shall be at any field-conventicle. To which is subjoined a clause of registration in common form.

d,

r-

ke

ne

pſ-

1-

of-

e,

g,

er

he

le,

ch

re

d-

ıd,

fe,

int

al-

reel.

oly

ce-

in

of

ch

af-

ra-

ind

nen

rth

ots,

and

was

day

hat

ing

ke-

de-

cu-

ing

the

In case tenants refused, they were to be put to the horn, and their escheat or forsciture to be given to their masters. Besides, heritors were ordered to oblige their tenants for the suture, in their leases, or in separate bonds, to engage to abstain from conventicles. And an unlimited power was given to magistrates to charge all they suspected to give security for their good behaviour. I shall leave the reader to make his own resections on these unprecedented and unreasonable impositions.

The other proclamation was for apprehending rebels Proclaand others that is, the holders of and repairers to con-mation venticles; for here it was declared, that whoever should for appreseize convocators to conventicles, or any who have been rebels. at them, so as they may be convicted, should have their sines, and, in case of contumacy, their escheats: And whoever should apprehend any minister at conventicles should have 1000 merks, and 2000 merks for messieurs Welsh, Semple, and Arnot.

sf

Chap. 10.

On the 25th of June they passed sentence against keep. 1674. ers of conventicles in Fife, and the following persons were fined, viz.

		L.
Gentle-	Sir John Kirkaldy of Grange -	550 men fined.	Laird of Reddie	850
	Scot of Pitlochie	1000
	Pitcairn of Pitlour	1050
	Pitcairn of Latistoun	200
	Charles Cowan of Corstoun	333
	Robert Colvil in Balvaird	100
	Robert Schaw in Auchtermuchty	49
	James Hamilton of Innerdivot -	150
	- Maxwel Provost of Auchtermuchty	250
	Mr. George Heriot of Ramorney	983

Making in all 5515

And because the laird of Reddie harboured Mr. Welsh, he was fined in 2000 merks more; and Pitlochie, for his alledged impertinent behaviour before the council, in 500 merks more; and all of them were ordered to ly in prison till they paid their fines. There were 49 or 50 others fummoned to appear at this time, who, not answering, were ordered to be denounced rebels. The fame day another decreet was passed against the keepers of conventicles in feveral places; at some of which Mr. John Pringle of Woodhead being present was fined in the fourth part of his yearly valued rent, and afterwards fet at liberty upon paying 277 1. Scots; and fundry of the meaner people were denounced for not appearing when fummoned.

Letter king.

On the 30th of June the council received a letter from the from the king, dated at Windfor the 23d, wherein his Majesty lets them know what he had been informed of relating to the abounding of conventicles, the invading of pulpits, the petition of the women, the refilling of his forces, (for which last there was no ground) and that, for putting an end to all these seditious disorders, he had ordered divers troops of his protestant subjects in Ireland to be in readiness at the sea-side in Ulster to receive his farther commands; and had also ordered troops to march to Berwick if there should be occafion. -And in the mean time he required them to use their utmost vigour in finding out and bringing to punifhment

Chap nishm infole

On plaisa time ' their That, the ke advoc fhall b to be therei as co an ac to re fenda

Bef the 9 50 pe of w produ and | missec after ling, Mr. 1 Rober Glafg keepii appre Andre

nishm

On from ing th imme Green nound bert G Glaim fons 1 ed, fi they Lenn

Rea,

Chap. 10. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 323

10.

eep-

ons

L.

550

850

000

050

200

333

100

49

150

250

98;

515

, he

his

, in

o ly

49

vho,

bels.

the

e of

was

and

and

not

his med

ding f his

, he

s in

r to

ered

cca-

) ule

pu-

nent

nishment the ringleaders of the aforesaid seditious and 1674. insolent practices, &c.

On the 2d of July the council returned a very com-Council's plaisant answer to his majesty's letter, and at the same return. time wrote to Landerdale, giving him an account of all their proceedings, and sent up the following proposal: That, since they found it difficult to get proof against the keepers and frequenters of conventicles, his majesty's advocate should have authority to order such persons as shall be informed against for being at field-conventicles, to be summoned before the council to give their oaths thereupon, with certification that they shall be holden as confest, or reputed guilty, if they resuse; and that an act of council be made, warranting the advocate to refer the libel or charge to the oath of the defendant, and to restrict the same to an arbitrary punishment.

Before an answer came from court the council, on Decreet the 9th of July, passed another decreet against above against 50 persons in Fife for being at conventicles. None convenof whom appeared except the lady Colvil, who, upon ticles. producing a certificate from the minister of the parish, and promifing not to frequent conventicles, was difmissed. All the others were denounced. Two days after this the town of Glasgow was fined in 100 L. sterling, for a conventicle kept by Mr. Andrew Morton and Mr. Daniel Cargill. Much about the same time Mr. Robert Law, who had for some time been a prisoner at Glafgow, was ordered to be brought to Edinburgh for keeping of conventicles, and warrants were issued for apprehending messieurs John King, Joseph Wallace and Andrew Barton.

On the 16th of July the council received a return Their farfrom the king, approving of their overture, and requir-ther proing them to make an act in the terms of it, which was ceedings. immediately done. The same day, Living ston of Greenyards, and ------ Farquhar son of Chilbrae were denounced for being at a conventicle at Torwood; and Robert Ged of Bathridge, and Sir John Kirkaldy younger of Glaim, were severely fined. The following worthy persons were at the same time declared rebels, and outlawed, for no other cause than preaching the gospel where they could have opportunity, viz. messieurs Alexander Lennox, David Williamson, Alexander Moncrief, John Rea, David Home, Edward Jamieson, James Fraser of

Brae,

1674. Brae, William Wisheart, Thomas Hog, Robert Lock. hart, John Welwood, George Johnston, Robert Gillef. pie, James Kirkton, John Weir, John MacKilligen, Nathanael Martin, Andrew Donaldson, John Chrystifon, William Row, Thomas MacGill, Thomas Urquhart, Thomas Hogg, William Erskine, James Donaldson, Patrick Gillespie, John Gray, James Wedderburn, John Wardlaw, Thomas Douglass, George Campbell, Francis Irvine, James Wallace, Andrew Anderson, John Munniman, George Hamilton, Andrew Mortoun, Daniel Cargill, Alexander Partoun, James Wilson, and Robert Maxwells elder and younger. would have the reader to observe here, that the managers were fo uncorrect, that in this lift of ministers outlawed, some of them were dead, others were indulged by the council, and some had never offended since the king's indemnity, who were nevertheless exposed to a fuffering lot.

On the 21st of July Mr. James Drummond, who had been a prisoner for some time in Edinburgh jail for preaching in families, was set at liberty. But on the 23d the council sined Hary Pitcairn of Lauristoun in 1200 l. Scots, --- Pitcairn of Pitlower in 2000 merks, George Scot of Pitlochie, and Charles Cowan of Carstoun, in 1000 l. each; all for harbouring Mr. Welsh. At the same time the magistrates of Perth were appointed to apprehend Mr. Alexander Moncrief, an ejected minister; and Archibald Douglass of Clistonhall, and James Maxwel provost of Auchtermuchty, were fined for being at conventicles, the first in 381 L. and the other in

252 L.

On the 28th of the same month the council discharged messers. Robert and John Laws and John King, prisoners in the tolbooth of Edinburgh, from keeping conventicles, under the penalty of being treated as seditious persons, and obliged each of them to give a bond and surety for 5000 merks to appear when called; and the same day recommended to the bishops to inquire what chaplains and schoolmasters officiated in their respective dioceses without their licence. And,

State of the royal burghs. At the same sederunt a great many letters were wrote to the royal burghs through the kingdom, enjoining them rigorously to execute the laws against conventicles; assuring them that, in case of failure, they would exact the sines from them without any abatement. And, as a farof i year pla rep par kin mig jud fay:

men

den

and

Ch

a f

gai

that that tran point that Robin

cen

and the wee from lefs and exer were al! ing, T

penl

affice affect confi there influalled 10.

k-

ef-

en,

lti-

Jr-

0-

er-

rge

ew

ew

nes I

na-

utby

the

o a

nad

for the

in

ks,

un, At

ted

ni-

mes

ing

in

ar-

ri-

on-iti-

nd

ind

ire

re-

ote

ng

es; act

25 11-

a farther evidence of their tyrannical disposition, in re- 1674. gard ' the burghs in Scotland, who have by law a privilege of meeting once a year in a body to consider of trade, and Burnet, of by-laws relating to it, had, in a convention held this p. 371. year, agreed upon and fent a petition to the king, complaining of some late acts that hindred trade, for the repeal of which there was great need for a fession of parliament; and had therefore prayed, that, when the king fent down a commissioner to hold a session, he might be instructed in order to that repeal. This, tho' indged a lawful affembly by the lawyers, especially, fays bishop Burnet, as they did not petition for a parliament, but only for instructions to the session, was condemned as feditious, and the promoters of it were fined and imprisoned.'

The same 28th of July a letter from the king, dated King's at Windfor the 16th, was read in council, declaring letter that he had wrote to the archbishop of St. Andrews, the bishops that it was his royal pleasure the bishop of Dumblain be of Dumtranslated to the Isles; that the bishop of Brechen be ap-blain and pointed to preach at the college-kirk of Edinburgh; and Brechen, that the bishop of Edinburgh remove Mr. Turner, Mr. Gc. Robertson and Mr. Cant from the exercise of the ministry in Edinburgh, or any place in his diocese, without licence; and that Mr. Hamilton be removed from Leith; and therefore his majesty required the council to oblige the bishop of Dumblain to repair to the Isles within two weeks; and that within ten days Mr. Turner remove from Edinburgh to Glasgow, Mr. Robertson to Auchterless in the diocese of Aberdeen, Mr. Cant to Libertoun, and Mr. Hamilton to Gramond, till farther orders.

The reader will judge whether this was not the full Reasons exercise of the royal supremacy. Bishops and ministers of it. were removed and confined without any process or trial! But that he may have the occasion of this proceeding, we relate,

That, in the months of May and June, some both of Comthe inferior clergy and bishops, began to complain o-plaints of penly, that the church was not governed in an ecclefi-floops, &c. affical way, but in a most arbitrary manner; that Sharp acted as a pope, managing all church-affairs without confulting with the other bishops: And that, though there was a law for a national fynod *, yet, through his * p. 147. influence, none had been called. Sharp and his friends alledged that these complaints were groundless, and

were

1674. were only fomented by the country-party, as it was called, in opposition to Lauderdale's administration. Be that as it will, their complaints, and the motion for a national fynod, were confented to by Mr. Lawry bishop of Brechen, and Mr. Ramfay bishop of Dumblain. the former was prevailed with to come into Sharp's fentiments, and leave the latter to manage the affair alone. Among the inferior clergy the ministers named in the king's letter were the most active; for though their diocesan, the bishop of Edinburgh, was most averse from a national fynod, yet they and some others agreed to present a petition to him, praying his lordship to do his utmost to get his majesty to call such a fynod for confidering the diforders in the church. When this petition was presented I know not. However, it greatly frightened Sharp, and therefore he wrote a whining letter to the archbishop of Canterbury, setting forth, That the Church was in Danger; a remarkable word! and begging he would use his interest with his majesty to prevent the thing desired. Sharp likeways Council's laid the matter before the council, who, on the fecond of July, appointed the archbishop of St. Andrews, the lord privy-feal, the earls of Kincairdin and Dundonald, the president and advocate, to examine into the conduct of the four ministers relating to this affair. How this committee proceeded, or what issue they came to, I know not; but accounts of those things were transmitted to his majesty, who wrote the letter as above. There was a meeting of the bishops appointed at St. Andrews, and Dumblain was ordered to be present, but he declined it.

King's letter obeyed.

Sharp's

conduct.

commif-

fion.

When the king's letter was read in council, the contents were instantly obeyed; and a macer was sent to intimate the royal pleasure to all mentioned in it. And the same day the bishop of Dumblain presented a petition to the council, which they transmitted to the primate, that the king might be acquainted with it. But, notwithstanding all that passed, the bishop of Dumblain, in his papers, still subscribed himself Dumblain, and took the first opportunity to go in person to court. We shall hear more of this matter in the transactions of the following year. I shall only observe, that it was very dangerous, in those days, to propose any thing contrary to the inclinations of those at the helm. But, leaving this

th ve mi ear the

C

m

by

irr an 60 bar ch

th

Ed Beinf cat for the

fel the be: day

the

]

the

but rec ger for he i crea pro ten 7

hen

to I

Coll for part And crec

or n ticle matter, let us return to the proceedings against the pres- 1674.

The vacation was now at hand, and therefore, that A new there might be no interruption in proceeding against con-commifventicles, the council, on the 30th of July, gave a com-fion. mission, in the king's name, to the lord chancellor, the earls of Mar, Kinghorn, Kelly, Weems, and Kincairdin, the treasurer-depute, and the laird of Ardross, or any three of them, to execute the laws against conventicles, irregular baptisms and marriages, in the shires of Fife and Kinrofs; as also to the chancellor, duke Hamilton, &c. for the bounds of Stirling, Perth, Lanerk, Dumbarton, Renfrew, and Ayr shires; and, lastly, to the chancellor, earls of Caithness and Linlithgow, &c. for Edinburgh, Linlithgow, Haddington, Selkirk, Peebles, Berwick and Roxburgh shires; they also had particular instructions given them; and jointly with these the advocate was appointed to issue out warrants, to cite all perfons concerned before these commissioners, and to restrict the libel or indictment to an arbitrary punishment, that so they may hold the persons not swearing against themfelves as confessed, or treat them as guilty. As none of the bishops were in this commission, the reader need not be surprised to hear nothing of their proceedings. Next day the council wrote to Lauderdale an account of what they had done fince their last.

e

d

e

ł,

I

ſ-

e.

t. ut

n-

to

nd

on

te,

in ok

all

ol-

ın-

to

his

er,

In the month of August the sufferers had some recess; More but when the council met, on the sirst of September they forces to received a letter from the king commending their diliberaised. gence against conventicles, and acquainting them that, for enabling them to maintain the laws and government, he resolved to raise some more forces, and ordered them to raise 1000 foot and three troops of horse. This increase of the standing forces in time of peace was very proper for the support of an arbitrary government, and tended to harrass the sufferers.

The same day the council gave warrant for appre-Farther hending Mungo Lockhart of Harwood, William Listone of proceed. Collunum easter, George Tenant and John Brown in Calder, ings. for being at a conventicle in Calder-muir, and resisting a party of the guards who were sent to disperse them: And likeways ordained letters of horning, upon the decreets of sherists, bailies of regalities, and other inferior magistrates, against persons guilty of being at conventicles.

1674. w King's letter a-

On the 29th the council had another letter from his majesty, wherein he defired them to use all diligence with respect to conventicles and other unlawful practices. especially at or near Cardross; and told them he was in-Cardross. formed that some of his guards had, by their order, apprehended one King, who was fet at liberty upon bail to appear; and that the lord Gardross, in a peremptory manner, complained of that man's being taken, on account of his being his domestick; and therefore ordered them to require that lord to bring him back to pri-

> The same day Mr. Alexander Burnet was, by a special order from the king, restored to the archiepiscopal fee of Glasgow, which he had been obliged to refign fome years ago. It was then believed this restoration of the archbishop was the effect of gross simony. bishop's daughter was married to the heir of the estate of Elphingston, and had a very large annuity secured to her upon the estate. In a little time she was left a widow. The gentleman who succeeded to the lordship of Elphingfron made his addresses to lord Halton's daughter. My lord was unwilling to engage with an estate so considerably burdened with the bishop's daughter's jointure. At last an expedient was found out: The young lady was prevailed with to renounce her jointure, and Halton found means to get the archbishop her father restored to his office and benefice. This made fome fay, The bishop's money, who gave his daughter an equivalent, was taken, but that of Simon Magus was not.

General Drummond confined.

Mr. William Drummond of Cromlicks, some time a major-general, was at the same time ordered to enter prifoner into Dumbarton castle. He was obnoxious to Lauderdale, who therefore moved that he might be fe-He was kept in close confinement for near four months, and then was permitted to walk about a little in the day time, and return at night.

Lord Cardross before the council.

On the first of October lord Cardross appeared before the council, and was required to produce Mr. John King against next November: He told them, that was not in his power, fince, by their orders, Mr. King was taken from him, and, after he had been fome time imprisoned, was fet at liberty, fince which time he had not been in his fervice. Though Mr. King escaped at this time, yet he afterwards fell a facrifice to the fury of his perfecutors. The same day they approved the conduct of the fior Ro cur exe

1

the

to cou cou cou the the they I

the

Stan

take

fupr

men

delig ther judg this : who prod banis day : they a nat deliv imagi ment was e year I gainst and th contin foldie the k

cil, a trust.

Thi

ò.

is

ce

es,

n-

pail

ry

C-

r-

i-

e-

pal

gn

on

he

of

er

w.

ig-

1y

er-

At

38 ton

ed

he

nt,

12-

ri-

to

fe-

ur

ttle

ore

ing

in

ken

ed,

in

me,

fe-

of neir their commissioners for conventicles, and made a present 1674. to Hugh Stevenson, one of their clerks, of 500 merks, the fine levied from Mr. King's furety.

On the second of December the heritors and kirk-fefsion of Fenwick assembled, and appointed Mr. Muir of Rowallan, younger, to take care to have the laws against eurling, swearing, and other acts of profaneness, put in execution.

Next day the archbishop of Glasgow was admitted a counsellor, and the reviving the severities in the westcountry was much owing to him. The same day the council banished Henry Angus and James Jaffray from the shires they lived in, because, when brought before the commissioners at Stirling for being at conventicles, they refused to swear against themselves.

I shall finish what I have to relate for this year with The afthe affair of the advocates, which gives us another in-fair of the I Burnet, stance of the arbitrary proceedings of this reign. take it from bishop Burnet. ' A cause being judged in the p. 370. fupreme court of fession, the party appealed to the parliament. This was looked on as a high contempt, done on delign to make the parliament a court of judicature, that there might be a necessity of frequent parliaments. The judges therefore required all the lawyers to condemn this as contrary to law; which several refusing to do, the king fent down an order to put all from the bar who did not condemn appeals. And when that did not produce the effect defired, they were, by proclamation, banished Edinburgh, and 12 miles round it; and a new day assigned them for making their submission, which they were obliged to do. Now, in what a fituation must a nation be, when those learned in the law dare not deliver their own fentiments, is easy for the reader to The fame historian tells us, That the govern- p. 371. imagine. ment of the city of Edinburgh was not so compliant as was expected; fo duke Lauderdale procured a letter from the king to turn out 12 of the chief of the town-council, and to declare them for ever incapable of publick trult.

Things were managed much in the same way during the 1675. year 1675. for notwithstanding the many severe laws against preaching and hearing the gospel in private houses State of and the fields, these meetings, especially in the fields, the fieldcontinued to be very numerous, the violence of the meetings. foldiers and the multitude of the hearers obliging them 1675. to it. And great was the success that attended the ministry there, many being converted thereby. Nay, some ministers who had conformed came, and, after the forenoon's fermon, offered to join them, actually profeffing their forrow for joining in the courses of defection at that time. In feveral places they changed their way, forfook their churches, and upon their candid acknowledgments were received both by the field-preachers and their people. It is true the feverity of the laws occasioned that not many gentlemen of estates durst venture to come to these; but their ladies, and not a few of good fashion, attended daily. In short, these meetings were fo numerous, that the managers, not being able to reach them all, found it necessary to overlook what they could not help. The bishops indeed violently pushed prosecutions; and soldiers and spies were employed to fearch them out and apprehend the ministers, and the most noted of their hearers, and to difperfe them; which obliged many to come with arms for their own defence; and some scuffles ensued in several And therefore various methods were taken to discourage and suppress conventicles. But I shall relate the occurrences as they fell out in the order of time.

Synodical

The in-

pend.

There was a meeting of presbyterian ministers at Glafmeeting. gow on the 20th of January for synodical correspondence; at which they came to feveral refolutions, and made fundry proposals too tedious to be here inserted; especially fince the feverity of the times prevented them from taking effect.

The ministers who had accepted the indulgence were dulged get brought under hardships on account of their not being little Stipaid their stipends; which obliged several of them, in the month of January, to petition the council for warrants to receive them; which a good many of them obtained; but at length, upon some pretence or other, the prelates got an act of council, on the ninth of March, ordering that no indulged ministers get warrants for their stipends, without testificates, from the sheriff or ' magistrates in the bounds, that they have not kept conventicles fince the 24th of March 1674.' But, fays Mr. Wodrow, this restriction did not affect many of them. However, some months after this several of them were brought to great inconveniencies, as we shall relate.

The same day the reverend Mr. John Greg was before Greg im- the council for keeping a conventicle at Leith-mills. He prisoned. owned own whe ther was 27th

Ch

Sir henc prife with An a of L jefty. none ed, could went by c ffrict whic profi a con revo TI ticles troop On th in 10 withi foot Glafg advo

of aff fed in parlia immed what that th I shall I Wa how I exami Pilts.

owned the charge, and was fent prisoner to the Bass, 1675. where not a few died. After he had been imprisoned there for the space of eight months, his consinement was changed to the parish of Carstairs in Lanerk-shire.

About this time letters came from court, dated the Orders a-27th of February, ordering Mr. James Stuart, fon to gainst Sir James Stuart late provost of Edinburgh, to be appre- Mr. Stuhended, with all his books and papers, and made close art. prisoner in Edinburgh, and to be allowed no converse with any, either by word or writing. This gentleman was supposed to have published a pamphlet, intitled, An account of Scotland's grievances by reason of the duke of Lauderdale's ministry, humbly tendered to his facred majefly. Which galled the party fo much, that though none of them were able to confute the facts he mentioned, they were resolved to take the severest course they could with him. Mr. Stuart, knowing their defigns, went out of the way. But his cabinets were fealed up, by order of council, on the 10th of March, and a ftrict fearch was made for him through Edinburgh; which he escaped, and, during his retirement, made such proficiency in study and piety, that he afterwards made a confiderable figure, and discharged the office of king's advocate with great applause for many years after the revolution.

The prelates complaining of the increase of conven-Edinticles about Edinburgh, orders were given to lord Ross's burgh troop to march in different parties and suppress them. since, &c. On the 11th of March the town of Edinburgh was fined in 100 L. sterling for conventicles alledged to be kept within their liberties. And next day four companies of soot and a troop of horse were ordered to quarter in Glasgow for the easier suppressing these meetings.

-

y

C

g

n

-1

)-

10

h,

or

11-

r.

n.

re

re

le

ed

As the duke of Landerdale had the chief management Dr. Burof affairs, it is proper that we take a view of what paf-net's exfed in the English parliament in relation to him. The amination parliament fat down there in April, and the commons commons. immediately fell upon Landerdale; and those who knew what had passed between him and Dr. Burnet moved that the doctor should be examined before a committee.

I shall give this examination in the doctor's own words.

I was (says he) brought before them. I told themp. 379. how I had been commanded out of town.—I was next examined concerning his design of arming the Irish papills. I said, I, as well as others, had heard him say,

He

1675. He wished the presbyterians in Scotland would rebel, that he might bring over the Irish papists to cut their throats. I was next examined concerning his defign of bringing a Scotish army into England. I defired to be excused as to what had passed in private discourse, to which I thought I was not bound to answer, unless it were high treason. They pressed me long; and I would give them no other answer. So they all concluded that I knew great matters, and reported this specially to the house. Upon this I was sent for and brought before the house. I stood upon it, as I had done at the committee, that I was not bound to answer; that nothing had passed that was high treason: And as to all other things, I did not think myself bound to discover them. I faid farther, I knew duke Lauderdale was apt to fay things in a heat, which he did not intend to do. fince he had used myself so ill, I thought myself the more obliged not to fay any thing that looked like revenge for what I had met with from him. I was brought four times to the bar. At last I was told the house thought they had a right to examine into every thing that concerned the fafety of the nation, as well as into matters of treason, and they looked on me as bound to fatisfy them, otherways they would make me feel the weight of their heavy displeasure, as one that concealed what they thought was necessary to be known; upon this I yielded, and gave an account of the discourse formerly mentioned.' Mr. Wodrow, in his appendix, Book II. No. 47. fays, That the house not being fully satisfied with his aniwer, he was again called in to explain himself; and being withdrawn, some heads of his testimony, to avoid mistakes, were drawn up in writing; and being again called, and the same read to him, and having amended it in some particulars at the bar of the house, the same is as follows, viz. That, coming into England out of Scotland the first Saturday in September 1673. he went to vifit the duke of Lauderdale in his lodgings at Whitehall, where the duke and he conversed of the affairs of England and Scotland, and particularly of the proceedings of parliament concerning the declaration for suspending the penal laws in matters ecclesiastical; and being afterwards asked, Whether if Scotland, being called to affift the king, they would affift him or not? He answered, He thought they would not ; But the duke replied, He believed they would,

and

and Th anf dift and lach and biff and war for

I

Cha

of t was Edi Sir Hen drea to h pro with his leiz Mr. late All ful outr vile ierv been big the rega a ha had fron cutin and

In ced b of B to th tion at L ٥.

at

S.

g

d

I

h

re

I

10 re

1-ıg

er

n.

ıy

ıd

ne

e-

fe

ıg

0

to ne ed n

se

is

ıd

id

ŀ

it

is

t-

i.

11,

7-

of

ne

16

g,

and that his coming into England would bring a great many. 1675. That the duke asking him of the affairs of Scotland, he answered, The people of Scotland, that were at such a distance, could not imagine what to think of the king's speech and declaration; whereunto the duke replied, Hinc illæ lachrymæ! and that all had forsaken the king but himself and lord Clifford. This is much the same with what the bishop himself says of his conversation.—Upon this and other informations the parliament drew up a very warm address against Lauderdale, but to no purpose; for he continued firm in the king's favour, and in that of the duke of York; so that in Scotland every thing was managed as they saw proper.

In the month of May, Henry lord Cardrofs being in Lord Edinburgh, and having left his lady at home by herfelf, Car-Sir Mungo Murray, accompanied with Walter Stuart, case. Henry Graham, George Murray, James Spotifwood, Andrew Hume, and others, went in a tumultuous manner to his house of Cardross in the night-time, and, without producing any orders, frightened the lady, then big with child; made her get out of her bed, broke open his lordship's closet where his papers lay; and having feized upon Mr. John King his lordship's chaplain, and Mr. Robert Langlands tutor to Cardros's brother, (the late colonel John Ersking of Carnock) carried them away. All this his lordship laid before the council in a respectful petition, wherein he represented clearly, that this outrage was illegal, and an encroachment upon the privileges of peers, by forcibly taking away his domeltickfervants at fuch an unfeafonable time, though they had been accused of no crime, and obliging his lady, then big with child, to get out of her bed, &c. But such was the iniquity of the times, that, instead of paying any regard to his reasonable petition, they made use of it as a handle against him; for some country-people, who had profited by Mr. King's ministry, having rescued him from the foldiers, this was made a handle of for profecuting lord Cardrofs, though he was then at Edinburgh, and so could be noways accessory to the rescue.

In the beginning of June a paper-war was commen-Bishops at ced between the archbishop of St. Andrews and the bishop variance. of Bumblain, who had been translated from his bishoprick to that of the Isles, for declaring his sentiments in relation to a national synod *. The two bishops were then *p.325. at London; but, as the matter of the controversy was personal,

1675. personal, respecting their conduct to one another. I shall not trouble the reader with it. The bishop of Dumblain answered all the interrogatories put to him, by a meeting of the bishops at St. Andrews, with great opennels and candor.

King's letter.

Mr. King's rescue was soon known at court, so that, on the 12th of June, his majesty wrote to the council complaining of this attempt upon his forces, and the rescue of Mr. King; together with the increase of conventicles in Tiviotdale and East-Lothian; that the indulged ministers kept irregular and disorderly communions, appointed fasts, &c. In consequence of this letter a committee was appointed to consider the contents of it. And on the 22d of June the advocate was ordered to form a libel against lord Cardross and others, on account of Mr. King's rescue.

And the better to suppress conventicles, the council,

Act appointing

P. 399.

on the 13th of July, appointed garrifons in the following garrifons. houses, consulting each of a company of foot and 12 horse, viz. at Bridgehouse in Linlithgowshire, at Cardross in Perthsbire, at Glentirring in Stirlingsbire, at Merns in Renfrewshire, at Douchill in Kinrofishire, at Dean in Kilmarnock in the shire of Ayr, at Airdry in Lanerkshire, at Newark in Selkirkshire, at Hunhtill in Roxburghshire, at Blane in Berwickshire, in the laird of Riddel's house in Roxburghshire, and at the castle of Dumfries in the shire of Dumfries. The officers and foldiers were to be at the faid places by the first of August. Burnet says, That two were the chief dwelling-houses of two peers, the rest were the houses of gentlemen that had gone into the party against duke Lauderdale. And though these were houses of no strength, and not at all properly situated for suppressing of conventicles, yet they were taken; foldiers were put in them, and the countries about were required to furnish these small garrisons with all things necessary. This, fays that historian, was against the express words of the law that had lately fettled the militia.'

A fast

On the 15th of July they wrote to Lauderdale, giving appointed him a detail of their proceedings fince the 24th of March 1674. They likeways appointed a folemn falt to be observed on account of a long and threatning drought, which had a melancholy prospect as to the fruits of the ground.

Mr. The same day most of the indulged ministers, being reveiten, presented as having acted contrary to their instructions, and moned, and orde Acc Gem kirk, not adm from to th coun ing a abov But yet i that welw but k

Cha

So any 1 house of A the c lent i cause his la there Edinb fty's 1350 fon t

Ne for be of the bond meetin On

nants

garrif and p that th being intelli for app nifters One w and against the law, Sir John Nisbet the advocate was 1675. ordered to have them summoned before the council. Accordingly Mr. James Veitch at Mauchlin, Mr. John Gemble at Symingtoun, and Mr. Hugh Campbel at Muirkirk, for having married and baptized in other parishes, not administring the Lord's supper upon the same day, admitting persons of other parishes, without certificates from the ministers of them, ordaining several persons to the office of the ministry, without authority from the council, and taking upon them to appoint days of fasting and humiliation; for these heinous crimes were the above ministers solemnly charged to appear and answer. But though these and fundry others were summoned, yet it feems they did not appear. Mr. Wodrow thinks that the matter was made up by lord Stair and other welwishers, as nothing could be laid to their charge, but keeping falts in their own parishes for the same reafon that the council appointed one.

Soon after this the lord Gardrofs, instead of having Lord any redress for the outrage that was committed in his Cardross house, was most unjustly prosecuted: For, on the 5th fined. of August, the affair of Mr. King's rescue was before the council, and sentence was passed against this excellent nobleman for being concerned in that attempt, because some of his servants were there, and finding that his lady had been present at many conventicles. They therefore ordered his lordship to enter the castle of Edinburgh, and remain confined there during his majesty's pleasure, and fined him in 1000 L. sterling, and in 1350 l. Scots more, because he did not oblige his tenants to give bond not to keep conventicles.

Next day one John Sandilands was fined in 300 merks John for being at a conventicle near Bathgate in the beginning Sandiof the year. Upon the payment of which, and giving lands finbond for 1000 merks if ever he went more to those meetings, he was fet at liberty.

15

n

٠,

n

of

d

re

le

st

10

g

ut

r-

s, he

ng

of

alt

ng

ne

e.

s,

On the same day they took under consideration the Ast about garrisons appointed for the houses above mentioned, the garriand passed an act enjoining the major-general to see some that the officers be careful to hinder any disorders from being committed by any under them, and to keep good intelligence for preventing all disorderly meetings, and for apprehending the preachers at conventicles, or any ministers who by the council are declared fugitives, &c. One would think that the appointment of such garri-

fons

1675. fons in the time of peace was unprecedented, illegal, and subversive of the liberty of the subject, especially as this was enacted without any order from the court, or so much as acquainting the king till it was done; befides the charge of maintaining them was a great burden on the country. At length it appeared so illegal and unreasonable, that peaceable gentlemen and subjects should be quartered upon like enemies, that it was found fault with at court; and though the bishops defended it for fome time, yet they were obliged to drop it. However, the country groaned under this grievance more or less for several years.

This same day the acts against conventicles were gainst con-lengthened out for three years longer, and a new comventicles. mission was given to the earls of Winton, Linlithgow and Wigton, lord Belhaven, &c. for suppressing them and other church irregularities.

Letters

At the same time the council gave out letters of inof inter- tercommuning against the following ministers, gentlemen, commu- ladies, and others, whose names I here inse rtfrom the letters themselves, viz. messieurs David Williamson, Alexander Moncrief, William Wisheart, Thomas Hogg, George Johnston, Robert Gillespie, John MacGilligen, John Rofs, Thomas Hogg, William Erskine, James Donaldson, Andrew Anderson, Andrew Morton, Donald Cargill, Robert Maxwells elder and younger, and James Fraser of Brae. Sir John Kirkaldy of Grange elder, - Hamilton of Kinkell, James his brother, John Geddy in Falkland, John Arnots of Pitgrumzies, elder and younger, Archibald Arnot in Newburgh, Mr. Thomas Arnot in Colleffy, Andrew Arnot merchant in Kirkaldy, Thomas Schaw elder of Gospitrie, his son David, Henry Schaw in Balgony, George Fleming in Balbuthie, William Sethrum in Lundimill, John Miller in Dinork, Andrew Kinnier merchant in St. Andrews, John Thomson in Fawfield, - Gowan in Crail, Robert Herbertson in Tarbet, - Douglas portioner in Collessy, Thomas Blythe heritor in Kennoway parish, - Weems, łady Colvil, John Adam bailie of Strathmiglo, James Pryde in Nether-Urquhart, David Coventry and John Henderson in Arlary, Robert Stark in mills of Forth; William Page, John White and Richard Clidsdale in Cowpar of Fife, lady Balcanquell, colonel Robert Halket, John Smith in Dundee, John Balfour in Lethum, Alexander Walker in F vil in Colv Andr King

Chap

Camp yards vel at der, I Doik of Bu

Scot

bert 1 and y Willi stard, lier o

___]

of K haugh Wilk which or he mone either refent fore t tercom them from declar verse ther v or an life, f of the putes, can be ed tha

bout

as bil

but ra

one p

their

,

it

-

3

•

e

1-

W

n

1-

1,

e

g,

n,

d

ıd

r,

s,

r.

in

n

in

1-

n•

in

as

n-

m

rt,

0-

m dy

in

CT

in

in Friertoun, George Spence in Fordel, Patrick Mel- 1675. vil in Burnside, — Wardlaw heritor in Kirktoun, Colvil, lady Baily in Dinnino parish, James Grieve and Andrew Kinnier in St. Andrews, James Lothian in Kingsbarns; Mr. James Bonnar of Gregstoun, John Scot in Lathones, lady Colerny, David and Alexander Campbels in Kirkaldy, William Livingston of Greenyards, - Farquharion of Shielbrae, James Somervel at the boat of Cardrols, Hary Dow of Westerpolder, Mr. John King chaplain to the lord Cardross, John Doik portioner of Murdistoun, James Muir portioner of Burdiltoun, lady Pittendreich in Logie parish, Robert Fork portioner of Kilpatrick, John Starks elder and younger of Balknock, - Symer of Brathnes, William Crawford of Powmill, John Lundy of Balstard, Mr. James Lentron and his spouse, John Collier of Lochgelly, dame Anna Riddel lady Collerny, -ladies Unthanks elder and younger, John Fairfoul of Kinloch, dame Margaret Farquhar lady Halhill, - Hamilton relict of Francis Galloway of Todfhaugh, Simon Alexander feuar in Kirkliston, and James Wilkie tenant in Cliftonhall. The great crimes for which these were intercommuned, were their preaching or hearing at conventicles, or not appearing when fummoned, when they knew that by appearing they must either renounce their principles, or fall a facrifice to the resentment of their persecutors. They chused therefore to keep out of the way; and now they were intercommuned, not only declared rebels, (that many of them were before) but by these letters they were cut off from all fociety in the kingdom of Scotland; and it was declared, that whoever should receive, harbour or converse with them, either by word or writing, or any other way, or supply them with meat, drink, clothes, or any other of the accommodations or necessaries of life, should be pursued with rigour, as guilty with them of the same crimes; and all sheriffs, &c. and their deputes, were ordered to apprehend them wherever they can be found. The reader therefore cannot be jurpriled that they quitted their habitations and wandered about from place to place, not like a fort of banditti, as bishop Burnet does wantonly, if not wickedly, say, p. 399. but rather as faithful confessors, who being persecuted in one place fled to another, according to the direction of their great Lord. And as to their falling into a fierce and Uu

Cha

Mac

oppo

noon

and

per

Patr

mont

port

ly lo

bert

to lo

fufal

be b

Glass

dues

Mr.

fused

comp

to th

him

recei

duct,

all p castle

Ross,

conve

fent

with

ly, in

of th

BISH

cerni

lates.

Mr.

scape

the t

Beru

thefe

that

I

Li

O

N

0

1675. and favage temper, as the same historian saith, though like had begot like it had been no wonder. However, the most that can with truth be faid of them is, that they looked upon and represented their persecutors as enemies to God as well as to them, which they had too great reason for doing.

A recommu_

On the same 6th of August the council wrote to the markable earl of Moray to put the laws in execution against keepers of conventicles in the shire of Elgin and the neigh-Obsdale. bouring places. There were not many presbyterian ministers on the north of the Tay; however there were fome, as Mr. John MacGilligen, Mr. Anderson, Mr. Frafer and Mr. Thomas Ross, who had much of the divine presence with them, and great success attending their ministry this summer. Mr. MacGilligen, with other presbyterian ministers in that country, were intercommuned, yet this did not discourage them in their work. But, as many ferious people longed for the administration of the Lord's supper, so, after much pains in preparing them for that folemn ordinance, both by publick preaching and from house to house, he administered that facrament in September at Obsdale, in the house of the lady dowager of Fowlis. He was affisted by Mr. Hugh Anderson minister at Cromartie, and Mr. Alexander Fraser minister then at Tiviot, afterwards at Abbotshall. And such an effusion of the spirit of God was vouchfafed on that occasion, that, however many in this age may look upon these things as enthusiastick, yet the eldest christians there declared they had never been witnesses to the like. The people seemed to be in a transport, and some were almost at that, whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell. And even the hearts of strangers were wrought upon. So that however they were perfecuted by men, yet they were owned by God.

> At this communion they were very providentially kept from disturbance: For the design of the solemnity taking air, Sir Roderick Mackenzie of Findon, the sheriff-depute, at the instigation of the bishop, sent a party to apprehend Mr. MacGilligen. But when they came to Alnes, the place of his refidence, where they expected to have found him, they fpent so much time in pillaging his orchard, that the forenoon's fervice was over before they got to Obsdale, upon which the ministers retired; and the party, not finding Mr.

Mac-

MacGilligen, marched off, and thereby gave them an 1675. opportunity of meeting again unmolested in the afternoon. However, this good man was obliged to abfcond, and we shall relate what he suffered next year in its proper place.

٥.

h

W-

s,

u-

ey

he

p-

an

re

-a-

ne

eir

ner

771-

rk.

ni-

in

u-

ni-

the

by

A-

at

od

ny

ck,

ver

be

her

ren

hat

ere

lly

ni-

the

t a

ney

ney

me

ice

the

Ir. ac-

On the 2d of September the council committed Sir Sir Pa-Patrick Hume of Polwart, afterwards earl of March-trick mont, to prison, for refusing to contribute for the sup-Hume port of the garrisons above mentioned, which he justly looked upon as a fensible incroachment upon the liberties of the subject; and because, when a sentence was passed against him, he gave in a bill of suspension to lord Collingtoun, and took instruments upon his refusal of it, this was constructed an high affront not to be born with.

Next day all the indulged ministers in the synod of Indulged Glasgow got a charge of horning to pay the ordinary ministers dues to Ludovick Fairfoul clerk to the fynod, and to troubled. Mr. David Clunie their burfar. Some paid, others re-The same day the council wrote to the king. complaining of Polwart's giving in a bill of suspension to the lord Collingtoun, and that they had imprisoned him on that account. On the 5th of October they received his majesty's answer approving of their conduct, and requiring them to declare him incapable of all publick trust, and to send him prisoner to Stirlingcastle.

On the 4th of November the reverend Mr. Thomas Ross, in the shire of that name, was apprehended for conventicles, and imprisoned in Tain, and afterwards fent to the Bass, where he continued for some time with others of his brethren.

Little more occurs during the rest of this year; only, in December, the council gave a commission, much of the same nature with the former, to the two ARCH-BISHOPS, and the earls of Seaforth and Dundonald, concerning conventicles, which were the eye-fore of the prelates. On the 16th of December the council, finding that Mr. James Mitchel had endeavoured to make his escape, ordered him to be secured in a closer place in the tolbooth.

I shall only observe, that, as many in the shire of Berwick appeared against the arbitrary proceedings of thele times, so the fines levied by the earl of Hume in that shire, during this year, for nonconformity, amounted

Ch

thi

the

H

ton

we pal of

wi

mi

kin

fine of

Th

had fon

for

ed,

cer

Bui

reć

it

no

ear

bef

ing

to

anf

fhip

der

wh

inft

tun

me

die

ceis

of ber

qui

acc

not

the

the

anfi

of Gordon alone, 3328 l. 4 s. Scots. From which the reader may easily form a judgment of the vast oppression of the people, by the fines imposed for nonconformity and conventicles.

CHAP. XI.

Of Mr. Mitchel's torture; the proceedings of the council; the circumstances of the indulged; the prosecutions for conventicles; the occasions of the Highland-host, and other occurrences to the end of the year 1677.

TOtwithstanding the letters of intercommuning, and the fevere penal laws in force, and though the foldiers in the garrifons were diligent in harraffing, robbing, wounding and imprisoning whom they reckoned haunters of conventicles, yet these meetings could not be suppressed. The ministers would preach, and the people would hear, being in nothing terrified by their adver aries. The Lord's supper was likeways administred Lord's Supper ad-in several places. Mr. John Law, after the revolununifired, tion one of the ministers of Edinburgh, dispensed that ordinance, in the night-time, to a numerous meeting at Kippen, being affisted by Mr. Hugh Smith and Mr. Matthew Crawford. Mr. Alexander Jamison and Mr. Hugh Smith administred the same ordinance at Huggs near Glafgow; and at another time Mr. Smith administred it to his own parishioners at Eastwood, assisted by mestrs. Will. Thomson, John Ray and Matt. Grawford, which proved fealing times to many. (Mr. Jamison died some time this year. He had been professor of philosophy at St. Andrews, and had a patent to be professor of divinity, but did not accept, though all knew he was well qualified for it, being a person of great piety and learning.) These things much galled the bishops, wherefore they fet the managers to work in order to put a stop to

Debates between Hamilton and Lauder-dale.

About the beginning of the year 1676. duke Hamilton went to Landon, where the king was pleased to hear some of his complaints against Lauderdale, in presence of the duke of York, the earl of Athol, (now made a marquis) and others. The former urged the miserable circumstances of many country people, who were fined, confined, banished, &c. for their nonconformity, and all them. But, to be more particular, through

Chap. 11. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 341

10.

ifh

the

ef-

or-

il;

for

and

nd

the

b-

led

ton

he ad-

red

lu-

nat

at

at-

ig.h ear

lit

rs.

ich

me

at

ni-

ell

n-

re

to 11-

ear

ice

ar-

ir-

ed,

all

gh

through ill advice and unjust representations made to 1676. the government. Lauderdale, on the other hand, accused Wamilton, and kept his ground, so that at length Hamilton lest the court. The former thus prevailing, things were carried with a high hand against the nonconformists.

On the 6th of January, Mr. Henry Knox, the episco-Riots pal minister at Dunscore, complained, that, on the 28th complained of December last, his house had been robbed, himself and ed of wise beat by six or seven persons; and on the 27th the minister of Gargunnock complained of a riot of the same kind. Wherefore the council, on the 10th of February, sined the heritors of Dunscore in 5000 merks, and those of Gargunnock in 6000, to be paid to their ministers. These ministers would have had no cause to complain had they met with a riot once every year.

Mr. James Mitchel *, having been some years in pri- Mr. ion, and having refused to own what he had confessed be- Mitchel fore the council, in presence of the justiciary, was order-put to tored, this 6th of January, to be examined by torture, con-p. 314 cerning his being in the rebellion 1666. as it was called. 315. But feeing there was no proof of his being in that infurrection, and that it had happened near ten years before, it was certainly hard meafure to torture him for that now. However, a committee was appointed, of which the earl of Linlithgow was prefes. Mr. Mitchel was brought before them the 18th of January, about fix in the even-The earl told him, He was brought before them to see whether he adhered to his former confession. He answered, 'My lord, it is not unknown to your lordthip and others here present, that, by the council's orders, I was remitted to the lords of justiciary, before whom I received an indictment at my lord advocate's instance, whereby I was to be forfeited of life and fortune, although I have no fortune. To which indictment I answered at three several diets. And the last diet being deferted by my lord advocate, I humbly conceive, that, both by the law of the nation, and practick of the court at that time, I ought to have been fet at liberty; yet notwithstanding I was, contrary to law, equity and justice, returned to prison; and upon what account I am this night before your lordships I know not.' The preses told him, he was not accused before them either upon life or fortune, but called to fee whether he would own his former confession. Mr. Mitchel aniwered, That he knew no crime he was guilty of, and therefore 1676. therefore no fuch confession as was alledged.' Upon this the treasurer-depute said, The pannel was one of the most arrogant cheats, liars and rogues he had known. The priloner replied, 'My lord, if there were fewer of those persons you have been speaking of in the nation, I should not now be standing this night at the bar.' After some farther discourse he was remanded to prison.

On the 22d he was again brought before them in the lower council-house, when a paper was produced, alledged to be subscribed by him; and being interrogated as above, he faid, My lord, I acknowledge no fuch thing. The preses, said, Sir, you see what is on the table, (meaning the boots) I will fee if these will make you do it. Mr. Mitchel answered, 'My lord, I confess, that, by torture, you may cause me to blaspheme God, as Saul did compel the faints; you may compel me to fpeak amiss of your lordships, to call myself a thief, a murderer, &c. and then pannel me upon it; but if you shall, my lord, put me to it, I here protest before God and your lordships, that nothing extorted from me by torture shall be made use of against me in judgment, nor have any force in law against me or any other person. But to be plain with you, my lords, I am so much of a christian, that whatever your lordships shall legally prove against me, if it be a truth, I shall not deny it; but, on the contrary, I am so much of a man, and a Scots man, that I never held myself obliged, by the law of God, nature, or the nation, to be my own accuser.' So that, still perfitting in refuting to own the fubscription of the paper they had produced, he was again fent to prison.

On the 24th of January the prisoner was brought before the justices, and the executioner and the boots were presented. He was again interrogated, as above; but, persisting in his refusal, he was tied in an elbow chair, and ordered to be tortured with the boots. The executioner asking which of the legs he should take; the lords faid, Any of them. And he taking the left, Mr. Mitchel faid, Since the judges have not determined, take the best of the two, for I freely bestow it in the cause, and fo he put his right leg in the engine. Upon this the advocate defired leave to speak a few words, but continued his discourse for a considerable time. wards of thirty questions were proposed to Mr. Mitchel, particularly concerning the affair of Pentland, to fee it they could find him in a contradiction. But perceiving

their

thei ing (no life who And few afte drai wha And give to t be p fins here 1

Cha

dow

men

and

the

the. at e He ftro fain ecut The rifin carr duri ward It pron their fessio own was ally, which torti the ! and

to be their delign, and the wedge pinching the boot, and pain- 1676. ing him most fensibly, he spoke as follows. My lords, (not knowing that I shall escape this torture with my life) I befeech you to remember what Solomon faith, He who sheweth no mercy shall have judgment without mercy. And if there be any here present, as I hope there are few or none, whose disposition is so eager in pursuing after innocent blood, that nothing elfe than a full draught will fatisfy them; I fay, let fuch remember what is spoken Rev. xix. 5, 6. Thou art righteous, &c. And now, my lords, I do freely and from my heart forgive you, who are judges fitting on the bench, and the men who are appointed to be about this horrid work, and also those who are vitiating their eyes beholding the same; and I do intreat that God may never lay it to the charge of any of you, as I beg that God may be pleased, for his Son Christ's sake, to blot out my fins and iniquities, and never lay them to my charge here nor hereafter.'

d

ū

r

a

e

n

1

r

S

W

e

t,

١,

,

S

t

-

/, if The questions being all over, the executioner took down his leg from a chest, where it lay all the while in the boot, and thrusting in his shelves began his strokes, at each of which they asked if he had any more to say. He answered, No more, my lords. There were nine strokes given on the wedge, at the last of which he sainted through the extremity of pain; so that the executioner cried out, My lords, he is gone, he is gone. Then they commanded to leave off the torture, and, rising from their seats, went away; after which he was carried back to prison in the chair in which he was tied during the torture. We shall hear more of him afterwards.

It is true Mr. Mitchel had made a confession upon the Remarks. promise of his life; but the managers having revoked their promise, because he would not adhere to his confession before the lords of justiciary, and to be his own accuser, the reader must determine how far he was to blame now, in not owning his confession judicially, as they had judicially revoked the condition upon which the confession was made: And to put a man to torture, for finding out things for which they had not the least proof, seems to be unprecedented and cruel; and to bring him to a farther trial, after torture, appears to be unjust.

On

1676. On the 10th of February feveral persons were fined for being at conventicles, as Durham of Largo, 1200 l. Scots for harbouring Mr. John Welsh, and 2500 l. for being at two conventicles where he preached. This was either the second or third time that this gentleman was fined. Ed. Gillespie was fined in 2001. R. Richardson 1001. colonel Ker and lady Whitestaid 500 merks each, and messes. Stuart, Stirling, Hamilton, 100 l. Scots a-piece; all for being at a house-conventicle in Edinburgh; and, that they might be punished twice for the same fault, the magistrates were likeways allowed to fine them for their relief. Such was the justice of these times!

Severity ers at Stirling.

Persons

fined.

At this time some prisoners in the tolbooth of Stirto prifor ling met with an uncommon piece of severity, the end of 1674. fifteen men were imprisoned at Stirling for being at a conventicle; eight of them, by some interest, got out after 15 months confinement, the other seven laid their deplorable case before the council. Charles Campbel, one of these, was upwards of 60 years of age, John Adam near 70, and some of the rest were under great bodily indisposition: But such were the tender mercies of these councillors, that they made a present of them to one captain Maitland, an officer in the French service. An order came for this end to the magistrates of Stirling, figned by Linlithgow, Halton, and Collingtoun. Accordingly, when every thing was got ready, about midnight, on the 18th of February, the poor men were all (except one John Pater son who was let out some days before as in a dying condition) brought forth, without having the least previous notice, and delivered to about 50 foot foldiers, who carried them off fettered and tied to one another; but fuch is the support of a good conscience and a good cause, that they all went off with chearfulness, leaving their wives and children behind them.

About this time lord Cardrofs fent up a petition to the king; notwithstanding his majesty wrote to the council, the 24th of February, requiring them not to fet him at liberty till he had made full payment of the fine imposed upon him. In the same letter Sir Patrick Hume of Polwart and lieutenant-general Drummond were ordered to be fet at liberty, only the former was to remain incapable of all publick trust till farther orders.

On the first of March the archbishop of St. Andrews, Orders for the bishops, and the bishops of Edinburgh and Aberdeen, were ap-&c. pointed

Cha poin and macy for burg ratio

T ted a and tion ticles chief gy, a as fe the p and press mark every conve ding byter them tives. for th threa der ; is, he fore t mity. the re interc them, prefer inferi did n impo beside It wa in a should this f

lain,

out a

Spint.

pointed to inquire if all the masters of the universities 1676. and colleges had taken the oaths of attegiance and fapremacy according to law. Orders were likeways given for making a strict inquiry, whether all magistrates of burghs and other inferior officers had figned the declaration, and to profecute fuch as had not.

D

5

t

r

.

r

t

•

ŗ

t

.

f

e

e

a

e

1,

e

t

it

.

t

1

f

goist.

The same day a very severe proclamation was emit- proclated against conventicles, by which the decay of religion mations and increase of profaneness is ascribed to the separa- ogainst tion from publick worship, and the frequency of conven-conventicles. But the truth is, the decay of religion, &c. was ticles. chiefly owing to the bad practices of the incumbent clergy, and the want of discipline in the established church, as feveral of themselves have acknowledged; whereas the preaching of the ejected ministers in private houses, and in the open fields, had a fingular tendency to fuppress vice, and turn many to righteousness, and was remarkably bleffed of God for these valuable ends; but every thing that was evil must now be attributed to conventicles. By the faid proclamation, papifts, according to the custom of the times, were blended with prefbyterians; and magistrates were ordered to prosecute them, and apprehend intercommuned persons and fugitives. However, papists were not much startled thereat, for they knew that they had little to fear from the threatnings of this time. What follows was still harder; all preachers who do not attend publick worship, that is, hear the incumbents, at their own parish-churches, before the first of June, were to be punished for non-conformity. If this was not perfecution for conscience sake, the reader must judge what is. All who harboured the intercommuned were made liable to the fame pains with them, and a reward of 500 merks was ordered to be presently paid to any who should discover such. All inferior judges and magistrates were threatned if they did not execute the laws. The fine of 500 merks was imposed upon each burgh where a conventicle was kept, besides the pains mentioned in their bond to the council. It was farther declared, that the heritors shall be fined in a year's rent of the house where any such meeting should be held; and, to encourage informers, a part of this fine was promifed to them. In short, if any chaplain, schoolmaster, or pedagogue, was entertained without a licence from the bishop of the diocese, a nobleman XX

100

Cha

F

pare

indu

the :

clan

then

occa

ply

thro

ed,

was

the fore

term

free

ther

the b

tion

the 1

willi

10, a1

matt

hanc

gence

ftruć

thefe

polit

a pet

by th

give

· I

ono

· Th

and

a l

' ing

· pan to to

f rul

4 25

f mit f or

" upo

1676. was to pay 3000 merks, a gentleman 1200, and a bur-w gels 600.

tees for Suppresing them.

Commit- Great were the hardships of non-conformists in England at this time; but nothing could exceed the perfecuting spirit the managers in Scotland discovered. The soldiers were the daily executioners of the laws. And now and then the council fent special commissions to particular persons for suppressing conventicles. Accordingly, on the faid first of March, a committee was ordered to fit at Edinburgh, another at Glafgow, another at Stirling and in Fife, and one for Aberdeen-shire, Moray and Ross. I shall have occasion to relate the proceedings of that at Glasgow in its proper place; only at this time I observe, that a very strict search was made for conventicles and ejected ministers in Glasgow and other burghs, and the town of Perth was fined.

Proclabout the

The clamour made by the episcopal clergy, in the bemation a- ginning of the year, against the indulged ministers, for breaking their confinement and the instructions given ministers. them by the council *, produced a new proclamation, * p. 290. dated this first of March, wherein particular notice was taken of the first four rules; but the two last, relating to their attending on the diocesan meetings, and paying the dues to the clerk and burfar of the diocesan synod, were The proclamation concludes thus: ' And whereas it is informed, that the faid outed ministers, indulged as aforefaid, at least many of them, have violated and contravened the foresaid orders and instructions (upon which terms they were permitted and indul-' ged to preach and exercise the other functions of the ' ministry) whereby many disorders are occasioned, the faid lords do therefore of new again require and com-' mand all these indulged ministers to keep and observe the forefaid orders and instructions in time coming, and specially for keeping within the bounds of their own parishes, and celebrating the communion upon one and the same Lord's day, as they will be answerable at their peril. And ordain these presents to be ' printed, and copies thereof fent to the feveral ministers.' And the same day, as my author found from the registers, the council 'discharged the non-conforming ministers to admit any of the ministers not licensed by · law to their communions or pulpits, and, if they dilobey, appointed the bishop of the diocese to depose f them.'

From

I.

11-

ind

ng

ol-

W

ti-

ly,

to

ir-

ray

gs

me

n-

ıs,

e-

or

en

n,

as

to

he

ere

nd

171-

10-

ti-

ul-

he

he

m-

ve

ıg,

eir

on

er-

be

ni-

m

ng

by

if-

)[e

m

From this additional order, and the clause within the 1676. parenthelis (upon which terms they were permitted and indulged to preach and exercise the other functions of Remarks. the ministry) one would be apt to imagine that this proclamation was intended to divide presbyterians among themselves; and it is certain the indulgence proved the occasion of much division. They who could not comply therewith on account of the erastianism that run through the whole of it, condemned those who complied, as renouncing presbyterian principles, because it was faid that the observation of these instructions was the terms upon which they were indulged; and there-History fore, when they accepted of the indulgence upon fuch of indulterms, they confented to receive their ministry, and the gence, p. free exercise of it, on these conditions; so that, whe- 55. ther they punctually observed them afterwards or not, the bargain was established. And though these instructions, when first given, were not expresly so called, yet the manner of propofal was fuch, as all who would not willingly be enfnared might have been convinced, that so, and no otherways, they were intended, and, upon the matter, could bear no other construction. On the other hand, they who had clearness to accept of the indulgence, though they could not observe the rules and instructions given, argued, that they did not look upon thefe as the conditions of their acceptance, but as the impolitions of the magistrate; as the reader will see from a petition of the reverend Mr. Thomas Wylie, occasioned by the above mentioned proclamation, of which I shall give the following abbreviate.

" Most honourable,

'I would most willingly have forborn this address, if not constrained thereto by your lordships late act.-'The act September 3. 1672. in its complex contrivance, with the other two of the same date, were not a little grievous to many, and to me: Yet,---looking upon these rules in the second act as enjoined sub pana, I resolved (having an invitation from the people) thankfully to accept of the permission,---and to answer, when challenged, for every breach of the rules, which I ever looked upon as orders, and not as terms, or considerations, upon which we were permitted to preach: Neither can I look upon them, or any thing in the first contrivance, as such; for terms upon which, &c. import a compact between the giver

Ch

the

loca

the

mil

Ni

ger

Gra fefl

and

wei

con

the

har

the

fwe

pea

ord

reft

bein

tho

fent

fon

Th

a le

nify

the

beri act

ticle

8th

ver

held

was this

N

ned red

gilti

ed. fhir

othe

1676.

and receiver; but in this matter I knew of no fuch thing .- Your lordships only enjoined them, with certification, as those concerned will be answerable: So that --- there is nothing in all these acts so much as intimating that your lordships intended any confent or obligation, by way of condition, from the receivers of your offer; but----contented yourselves with the intimation of your pleasure with certification. ---- Your lordship's offer being free, the acceptance arbitrary, the rules not enjoined as conditions, but commands fub pana, and the resolution of minifters, as to them, being either to give a fatisfying reafon, or fuffer with a good conscience for neglecting them---- and others have been in readiness, hitherto, to answer every one convincingly, who either our of malice were apt to reproach, or out of icruple to stymble at the least use making of the allowance, as if we thereby had involved ourselves in complying with an approbation of prelacy, erastianism, the supremacy in its full extent, &c. which things to apf prove were contrary to the known principles of prefbyterians. But now, it being your lordships pleasure to impose these rules upon us as terms upon which we are permitted and indulged, &c. I confess, --- though . --- I do not deny to the king's majesty his just power about matters ecclefiastical, allowed him by the word of God, and practifed by the godly reforming kings of " Judah, yet I dare not, because of the awc of God upon me, do any thing, as my own proper fact and deed, that will involve me in such approbation and compliances contrary to my conscience; such as the acceptance of the rules, under the notion of terms upon which, &c. or the observance of them imposed as orders, would do.' Upon this he prayed for the free and full exercise of his ministry, without any straitning impositions. He also drew up another paper, containing short and folid reasons why presbyterian ministers could not in their practice fall in with the rules commanded by the council; but, as I have already given an abstract of the grievances of feveral presbyterian ministers as to the in-P. 307. dulgence, and particularly of Mr. John Burnet *, I mult here refer the reader to Mr. Wodrow, p. 430 and 431.

Some other things relating to the indulged will fall in afterwards.

11.

uch

rith

le:

uch

on-

re-

ves

ati-

pt-

ns,

ini-

ea-

ing

ier-

our

ple

ice,

ing
fu-

ap-

res-

we

ugh

wer

ord

of

God

and

the

up-

fed

the

iit-

ind

in

the

the 111-uft

31.

in

an

Mean while the committee at Glafgow fat down on 1676. the fixth of April. Sir Geo. Maxwell of Nether-pollock * and his fon John, Sir Arch. Steuart of Caftlemilk, Persons the laird of Dunlop, Ja. Hamilton of Aikenhead, Gab. Ha-summoned milton of Westburn, Mr. Hugh Corbet of Hargray, Mr. before the Ninian Hill of Lambbill, Pat. Hamilton of Neilfland, mittee at gentlemen ; meffrs. And. Mortoun, Hugh Smith, Mat. Glasgow. Grawford and James Wodrow (after the revolution pro- * p. 264. fessor of divinity at Glasgow) ministers; John Johnston and Mat. Cumming merchant in Glafgow, and others, were summoned before them, to declare upon oath what conventicles they had been at fince 1674. what children they had baptized, and whether they had received or harboured intercommuned persons. The two first, through the interest of some of the members, got off without Iwearing. As none of the ministers and preachers appeared, they were declared rebels, and the foldiers had orders to apprehend them wherever they could. relt refuling to swear were reputed guilty, and, after being fined for as many conventicles as the committee thought fit, were imprisoned at Glafgow, and from thence dent to Edinburgh, where they continued in jail for iome months.

During which time feveral occurrences happened. Bishop of The council met on the 26th of April, when they had a letter from his majesty, dated the 2d of January, sig-&c. restonisying his royal pleasure to take off the restraint from red. the bishop of Dumblain, and from messes. Turner, Robertson, Cant and Hamilton *, ordering the council to p. 325. act accordingly; with which they complied.

At the same meeting, the better to suppress conventicles, the council extended their proclamation of the proceed-8th of April 1669. * to the whole kingdom, whereby e-ings of very heritor, on whose estate any conventicle should be the council. held, was to be fined in 50 L. sterling. However, it *P. 250. was easy for the managers to overlook themselves in

Next day the council ordered lifts of the intercommuned persons, and of such as were denounced and declared sugitives, to be transmitted to all sherisfs and magistrates of burghs, in order to their being apprehended. And, being informed of some conventicles in the shire of Ayr, they appointed the earl of Dumfries, and others, to inquire thereinto, and to punish the guilty.

The

Mr.

The indulged ministers in the diocesan synod of Glasgow, having got a charge of horning to pay the ordinary dues to their clerk and burfar, they all made payment, except mellrs. Anthony Schaw, Alex. Wedderburn, Ralph Roger, George Ramsay, John Spalding, John Bell, Robert Boyd, John Wallace, Robert Bell, William Tullidaff, William Maitland, Andrew Hutcheson, Thomas Wylie and Gabriel Cuningham. Wherefore Fairfoul the clerk got a horning against them, and on the first of June gave them warning that he was to distress them. They represented their case in a petition to the council; but, though no answer is recorded, yet it seems the matter was dropt.

As the indulgence was very diffatisfying to many confcientious people, so, about this time, some young preachers began at their defire to preach, on the Lord's day, in the borders of some of the parishes of the indulged, which these last apprehended was unnecessary, since they constantly preached themselves, and that it would tend to divide and distract the people; but the truth is, the indulgence itself, and the accepting of it, was the occation of the divitions that afterwards broke out.

On the fifth of June the council received the reports from their commissioners for trying conventicles in Aberdeen-shire, Glasgow, &c. and found that the lady Polmais in Stirling-shire had been before them, and declared upon her honour that she was free from what they charged her with; but, refusing to swear to their questions, had committed her case to the council. laird of Balgony and his lady, with lady Kennet, were ordered to be denounced for not appearing before these commissioners. Mr. Hugh Campbel at Muirkirk was ordered to be summoned before the council for preaching without a presentation; and the magistrates of Glasgow were appointed to produce Mr. Alexander Gordon, or his fureties, for holding a conventicle there.

The same day the council referred the processes against Netherpollock, Torrence and Dalduy, for keeping of conventicles, to the commission for publick affairs.

About the middle of this month the following accident produced some remarkable alterations. While Mr. trepaaned. James Kirkton (before the restoration minister at Martin, and minister in Edinburgh after the revolution) was walking in the street of Edinburgh, he was civilly accolled by one captain Carftairs, together with James Scot of? afid whi Kir fair feng him mea Kir 70h ly t not

Cha

circ to c dun out adve and the part and

U

ton b

led;

ficer

Rob

geth

char

been befo affai Shar wood ing day, and l He p refer comi ed, 1 merk

no fi

prete

I.

ı/-

li-

y-

7-hn

1111

as

he

of

n.

l;

it-

ci-

h-

d,

ey

nd

he

arts

7"- ais

ed

ey

le-

he

re

ele

or-

ng

ow

nis

nít

071-

ci-

Ir.

ar-

vas

ac-

cot of of Tufbilaw, and a footman. As Mr. Kirkton was going 1676. aside with Carstairs, he asked Scot who he was; to which Scot replied with filence and staring; whereby Kirkton found he was trepanned, and a prisoner. Carflairs brought him to the house of one Alexander a mesfenger, and, fending off Scot and his footman, carried Then Kirkton asked what he him into a dark room. meant. Carstairs replied, Sir, you owe me money. Mr. Kirkton asked whom he took him for. Carstairs said, John Wardlaw. Kirkton undeceived him, and ingenuoufly told him who he was; to that the other faid, he had nothing to lay to him.

After they had been together about half an hour, Mr. Is referred Robert Bailie of Jerviswood, a relation of Kirkton's, to-by Jervisgether with Andrew Stevenson and Patrick Johnston mer- 6c. chants in Edinburgh, being informed of Mr. Kirkton's circumstances, came to the door, and called to Carstairs to open, asking what he had to do with a man in a dark dungeon. Carstairs refused to open the door, and drew out a pocket-pistol. Whereupon Kirkton grasped his adversary, and, in the struggle, both fell on the ground, and Kirkton called out, Murder! Then Jervifwood and the two that were with him burst open the door, and parted them, without offering any violence to Carstairs, and rescued their friend.

Upon the misrepresentation of this affair to lord Hal- Jerviston by Carstairs and Scot, a council was immediately cal-wood finled; to whom Halton told, that some of their publick of-ed. ficers had catched a fanatick minister, but that he had been tumultuously rescued. Jerviswood was brought before them, and gave them a faithful account of the affair, so that the council would have dropt it, had not Sharp faid, If Carstairs was not supported, and Jerviswood made an example of, there would be no profecuting of the fanaticks: And therefore the next councilday, June 22. Jerviswood was fined in 500 L. sterling, and kept four months in prison before he was released. He paid 2000 merks of his fine to Carstairs, and with no small difficulty was forgiven the rest. The council referred Andrew Stevenson and Patrick Johnston to the committee for publick affairs, by whom they were fined, the former in 1000 /. Scots, and the latter in 1000 merks, and ordered to remain in prison till payment.

This was reckoned great injustice; for though it was Remarks, pretended that Carflairs was a commissioned officer,

Chap

· As

bisho

whol país I

prima

order

who

gow,

of Ail

Mr. 1 Westb

land

the ot

Alexa

feffed

50 me

fon til

to fun

gainst

fon th

counci

but pe

rendis,

gitives

many remark

ply the

Which

to the

preach

multiti

utmost

prelatio

the fair

fors w

religio

that no

time, minion

prevail

ed provi

MacWe

Such

Th

Th

1676. and had produced his commission for apprehending ejestod ministers, &c. at the council-board; yet he produced no warrant to Jervifwood and the rest when they rescup. 400. ed Mr. Kirkton. Bishop Burnet tells us, ' That Bailey asked him what warrant he had to use him as he did; and that Carstairs said he had a warrant to carry him to prison, but refused to shew it .- And after he had made Kirkton go out, he faid he was refolved to purfue Carstairs for this riot; but, says Burnet, before the next council-day, a warrant for committing Kirkton, and fix or seven more, was signed by nine privy-councillors, but antedated. Lord Athol told the doctor, that he was > one who figned it.' So that, as Mr. Wodrow justly obferves, the managers went upon a base forgery.

Changes in the council.

Mean while Mr. Kirkton fent a true narrative to the dutchess of Lauderdale. When the duke saw it he feemed furprised, and owned he had never met with two fuch different accounts, as that fent by Halton and this by Mr. Kirkton. Soon after Mr. Kirkton's letter and information were fent to the council. Halton was enraged at this, and misrepresented all who had spoke in favour of Jerviswood, as if they had agreed to subvert lawful authority, and were combined against the king, and for the fanaticks. Accordingly a new nomination of the council came down, and all who would not fubmit to Halton and the primate were left out; as duke Hamilton, who had spoke much in defence of Fervifwood, the lord privy-feal, the earl of Kincardin, the earl of Dundonald, and others. Kincardin and a few more went to court, and laid the affair before the king, but without any effect.

Committee for publick affairs.

For, on the 20th of July, a new commission of council was sent down, wherein the archbishop of St. Andrews was appointed to prefide in absence of the chancellor. And the same day the two archbishops, the lord privyfeal, the earls of Argyll, Mar, Moray, Linlithgow, &c. or any three of them, were appointed their committee for publick affairs, and received commission and authority to meet when and where they pleased, and to take trial of conventicles, invasions of pulpits, &c. with power to fummon, apprehend, bring under bond, and give what orders they thought proper to the forces, sheriffs, and other magistrates, and to consider the condition of prisoners, and to do all things necessary for his majesty's service, and make report to the council.

And

And now prelacy was at the height, for the two arch- 1676. bishops, with any third creature, had in a manner the whole management put into their hands. What a low Remarks. pass must religion and liberty have been in, when the primate and other two, in his chamber, might give what orders they had a mind?

The same day the council had before them several Sundry who had been imprisoned by the committee at Glaf-fined. gow, and fined them as follows, viz. James Hamilton of Aikenhead 1000 l. Scots; Mr. Hugh Corbet of Hargray, Mr. Ninian Hill of Lambhill, and Gabriel Hamilton of Westburn, 1000 merks each; Patrick Hamilton of Neilsland 300 l. Matthew Cumming 200 l. What came of the others, formerly mentioned, is not known: But as Alexander Wardrop of Demarnock gave his oath, and confelled his being at one conventicle, he was fined only in 50 merks; and they were all ordered to remain in prifon till they paid their fines, which they quickly did.

d

d

1-

rt

g,

n

0-ce

d,

of

nt

h-

nws

or.

y-

cc.

for

ity

TI-

to

nat

nd

ri-

y's

nd

The committee of council ordered all sheriffs, &c. Powers to fummon before them all who should be informed a- to the ingainlt by the conforming clergy, and to fine and impri-ferior &fon them, and give an account of their diligence to the cers. These under-officers summoned multitudes; but people, finding they must give their oath fuper inquirendis, did not appear, and were therefore declared fugitives, and afterwards intercommuned. This obliged many to wander from place to place. However, God remarkably appeared for them, raifed up friends to supply their necessities, and support them in their distresses. Which dispersing of ministers and people tended greatly to the spreading of the gospel. They who formerly preached to a few in private houses, now preached to multitudes in the fields, with great success, tho' at the And as the vicious lives of most of the utmost hazard. prelatical clergy hardned many in their wickedness, so the faithfulness, integrity and holy zeal of these confesfors were convincing proofs that there was a reality in religion, especially considering the remarkable judgments that now and then fell upon their merciless persecuters,

Such was the persecuting spirit that raged at this The king time, that it reached to places out of his majesty's do-writes to minions; for, by the influence of Sharp, the king was the prevailed with to write to the States-general of the unit-States. ed provinces, to remove James Wallace, melirs. Robert MacWard and John Brown, out of their provinces.

Yy

name who was engaged at Pentland. But the States, being convinced of the unreasonableness of this demand, especially as messrs. MacWard and Brown had complied with the sentence passed upon them in the years 1661 and 1662. would not comply with it; and gave notice to lord Benningen, their embassador in England, to communicate their resolution in the most prudent way he could. The curious reader may see a translation of this worthy resolution of the States, dated the 31st of July, in Wodrow, vol. I. p. 434, 435.

Proceed. Though our managers could not obtain their ends aings of the broad, yet they increased the persecution at home; for, council, on the third of August, the council intercommuned Mr. Aug. 3. James Kirkton, Alex. Lennox, John Rae, David Hume,

Edward Jamison, Robert Lockhart, John Welwood, John Weir, Andrew Donaldson, Thomas MacGill, James Wedderburn, Thomas Douglas, Fran. Irvine, Alexander Bertram, and Alexander Wilson; and renewed their commission for suppressing conventicles in the northern shires, with a particular eye to Banss. They likeways past sentence in absence against above 40 in Fife, and about 30 or 40 more in Churnside and the country adjacent.

The same day Mr. Alexander Forester was, by the council, ordered to the Bass, and Mr. William Erskine and the laird of Bedlane, both in Stirling castle, to Dumbarton. At the same meeting, Mr. Robert Steedman at Carridden, Mr. George Haliburton at Dalgety, and Mr. James Duncan in the family of Dalhousie, were denounced for keeping conventicles, as were Alexander Gordon of Knockbreck, Henry MacGulloch of Barnholm, - Hay of Arrowland, the old lady Monreith, Robert MacClellan of Barmagachan, Patrick Vance of Drumblair, all in Galloway; Thomas Blackwell and others, in Glafgow, were denounced for alledged harbouring of intercommuned perfons; and Mr. Douglas of Cavers was fummoned to appear for keeping Mr. James Osburn, as his chaplain, without the bishop's licence, and not appearing they were both denounced and outlawed.

Whether this was the Mr. Osburn who was, after the revolution, professor of divinity in the Marshal-college of Aberdeen, I know not; but I was assured by his son, the late principal of that university, that he was a very great sufferer in this period; but, such was his mo-

part with fome ton, now but, tee

O

was.

Ch

deft

And ed to More Edinate fince manning of Hugh that is there him.

petiti

comn

was d feized

fome bore :
Fro ginning to Edit MacG he was forced has leily and

him.

he had

tracted

of Octonear P

delty,

defly, he declined speaking on that subject; so that the 1676.

particulars are not known.

at

2-

d,

i-

51

ce

n-

he

of

of

2-

or,

Ir.

ne, hn

er-

m,

for

1 2

ice

40

the

ine

lm-

at

Mr.

un-

of

of

of

ial-

ere

er-

to

in,

hey

the

ege

on,

ery

no-

sty,

The same day Kersland was sent prisoner, along with Tervifwood, to Stirling castle, where he continued fome time. From thence he was fent back to Dumbarton, and lay there till October 1677. The reader may now fee how much business was transacted in one day; but, as the persons were mostly absent, and the committee for publick affairs had prepared every thing for voting, processes could not be tedious.

On the fixth of September, Robert Andrew in Culrofs Mr. was fined in 50 L. sterling for keeping conventicles. Andrew And, on the 11th of October, the council being inform-fined. ed that Mr. John MacGiligen, was apprehended in MacGili-Moray, ordered him to be brought to the prison of gen's fuf-The sufferings of this valuable person, serings. Edinburgh. fince the establishment of prelacy, were many. And the manner of his being apprehended was remarkable. ing called to baptize a child of his dear brother Mr. Hugh Anderson, he stayed at his house all night. that night, at three different times, he dreamed that there were three men come to the house to apprehend him. Though he was no observer of dreams, yet the repetition of the fame thing made him thoughtful. committed his case to God, and had scarce got up and was dreffed, when three of Seaforth's fervants came and seized him, and carried him to Fortrose, where he was some time in prison, and, in a speech to the provost, bore an excellent teltimony against prelacy.

From thence he was fent to Nairn; and about the beginning of February he and Mr. Hog were brought up to Edinburgh, where Mr. Hog was imprisoned, but Mr. MacGiligen was fent to the Bass, where, for some time, he was not allowed a fervant to make his bed, being forced to do all these servile offices for himself. has left it on record, that the upper springs flowed liberally and sweetly, when the nether springs were imbittered to him. And though, through the interest of lord MacLeod, he had afterwards some more liberty, yet here he contracted a gravel, which put an end to all his forrows.

Mr. William Bell and Robert Dick were, upon the 12th of October, both fent to the Bass for a field-conventicle near Pentland-hills. And, on the 6th of November, the council, being informed that Mr. Patrick Hamilton, brother to the laird of Halcraig, had preached in a private house

C

hi

Ы

m

he

gı

ru

bu

A

m

30

of

 E_{I} thi

wl

be

the

pre

blo

mo loc

of

tio

in tha

hu

ou

We

thi

ind

ftit

wil

the

as

tell

not

diff

fel

go

wh

mi

1676. house at Edinburgh, fined Mris. Mary Hepburn, lady Saltcotes, in 200 l. Scots, and her daughter Mris. Mary Li-Sundry dingtoun in 200 merks, for being present; and sent Mary persons Haldane and Bessie Muir to prison, till they should find fined, &c. bail for 1000 merks each to remove from the town of Edinburgh and fix miles round it. At the same sederunt they released Mr. Andrew Kennedy of Clowburn, upon a bond of 10,000 merks to appear when called, though nothing criminal could be proved against him.

Dunlop

And fuch was the zeal of the managers, that, on the of Houf- 30th of November, the council fined James Dunlop of Housbill in Renfrew-shire, in the sum of 1000 merks, for neglecting his duty in suppressing conventicles, and declared him incapable of acting any more as bailie-depute of the regality of Glasgow. Though nothing could be laid to his charge, except that he could not keep pace with the prelates in persecuting those who heard the gospel. However, he was afterwards restored to his office, but, being unacceptable to the archbishop and others, he did not long continue in it.

Mr. Law denounced.

On the 7th of December Mr. John Law, late minister at Campsie, being called and not appearing, was ordered to be denounced. He was charged for keeping conventicles, invading pulpits, and being concerned in ordaining persons for the ministry. Two days after this the town of Edinburgh was fined in 50 L. Sterling for a conventicle lately held there. I shall now end the transactions of this year with an account of some who suffered, but the particular dates I know not.

Mr. Donaldfon's Sufferings.

For feveral years the reverend Mr. Andrew Donaldfon, late minister at Dalgety, continued to preach in a gentleman's house in that country, till, through the instigation of the prelates, he was intercommuned on the 3d of August this year. Although he was now old and infirm, and did not preach except sometimes on the sabbath-evening to his own family, and a few others who eame to hear him, yet, for this cause, a party of soldiers came one night and carried him out of his bed to the prison of Linlithgow, where he continued more than a year. The commander of the party, by whom he was thus apprehended, died under great horror of conscience for the part he acted in this matter. In the months of April or May 1679. he gave the earl of Argyll warning of his after fufferings and death, as that noble peer told several in the castle of Edinburgh a few days before his

Chap. it. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 357 his martyrdom. Mr. Donaldson continued under trou- 1676. ble till the year 1687.

Gilbert Mac Ilwraith of Dinmurchie, a gentleman of a Mr. moderate estate in the shire of Ayr, was this year inter-MacIIcommuned merely for not appearing. In the year 1680. wraith. he was forfeited with many others in absence, and the gift of his eltate and moveables was made over to the earl of Glencairn. His wife and children were very rudely treated, being expelled their house with nothing but their clothes on their back, and a child in the cradle. All this and much more was proved before the committee of parliament after the REVOLUTION.

Messieurs 1677. In the year 1677. things grew still worse. John Welsh, Gabriel Semple, Samuel Arnot and John Scot of Hawick, having last year been obliged to retire to England, they were very useful in Cumberland and Northumberland, reclaiming finners, and instructing many who scarcely had the gospel ever preached among them before. Some went also to the north of Ireland, where they were of great fervice.

II.

alt-

Li-

Tary

find a of

runt

n a

ugh

the

of of

for pute d be

pace

go-

s of-

do.

ister

der-

con-

orthis

or a ranf-

fuf-

ldson,

in a e inne 3d

d in-

fab.

who oldi-

d to

than was.

nsci-

onths

varn-

peur efore

his

In the beginning of this year a great number of A meetpresbyterian ministers, indulged and not indulged, affem-ing of the bled at Edinburgh, and Mr. Ralph Rogers was chosen their minifters. moderator. Some, such as the reverend Mr. MacWard, Maclooked upon this as an erastian meeting, fince several Ward's of the indulged were members of it, and fince the mo-contendtion made by the reverend Mr. Blackadder was treated ings, in a manner with contempt; for, when he proposed P. 20, 21. that they should first set some days apart for fasting and humiliation on account of their defections, some cried out, Divisive, divisive, and others, Come, let us unite. Mr. Welwood, Mr. Cameron, and a third, were called before P. Walthis meeting for preaching separation from the actually ker's pafindulged; but they declined them, as not a lawfully con-lages of stitute and qualified judicatory. Be these things as they wood. will, the ministers thus assembled did not take upon them the authority of a general affembly; but gave it as their opinion that the fentences inflicted on the protellors 1661*. should be reversed, that the indulged and * p. 80. not indulged should preach with one another without distinction, and that the indulged should not confine themselves only to their own pulpits. They had likeways a good deal of debate concerning indefinite ordination, whether, especially in the persecuted state of the church, ministers might not be ordained, without any prospect

Cha

c an

c the

at at

· Sir

gre gre

He v cerni

to pr ' not

• hea gains

remai

letter

mark

" and he wa

make

counc

Fame:

ducte

He re

affair

order

been

ingly,

from 1

hours

appear

Campb

of 50

wande

meet v

in Fife

and or

There

jected :

was cli

found

particu

tove.

and m bert Fo

Edinbu

The

1677. of a fettlement among a particular congregation; but they came to no resolution.

Conventicles still abounded notwithstanding the fanguinary laws in force. Mr. Welfb, &c. returned to the fouth and west in the spring. The sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered in the fields near the water of Girvan in Ayr-shire, where thousands were prefent, and great fuccess attended the preaching of the gospel on that occasion.

As a price was fet upon Mr. Welfb's head, he still travelled about with some of his friends armed in their own defence. The conforming clergy magnified these meetings, as if the whole of the presbyterians were in arms; and the bishops gave out that an insurrection was intended, notwithstanding such a thing was far from any of their thoughts.

On the 6th of January a letter came from the king to D. Hamilton. the council, making void all the commissions about the militia formerly granted to duke Hamilton, which no doubt they carefully intimated to him.

Mr.Frafer appreben-

On the 28th Mr. James Fraser of Brae was apprehended about ten at night, when engaged in familyworship, and carried directly to prison. He had his share of sufferings during the preceeding years, was one of those who had been intercommuned about two years before, though none whom he valued ever shunned his company for that. He was next day brought before a edbefore a committee of council, but, as he himself relates it, was committee. charged with no crime, but only examined, and verbally accused as a seditious person, who did rend the church of Christ. That the reader may have a specimen of their infnaring proceedings, I shall mention a few of their questions, with his answers. Qu. 'Did you ever preach in the fields? Ans. Your lordship knows, that that, according to your law, is crimi' nal; and I am not obliged to be my own accuser. It is enough that my throat be cut, though I do it not with my own hands. If you have a mind to stage me on that, bring my accusers, and then proceed as your lordship thinks sit. Bishop. Tho' these shifts be taken from others, yet they must not, Sir, be taken so from a man of parts. Dundonald. Sir, you would gain the good-will of the committee by being ingenuous and free. I affure you none of us have any ill-will at you, or intend to take any advantage of you, or of any of your party, from any thing you fay. Anf. I 1677. thank your lordship. Halton. Did you ever preach at Linlithgow? Anf. It may be I have. Bishop. Yes, Sir, you have, and in the fields there too, and that to great conventicles. Anf. I defire that may be proved.' He was likeways interrogate as to his principles concerning government, and frankly owned his aversion to prelacy; but, fays he, 'as to my loyalty, I would ' not care much though you all faw what was in my heart anent it.' In fhort, nothing was proved against him. Nevertheless he was, after examination, remanded to prison. His pockets were fearched for letters, &c. and all company discharged. But he remarks, that ' the Lord was a light round about him, and HIM they could not thut out.' Next morning he was wakened by one of the jailors, and ordered to make ready to go immediately to the Bass, for so the council had appointed. Accordingly he and Mr. James Mitchel who had endured the torture were conducted thither by a party of 12 horse and 30 foot. He remained there two years and a half. But after the affair of Bothwel the king granted an indemnity, and ordered that all prisoners for nonconformity, who had not been in that rifing, might be fet at liberty. Accordingly, in July 1679. he and other ministers were brought from the Bass to the prison of Edinburgh, and in 24 hours time, upon finding bail for 8000 L. sterling to appear when called, were fet at liberty. Sir Hugh Campbel of Calder was bail for Mr. Fraser in the sum of 5000 merks Scots; nevertheless he continued in a wandering condition till November 1681. when we shall meet with him again.

, any

Mr. Andrew Forester, having been lately apprehended Mr. Foin Fife, was upon the 8th brought before the council, rester, and ordered to be kept close prisoner in Edinburgh.

There had been a meeting of about 50 or 60 of the ejected ministers on the 20th of May 1676, to whom he was clerk. When he was taken their minutes were found about him, and, upon his resusing to relate the particular circumstances of it, he was imprisoned as alove

t

e

e

r

ė

n

S

e

0

.

8

S

S

3

S

•

e

d

t

e

r

na

d

The fame day Scot of Pitlochie was sent to the Bass, Mr. and messrs. Thomas Blackwell, William Stirling and Ro-Blackbert Fork were ordered to be brought in prisoners to well, &c. Edinburgh. An information was given to the government,

1677. ment, after the revolution, that Mr. Blackwell was committed to prison 1677. for conventicles, when under a most violent fit of the gravel. However, one night, the door being open, and the jailor drunk, he and William Stirling a fellow-prisoner got out, for which the magistrates of Glasgow were fined in 10,000 merks, but the most of it was remitted after the indemnity 1679. Mr. Blackwell was purfued by those who were bail for the jailor, and again committed to prison, where he continued for a long time much afflicted with the gravel, and was obliged to transact for 7000 merks to his pursuers, the greatest part of which he paid, though William Stirling was not at all pursued.

This year the excellent lord Cardrofs suffered farther Cardross. hardships. However, on the 8th of February, he was permitted to go out of prison till the 18th on account of his lady's indisposition.

A popish lord employed.

det.

Lord

On the 13th the council gave a commission to lord Maxwel, a papist, to apprehend presbyterian ministers and others, and to levy 5000 merks of fines lately imposed on the parish of Dunscore for a riot. Such was their zeal against popery! On the 22d Robert Blae and William Grey of Culross were severely fined for conven-Seaforth ticles. And on the 1st of March the council wrote repriman- to the earl of Seaforth, severely reprimanding him for having granted a warrant to the sheriss of Nairn to give fome liberty to Mr. MacGiligen; for they had been informed that that sheriff had, for some time before he was ordered to apprehend Mr. MacGiligen, kept him as a chaplain, and suffered him to preach and keep conventicles. The same day they allowed lord Cardross to go about his affairs, upon a bond of 100 L. sterling for every offence committed by him or his lady, which we shall find was afterwards rigorously exacted.

Farther proceedings of the counoil.

Great care was taken at this time to have the youth educated to their mind. Accordingly, on the 6th of March, the council made an act discharging all students from being admitted to academical degrees, unless they took the oath of allegiance and declaration; and fignifying that the masters should be deprived if they conferred any degrees upon other terms. The same day letters were ordered to be fent to the sheriffs, bailies of regalities, &c. to encourage them in profecuting those who went to conventicles, by informing them that they were to have the fines of all below heritors for their

or a affai T wen Ham

Ch

own

lithg

the

on t com ciple

O derda that, they ging evil.

Or

coun

ful in bert ing a force: ed hi out o ways gates vent | they c enter any cl indulg the pr the p time, and pi bound This e was gr iter ar leave as a fi

Ne

to the

Chap. II. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 361 own use. They likeways appointed the earls of Linlithgow and Wintoun, the lords Elphingston and Belhaven, the treasurer-depute, the advocate, and lord Collington, or any three of them, to be the committee for publick affairs.

The bishops being, it seems, displeased that many Mr. Hawent from Edinburgh to Dalmenie to hear Mr. Alexander milton Hamilton the indulged minister of that place, the council, translated, on the 7th of March, removed him to Dalsers. The compliances of some of the indulged gave offence to many, being judged inconsistent with presbyterian principles.

On the 4th of April the council, in a letter to Lau-Council's derdale, complained of the increase of conventicles, and proceed-that, when the preachers or hearers were prosecuted, sainst they repaired to England: And therefore earnestly beg-convenging that his majesty would provide a remedy for this ticles.

evil.

.

18

d

1-

te

10

VE

en

he

im

ep

os

ing

ich

uth

6th

all

ees,

on;

d it

ame

ilies

ting

that

own

On the 2d of May letters were fent, by order of the council, to many of the royal burghs, to be more careful in suppressing of conventicles; and the same day Robert Bennet of Chesters was brought before them for being at a field-meeting, where they alledged the king's forces were refilted; and the foldiers who apprehended him and Mr. Blackwell were allowed 10 L. sterling out of the fines for each of them. Orders were likeways fent to colonel Borthwick to place guards at the gates of the city of Glasgow on the sabbath-day, to prevent people from going thence to these meetings: Nay, they discharged all the ejected ministers, who did not enter into their confinement 1672. from entering into any churches, declaring that, for the future, they would indulge no more. This doubtless was very acceptable to the prelates.

Next day, May 3d, the earl of Dumfries represented Sufferings to the council, that Mr. William MacMillan of Caldow, in of Mr. the parish of Balmaclellan in Galloway, had, for some Millan of time, been imprisoned at Dumfries for non-conformity, Caldow. and prayed that he might be let out and confined to the bounds of his own parish, which was complied with. This excellent person, after the establishment of prelacy, was greatly persecuted by Mr. Moir the episcopal minister and Sir James Turner, so that he was obliged to leave his mother's family, disperse his own, and live as a sugitive the best way he could. Though he was 1677. not at Pentland, yet Sir William Bannantyne quartered his men on his family, detained him and feveral others prisoners in the house of Earlestoun. His house was spoiled, his furniture seized, though he had given a bond containing a penalty of 1000 1. to answer the council, or justiciary, for any thing that could be laid to his charge. This gentleman went frequently to Ireland, till at last he was licensed to preach 1673. by the presbyterian ministers of the county of Down. When engaged in this work he was informed against by the prelates and the earl of Nithsdale, who sent two of his militia troop, with some other violent papists, who apprehended and carried him prisoner, first to Kirkcudbright, and then to Dumfries, where, without any accusation, he was continued prisoner 35 months without intermission, to the great prejudice of his health.

2 2

Mr. J. Drummond.

On the same 3d of May Mr. James Drummond was ordered to be brought to the tolbooth of Edinburgh, because, when formerly set at liberty, he engaged not to keep conventicles, and yet was taken preaching; and the committee for publick affairs, in their report to the council, gave it as their opinion that he should be sent to the Bass. My author observes, that, if he made such a promise, he was almost the only presbyterian minister that did fo at this time; that they all gave bond to appear when called, but none of them would engage not to preach.

The 28th of June the committee for publick affairs retee's re- ported to the council their proceedings against the presbyport, &c. terian ministers in their hands. Mr. Wodrow has inserted their report at large, Vol. I. p. 447, &c. to which I must refer the reader. The same day the council fined Mr. Bennet of Chesters in 400 merks for conventicles, and for hearing and conversing with Mr. Welsh, and ordered him to remain in the Bass till payment: They likeways fined Adam Stobie of Luscar in 3000 merks, and after he paid the fine he was banished the kingdom: And the same day John Anderson of Dowhill younger (several times provost of Glasgow after the revolution) was brought before the committee for publick affairs, and accused for being at many conventicles, and for a leries of non-conformity, and refusing to swear was reputed guilty, and, because he would not hear his parish minister, was fined in 500 L. sterling, and ordered to ly in prison at Edinburgh till he paid it. He remained there till the

to of of. Mr bef

C

his

kep pre bec con and min by o 70h Thi con

the

0 for 1 fined act, as w fines fubfo 18th to a Tullo nerk coun being their other

Tulloc ter th to wa Mitch

Bu lowed ferve, and d that o

was m

the beginning of October, when he was released upon 1677.

his paying 2000 merks.

a

e

d

0

y

n

i-

-

1-

-

1-

15

h, ot

d

ne

nt

h er

pot

e-

by-

rt-

ch

n-

es,

r-

ey

ks,

m:

ger

n)

rs,

ſe-

ut-

ni-

in till

he

On the 19th of July the council gave a commission to Sir William Murray of Stanhope, and to some officers of the militia, to disperse conventicles in the shire of Peebles, and the same day Mr. Robert Trail, son to Mr. Ro-Mr. Robert Trail minister at Edinburgh, was brought bert before the council, and acknowledged that he had Trail. kept house-conventicles. But being asked if he had preached at field-conventicles, he referred that to proof, because the law made it capital. He owned he had converted with Mr. Wellh when on the English border. and that he was ordained to the ministry by presbyterian ministers at London 1670. But refusing to clear himself by oath, he was therefore fent to the Bass. Major Johnston got a 1000 1. Scots for apprehending him. This Mr. Trail was afterwards an useful minister to a congregation of differers in London. His fermons on the Throne of grace, the Lord's prayer, and John xvii. 24. are much esteemed by many.

On the 24th of July Sir Alexander Bruce of Broomhall, for not obliging his tenants to subscribe the bond, was fined in 1200 l. Scots. And the same day they made an act, ordering heritors to be summoned for conventicles Heritors as well as tenants, in order to be made liable for their summonfines, if it should appear they had not obliged them to ed. fubscribe the bond as required by the proclamation the 18th June 1674. which put multitudes of gentlemen to a great deal of trouble. Accordingly James Smith of Tullochshaugh, and many heritors in the shires of Lanerk and Renfrew, were charged to appear before the council on the 7th of August, to be examined as to their being at conventicles, their neglecting to take bond of their tenants, and to give their oath upon these articles, otherways to be accounted guilty. The fummons to Tullochshaugh was dated the 28th of July, two days after the council granted the prisoners in the Bass liberty to walk every where above the walls, except Mr. James Mitchel, who was ordered to be kept closely confined.

But, before I proceed to relate what immediately followed upon these proceedings, it seems proper to observe, that, either in June or July this year, the duke and dutchess of Lauderdale came down to Scotland, and Lauderthat one of the dutchess's daughters, by her first husband, dale was married to the lord Lorn, afterwards the first duke of Scotland.

Argyll.

C

tl

in

m

cl

ne

in ch

in

me

cil

au

lav

on

the

of

for

of .

Ter

all

dre

cont

and

the mu for

that

not imp

coul

and

for :

U tlem

1

1677. Argyll. The other was defigned for the marquis of Athole's eldest son, but that did not take effect.

The presbyterian ministers in Glafgow, Paifley, Irwine, applied to and Hamilton, judging it proper to address his grace, pitched upon Mr. Matthew Crawford to go to Edinburgh him in vain, to confult with Mr. John Carstairs. A meeting of minifters there approving the motion, employed Mr. An. thony Murray, a relation of the dutchess of Lauderdale. He got access to the duke, and humbly intreated his grace to interpose with the king for taking off the letters of intercommuning laid on fo many ministers, and releasing their brethren in the Bass and other places, and that they might have liberty to meet for drawing up a fupplication to the king's majefty. The duke told him, that he was ready to do all the fervice he could to him, but would grant no favour to that party, being (as he faid) unworthy of any. From this the ministers concluded that evil was determined against them; A 3d In however, next council-day, when feveral lords repremuscment.

fented that the preffing of the bond would ruin their tenants and lay their lands waste, the duke began to talk pretty openly of a third indulgence, and foon fignified his inclinations to fundry presbyterian ministers by lord Melvil. But when the two archbishops complained of this to the duke, it is faid he told them, that he intended no liberty to the presbyterians at all; only it was convenient to keep them in hopes till an army was raised to suppress them, which was now in agitation.

On the 2d of August John Cuningham of Bedlane was released from his confinement, upon giving bond and fecurity to re-enter when called. Then the council emitted a new proclamation, by which all heritors, wadfetters and liferenters, were required to engage themfelves by bond, not only for themselves and families, but for all that lived under them, that they should not keep or be present at any conventicle, or baptize or marry with ejected ministers, under the highest penalties contained in the former acts. See Wodrow's Appendix,

No. 79.

The same day lord Cardross was summoned to ap-Yord Cardross pear, on the 7th of August, before the council, for two irregular baptisms, two of his children having been baptized by persons who were neither his own parish ministers, nor licensed by the council. His lordship gave them a plain representation of the case, acknowledging that,

Prociamation.

blem

ing (ter t bond

ther yen t was t I.

of

e,

h

1-

12-

e.

IS

t-

6.

ıd

a

4, 0

13

rs ;

e-

elk

ed rd

of

nit

14

n.

as

br e-

d-

n-

es,

ot

res

x,

p:

VO

en sh

ve

ng it,

that, during his long confinement, he had a child born 1677. in the town of Edinburgh; and that, not being permitted either to attend his lady in her labour, or difcharge the other duties relating to the child, he was not in a capacity to conform to the act of parliament in that case; he only knew that the child was truly and christianly baptized, but never inquired by what mini-Notwithstanding whereof Cardrofs ster it was done. was fined in half a year's valued rent.

The same 7th of August the lady Kinkell was fined in 5000 merks, and the lady Pitlochie in 1000, for being at conventicles. And, to render the ends of the last mentioned proclamation the more effectual, the council, on the same day, erected a kind of high-commission, Commission, authorifing feveral noblemen and gentlemen to put the onlaws against conventicles and other diforders in executi-The commissioners had certain bounds assigned The lord treasurer was appointed for the shire of Edinburgh, the earl of Wintoun and lord Belhaven for Linlithgow, the marquis for Haddington, of Athole for Perth, the earl of Hume for Merse and Teviotdale, &c. They were to inform themselves of all persons, within the bounds assigned them, who withdrew from publick ordinances, went to house or fieldconventicles, of all diforderly baptisms and marriages, &c. and report their diligence once every three months to the council.

When the last proclamation and bond came west, it Noblemuch alarmed the noblemen, gentlemen and heritors; men, &c. for they reckoned it the hardest thing that could be, alarmed. that they should oblige themselves for those that were. not in their power, and be required to do what was impossible; and alledged, that many of the counsellors could not fafely bind themselves for their own families, and therefore how could country gentlemen be bound for multitudes under severe penalties?

Upon this a considerable number of noblemen, gen- Meet and tlemen and heritors of the shire of Ayr met, and, hav-ogree on a ing chosen the earl of Lowdown preses, agreed upon a let-proposal. ter to the council, excusing themselves for refusing a bond which they could not keep, and proposing another expedient for fecuring the peace of the country, even the granting a farther liberty to presbyterians. This was taken fo ill by the managers, that the excellent nobleman who figned the letter was never more in favour;

Ch

no

cife

the

COL

25 .

Cri

car

of

adn

Foh

feve

Geo

ing

tio

the

roy

State

By 1

pen

was

agai

affai

Scot

Ser (

givi

ing

ipite

as to ed to depa

pena

by t

Thon

tion.

both

mani

char

prifo

endu

intel

T

A

1677. vour; so that, after enduring fundry hardships, he left his native country, and died at Leyden.

The bond Shire.

The proclamation met with no better treatment in refused in Clydsdale. Duke Hamilton was no friend to it, and the Lanerk- heritors of Lanerk unanimously agreed to refuse the bond. This opposition a little softened the severe instructions and commissions at the council's meeting in October, when they made an act agreeable to the report then given in by the committee for publick affairs, 'That, if any person that is summoned be ready to swear, or pay his fine, he shall not be troubled with bonds or other engagements, fince the constant punishment of transgressors will supply the necessity of bonds, and fince the LAW itself is the strongest bond that can be ex-' afted of any man,' &c. However, these continued but a very short while.

The State dulged, P. 57.

On the 10th of August, according to the author of of the in- the history of indulgence, there was a proclamation, in which it is declared, that, fince divers of the indulged ministers had neglected their instructions given them by the council, all heritors, &c. were discharged from paying any part of their stipend for the year 1677. and in time coming, without a special order and warrant from the council. However, at this time, many indulged ministers were summoned to appear before the council, but there were few or none who appeared. Mr. James Currie was before them on the 7th, and, being accused for being at a conventicle, he owned, that, as the conventicle was in the corner of his own parish, he went to expostulate with the preacher for withdrawing his people from him; and this being his case he was dismissed. But Mr. James Greg being called, and not appearing, his indulgence was declared to be forfeited, and he discharged from preaching any more in At the fame time, the council being inform-Carstairs. ed that the indulged ministers did not keep their instructions, a new copy was ordered to be sent to each, fignifying, that, if they break them, they should be immediately turned out, and otherways censured. They having likeways information that Mr. — Gilchrift had been settled in the parish of Carsphairn, after the death of Mr. John Semple, ordered him to be dispossessed, and brought in prisoner to Edinburgh. Now, since the indulged were put to these hardships, the reader, I suppose, will not be surprised that others, who had not freedom to accept of any indulgence, and yet exer- 1677. cifed their ministry where they had opportunity, had the hardest measure of sufferings.

The prelatick party was very strong at this time in the council; for though some were for moderate measures, as Argyll, the president, Stair, Sir Thomas Wallace of Craigie, and a few more, yet the generality were for carrying things to the utmost extremity. Upon the 4th of September Sir George MacKenzie of Rosehaugh was Sir admitted a privy-counsellor, and about this time Sir George John Nisbet, who had been his majesty's advocate for Macfeveral years, was turned out, and fucceeded by Sir made of George, who was greatly instrumental in the after-suffer- vocate. ings of the presbyterians; fo that the prelates themselves could never charge him with any thing like modera-

1

l

e

e

d

n

.

1,

-

y

I

d

At the same sederunt a letter from the king, dated Commission the 24th of August, was read, signifying it was his ons during royal pleasure, that, for the future, all the officers of pleasure. state should accept their commissions durante beneplacito. By this means all the inferior officers were made to depend on him who had the king's ear. But, though this was Lauderdale's contrivance, it was afterwards turned against him.

On the 9th of October the committee for publick affairs give it as their opinion, that Mr. Robert Trail, Scot of Pitlochie, Mr. James Drummond, and Mr. Frafer of Brae, should be set at liberty from the Bass, upon giving bond to appear when called. But, notwithstanding this, Mr. Fraser was continued thro' the particular spite of the primate. I know not what the council did as to the rest. Only Mr. Alexander Peden was ordered to be let out of the Bass, upon obliging himself to depart from Britain, and not to return under a severe Several others had some liberty granted them penalty. by this sederunt, as messrs. Hog, MacGiligen, and Thomas Ross; but it was the eve of a severe persecution.

Though conventicles greatly increased this year, yet The peoboth ministers and people behaved in a most peaceable ple's manner: Nothing of disloyalty could be laid to their peaceable charge, notwithstanding the finings, confinings, im- carriages. prisonments, denouncings and intercommunings they endured. A paper writ by a gentleman of very good intelligence at this time, fays, That, by a fober computation, 1677. putation, it appeared, that, before the end of this year 1677. near 17,000 were thus harraffed; but still they met peaceably. It is true feveral of them came with arms, in order to defend themselves from the barbarous outrages of the foldiers, which was a great handle to the prelates, who, upon hearing of the design of any farther favour to those who could not in conscience fubmit to abjured prelacy, left no stone unturned to defeat the defign. In order to this they raised a mighty cry that the CHURCH was in danger from an intended insurrection, which had not the least foundation. The following incident was also aggravated.

Carstairs commits outrages.

Carstairs, who had been very diligent in harrassing the presbyterians in the east parts of Fife, had turned out lady Colvil from her house, so that she was obliged to conceal herself for some time in the fields and mountains, which greatly impaired her health. fellow went round the country with about a dozen of men, having no other warrant but the ARCHBISHOP's commission, under pretence of searching for denounced and intercommuned persons, and committed many outrages. About the beginning of October, fix or feven gentlemen being in the house of John Balfour in Kinloch, Carstairs came with his company, while one of the gentlemen was accidentally at the door. Philip Garret, an Irish tinker, one of Carstairs's gang, advanced, and, without asking a question, or receiving the least provocation, fired at the gentleman, but happily missed him. However, Garret followed into the house. By this time the gentlemen being alarmed, one of them fired at Garret, and wounded him in the shoulder, so that he fell. Mean while Carstairs and his men fired in at the windows at the gentlemen, and wounded one of them. Upon this the gentlemen, in their own just and necesfary defence, made a fally, and put Carstairs and his men to flight. But no more blood was shed, only Kinkell's horse was shot, and Garret received some slight wounds Carstairs informed the council in his with a fword. own way; so that this was looked upon as an high act The gentlemen, and feveral others, of rebellion. were fummoned before the council, and not appearing were all denounced rebels. This affair was charged upon the whole body of the presbyterians, tho' it was some time before it was known in the west-country. How ed a A wrot lord .

excis an in Irwin der to ticles, cies c their ting and f narie

As

ftance tion, were invad and a byteri fhort, was b

them

to be day b Me was o chel fe Andre from marri the di a lett greatr

match

city o As papists doms, freque with only, is we

How-

However, as this happened just when the bishops want- 1677. ed a handle, they carefully improved it.

Accordingly, on the 17th of October, the council Council's wrote to the earls of Glencairn and Dundonald, and the letter to lord Rofs, in order to assemble the commissioners of the Glenexcise and militia, and justices of peace, mentioned in cairn, oc. an inclosed letter, in the shires of Ayr and Renfrew, at Irwine, on the second of November next to come, in order to concert proper measures for suppressing conventicles, and that on account of the extraordinary infolencies committed against the orthodox clergy, by usurping. their pulpits, threatning, or abusing their persons, setting up of conventicle-houses, and keeping of seditious and feandalous conventicles in the fields, the great feminaries of rebellion, &c.

As to infolencies, &c. except it was one or two in- Remarks. stances, fays my author, and that on no fmall provocation, not one of those riots that came before the council were in the shires of Ayr and Renfrew. And as to the invading of pulpits, it is owned, that, upon a vacancy, and at the invitation of the heritors and people, prefbyterian ministers did sometimes preach in them. In short, the whole of this application to these gentlemen was but a /ham, for they had concerted measures among themselves; only there must be some time to bring them to bear, as appears from a resolution of the council the day before the gentlemen were to meet.

e

l.

n

's

s

15

રદ

s,

g

d

as

Mean while, about the end of October, the advocate Prince of was ordered by the council to profecute Mr. James Mit- Orange's chel for his intended affassination of the bishops of St. marriage. Andrews and Orkney. They likeways received a letter from Lauderdale, acquainting them with the deligned marriage of the prince of Orange to the princes Mary, the duke of York's eldest daughter; for which they wrote a letter of compliment to his majesty, expressing the greatness of that happiness they expected from this match; and they commanded publick rejoicings in the city of Edinburgh on that occasion.

As the marriages of the royal house of Stuart with Remarks. papists, have been the great plagues of the three kingdoms, and have brought our religious and civil liberties frequently to the very brink of ruin, fo their marriages with protestants have been as great blessings, not to us only, but to the whole protestant church. To these it is we are indebted, first, for the glorious revolution, and,

Aaa

Cha

phich

row/

The

the k

ed.

chap

out 1

tors

prop

and t

on th

were

Up

and i

proc

the n

Stirli

ters a

their

farthe

fent t

Falkin

plete

count

defigi

But n

cultor

A cor

Renfr

a goo

unani

not in their tolera

to fet

meetin

that t

had g

and I

the t

But th

be to men 1

On

As

1677. next, for the illustrious FAMILY which now happily fills the throne: And had the managers feen the confequences of the happy intended marriage intimated to them at this time, it is to be questioned whether they would have been so foreward in their rejoicings.

Ker of Kerfland.

Glaf-

gow.

About this same time Mr. Ker of Kerstand was ordered to confine himself in the town of Irwine, and a mile round it, being within five miles of his own house at Kerstand. He had some time allowed him to go with his family, then at Glasgow, to the place appointed. When he came to his family at Glafgow, he was vifited by many of his friends and acquaintances. But the fame night, when he was conducting the lady Caldwell and her daughter home, he and Robert Hamilton of Airdry were both apprehended by some of the king's lifeguard at Glafgow, and kept in the guard house till next day. Major Cockburn, the commanding officer, was willing to release Kerstand, only detained him till the archbishop's pleasure was known, who, as a counsellor, ordered him to be made close prisoner in the tolbooth, and immediately rode to Edinburgh. The lady Kerstand fol-A fire at lowed to prevent misinformations. During this a fire broke out at Glasgow, and the prison being in danger, I am informed that feveral of the inhabitants went to the magistrates, desiring that the prisoners might be taken out, left they should perish in the slames; and, upon their refusal, the people took the longest ladder they could find, and as many as were able laid hold on both fides of it, and with united force burst open the doors and released the prisoners; among whom Kersland got his liberty. Mr. Wodrow fays, that after this he retired, and absconded all that winter, during the spring, and following fummer, when he kept company with the perfecuted ministers, heard the gospel preached by them in the fields, till he retired to Utrecht, where he died the 14th of November 1680. However, it would feem, that, after he was fet free at Glasgow, he was some way or another retaken and sent to prison at Edinburgh; for, p. 446. he fays, Upon the 29th of November, Robert Ker of

> On the first of November the committee for publick affairs informed the council that they had ordered two men to be scourged for a riot on the minister of Tor-

tions, which was not common at this time.

Kerstand, and Durham of Largo, prisoners in Edinburgh tolbooth, are ordered to be liberate without any condi-phichen,

ı.

6-

to

ey

1-ile

at

th

d.

ed

he

ell

ir.

fe-

ext

il-

h-

or-

nd

ol-

fire

, I

to

ta-

np-

ney

oth

ors

got

ed,

and

er-

n in

the

hat,

an-

, P. rof

irgh

ndi-

lick

two

Tor-

hen,

phichen, and two more for a riot on the minister of Borrowstouness, which met with the council's approbation.

The same day they turned out Mr. John Welwood from the kirk of Tarboltoun, and ordered him to be apprehended. And, about a fortnight after, Mr. James Forthie, chaplain to the trinity hospital at Edinburgh, was turned out for being at a conventicle.

As an evidence that the council's ordering the heri- Resolution tors of Ayr and Renfrew to meet at Irwine, to fall upon of the proper methods for suppressing conventicles, was all sham, council. and that they had concerted measures among themselves, on the 1st of November, the day before these gentlemen were to meet, they came to the following resolution, viz. Upon some informations of some growing disorders Project of and infolencies in the western shires, it was thought fit a the Highproclamation be drawn, in case of an insurrection, and land host. the nearest Highlanders should be ordered to meet at Stirling upon advertisement by proclamation; and letters are to be writ to noblemen and gentlemen, to have their vassals and tenants ready and at a call. It was farther thought fit that arms and ammunition should be fent to Stirling. The forces at Glafgow are ordered to Falkirk, and new men are to be prefently levied to complete them, and the foldiers ordered for the Highlands countermanded.' Though they might be informed of a defigned infurrection, yet there was no ground for it. But now the Highlanders, men too universally accultomed to theft and rapine, must be made REFORMERS! A contrivance becoming Scots bishops.

On the second of November, the heritors of Ayr and Resoluti-Renfrew met at Irwine, as they were ordered, and, after one of the a good deal of reasoning upon the council's letter, they meeting at unanimously came to three resolutions. 'I. That it was Irwine. not in their power to suppress conventicles. 2. That it is their humble opinion, from former experience, that a toleration of presbyterians is the only proper expedient to lettle and preserve the peace, and cause the foresaid meetings to cease. 3. That it is their humble motion, that the extent thereof be no less than what his majesty had graciously vouchsafed to his kingdoms of England and Ireland.' These resolutions they communicated to the three noblemen by whom they were affembled. But their lordships, knowing how unacceptable it would be to the council, declined receiving it, and the gentlemen would make no alteration. And therefore the three

C

pr

an

le

ca

CC

W

W

· pe

re

ri

an

in fir

m

bu

pr re

pr

m Sc

yo

ter

br

ma

me

are

of

ed rif

1677. three lords, on the eighth of November, fent a letter to the council, fignifying, that the gentlemen had declared that it was not in their power to quiet the diforders.

for the Highland hoft.

Though the leading men in the council appeared difpreparing satisfied with this refusal, yet it is probable it was what they wanted, that they might have a handle to profecute their cruel intentions against the west country. Accordingly they now resolved to execute their project, formerly agreed to, of raising such a number of the favage highlanders as might overrun and depopulate the weltern shires, though in a time of profound peace. It does not appear that they had as yet any orders for this from court, and therefore they were obliged to wait for some time till the king's letter came down to impower them to act. Mean while they were not idle in preparing for the execution of their delign.

Accordingly, on the 15th of November, the council ordered the commissioners of the militia to meet at E. dinburgh, on the 19th, under the severest penalties, and the guards to muster on Larber-muir on the 20th. On the 26th four companies of foldiers were ordered to be quartered about Edinburgh. Next day they elfablished a post betwixt Edinburgh and Portpatrick for corresponding with Ireland; for the king being informed of the danger of an infurrection, for which there was not the least ground, not only offered them the affistance of the English forces, but likewise commanded the viscount of Granard to march the Irish forces to the coast, to be in readiness to come over to Scotland upon a call. However, the highland hoft answered the end of the managers without the affiftance of foreigners. The same day they wrote to the absent counfellors to be present next council-day. Accordingly on the 6th of December they met, and wrote to the earls of Huntly, Perth, and Airly, to have their men in readiness to march.

The same day Mr. James Mitchel, formerly mentioned, was brought from the Bass to Edinburgh.

Dr. Left On the 17th the council ordered Dr. James Leslie, principal of the Marshal-college at Aberdeen, to be apprehended and fent to Edinburgh. He had written to the bishop of London reflecting on the council and the duke of Lauderdale, and his letters some way or another came into their hands; and therefore he was deprived prived of his place, ordered to beg his grace's pardon, 1677. and then was fet at liberty.

Chap. 11. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 373

On the 20th the council met, and received the king's letter for raising the HIGHLAND HOST, of which I cannot but insert the following abstract.

CHARLES R.

11.

to

ar-

or-

lif-

hat

le-

ry.

ect,

fa-

the

It

for

to wn

not ncil E-

and On

to fta-

fornere

the

nd-

rces

cot-

fo-

un-

arls

rea-

on-flie,

ap-

1 to

the

no-

de-

ved

Ight trufty and well-beloved, &c. We have been King's K very much concerned at the accounts we have letter conhad, not only out of Scotland, but from several other cerning hands, of the great and infufferable insolencies lately ern shires, committed by the fanaticks, especially in the shires of &c. Ayr, Renfrew, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, and other adjacent places, and also in Teviotdale, and even in Fife, where numerous conventicles, which by act of parliament are declared rendezvouzes of rebellion, have been kept, with folemn communions of many hundreds of people, and feditious and treasonable doctrine preached against our person and all under us, inciting the subjects to open rebellion, and to rife in arms against us and our authority and laws, unlawful oaths imposed, the churches and pulpits of the regular clergy usurped, by force invaded, and their persons still threatned with affaffination and murder, and (what they have not formerly attempted) preaching-houses have been lately built, and unlawful meetings of pretended fynods and prelbyteries kept, thereby deligning to profecute their rebellious intentions, and to perpetuate the schism.

These insolencies, being so recent, have moved us to provide sit and timeous remedies; and therefore we have appointed some of our English sorces to march to the north near the Scots border, and a part of our army in Ireland to ly at Belfast, near the sea-coast towards

We have been with much satisfaction informed, that you have required the noblemen and others, who have interest and considerable vassals—in the Highlands and places—adjacent, to be in readiness, with what forces they can bring out, to rendezvous at Stirling, and from thence to march with our standing forces, upon the first advertisement, for the prosecution of our service. And, seeing we are fully resolved to maintain and defend the government of the church in that our kingdom, as it is now established by law,——therefore we do hereby require and authorise you to command all these forces before mentioned —to march to these shires and places—fo infested with

re-

1677. rebellious practices, and there to take effectual courses for reducing them to due obedience to us and our laws. by taking free quarter from the disaffected, and by disarming of all you shall find necessary, and securing all horses above such a value as ye shall think fit, by causing the heritors and liferenters to engage and give bond for their tenants, and others who live upon and possess their lands, that they shall keep no conventicles, that they shall live orderly and obedient to the laws, and by causing the tenants and masters of families give the like bonds; by causing every parish, and the heritors of it, give furety that no conventicles shall be kept within any part of the parish, property or commonty, nor harbour or commune with the rebels, or persons intercommuned; and for keeping the persons, families and goods of the regular ministers harmless, and that under such penalties as ye shall think fit, by causing all heritors, tenants, liferenters, and others, take the oath of allegiance to us, by using and profecuting all other means and methods--for---putting at last an end to these insolencies and disorders; and, in case of resistance, that, in our name, you give warrant to relift them by force of arms.

And, for the more effectual profecution of these our commands, that you punish the disobedient, or those you judge disaffected, by fining, confining, imprisonment, or banishment. And farther, that ye place sufficient garrifons in all places where ye shall from time to time find it necessary. And if, at any time hereafter, ye shall judge that these forces ye have prepared are not sufficient for this undertaking, we do impower and authorise you to call to your affiltance those of our forces now lying in the north of England and the north of Ireland, one or both, as ye shall find cause .--

And, lastly, we do authorise and require you to call together our militia of that our ancient kingdom,and to command and charge all heritors, freeholders, and others, and, if need be, all betwixt fixty and fixteen, to come and attend our host, under the pain of treason, according to the ancient laws of that our kingdom; and that ye---emit such proclamations as ye shall find necessary for this our service from time to time.---And so we bid you heartily farewel. Given at Whitehall, December 11. 1677.

In consequence of this letter from his majesty, the managers agreed to raise an army, known in Scotland by on for into fion nex fhor by t ter, and fick wer on a prif

Chi

by 1

that vade ticle tion relig thei pect be 1 fo a > dure Of 1 pr

> > CC la

I

then

Tork

thei

as b feein refol acco

this frust

Chap. 11. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 375

l. es

III

ſ-

nd Is

at

y

t,

y

ır

;

ne

ŀ

$,

s, ſ-

e,

11

ſe

t,

-

d

e .

r

n

r

11

s,

of

.

10

nd

by the name of the HIGHLAND HOST. Accordingly, 1677: on the 26th of December, a commission passed the seals for raising the bighlanders and others, and forming them Commission troops and companies. By virtue of this commission for some seasons are to be at Stirling by the 24th of January raising the next; in their march they were to take, and, if the same landers. should be refused, force quarter for their money: Nay, by this commission they had authority to take free quarter, as the council or their committee should appoint, and, if need be, to seize on horses for carrying their sick men, ammunition or provisions. In a word, they were indemnissed against all pursuits, civil and criminal, on account of killing, wounding, apprehending or imprisoning such as should oppose them.

One would imagine, from such mighty preparations, Remarks. that the whole nation was upon the point of being invaded. But all this was for the suppressing of conventicles, and distressing those who had given no provocation, farther than that they could not abandon their religious principles, and submit to abjured prelacy; and therefore an army of highlanders must force it down their throats. Perhaps some of the managers might expect that the oppressions of the Highland army, now to be raised, would force the people to take arms, and so a fine handle would be given to make a facrifice of them to the resentments of the prelates and the duke of Tork. Notwithstanding the people generally adhered to their principles, and at the same time patiently endured their sufferings.

CHAP. XII.

Of the trial and execution of Mr. James Mitchel; the proceedings of the council and committee; the bond of conformity; together with the ravages of the Highland host during the months of January and February 1678.

THE first two months of the year 1678. present 1678. us with a series of oppression as unprecedented as barbarous. Several noblemen and gentlemen, fore-seeing the terrible effects of the measures now pursuing, resolved to go to court, and give the king a faithful Ast disaccount of the circumstances of Scotland. But, when charging this took air, the bishops and Lauderdale, in order to any to frustrate the design, procured an act of council to be leave the frustrate the design, procured an act of council to be kingdom.

Ch

wo

boo

gre

10 fon

Ges

gre auc

COL

ext

mu dix

at !

the

to duc

on.

Mi

fau

cor

fan

cor

cou

but fan fuc

ber

his

any

any

inf

the

pol

par of

wh

the kne

fes,

of !

his

her

1678. passed, on the third of January, discharging all noblemen, gentlemen and heritors from leaving the kingdom without the council's permission, and requiring all between 60 and 16 to be in readiness to join the king's hoft. And as duke Hamilton was of the greatest rank and interest in the west, the council, on the same day, wrote to his grace, fignifying their resolution, that a committee of the council should go along with his majesty's forces, who were to rendezvous at Stirling, and to march west from thence for his majesty's service, and requiring him to meet the faid committee at Glafgow, the 26th of this instant, and to receive and obey such orders of the council, or the faid committee, from time to time, as should be thought necessary.

The same day Lauderdale, at the command of the council, wrote to the earl of Cassils, requiring him, as baily principal of Carrick, to attend the faid committee, at Glasgow the 26th instant, and receive and obey their orders, which his lordship did accordingly.

Mr. Mitchel profecut-

It was now determined to profecute Mr. James Mitehel; and therefore, on the third of this month, Sir George Lockhart and Mr. John Ellis were appointed to plead for him before the justiciary. Bishop Burnet says, Things being then in great diforder, by reason of the numbers and desperate tempers of those who were intercommuned (he should rather have said, by reason of the illegal, cruel and arbitrary proceedings of the managers) Sharp pretended he was in great danger of his life, and the rather because the person who made the attempt upon him was let live still; and therefore Sharp WOULD HAVE HIS LIFE, and duke Lauderdale gave way to it.' Sir Archibald Primrose, lately turned out of the register's P. 414. place, was made justice-general. He fancied, says Burnet, that orders had been given to raze the act that the *p. 315. council had made *, but turning to the books, he found the act still on record. So he took a copy of it, and fent it to Mr. Mitchel's council, and a day or two before the trial went to Lauderdale, who, together with Sharp, lord Rothes, and lord Halton, were fummoned as the prisoner's witnesses. Primrose told Lauderdale that many thought a promise of life had been given; the latter stiffly denied it: And the former faid, That he heard there was an act of council made about it, and wished that that might be looked into. Landerdale faid be was fure it was not possible, and he would

1 sk

1

.

d

d

,

h

le

ne

25

e, ır

t-

ir

to

S,

ne

11-

he

s)

nd

pt

t.

r's

15-

he nd

nd vo

ner

m-

111-

en id,

out

he ld

would not give himself the trouble to look over the 1678.

His trial began on the seventh of January. The His trial. great proof brought against him was his confession the 10th of February 1674. Many and long were the reasonings upon the points in the indistment; and Sir George Lockhart argued, in behalf of the prisoner, with great judgment and learning, to the admiration of the audience, shewing, That no extrajudicial confession could be allowed in court, and that his confession was extorted from him by hopes and promise of life. I must refer the curious reader to Mr. Wodrow's appendix, where he will find the defences, replies and duplies at large, No. 93. The debates were so tedious, that the court adjourned till the 9th of January.

Then, after some witnesses were examined relating Deposition to the attempt upon the bishops, the lord advocate pro-ons of a duced his witnesses for proving Mr. Mitchel's confession witnesses duced his witnesses for proving Mr. Mitchel's confession witnesses. And, first, the earl of Rothes, being shewn Mr. Mitchel's confession, swore, That he was present and faw him subscribe that paper, and heard him make the confession contained therein, and afterwards ratify the fame at the council-bar, in the prefence of the king's commissioner, the lords of privy-council sitting in council, and that he had subscribed the said confession; but that he did not at all give any affurance to the pri- Perjury. foner for his life; that the prisoner never required any fuch affurance; and that his lordship does not remember that there was any warrant given by the council to his lordship for that effect; and, says he, if there be any expressions in any paper, which may seem to infer any thing to the contrary, he conceives it hath been insert upon mistake. Charles Maitland of Halton and the duke of Lauderdale swore much to the same pur-

Then archbishop Sharp swore, 'That that day the pannel or prisoner did fire at his grace, he had a wave of him passing from the coach, and passing the street, which made such impression upon his grace, that, by the sirst sight he saw of him, after he was taken, he knew him to be the person who shot the shot. Deposes, his grace saw, him at the council-bar, in presence of his majesty's commissioner and council, acknowledge his confession before the committee, and heard him adhere thereto, and renew the same; and that there was

Bbb

Cha

mai

his

nua

hav

defe

man

him

on,

bein

my

ther

paff

fedu

to di

from

whe

pred

judi

is u exte

tice

that did

they

con

the

the

God

and one

they

of t

chel

25 S

the

ther

por

way

this

rela

Go

yet,

P

7

1678. no affurance of life given him, nor any warrant to any others to do it; only he promised, at his first taking, Perjury. that, if he would freely confess the fault, and express his repentance for the fame at that time, without any farther troubling judicatories therein, his grace would use his best endeavours for favour to him, or else leave him to justice. But that he either gave him assurance, or gave warrant to any to give it, is a false and malicious calumny. And that his grace made no promise to Nicol Somervel, other than that it was his interest to make a free confession.' This Nicol Somervel offered to give his oath that the archbishop promised to him to fecure his life if he would prevail with him to confess. The archbishop denied this, and called it a villanous lie.

After these witnesses were examined, the advocate

Copy of council produced.

the aft of declared he had closed the probation; whereupon the prisoner produced a copy of an act of council, 12th March 1674. praying that the register might be produced, or the clerks be obliged to give extracts, which they had refused. ' Lockhart, fays Burnet, pleaded, P. 415. That fince the court had adjudged that the council was a judicature, all people had a right to fearch into their registers, and the prisoner, who was like to suffer by a confession made there, ought to have the benefit of those books. But Lauderdale, who was in the court only as a witnefs, and fo had no right to speak, stood up and faid, That he and those other noble persons were not brought thither to be accused of perjury; and added, That the books of council were the king's fecrets, and that no court should have the perusing of them.' In short, this desence was rejected, and next day Mr. Mitchel was brought in guilty, and condemned to be hanged in the Grass-market of Edinburgh on Friday the 18th instant.

Burnet, ibid.

As foon as the court broke up, the lords went up stairs, and, to their shame, found the act recorded and figned by lord Rothes the prefident of the council. 'This action, fays that historian, and all concerned in it, were looked at by all people with horror. And it was fuch a complication of treachery, perjury and cruelty, as the like had not perhaps been known."

Mr. Mitchel's Mr. Mitchel, in a letter to a friend, from the tolletter. booth of Edinburgh, February 1674. fays, That, as to Naphtahis design against Sharp, ' he looked on him to be the 12.

any

ng,

refs

any uld

ave

ice,

ali-

ife

to

to

to ſs.

ous

ate

the

th

0-

ch

ed.

cil

to

er

fit

rt

bc

ns

nd

e-

of

xt

n-

n

p

ıd

is

t,

as

7,

0

main instigator of all the oppression and bloodshed of 1678. his brethren that followed thereupon, and of the continual pursuing of his life. And he being a soldier, not having laid down arms, but being still upon his own defence, and having no other end or quarrel at any man, and so had a right to take every advantage against Moreover, we being on no terms of capitulation, but, on the contrary, fays he, I, by his instigation, being excluded from all grace and favour, thought it my duty to pursue him on all occasions.' A little farther he says, 'I shall offer to your consideration that pallage, Deut. xiii. 9. wherein it is manifelt, that the feducer or enticer to worship a false God is to be put to death by the hand of those wbom he seeks to turn away from the Lord, especially by the hand of the witnesses, whereof I am one, as it appeareth Deut. xiii. which precept I humbly take to be moral, and not merely judicial or ceremonial. And as every moral precept is universal as to the extent of place, so also as to the After this he took noextent of time and persons.' tice of Phinehas, Elijah, &c. and added, 'I know that the bishops both will and do say, That what they did against the Lord's people, whom they murdered, they did it by law and authority, but what I did was contrary to both. I answer, the king himself, and all the estates of the land, and every individual person in the land, both were and are obliged, by the oath of God upon them, to have extirpated the perjured prelates and prelacy; and, in doing thereof, to have defended one another with their lives and fortunes .--- And now they vaunt of authority! But what authority do they mean? Truly I know not, except it be the authority of their aggregated Gods, new Gods, &c.'

The reader will by this time perceive that Mr. Mitchel looked upon himself as in a state of war, and that as Sharp was doubtless one of the chief instigators of the oppression and bloodshed of this dismal period, he therefore thought he had a right to take every opportunity of cutting him off, especially as all the ways of common justice were blocked up. However this matter will come again before us, when we shall relate how Sharp met with what he justly deserved at God's hand.

But supposing Mr. Mitchel's attempt unjustifiable, yet, considering the promise of life given him, it is plain

Cha

adn

npo

cou

act

beir

and mo

fom

law

not

who

cret

at t inge

in 1 to f

Thu

I an

my dese mer

nish doth

part God

John

ness

when

And

end

in th lates

cause

bless

to d conc

dina

cerni

and i

joym into

1678, plain he was unjustly put to death, as was sufficiently argued at his trial. Two days after the fentence an order came from court for placing Mr. Mitchel's head and hand on some publick place of the city, but, as the fentence was passed, no alteration could be made, and, if this order was procured by Sharp's means, he missed his end. ——About this time Mr. Mitchel's wife petitioned the council that her husband might be reprieved for a short time, that she might be in case to fee and take her last farewel of him, especially as it was not 12 days fince she was brought to bed, and was then in a fever. But no regard was paid thereto; for, on the 18th, he was executed according to the fentence. His last speech being interrupted by the beating of drums, he threw it over the scaffold, and is as follows.

· Christian people,

Copy of bis speech.

T being rumoured abroad, immediately after I received my fentence, that I would not have liberty to speak in this place, therefore I have not troubled myself to prepare any formal discourse, or account of the pretended crime for which I was accused and sentenced; neither did I think it very necessary, the fame of the process having gone so much abroad, what by a former indictment given me near four years ago, the diet whereof was suffered to desert, in respect the late advocate could not find a just way to reach me with the extrajudicial confession they opposed to me. All knew he was zealous in it; yet my charity to him is fuch, that he would not suffer that unwarrantable zeal so far to blind him, as to overstretch the laws of the land beyond their due limits, in prejudice of the life of a native subject. Next, by an extreme inquiry of torture, and then by exiling me to the Bass, and, after all, by giving me a new indictment at the instance of the new advocate, who before was one of mine when I received the first indictment, and to which new indictment and debate in the process I remit you, and particularly to these two defences of an extrajudicial confession, and the promise of life given to me thereupon by the chancellor, upon his own and the publick faith of the kingdom; upon the verity whereof I am content to die, and ready to lay down my life, and hope your charity will be fuch to me, a dying man, as not to miltrust me therein, especially since it is so notoriously ade 12.

ntly

an ead

38

ide,

he

el's

be

to:

it

ind 0;

the

the

is

re-

rty led

int

n-

ne 7 4

he

ite

he W

h,

ar

nd

of

1. 11,

ne

e-

1-

r-

1:

n

h

17

0

adminiculate by an act of secret council, and yet denied 1678. upon oath by the principal officers of state present in council at the making of the faid act, and whom the act bears to have been present, the duke of Lauderdale, being then his majesty's commissioner, likeways present; and which act of council was by the lords of justiciary most unjustly repelled: But I shall have charity for some of the said lords, who, I know, would have given law and justice as to my just absolution, if they had not been overpowered with plurality of votes by those who were overawed and dared by the lords of the fecret council; but that will not absolve their consciences at the last day. As to my advocates and lawyers, I ingenuously acknowledge their care, fidelity and zeal in my defence, which I hope will be a standing same to some of them for this and all future generations, Thus much for a thort account of this affair, for which I am unjustly brought to this place. But I acknowledge my private and particular fins have been fuch as have deserved a worse death to me; but I hope, in the merits of Jesus Christ, to be freed from the eternal punishment due to me for sin. I am consident that God doth not plead with me in this, for my private and particular fins; but I am brought here, that the work of God may be made manifest, and for the trial of faith, John ix. 3. & I Pet. i. 7. and that I may be a witnels for his despised truths and interests in this land, where I am called to feal the same with my blood. And I wish heartily that this my poor life may put an end to the perfecution of the true members of Christ in this place, so much actuated by those perfidious prelates; in opposition to whom, and in teltimony to the caule of Christ, I at this time lay down my life, and bless God that he hath thought me so much worthy as to do the same for his glory and interest. Finally, concerning a christian duty in a singular and extraordinary case, and anent my particular judgment concerning both church and state, it is evidently declared and manifested elsewhere. So farewel all earthly en-Joyments, and welcome Father, Son and Holy Gholt, into whose hands I commit my spirit, JAMES MITCHEL. N. B. The reader will find the teltimony, referred to in the close of this speech, in the last edition of Naphtali, it being too long for this place, I shall now proceed to affairs of a more publick na. ture. When the design of the Highland host was formed, as we have related, the chancellor Rothes went to Fife, and with much difficulty prevailed with most of the heritors to go into the following bond.

The bond.

TE the noblemen, barons and heritors of the sheriffdom of Fife, under-subscribing, faithfully bind and oblige us, that we, our wives, bairns and fervants, respectively, shall no ways be present at any conventicles or disorderly meetings, in time coming, under the pains and penalties contained in the acts of parliament thereanent.

As also, we bind and oblige us, that our haill tenants and cottars respectively, their wives, bairns and servants, shall likeways abstain and refrain from the said conventicles and other illegal meetings not authorised by law; and in case any of them shall contraveen the same, we shall take and apprehend any person or persons guilty thereof, and present them to the judge ordinary, that they may be fined and imprisoned therefore, as it is provided by the acts of parliament made thereanent, otherways we shall remove them and their families from off our ground; and, if we fail herein, we shall be liable to fuch pains and penalties as the delinquents have incurred by the law. And, for the more fecurity, confenting thir presents be registered in the books of council, &c.'

This bond was figned at Cowpar on the 3d of January, and prefented to the chancellor on the 10th; and though the reader may perhaps think it was a pretty strong o. bligation, yet our managers, not judging it sufficient, infifted that the heritors should sign the following

Bond of Conformity.

TE the noblemen, barons and heritors of the sheriffdom of Fife, under-subscribing, faithfully bind and oblige us, that we, our wives, bairns and servants, respectively, shall noways be present at any conventicle or disorderly meeting in time coming, but shall live orderly in obedience to the law, under the pains and penalties contained in the acts of parliament thereanent. As also we bind and oblige us, that our haill tenants and cottars respectively, their wives, bairns and servants, shall likeways abstain and refrain from the said conventicles, and other illegal meetings not authorized by law. And farther, that we or they shall not resett, supply or commune with forfeited persons, intercommunea

Char ed m appr tena take T fame from ticles prete Welf thro

At

fhire chief numl cil tl a Itop not the p ventic unles oblig they they for th were the m point comm upon the re panies tered time o learch The b that o the Lo Wher called. had ke and ht

Hower

cute t

Th

ed ministers, or vagrant preachers, but do our utmost to 1678. apprehend their persons. And in case our said cottars, tenants, and their foresaids, shall contraveen, we shall take and apprehend, oc.' as in the former bond.

This new bond was fent to the shire of Fife; and the fame day the council ordered 100 men to be detached from the four militia regiments for suppressing conventicles there, and to be maintained by the shire. The pretence was, because it was in this country that Mr. Welsh began field-conventicles, which afterwards spread through the kingdom.

t

ı

-

d

1-

.

ts

s, 1-

;

/C

Y

at 0.

r

f

le

7-

ng

c.

y, gh

0.

n.

he

th-

nd

ny

out

ins

re-

aill

ind

aid

zed

ett,

1177-

ea

About the same time the nobility and gentry of the Fruitless thire of Ayr, apprehending that the Highland host was represenchiefly intended against them, deputed nine of their tation of the gentlenumber to go to Edinburgh, and represent to the coun- men of cil that moderate measures would more effectually put Ayr. a stop to all alledged disorders, especially as they could not observe the least appearance of disloyalty among the people, notwithstanding their being addicted to conventicles: But Lauderdale would hearken to nothing, unless the gentlemen would presently sign the bond, and oblige themselves for all the rest of the heritors. This they could not do, and fo returned as they came; nay, they could not obtain so much as a delay of the orders for the forces to march, until the gentlemen of the shire were met to confider the terms proposed; so bent were the managers, at the instigation of the prelates, to execute their cruel deligns.

Though the general rendezvous of the forces was ap- The town pointed to be at Stirling the 24th of January, and the of Glafcommittee of council to meet at Glafgow the 26th, yet gow furupon the ninth fecret orders were given to the half of the regular forces, a squadron of horse, and four companies of foot, to march welt. Accordingly they entered Glafgow on the 13th, being the Lord's day, in time of publick worship, and immediately made a strict fearch for arms, and fugitive and intercommuned persons. The bishop of Argyll, and some others, had represented, that on that day the ejected ministers were to administer the Lord's supper, and that an insurrection was to follow. Whereas the real ground of this fright, if it may be to called, was, that the presbyterians in and about Glasgow had kept the Tuesday before as a day of private falting and humiliation in this time of calamity and diffrefs. However, the story took, and the foldiers were quar-

tered

1678. tered at Glafgow, to prevent an infurrection that was never thought of. John Anderson of Dowhill was seiz. ed, but was fet at liberty upon giving fecurity to appear when called. These soldiers, though harbingers to the Highlanders, having behaved with the utmost info. lence, were greatly exceeded by their fuccessors.

On the 15th a train of artillery was ordered well.

Artillery

Committee of council.

fent west, and 1000 merks issued from the treasury to defray the expences, though they had neither towns to beliege, nor armies to encounter. And, on the 18th, the marquis of Athole, the earls of Mar, Moray, Glencairn, Wigtoun, Strathmore, Linlithgow, Airly, Caithness, Perth, and lord Ross, were appointed as a committee of council to attend the army: Of that number nine were officers in the army, or had brought down the Highlanders, and so were the more likely to manage things to purpose. The same day these noblemen, or any five of them, received full power to iffue out proclamations and orders to purfue and punish delinquents, to apprehend and secure suspected persons, and to order fuch bonds to be subscribed as they should think fit. In a word, they were invested with the authority of the privy-council, as their commission more fully bears. At Their in- the same time these commissioners received full and exfructions, tensive instructions too tedious to be here inserted. I shall only observe, that, by virtue thereof, they were to manage the army, and give orders to the country, to sheriffs and other magistrates; nay, they, or any three of them, were vested with a justiciary power, and constituted a criminal court. But then the managers, to fave themselves, ordered this committee to free from quartering all the lands of counsellors, and such as have subseribed the bond, and obey the orders of the committee.

Duke Hamilton excused bimfelf.

On the 21st of January the council met at Edinburgh, when a letter was read from duke Hamilton, wherein his grace excused himself from attending their committee by reason of his indisposition. They, at the same time, fent their orders to the gentlemen of the shire of Lanerk to meet at Hamilton, when required by the committee, and receive their orders.

Things being thus far fettled, and the marquis of Army Athole, the earls of Mar, Moray, Caithness, Perth, rendez-Strathmore and Airly, having affembled what men they vous at Stirling. could raise from the Highlands, marched to Stirling, where regu tlem 160 the ! othe only rate 10,0 tion, and tifica fhacl flave amin ed it. if ne for m

Ch

whe

regu

the

mar

bout

exped their the p the 2 Laner ftewar ceive herito fubscr the co to pe

but f peace

army

furpr

peace

----tr piltols whose all ot to ob

CHURCH of SCOTLAND. Chap. 12.

where they were joined by the lord Linlithgow with the 1678. regular forces on the 24th of January. These, with the Angus militia, and some gentlemen from Perthshire, marched next day from Stirling, and were all at or about Glafgow by the 26th.

was

feiz-

ap-

rs to info-

west,

y the

iege,

mar-

airn,

erth,

oun-

e of-

hlan-

gs to five

nati-

s, to order

f the

ex-

. I

were

ntry,

any

and

gers,

from

h as

f the

urgh,

erein

amit-

same

fhire

the

is of erth,

At

Their numbers were as follow: About 1000 foot of Their regular forces; the Angus militia and Perthsbire gen-numbers. tlemen 2200; Highlanders, about 6000; horse-guards 160; belides five other troops of horse; together with the several retinues of the lords of the committee and others, with a vast number of stragglers, who came only for booty and plunder; so that, by a moderate computation, they may be reckoned to have been 10,000 in all. They had a large quantity of ammuni- Their furtion, four field-pieces, vast numbers of spades, shovels niture. and mattocks, as if they had been to attack strong for-They had likeways good store of iron tifications. fackles, as if they had been to carry back a parcel of flaves, and thumb-locks, as they called them, for the examination and trial of fuch as they should fee requir-The musqueteers had their daggers so made, as, if need were, to falten on the muzzles of their pieces for mauling horse, like our bayonets, not then brought to perfection. Such a formidable company could not but fill all the country with consternation in a time of peace; nay, the very gentlemen and officers in the army itself, who were of any temper and reason, were surprised upon their entring into a country entirely peaceable, which had been represented, and they had expected it, to be all up in arms.

At Glafgow the committee of council met, opened Committheir instructions, and immediately set about disarming tee of the the peaceable country, and pressing the bond; and, on council. the 28th of January, the sheriffs of Roxburgh, Stirling, Orders to Lanerk, Renfrew, Wigtoun, and Dumfries shires, and the sheriffs. stewartry of Kirkcudbright, were before them, and received instructions and orders—to assemble all the heritors, liferenters, &c. in their respective shires, for fubscribing a bond which had been signed by the lords of the committee; of which a copy was given themto oblige the leaders of the horsemen of the militia ----troops to deliver up all the militia-arms, fwords, piltols, holsters, and all the heritors, and others in whose hands they were, to do the same ;----to disarm

they rling, where all other persons, except privy-councillors, officers and fol-

1678. foldiers in the king's pay, together with noblemen and gentlemen of quality, who were permitted to wear their fwords only----to give the committee a lift of these perfons of quality. In short, the sheriffs were ordered to difarm their shires upon oath, and report their diligence by the feventh of February next. I shall not here give the reader a copy of this bond, because it is almost verbatim the same with that sent by the managers to the * p. 382. shire of Fife *.

They who took the bond, being to receive protection. nal clause, were obliged to subscribe this additional clause: 'And I do farther hereby oblige me, that I shall not own any person's lands or goods, but such as do properly belong to myself, under colour of the protection given to me, and that under fuch pains and penalties as the council or committee of council shall impose, in case

I contraveen.'

There were, about this time, many papers writ a-Reasons against this gainst this bond, and particularly these following things, among others, were urged. 1. That the council had no power to press it, or any other, without the authority of king and parliament; whereas they had no authority for this but the king's letter. 2. None of presbyterian principles could take this bond, because it obliged him to walk according to the law establishing episcopacy, and to take that to be a rule which he judged unlawful; and so to act contrary to the dictates of his conscience, which is not to be forced. 3. The bond obliged him, who figned it, to give no relief to, or have any conversation with outed vagrant ministers, though sometimes they might be great objects of charity and compassion. And if we are not to shut our bowels of pity against Turks and Pagans, when in misery, how can we fuffer them to be shut against christians? Are we not taught to do good to all, especially the houshold of faith? Whereas, when our relations are, what is called, vagrant ministers, this bond obliges us to be unna-4. The bond obliged to take and apprehend those it speaks of. But how unsuitable is it for gentlemen, and most of the king's free lieges, to turn macers or mellengers at arms? And who can be forced to that unless he please? We are only obliged to take traitors, or fuch as are guilty of lese-majesty. 5. None can bind for more than himself, and consequently whoever took this bond bound himself to an impossibility.

that cou blig ther men out relat not (the j the i

Cha

For

gain when on p of, t the It unste four : fally,

T

On affair tick n nonga was natick

Th

of a

of Ca all pe the fa with their fuch a fence all th them comm which hoft m disper behave It is r of Ayr

offer o

For how can a nobleman or gentleman bind himself to 1678. that which all the king's forces could not do? If the council, or their committee, had required men to oblige themselves to endeavour the conformity of others, there had been some colour of reason; but to bind men to be liable for other mens transgressions was without all precedent; and the law of God, in the strictest relation that can be, expressly says, That the son shall not die or suffer for the father's transgression, much less the father for the son's, and, least of all, the master for the tenant's.

These are a sew of the reasons that were urged against this bond. The reader will remember, that, when the council sound it expedient not to insist upon pressing a bond much like that we are now treating of, they gave this for a reason, That the law itself is the strongest bond that can be exacted of any man *. How * p.366. unsteady must their councils have been, that, in about sour months time, they should press this bond so universally, and force it upon people by the dreadful motive of a standing army and a Highland host!

On the 29th of January the committee for publick Fanatick affairs was ordered by the council to remove fome fana-ministers. tick ministers from the Tolbooth of Edinburgh and the Canongate to the Bass. My author takes notice, that this was the first time that he met with the epithet of fanatick ministers in the registers.

r

Ô

e

-

e

d

n

ſe

a-

s,

10

ty

e --

ed

cy, 1;

ce,

m,

n-

ne-

mity

an

we

of

al-

13-

nd

le-

ers

to

ke

ne

10-

ty.

01

The same day the committee commanded the earl Earl of of Cassils, as bailie principal of Carrick, to receive from Cassils. all persons, in whose hands the militia-arms were, all the faid arms, and to order all heritors, &c. to bring with them their tenants, cottars and servants, with their arms of all forts, to be delivered upon oath, to such as the major-general should appoint, in the prelence of his lordship or his deputes, declaring, That all that refused should have soldiers quartered upon them; and to give an account of his diligence to the committee at Ayr on the 7th of February following; which was done accordingly. Mean while the Highland Highlanhost marched west, and by the 7th of February were ders dispersed all over Cuningham and Kyle, where they march. behaved as if they had been in an enemy's country. It is remarkable that they were let loofe upon the shire of Ayr before the committee went among them, or any offer of the bond was made to them.

On

C

a

in

tl

th

te

ri

OI

be

te

C 21

CO

te

W

pu re wi

th:

an

bur

be TI

Ыi ing

ref

eac

Sec.

fine

the tha

of pea for

fer

to

fur

cou

jull

1678. tce fit down at Ayr.

On the seventh of February the committee fat down at Ayr; and, among the first things they did, they or-Commit- dered the earl of Cassils to pull down the meeting-houses According to their orders the earl had in Carrick. already delivered up all his arms, except his fword, and therefore defired that he might have the assistance of some soldiers in case of resistance; But this was refused, neither would they restore him any of his arms, which made him hesitate a little upon their unreasonable demands, till one of his friends, a member of the committee, whispered him in the ear, that there was but an hair-breadth between him and prison, and therefore he no longer declined their orders. However, some country people having notice of what passed, out of regard to his lordship, faved him the trouble, and pulled the meeting-houses down before he came.

Report of the fineriffs.

The same day they received the report of the sheriffs appointed to be given in. The return from the sheriff of Dumfries and Nithsdale was voted satisfactory. Mr. Ezekiel Montgomery, sheriff-depute of Renfrew, reporting, That only two of the most infignificant gentlemen, and three burgeffes, had taken the bond, the committee was displeased. But the report from the shire of Lanerk provoked them out of measure; for it feems, that, of 2900 heritors and feuars, only nine of small interest of the former, and ten of the latter, had signed The duke of Hamilton, the lords Blantyre and Carmichael peremptorily refused it; and when, by force or fraud, fome complied, their compliance con them many bitter reflections.

Querics

In the more remote shires, some of the sheriffs preupon oath tending they had not received a copy of the bond, deconcerning clined a report, and begged a new day for presenting the bond a fecond time, and renewing their inquiry for arms. This was granted; but then they were required to demand of every person upon oath, ' Wheher he had any arms? or disposed of any since the first of fanuary last? if gifted or fold? to whom? or if hid? and where? These queries were extended to all the thires; nay, the officers of the Highlanders were, in some places, intrusted with this matter; so that by this means the whole country was rendred incapable of defending itself in case of any emergency.

Mean while the committee at Ayr published an act Earl of Caffils on the ninth of February, commanding all the heritors distreffed. and 12.

own

or-

ules

had

ord,

ince

re-

ms,

on-

the

was erever,

out

and riffs

eriff

Mr.

ort-

nen, ttee

La-

ms, nall

ned

by

colt

de-

ting

for

red he

f of id?

the

ome

his

de-

act ors

and

and others to appear before them on the 18th, 19th, 1678. 20th and 21st, in order to take the bond. And accordingly notice was given by the sheriff-officers, and all the parishioners of Dundonald were summoned to meet in the church at the Kirktoun, and bring with them all their cottars, fervants, and arms of all forts. earl of Cassils, by virtue of an order from this committee, ordered their act to be published through the parishes within the bounds of his bailiary or jurisdiction. But, notwithstanding his complying with every thing, on the 10th of February 1500 men were fent upon free quarters into the jurisdiction of Carrick, 10 or 12 days before the gentlemen were to appear before the committee; and most of them were quartered upon the earl of Cassils's estate, where they committed many insolencies and cruelties, for which there was no remedy.

Mean time the reports made from several shires, Proclaconvincing the council that it would be no easy mat-mation. ter to make the bond take, they went another way to Accordingly, on the 11th of February, they published a proclamation, discharging all heritors, liferenters and masters, to receive tenants or servants without certificates that they had taken the bond; to that this bond became an universal test. The bond was annexed to the proclamation, and was figned at Edinburgh by the councillors that fame day, and ordered to be figned by the lords of fession at their first meeting. The same 11th of February the committee at Ayr published a proclamation much to the same effect, discharging all persons from harbouring tenants or cottars who refused the bond, under the penalty of 600 1. Scots for each tenant.

On the 14th of February the council made an act for Ast for fecuring the publick peace, as they termed it. — That fecuring fince every private subject may force such from whom the puthey fear any harm, to secure them by lawborrows; and peace. that it hath been the uncontroverted and legal practice of his majesty's privy-council, to oblige such, whose peaceableness they justly suspected, to secure the peace for themselves, their wives, bairns, men, tenants and servants — under such penalties as they find suitable to their contempt, guilt, or occasion upon which such sureties are sought; therefore the lords of the privy-council, considering that his majesty hath declared his just suspection of those who resule or delay to take the faid bond, and being themselves justly suspicious of their principles and practices who resuse the same, do ordain, that all such persons be obliged to enact themselves in the books of secret council, that they, their wives, bairns, &c. shall keep his majesty's peace; and particularly that they shall not go to sield-conventicles, not harbour or commune with rebels or persons intercommuned; and that they shall keep the persons, samilies and goods of their regular ministers harmless, and that under the double of every man's yearly valued rent, (if he have any) and of such other penalties as shall be thought convenient — if they have no valued rent, &c.'

Remarks. It is plain, the managers were grievously vexed at the general resusing of the bond, not by the meaner sort only, but even by noblemen, gentlemen, and several of the most eminent lawyers; the earls of Crawford, Callendar and Roxburgh, the viscount of Kilfyth, the lords Balmerino, Melvil and Newark, all stuck at it.

1. 418. Bishop Burnet says, 'That this put Lauderdale in such a frenzy, that, at the council-table, he made bare his arms above his elbow, and swore by Jehovah he would make them enter into those bonds' Therefore, to force a general compliance, they fell upon this new and unprecedented method of Lawborrows *.

Now, though such security be noways unreasonable with respect to private persons; yet, that the king and government should require this of subjects, and of the meanest of them, who refuse an unreasonable bond, seems most unaccountable, as it evidently discovers a jealousy between the sovereign and his subjects, and declares him to be in dread of them. I shall not trouble the reader with remarks on the preamble of this act, in which the presbyterians are charged with schism which give Laud their confid draw appearance broundejed it ve justie the p

Jo

tions

their thers

Chap

fchifi

pursicles 1674
ties,
and,
to al fwor rows

fused

that

and Wand Carr
on tritor fame
that
and othe

had was peop on their bour

neit

^{*} The import of a Lawborrows is, that, when two neighbours are at such variance, as that they dread bodily harm from one another, the party injured procures from the justiciary, (formerly from the council) or any other judges competent, letters charging the other to find caution or security that the complainer, his wise, children, &c. shall be harmless from the person complained upon, his children, servants, &c. but before such letters can be granted the complainer must give his oath that he dreads bodily harm, trouble, or molestation from him against whom he complains.

schism and rebellion. The same historian says, that 1678. thefe things feemed done on defign to force a rebellion, which they thought foon would be quashed, and would give a good colour for keeping up an army; and that Lauderdale's party depended so much on this, that, in their hopes, they began to divide among themselves the confiscated estates; so that on Valentine's day, instead of drawing mistresses, they drew estates. And great joy appeared in their looks upon a false alarm that was brought them of an infurrection: And they were much dejected when they knew it was false.' Many thought it very furprising that such a series of oppression, injustice and cruelty, had not long before this stirred the people up to violent measures.

Jointly with this act the council fent farther instruc- Farther tions to their committee at Ayr, enjoining them to use instructitheir utmost endeavours to reduce the heritors and o-ons to the thers to obedience who have not taken the bond,----to commitpursue the said heritors and liferenters for all conventicles kept on their own lands fince the 24th of March 1674. --- to command all sheriffs, bailies of regalities, and their deputes, to take the bond themselves, and, in case of refusal, to proceed against them; to allow all heritors, who take the bond, to wear their fwords, otherways not, &c. And, as to the lawborrows, they were to infift for fecurity from all who refuled, according to the act. In short, it was ordered that the recusants should have an indictment given them and be profecuted to the utmost.

e

1,

d

t

e

n,

er

While the committee was thus engaged, the militia Highand Highlanders were ravaging the country about Kyle, landers Carrick and Cuningham, without the least provocation ravage on the part of the fuffering people, and even the few hetitors and tenants who took the hard suffered much the ritors and tenants who took the bond fuffered much the same with those who refused it. And it is remarkable, that the poor oppressed people continued so peaceable, and so patiently bore the spoiling of their goods, and other outrages done to their persons, that the managers had not so much as a false alarm, except once, when it was talked, without any foundation, that a number of people was affembled in arms about Fenwick-muir; for, on the 18th of February, the council were told, that their committee, being informed of persons in arms about Fenwick, had fent out a party, but none appeared, neither could they find that there had been any in arms. The 1678. The same day the council ordered the Highlanders to be dismissed and sent home, and appointed the militia of Mid-Lothian, East-Lothian, &c. to march towards Glasgow in their room. I do not know but they might be ashamed at the reports they received of their unprecedented ravages and oppressions.

Heritors tee.

On the 19th, and following days of February, many before the of the heritors of the shire of Ayr were before the comcommit- mittee; and the earl of Dumfries, Auchmannoch, and fome of small consideration, together with the magistrates of the town of Ayr, took the bond; but the generality stood out; and these had an indistment and charge of lawborrows given them to answer in 24 hours before the committee. One gentleman peremptorily refusing the bond, and being threatned with having the Highlanders fent to his estate, told them, He had no arriwer to that argument, and could not help it; but, before he would comply with the lawborrows, he would go to prison.

Lord Cochran's caje.

Next day the recufants were called to answer to their indictment. Lord Cochran, being among the first that was called, complained of the shortness of the diet allotted them, begged more time, and the affiftance of lawyers, fince they were required to give their oath concerning a crime that might be found capital. When all were removed, the lords gave it as their judgment that the council's diets were peremptory, and behoved to be answered presently; and that whatever the deponents declared should never infer capital punishment. When his lordship was called in, and had this intimated to him, he urged that, by act of council of the 5th of October last, all libels against conventicles were to be restricted to a month backwards, and none was bound to swear but for himself; and that they, who were ready to purge themselves by oath as to their own guilt, were to have no bonds presented to them. The advocate declared he knew of no such act. Cochran referred the matter to the clerk's oath, but that was refuled, and his lordship was told that he must either fwear, or be reputed guilty. Whereupon he gave his oath, That he was free of conventicles, and all his fervants to his knowledge. In the afternoon lord Cathcart, Cathcart, Sir John Cochran and the laird of Cefnock being called, refused the bond in the same manner that lord Cochran had done. And the laird of Kilbirnie particularly urged

urge a co to p earl jour ned fonn anfw acco to a it, t

Cha

the t were 0 in Bdere

T

lord

the 1

Carri ary, land bond, Scots feitir fuch T ing t char mitte ticles the t and c charg lords lawbo bel w ships, When tend factio herito own l actua)

was i

2.

to

ia

is

nt

e-

y

1-

d

-

e-

d

13

y

e

0 đ

ir

ıt

f

h

n

it

d

-

e

C

S

0 n

e

7

S

r

urged the above act of council, and offered to produce 1678. a copy of it, which was peremptorily refused; and, to prevent his taking instruments upon his offer, the earl of Caithness got the meeting to be suddenly adjourned. Others that came before them were threatned with exorbitant fines, double quartering, imprifonment, and the like, and were at length forced to answer their interrogatories: Nay, such was their unaccountable proceeding, that they presented the bond to a young lord under age, and, because he refused it, they treated him as the rest. But, notwithstand-It, they treated him as the rest. ing these severities, the earls of Cassils and Lowdown, the lords Montgomery, Cochran, Cathcart and Bargeny, with all the rest of the gentlemen and heritors of Ayr-shire, and the town of Irwine, peremptorily refused; and therefore were all ordered to be declared rebels, and outlawed.

On the 21st Patrick Sheriff in Knows, and James Shiels P. Shein Boltoun, were fined for being at conventicles, and or-riff, &c.

dered to ly in prison till they made payment.

This committee having ordered several gentlemen in Procla-Carrick to be imprisoned, they, upon the 22d of Febru-mation ary, issued a proclamation, commanding all heritors and bout horall landlords, tenants and servants, who had not signed the bond, to part with all their horses above the value of 50 l. Scots, in a short limited time, under the penalty of forfeiting the horse, and paying 100 l. for each horse above such a value.

The same day the earl of Cassils appeared, and, refusing to subscribe the bond tendered to him, was therefore charged to appear next day before the lords of the committee, under the pain of rebellion, for being at conventicles, and other high crimes, and to give his oath upon the truth of his indictment. And though he appeared and cleared himself, by oath, of all the crimes laid to his charge, yet, because he refused to subscribe the bond, the lords appointed a messenger to charge him with letters of lawborrows; and, in case of failure, to denounce him rebel within fix days. Hereupon he wrote to their lordthips, intreating a week's delay, which was refused him. Wherefore he immediately repaired to Edinburgh to attend the privy-council, and offer them all possible satis-But, upon his coming thither, a proclamation was issued, commanding all the west country noblemen, heritors, and others, to depart from Edinburgh, to their own houses, within three days; before which time he was actually denounced rebel at the market-cross of Ayr, and letters Ddd

Chap

coun

1000 took

then

and 1

row t

and o

of Gl had c

time,

being

house

cloth

accou

less I

haved

enem

quart

robbe

every

weari

their

were they fires,

mone cattle

of th

ed ta

house

acted

Shillin

comn

over

up an

which

hono

ragin

peop

for m wher

found

1678. letters were fent for apprehending his person. Wherefore his lordship found himself under a necessity to repair to London, in order to lay his case before his majesty.

Garrisons

Mean while, on the 26th of February, the council had appointed a letter from their committee, desiring garrisons might be appointed upon the removal of the Highlanders, which was complied with. Next day the committee was ordered to intimate to the town of Irwine, that they must find persons qualified to serve in the magistracy, who are willing to take the allegiance, declaration, and fign the bond, or else lose their privileges. And the same day the council impowered the magistrates of Glasgow to tear the burgefs-tickets of all who refused the bond, and to turn all recufants out of their council. On the last of February the council recommended to their committee not to burden any who figned the bond with provision for the garrisons.

fion of them.

The reader must be informed, that the garrisons were occasioned by a letter, wrote by the conform clergy in the west to the archbishop of Glasgow, wherein they signified, that they might abandon their charges as foon as the Highlanders left the country, if garrifons were not appointed. How far it was their duty, and how agreeable to that facred function which they pretended to bear, to have any hand in fuch proceedings, let the world judge. It is true, my author did not fee that letter, but he has published a letter from the presbytery o Ayr to the faid archbishop, which sufficiently confirms the fact. Wodrow, vol. I. p. 479.

Highlanders ordered bome.

At last the committee, about the end of February, ordered the Highlanders home. They were now convinced that there was no forcing the bond upon the west country; neither did they rife in arms, as was expected, but bore all their oppressions with incredible patience. The Highlanders therefore, having wasted the country, marched off, except 500, who, with the Angus militia and standing forces, continued till the end of April, They are when orders came to dismiss them also. When they rewith spoil. turned, they took along with them a great many horses, and vast quantities of goods out of the merchants shops; together with pots, pans, all forts of wearing apparel, bed-clothes, and some plate bearing the names and arms of gentlemen. Nay, two of their colonels, Airly and Strathmore, were faid to have fent home great fums of money, more than they possibly could have got by their pay. And this is not to be wondred at, fince from one country

It were were

thefe

d

h

ſŧ

e

e

y

0 d

e

n

e

C

0

e

-

3

•

1-

2

.

;

15

d

r

country parish it was calculated they had got about 1678. 1000 L. sterling. Upon their march homeward they took free quarters without restraint, except now and then that the country people would attack the stragglers, and retake some of their own goods. And Mr. Wodrow tells us, that the students in the college of Glasgow, and other youths, opposed 2000 of them at the bridge of Glafgow, and would not permit them to pass till they had delivered the spoil, and then only by forty at a time, who were conveyed through the west port, without being suffered to go through the town; that the customhouse there was almost filled with pots, pans, bedclothes, wearing apparel, and the like. A particular Cruelties account of all the depredations and ravages of this law- of the less Highland host would fill a volume; and they be-Highland haved with greater insolence and cruelty than a foreign host. enemy would have done; for, not content with free quarters, though that was most illegal, they openly robbed both, on the high-way and in houses, and every where took, from the country people, pots, pans, wearing apparel, and every thing they could lay their hands on; and whoever made any resistance were knocked down and wounded. In some places they tortured people, by fcorching their bodies at large fires, and otherways, till they discovered where their money and goods were concealed. They killed their cattle, and drove away their horses; and, as if possessed of the authority of king and parliament, they imposed taxes on several places, threatning to burn their houses if they were denied. The meanest straggler exacted his fixpence a-day, and the modelled forces their shilling, or merk Scots. Nay, they openly offered to commit rapes; so that it is proper even to draw a veil over their unnatural and horrid wickedness committed up and down the country. In short, it is hard to say which is most to be admired, the conduct of persons of honour and quality, in being accessory to and encouraging of such things, or the patience of an oppressed people in bearing their sufferings without relitance; for my author fays, That, unless in the parish of Campsie, where one of the Highlanders was killed, he had not found that relistance was made any where.

It is true, though the greatest part of the committee were furious promoters of those oppressions, yet there were two or three of a more moderate disposition; but these were out-voted. The marquis of Athole was particularly

Ch

lar

W

cur

rift

his Th

Di

free

land

me but qua

oul the

the of on 2 C lor thr wh not

tim

qua H_0 nin the fto fide tha of fon ful noc to All ter fev 28

12

1678. cularly taken notice of for his clemency, and the earl of Perth for his equity. However, this moderate party prevailed at last so far as to get the Highlanders removed.

I shall conclude this chapter with some farther particular instances of the loss and hardship sustained on this occasion, especially in the shire of Ayr. The noblemen and gentlemen of that shire made some calculation of losses, in a paper which they drew up, in order to lay them, if need were, before his majesty. Mr. Wodrow has given it at large. However, the following abridgment of it is sufficient for my purpose.

An account of the losses the following parishes sustained by quartering, robbing and spoiling of the foldiers and Highland hoft.

In KYLE.				In CUNINGHAM.
	L.	s.	d.	L. s. d.
Ayr and Alloa	12120	0	0	Kilmarnock 2
St. Quivox	900	0	0	and Fenwick 14431 0 0
Monktoun -	- 2700	0	0	Kilwinning - 5895 15 8
Tarboltoun -	6180	. 0	0	Stevenson 622 12 4
Galstoun	3679	0	0	Ardroffan 1549 13 4
Craigie -	- 735	5	0	Dalry 653 12 8
Riccartoun -	- 2844	0	0	Dunlop 2629 16 6
Dundonald -	- 3373	6	0	Irwine parish
Barnwell -	- 836		0	without the $ 1029 0 4
Symontoun -	- 1300		0	town
Mauchlin, Muir-	7	•		Largs 1907 0 0
kirk and Dalgean	$ 8985	8	0	Kilbryde 692 0 0
Cultoun	,			Kilbirny 2080 0 0
Ochiltree and ?	3537	12	0	Lowdoun.or Auchinleck $	5211	7	8	Newmills $ - 2934 13 4
Cumnock old 2				Dreghorn and 2 1505 17 0 and new	3012	Ó	4	rearitoun 3
			_	Kilmawers 3250 15 0
Sum of Kyle	55417	11	0	Stewartoun 6062 12 8
In CAR	RICK.	••		Beeth 4891 0 0
Straitoun	12000	0	0	Isle of Meikle 2 - 266 13 4
Colmanel	10000	0		Cumray $ - 200 13 4
Kirkofwald and	-	-	-	-
Girvan	5,010	0	0	Sum of Cuningham 50402 2 2
Barr	1000	0	0
Daylie	. 180	0	0	Sum total of Maybole	1700	0	0	Kyle, Car- (13749 6 2
Dalmellingtoun	} 498I		0	rick, and and Kirkmichael	$ 4901	0	0	Cuningham ?
Sum of Carrick	31677	0	- 0 Tt.

12.

of

rty

re-

rti-

his

nen

of

lay

row

dg-

1 by gh∍

d.

0

8

4

6

0

0

It

It would be endless to mention the losses of particu- 1678. lar persons; however I cannot omit some instances. When this dreadful host came to the shire of Ayr, the Other curate of Kirkoswald procured a regiment for that pa-particurish; and such was his ghostly care for his flock, that, by lars. his direction, quarters were given for these plunderers. The small parish of Dalmellingtoun, where one Quintin Dick had his residence, had 900 of them upon it.

The heritors who took the bond, and their lands, were free from quartering and exactions as far as those Highland robbers could be restrained; but others had no Sir William Cuningham of Cuninghamhead, tho' but a school-boy, had the laird of Dun's whole troop quartered on his estate; fo that his tenants were grievoully oppressed, and the victual that was laid up in the tower of Cuninghamhead was rendred useless by their treading it under their feet, to the great prejudice of the innocent minor. And all this under the direction of ____ Dumbar of Grange, nephew to Dun, and a cornet in his troop. This Dumbar forced his landlord, David Muir, to give him what money he had, threatning otherways to hang him in his own barn; which he and his fervants would have done, had they not been prevented by a number of women.

The town of Kilmarnock suffered extremely at this Kilmar-John Borland on the bridge lost 100 1. Scots. nock William Taylor merchant had a whole company of them ravaged. quartered for one night besides his quota. Matthew Hopkins lost 500 merks. William Dickie merchant had nine of them upon him for about fix weeks; and when they went off they robbed his house, carried off a stocking full of filver-money, broke two ribs of his side, and so frighted his wife, then big with child, that she died soon after. This good man lost upwards of 1000 merks. Hugh Mowat, James Stewart and his son, and James Aird, with many others, were dreadfully oppressed. In a word, before they left Kilmarnock, they resolved, on the sabbath-day, to plunder the When Mr. town, as feveral houses felt to their colt. Alexander Wedderburn, indulged minister there, was interceeding for the place, a Highlander pushed him so leverely on the breast, with the butt-end of his musket, as proved the occasion of his death.

The parish of Evandale in Lanerk-shire lost 1700 1. 12 s, Scots, The small parish of Cambustang, in the same thire, 1678. shire, likeways suffered much; particularly John Crosbie, David Donald, James Jackson, William Kerr and Thomas Robertson. The lady of Sir Patrick Houston was by their insolent rudeness frighted to death.

> From these few hints the reader may form a judgment of the difmal state of the country during the time of the highland hoft, and what a fensible pleasure it must have given all ranks to see them marching back to their native mountains. But still the measures of oppression were carried on, as I am to relate.

CHAP. XIII.

Of the proceedings of the council and their committee after the return of the highland host; the appointment of garrifons; the convention of estates; the cess; the progress of the persecution, and other things, to the end of the year 1678.

Committee's letter to the council.

HE damages done by the highland host were so great, that the managers were pleased to dismiss them; but still they continued to pursue the nonconformists with rigour and severity. Accordingly, on the first of March, a letter from the committee was read in council, fignifying that they had charged all who had not taken the bond with lawborrows *, and had fent their names to the council, in order to their being declared rebels; but that the noblemen and gentlemen charged had left their own houses, and come in to Edinburgh; fo that the principal persons concerned cannot be apprehended. All the heritors in Renfrew and Lanerk were thus charged.

Mr. R. Ander-Son favoured. ran's,&c. petition

The same day Mr. Robert Anderson was before the council for non-conformity; but he was released upon giving bond to appear when called. But though the lord Cochran, the laird of Kilbirnie, and others, offered a petition for the suspension of the lawborrows, yet the L. Coch- council fignified to their committee, that they would receive no petitions from the gentlemen come to Edinrejected. burgh, and that they had commanded them by proclamation to remove.

Mean while the committee at Ayr passed an act on the All about fourth of March, appointing garrisons in the following garrifons. places, viz. in the house of Blairquhan in Carrick, of 100 foot and 20 horse, in Barskimming and Cesnock, of Cha 50 f onei the B on t ing most mists ed b were the very be d draw on fe dily N > brigh venti ding ed h by th miffe one fent inter

> > It

eight

derin mon both lettli ons; the o necef rates of pr fty's bond. them tual

time

and t

Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 399

50 foot and 10 horse each; and ordering the commissioners of supply to meet on the 7th to provide necessaries for them, and give an account of their diligence on the 8th.

But, before these things could be done, the council, Council's on the 6th of March, sent a letter to his majesty, giv-letter. ing him an account of the proceedings of this committee with respect to the bond, &c. and throwing the most salse and invidious reslections on the non-conformists, in order to have their iniquous conduct authorised by the king; for they intimate, that all things were done in pursuance of his orders in his letter of the 11th of December last. But, as bishop Burnet very well observes, when very illegal things were to p. 417-be done, the common method was, that a letter was drawn for it to be signed by the king, directing it upon some colour of law or ancient practice, and he readily signed whatever was sent to him.----

Next day Henry Muir, commissary-clerk at Kirkcud-Henry bright, was charged before the council for being at conventicles in September or October last, and of corresponding with messes. Welsh, Semple, Arnot, &c. He owned he once heard Mr. Arnot at a field-conventicle; yet, by the interest of the bishop of Galloway, he was dismissed without any farther trouble. We shall hear that one James Learmont was executed for being only present at a field-conventicle; but he had not a bishop to intercede for him.

n

1

d

r

d

le

d

d

n

ne

d

ne

ld

71-

a-

he

ng of

of

It does not appear that the committee met on the Commission eighth; but, on the ninth, they made another act, or-oners of dering the clerks of the commissioners of supply to sum- supply mon the faid commissioners to meet at Ayr on the 12th, summoned. both for providing the necessaries for the garrisons, and fettling the prices they were to pay for their provisions; and that, if they fail in their duty in this respect, the officers and foldiers shall have liberty to take these necessaries from the next adjacent places, with the rates to be fixed by the committee, except the lands of privy-councillors, and those employed in his majeity's service, or such as have taken or shall take the bond. But the commissioners of supply, having most of Committhem refused the bond, and not chusing to give any ac-tee for the tual concurrence with the imposition of garrisons in rates of time of peace, did not meet on the day appointed; ons. and therefore the committee, on the 12th of March, 1678. fixed the prices on hay, straw, oats, &c. whereupon the officers of the army brought in what they wanted from the adjacent places, and called the heritors of every parish, near their garrison, to meet in order to fix the proportion of each parish for furnishing the garrison with necessaries, all protected persons being free.

Proclamation for on, ordering the bond to be subscribed by all the heritating the tors in the shires of Edinburgh, Haddingtown, Linlithbond.

gow, Berwick, Peebles and Selkirk; and next day they gave orders to charge the recusants with lawborrows, as had been done in the west. But though the bond was subscribed in several shires, yet the heritors were generally backward, particularly in East-Lothian, where, from among upwards of 1000 heritors, not above 50 or 60 signed it; and by this time conventicles began again to be much frequented.

Decreet. On the 15th a decreet was passed, at the instance of the king's advocate, against Pat. Thomson in Kinloch, Geo. Fleming in Balberty, Alex. Hamilton of Kinkel and his servant,—Henderson, Rabert Hamilton brother to the laird of Pressoun, John Balsour of Kinloch, Jam. Russel seuar of Kettle, James and John Reids there, Joh. Balsour tenant to Lundy, Alex. Balsour there, Joh. Archer in Strathmiglo, John Adam bailie there, and about 20 more, who, they said, had met at the house of Balsour of Kinloch, with others, to the number of 60 or 80 armed men, with an intent to have murdered *p.368. captain William Carstairs, and—Garret his servant *, when the captain required them to deliver up—an intercommuned preacher, and to have fired 12 or 14 shot, whereby Garret was mortally wounded, and died on the fpot.

Remarks. It is sufficient to observe, that sew of those here named were present at the time when that affair happened, particularly John Archer and others. There was no preacher among them; neither was Garret killed on the spot, as they represented: But it was necessary that things should be aggravated. And indeed nothing was more common than for the letters, proclamations, acts of council, &c. to have their preambles or narratives silled with the grossest lies and misrepresentations. All these persons were outlawed, except two or three mean country people who appeared.

the ded. on v to go the i with take tee i

Cha

was refu

T

monding to gent neces of the Pertite with determined time

The noble had not the ketheir as it the moof Ganthofe

It i

of M

Annan were of The p treated their I doors, having the continuous t 3.

n d

-9 X

1-

i-

i-

6-

y as

a3

e-

e, or

a-

of

h,

br

to

n.

e,

h.

a-

of 0

ed *,

an 14

ed

re

pre

1-

·f-0-

a-

es:

e-

pt

ac

The same day a letter from the committee in the west 1678. was read in council, defiring that the heritors who refused the bond might be stopt from repairing either to None to the borders or into Ireland to avoid being apprehen- go to Ireded. Accordingly next day a draught of a proclamati- laud on was fent to the committee, discharging all persons without a to go to Ireland without passes, and requiring them. to go to Ireland without passes, and requiring them at the same time to send in lists of all who were charged with lawborrows, and ordered the shire of Dumbarton to take the bond at Glasgow, where it seems the committee fat for the rest of their time.

These proceedings were so illegal and subversive of D. Hathe liberties of the subject, that, about the end of this milton, month, duke Hamilton, the earls of Roxburgh and Had- &c. go to dington, lieutenant-general Drummond, and several other gentlemen of figure in the west and south, thought it necessary to repair to court, in order to lay the state of the nation before his majesty. Nay, even Athole and Perth, who had been officers in the army that invaded the west, went along with them; for, observing the peaceable carriage of the presbyterians, and converling with noblemen and gentlemen of good fense, they were determined not to be any more active in the severities used against them. The earl of Cassils had gone up some time before, and it feems that, by means of the duke of Monmouth, he got access to his majesty.

The managers at Edinburgh pretended to ridicule these Their noblemen, and affured their friends, Ethat, fince they journey rihad not first laid their grievances before the council, the king would pay no regard to them. However, their going off without asking leave was as surprising as it was unexpected, especially their being joined by the marquis of Athole and the earl of Perth. The bishop of Galloway made a heavy complaint of the conduct of thole two noblemen in a letter to the lord register.

It is faid, that when these two noblemen, with their Reformalervants, and other gentlemen, were on the road in tion in Annandale, they lost their way, and, it being late, Annanwere obliged to put up in a cottage in that country. The people, having some knowledge of their errand, treated them with abundance of civility; and when their lordships, who could not get their horses within doors, expressed their concern lest they should be stolen, having heard that Annandale was noted for horfe-flealing, the country people told them they were in no hazard, 1678. for there was no thieving among them now, fince the field-preachings came into that country; and talked of many other branches of reformation brought about by means of Mr. Welsh and other preachers.

Moray, &c. fent up.

As foon as the council got notice of the departure of duke Hamilton, on the 26th of March, they fent up the earl of Moray and the lord Collingtown, in order to vindicate their proceedings, and those of their committee, against what might be objected by the noblemen and others who were gone to court.

Committee's letter.

The same day a letter from their committee was read in the council, fignifying that the bond had been offered in the shire of Stirling, and that in the parish of Camplie, fix miles north of Glasgow, some hundreds affembled in arms, and killed one of the foldiers, and defired an order to proceed against the heritors of that parish, for building a dwelling-house and meetinghouse to one Mr. Law, (after the revolution one of the ministers in Edinburgh) adding, that the country about Glasgow was much infested with unlicensed chaplains, and defiring that some persons might be made examples of.

Earl of Caffils's cafe.

The earl of Cassils gave in his case to his majesty upon the 28th of March, containing a particular account of all that has been related concerning his lordship, subfcribed with his own hand; but, as foon as it was given to the king, a copy of it was fent down by an express to the council, attested by J. Forester secretary to the duke of Lauderdale.

Lord Semple.

Next day Mr. Robert Wylie, governor to Francis lord Semple, a youth then at the university, was summoned to appear before the committee of the council, but he did not; and his pupil withdrawing got a charge of lawborrows. And, on the 1st of April, the council had a letter from their committee in the west, signifying that they had summoned before them lord Semple's governor and lord Cochran's chaplain, for officiating without a license from the bishop, and intended to pro-The king's secute those who entertained them. And the same day the council received his majesty's letter approving approbati- their conduct, and the proceedings of their committee, and thanking them for their careful profecution of what 011.

he had recommended to them in his letter of the 11th *p. 373. of December last *. However, this did not discourage the patriots, who were gone up to London, from laying

before

befor appro . 01 confi allem ed th Gathe

to be

this a

Cha

T was p order fecuri dinbur none treati own liamfo

Ne majel prefe of A humb look welte ventu of re there most numbe are f free (der; shoul cil, fhou. were as it law, fered

acco 31019

ty by

act,

Warr

Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 403

before his majesty the injustice of several things he had 1678. approved of, as shall be related in its proper place.

On the 3d of April the council, taking under their Commisconsideration those commissioners of supply who did not sioners of assemble for settling the provisions for garrisons, order-supply. ed the earls of Cassils and Lowdown, the lords Cochran, Catheart, Bargeny, Sir William Muir of Rowallan, &c. to be called before them; but they did not appear: So this affair came to nothing.

The same day the copy of the earl of Cassils's case Mr P. was produced in council, and Mr Patrick Anderson was Ander-ordered to be sent to the Bass, unless he presently gave son. security, under the penalty of 2000 merks, to leave E-dinburgh and sive miles round it, and converse with none but those of his own family. This was hard treatment for alledged keeping of conventicles at his own house, and corresponding with messrs. Welsh, Wil-liamfon, &c.

e

lt

e

0

•

d

f

.

ıt

e

ıt

s,

23

n

)-

en Is

ne

rd

d

ne

of

il

y-'s ng

0-ıy

ng

e, at th

ge

ng re

Next day they agreed upon a letter to be fent to his Proceedmajesty, wherein they say, --- 'Whereas the earl re- ings as to presents, that we granted commissions to the marquis case. of Athole, and others, to take free quarters—we humbly conceive that your majesty had just reason to look on his jurisdiction of Carrick, and some other weltern shires, as in a state of rebellion, since field-conventucles are by your laws declared to be rendezvouzes of rebellion; and that these were so increasing, that there were far more armed men assembled in them almost weekly, than could be repressed by almost thrice the number of your standing forces. --- But yet our orders are falfly represented; for we only gave orders to take free quarters as your council and committee should order; and that your council has given orders is denied; -yet, to the end that none should suffer but such as should continue guilty, it was offered by your council, that only fuch as should refuse to secure the peace should be quartered upon; and accordingly protections were granted to all fuch as fecured the peace.--- Whereas it is represented, that a bond was pressed without law, it is humbly afferted, that the bond was only offered, but not pressed. - And as to the legal security by lawborrows, it is expressly warranted by the 129th act, parl. 9. James I. And universal lawborrows are warranted by act 13. parl. 6. James II .--- Upon which account it is humbly craved, from your majesty's ju-37019d

1678. Stice, that the earl of Cassils, who hath contemned your proclamation, and charged your privy-council with crimes of fo high a nature, may be fent down prisoner, to be tried and judged according to law.'

This is but a very short abstract of the letter, which the reader will find at large in Wodrow, p. 501, &c. who justly observes, that there was as little rebellion at field-conventicles as in churches. It was the council who first called them rendezvouzes of rebellion, and from this inferred that the west-country was in a state of rebellion; how justly must be left with the reader. Besides, it is absolutely false that there were weekly more armed men at these conventicles than thrice the number of the king's forces could suppress. That some had attended these meetings in arms is not denied; necessity obliged them to defend themselves against the wicked assaults of the foldiers. They tell his majesty that his council did not give orders for free quarters. But what a shift was this, when their committee did it by their authority? And it is false that free quarters were only taken from the refusers of the bond, when it is well known that the Highlanders came several days before the time of taking the bond; and free quarters were allowed on the lands of Cuninghamhead, and others, who could not be reckoned refusers. In a word, it may make the reader smile to hear them saying the bond was offered, but not pressed. If the sending in of an army, the charging with lawborrows, and putting to the horn, was not prefling, then nothing can be called fo.

With the above letter the committee fent up to the king an information of their proceedings with the earl of Cassils; and about this time the managers thought it necessary to publish a paper, intitled, A true narrative of the proceedings of his majesty's privy-council in Scotland for securing the peace of that kingdom in the year 1678. Remarks were made upon this narrative, in a letter to a friend, which abundantly exposed what was afferted therein.

Mr. Ross.

armed.

On the 6th of April the council ordered Mr. Alexander Ross, a minister in the north, who had been detained prisoner in the tolbooth of Edinburgh for the space of four months, without laying any thing to his charge, to be released, upon giving security to live Lanerk- peaceably. And being informed, on the 10th, that shire far- many in the shire of Langrk had not surrendered their ther difarn col mo COL tha tut uni pro wo to or fma pri me his sho

WI

Ch

fou

tion

dov

(

froi rep to t tha the row that atel wer fone Ken Mo to c nob tim four past by 1 con kin way bari Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 409 arms, they ordered their committee to do all they 1678. could to disarm them, who accordingly did their utmost; but many chose rather to run all hazards than to come and deliver their arms upon oath.

3.

ur

th

er,

ch

TC.

at

ho

ei-

es,

ed

he

ed

ed lts

n-

ulv

eli

re

ıl-

ho

ay

as

у,

n,

he

ırl

ht

a-

in he

re,

at

X -

e-

he

115 ve

at

eir

IS,

king.

On the 13th the committee at Glasgow, considering Lord that Mr. Wylie and lord Semple had both withdrawn, Semple's wrote to the earl of Dundonald, one of his lordship's caje. tutors, to do all he could to get him to return to the university; and, on the 16th, lord Semple's mother, a professed PAPIST, petitioned the council that they would either recommend the care of her fon's education to fuch persons as shall be answerable to their lordships, or take some proper measures for securing to him his fmall fortune during his minority, and himself in such principles as were most suitable to his majesty's government, and might engage him in loyalty to the king and his fuccessors. The council upon this injoined the bishop of Argyll and lord Ross to appoint some person of found principles and loyalty to be tutor to the petitioner's fon.

On the 19th an express arrived, and the council sat Bond and down at eight in the morning, when a letter was read lawbor-from his majesty, signifying that he had considered the rows suffrepresentations made by some of his subjects relating to the methods lately taken with the west country, and that he was resolved to hear things more fully, and in the mean time commanded that the bond and lawbor-rows should be suspended till his farther pleasure; and that all his forces, except his own guards, be immediately disbanded. This surprised the managers, who were expecting the earl of Cassis to be sent down prisoner; and therefore they dispatched Sir George Mac-

Kenzie to London, by whom they wrote to the earl of Moray and lord Collingtoun, fignifying their readiness to obey his majesty's commands, and resecting on those noblemen and others that had gone to court at this time, as if they had done all they could to shake the foundations of authority, to such a degree as it will be past remedy if not speedily and vigorously adverted to by his majesty: And therefore they begged them to concur with the advocate in representing things to the

But, on the 22d, Sir John Cuningham went up like-Sir John ways to London; and though he and Sir George Lock-Cuninghart, who had gone before him, had neither of them ham went refused to court.

1678. refused the bond, yet they were clear to give it as their judgment, that the imposing of it and the lawborrows was contrary to law; and the fentiments of such eminent lawyers could not but have weight.

However distatisfying the king's last orders were, disbanded. yet the Blue-coat and Nithsdale regiments, who were got as far as Lanerk, were disbanded. Lord Halton went to the committee at Glasgow, and gave them the first information of this sudden change; but, at the same time, assured them of the king's favour, and that he would approve of their proceedings, though his affairs in England made it necessary to disband the forces, and fuspend the bond for a little while. And, on the 24th,

Commit- the council wrote to their committee, that, fince difortee comes ders by numerous field-conventicles in Fife, Merfe, Teto Edinviotdale and Linlithgow were come to fuch a height, burgh. and matters of moment were to be deliberated upon on the first of May, therefore they defired them, as their bufiness in the west was finished, to come in to Edinburgh. What these matters of importance were, which the for raising council were to have before them, I know not; possimore for- bly they were to concert upon proper methods for suppressing what they called the increasing of disorders by numerous field-conventicles, and for this end to have a standing army, notwithstanding the late orders for disbanding the forces; and no doubt they took care to represent things in their own way to the king.

Fieldmeeting on the hills of Whitekirk.

Mean while, on the fifth of May, there was a large field-meeting on the hills of Whitekirk over against the Bass. A party of about 40 soldiers, and 20 country people whom they preffed to go along with them, commanded by enfign Charles Maitland, being fent by the governor, came upon them. The people resolved to keep together, and not offer any violence unless they were attacked. The party advanced, and commanded them in the king's name to disperse. Some who were near them answered, That, though they honoured the king, yet they were resolved to hear the word of God. Upon this a foldier giving a blow to one of the people, an able-bodied countryman knocked him down. Being thus engaged, the people on that fide of the meeting quickly furrounded and difarmed the foldiers, and fent them off. No harm was done to any of them, farther than that one was killed on the fpot. Two of the meeting were taken that day, and feveral others afterwards; among amo Tem your in S

Char

T garr the l ing of re be r cour nece cils and mad wan noti of t ther fistir nece shou thin > were 20000 70 1 pur fcap tryn wer offe ed; fent pene

A

leav tho ther B Cock

mon four acci the trar Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 407 among whom were James and Geo. Learmonts, William 1678. Temple, Rob. Hepburn in East-fentoun, and Will. Bryson wounger in Dumbar. The first of these was executed in September, as shall be related.

e

y

C

ſ,

0

e

y

n-

0-ep

re

m ar

ig,

on

an

ng

ng

nt

et-

s;

ng

Though, on the 10th of May, the council recalled the Proposal garrison at Ayr, yet on the 14th they had a letter from for more the king, dated the feventh, declaring, That, confider-forces. ing the abounding of field-conventicles, these rendezvouzes of rebellion, he thought fit that some more forces should be raised, and that he expected a speedy and exact account of what number and quality of troops would be necessary. -- How fluctuating were his majesty's councils! the one day to order the forces to be disbanded, and the next, in a manner, to order a new levy to be However, this letter was what the managers wanted. And the same day, in their return, they took notice of the growth of conventicles, and that the raising of new forces was the best way to suppress them; and therefore they proposed two troops of horse, each confifting of a hundred men; and, as the support of these necessarily called for money, that a convention of estates should be summoned to provide it. But before these things could be brought about feveral occurrences happened.

Accordingly, on the faid 14th of May, the council Convenwere informed of a conventicle at the house of William-ticles at wood, where the meeting was dispersed, and upwards of Wil-70 men were taken prisoners by the dragoons who wood. pursued the common people. The ministers happily escaped. About 34 Glasgow people, and as many countrymen, were carried prisoners to Glasgow, where they were examined by lord Ross and others. The bond was offered to them, and the few that complied were released; but the rest, after some days imprisonment, were sent to Edinburgh under a strong guard, where we shall leave them till we see what passed between the king and those who in March last had gone to court. Many of them, after long attendance, came away.

But at last, on the 25th of May, duke Hamilton, lord Duke Cochran, Sir John Cochran, and lieutenant-general Drum-Hamilmond, were commanded to attend upon his majesty at ton, Go. four o'clock. When they appeared, the king, being to an auaccompanied with the dukes of York and Monmouth, and dience. the treasurer, first asked why they had come to him contrary to his proclamation? The duke of Hamilton, who

ipoke

1678. Spoke first, intreated his majesty to let him know why he had laid him under marks of his displeasure, viz. his being turned out of his council, and, fince ever he came to London, not having had the honour of kiffing his majefty's hand. The king replied, He would first know the grounds of their complaints before he returned an anfwer. The duke faid, That he had his majesty's encouragement to come, fince he told them, when last at court, that, when he was any way wronged, he should come to himself and make it known. Upon this they gave his majesty a particular account of the invasion of the Highlanders, their quartering and plunders, &c. the bond, the lawborrows, their being denounced, and forbid by proclamation to lay their condition before the king. which the king answered, That these were horrid things, and defired they would fet them down in paper. The treasurer said, That whatever was in these free-quarterings, and in the rest, they might have been prevented by taking the bond, which he conceived there was law for, there being two alternatives in it, either to deliver their tenants prisoners, or turn them out of their farms. To this it was replied, That there was no obliging masters to apprehend their tenants; the farthest the act of parliament 1670. went, was to oblige masters for their families and fervants. 2. That mafters could not be obliged to turn tenants out of their lands, in regard the punishment for going to a conventicle was by law appointed to be a fine, which was not so grievous as turning them out of their possessions. Besides, they urged that most of the tenants had leases, by virtue of which they had a legal right to their possessions, and could not be turned out for a crime that was only fineable by law. conference held two hours, and much was faid by both parties. The king, in the conclusion, told them, That he could not judge of what they had faid unless they would give it under their hands, that he might lay it before his council. They answered, That they came to his majesty to inform him of the wrongs and oppressions of the country, and not to accuse the Council, which they knew was dangerous, unless his majesty would indemnify them; which the king refusing, they said, They left the matter with him to do in it as he thought proper. In a word, though fometimes the king feemed to be moved, yet, being still under the influence of Lauderdale, he gave them no redress. So far from it, that on the

28tl to t com fhot ftate law

Ch

well prev Will ran, the o bove tenc in p derdi for o Edin mati from vonze them for n

T

mert

A

now know prefe were neral form the o crable ther atteni aws. expos long outre upon fore, the fla quent

thers

28th of May, three days after this conference, he wrote 1678. to the council, approving of their whole conduct, and recommending to them to take all such legal courses as they should find necessary for preserving the authority of the state, and securing the government of the church as by law established.

The same day John Bowie, Jam. John and Rob. Max-Several wells, Dav. Corsbie, Will. Niven, Will. Urie, Jam. Lick-ordered previck, Jam. Blackwood, Rob. Reid, Dav. Fergusson, for transference, Dav. Gray, Arch. Haddoway, Mungo Cochran, Rob. Hay, and many others, being called before the council to give their oath who preached at the above conventicle at Williamwood, and refusing, were sentenced to be transported to the plantations, and to ly in prison till a ship was got ready.

At the same time a letter was read appointing Lau-Procladerdale commissioner, and a proclamation was published mation for for calling a CONVENTION OF ESTATES to meet at a con-Edinburgh on the 26th of June next. In this proclamation the kingdom is represented to be in danger states. from those execrable field-conventicles, the rendezvonzes of rebellion; and therefore, in order to suppress them, this convention was called to raise and provide for more forces.

13.

hy

his

me

na-

the

an-

ou-

at

me

ave

the

nd,

ro-

Го

gs,

he

er-

by

or,

eir Го

ers ar-

fa-

li-

u-

ed

em oft

da

n-

nis

th

he ld

re

2-

he

ey

น่อ

eft

T.

be:

le,

he

th

These conventicles got a new epithet. They were for- Remarks. merly called feditious, and rendezvouzes of rebellion, but now they are called EXECRABLE. But it was well known that these meetings had much of the divine Hind let presence among them; and, as one observes, many loose, p. were really converted, more were convinced, and ge- 132. nerally all who attended them were reformed from their Befides, we have related that former immoralities. the occasion of these meetings was owing to the execrable proceedings of the managers at that time. ther is it any wonder though some were obliged to attend them in arms, when we consider the fanguinary laws that were made against them, and how they were exposed to the illegal assaults of the soldiers. long time they met without any arms, and were frequently disturbed and dispersed. Some were killed, others were wounded, which they patiently endured withontresistance. At last several ministers had a price set upon their heads, and many were outlawed; and therefore, finding that they thus were appointed as sheep for the flaughter, they looked upon it as their duty to pro-Fff vide

Chap

both

piece

milies

them,

and a tors to

circui

there

as fuff

who 1

middl

again

all.

The 1

der in libert

to we interp

magil

my re

being

of giv

custom

for th

tribut

I cou

less I

to Ce

the o matte

tion 1

Ayr,

qualif

unto which

Ihad

my pr

be of being pose :

clearn

preis :

linful

tested

offeri

1678. vide for their necessary defence. We have related how they were debarred all manner of liberty to worship God in publick, and on the severest penalties forbid to affemble either in the churches or in private families. But, being persuaded that it was their duty not to forfake the affembling of themselves together, they therefore took to the fields.

Sixteen ordered for tranfportation.

On the 13th of June, about 16 more, who had been at Williamwood conventicle, were fentenced to be transported. They were given to Ralph Williamson of London to dispose of them, or sell them to the best advantage; and they were to ly in prison till they could be shipped off. On the 20th, George Hume of Kimmergham and Jane Hume lady Ayton, having been imprisoned for a clandestine marriage, (I suppose for being married by a presbyterian minister) were released on paying 1000 merks fine, and 750 merks for pious uses.

Convention fit down.

On the 26th the CONVENTION OF ESTATES met according to appointment. Parliaments now could not be ventured upon, lest an inquiry should be made into the state of the nation, and proposals made for redreffing grievances. A convention answered the end of raifing money, which was the chief thing now in view.

On the 10th of July they passed their act and offer Their alt and offer. of 1,800,000 1. Scots to be raised in the space of five years, being 360,000 l. Scots yearly. In the preamble to this act they fay, among other things, that it is not fit that this kingdom should only, of all others, remain without defence, at a time wherein these dangerous field-conventicles, declared by law rendezvouzes of rebellion, do still grow in their numbers and infolencies, against all which the present forces cannot in reason be thought a fuitable fecurity.

The delign of this affessment was to maintain an army Remarks. for suppressing these conventicles, which were the butt of their malice: And now the bishops had what they wanted; their friends were provided for in the army; the presbyterians were divided among themselves on account of the indulgence, and the imposition of this cess increased their divisions; and the rigorous execution of it, together with the cruel oppressions of this new army, occasioned a rising, which shall be related in the next volume.

Some looked upon it as unlawful to pay this cels, Different opinions, and others were of opinion, that, fince violence was both

13. ow

nip

to es.

or-

re-

een

nf-

on-

an-

be

ham

for by

000 met

not nto

ref-

aif-

1.

ffer

five

ible

not

re-

ige-

s of

ies,

1 be

rmy

butt

hey

ny;

on

this

cu-

this

ited

ess,

was

oth

both expected and used, it was more adviseable, by a 1678. piece of money, to preserve themselves and their families alive, and their substance from being taken from them, than, by an absolute refusal, to give an occasion and afford a legal pretence to the cruelty of the collectors to destroy all. They added, that paying cefs, in these circumitances, was not spontaneous, but constrained, and therefore the payers were to be exculed, and looked upon as fufferers rather than actors. There were a few others who paid this imposition with a declaration, chusing the middle way between paying it without any teltimony against what was evil in it, and refusing to pay it at all. Among them was Quintin Dick of Dalmellingtonn. The reasons of his conduct I shall lay before the reader in his own words, as follow: " --- After much Quintin liberty in pouring out my heart to God, I was brought Dick's to weigh, that, as my paying of it might be, by some, sentiments interpreted a scandal, and a sinful acquiescence in the and pracmagistrate's sinful command; so, upon the other hand, tice. my refusing to pay it would be the greater scandal, being found to clash against a known command of God, of giving to all their due; tribute to whom tribute is due, custom to whom custom; and knowing that Christ Jesus, for that same very end, to evite offence, did both pay tribute himself, and commanded his followers to do it. I could fee no way to refuse payment of that cefs, unless I had clashed with that command of paying tribute to Cefar. So, to evite the scandal of compliance on the one hand, and disobedience to the magistrate, in matter of custom, on the other, I came to a determination to give in my cess to the collector of the shire of Ayr, with a protestation against the magistrate's sinful qualification of his commands, and a full adherence unto these meetings of God's people called conventicles, which, in the act, he declared his defign to bear down. I had no fooner done this, but — it was faid, that my protestation was only to evite sufferings, and could be of no weight, being protestatio contraria facto. being persuaded that it is the magistrate's right to impole and exact cess and cultom, I could have no clearnels to state my sufferings in opposition to so expreis a command of God. And as to the magistrate's unful qualification, having so openly declared and protested against it, I conceive the censure of this, to evite lafferings, is groundless, seeing that the enemy has subfcribed

C

or

m

to

pr

an

yi

to

ma

th

for

th

fat

ha

lav

Bu

fel del

th

pe

to im

to

un

im of

du

go

It

lea

pro

to the

the

Bu

we wa ler

pa fhi

fus

ha

on ha

2.6

1678. scribed with my hand, before witnesses, a resolute adherence to that which they say this leads to overthrow; and, if he mind to persecute upon the ground of owning conventicles, he has a fair and full occasion against me under my hand, &c.'

Thus far he. But, to do justice to those who refus-Hind let loofe, p. ed to pay this cefs, I must briefly relate their fenti-

715, 6c. ments on this head. Thus they allowed, I. That tribute and custom are to be paid to the persons ordained by God; but the impositions of tyrants, enacted and exacted for promoting their wicked designs against RELIGI. ON and LIBERTY, are noways due; and therefore it is not equity to pay them. 2. It is lawful to pay them when due, either by law or contract, even though they should afterwards be abused to pernicious ends; but these payments for fuch wicked ends, either particularly specified in the very act appointing them, or openly avouched by the exactions, are of another nature from impositions fundamentally appointed for the publick good. 3. It is fometimes lawful to pay them, even when illegally exacted, if afterwards they were, by dedition, or voluntary engagement, legally submitted to by the true representatives; but not so when they were never either lawfully enacted or legally exacted, or voluntarily engaged by the representatives, except such as represent the enflavement of the nation, and betrayed the country, religion, liberty, property, and all persons interests, and declaredly imposed to farther the destruction of all. If it be objected, that Christ paid custom lest he should offend, and that the Jews wondered at his prudent answer, Render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's, and to God the things that are God's, it is sufficient to observe, that he taught them, in general, to give nothing to Cafar in prejudice to that which is God's; and confequently it must be unlawful to pay a tax that is appointed for suppressing the worship of God, wherever it is performed agreeable to his word. And, to make the case parallel, it is no less than blasphemy to say that Christ would have paid, or permitted his followers to pay a tax, professedly imposed for levying a war against himself, or banishing him and his disciples out of the land, or to fill the mouths of the greedy pharifees; or that he would have paid, or fuffered to pay, their extortions, if any had been exacted of him, or his disciples, for his preaching 13.

ad-

er-

und

lion

fus-

nti-

trined

ex-

GI.

t is

nem hey

but

rly

1 2-

om

ick

ven de-

to

ney

ed,

ept

beall

the aid

onngs

0'5,

ne-

hat ful

orhis

ess

id,

ming

the

ive ad

ng

OF

pro-

or working miracles; or if help or hire had been de- 1678. manded for the encouraging those that ran to stone him for his good deeds. 4. It is lawful to pay a part to preserve the whole, when it is extorted only by force and threatnings, and not exacted by law; when it is yielding only to a leffer fuffering, and not confenting to a lin to shift suffering; for though, no doubt, a man may give a robber a part to fave his life, or preferve the relt, yet, if the robber requires not only a part for himself and his underlings, but demands it for this very end, that he may be in case to murder his father, mother, wife, children and friends, whom he has in his power; the question is, Whether it would be lawful for any person to comply in these circumstances? But the imposers of this cefs did not look upon themselves as robbers, but claimed this exaction as a just debt; and that, for this declared purpole, to enable them to bear down the assemblies of God's faithful people. 5. It is lawful passively, by forcible constraint, to submit to the execution of such wicked sentences as impose those burdens, if it be not by way of obedience to them; this is suffering and not sinning. But it is unlawful to comply with the payment of a cefs, when imposed with an evident defign to overthrow the work of God, and harrais and perfecute his people. duty, in that case, is to take joyfully the spoiling of our goods, and not to comply with impious demands. 6. It is lawful, of two evils of fufferings, to chuse the least, when they are in our choice; but this is not the present case. It is true there is this alternative, either to comply and pay the cefs, or elfe to be exposed to the rigorous oppressions of the laws then made. If the first could be done without fin, then it doubtless might, to avoid the terrible consequences of the last. But, as an active compliance with the former is finful, we are to chule luftering rather than fin. When Christ was toffed at fea with his disciples, had the Jewish rulers given peremptory orders to furnish money for paying those whom they were to employ to fink the thip, can it be imagined that any of the lovers of fe-Jus would have complied with their demands? Now, has not Christ, and all the interest he hath in the nation, been embarked, as it were, in one bottom? And have not the rulers fent their peremptory orders to pay a cels for finking his floating interest? Can any who bo

C

on

pr

th

pr

th

wa

nu

Or

Li

ne

cep

the ref

ftra an

ha

gen

chi late

obi

do

rag

ties

hac

cot

VOC

dulg flov

mac

tha

onl but tho ed ;

it,

cep acce

fons

duty

Peac

1678. profess to love him comply with this? Can this compliance, especially, be given into by those, who, by solemn covenant, were obliged to maintain and defend it? Thus I have given a brief account of some of those things faid in behalf of those who refused this cefs, The reader will find this point largely discussed in the book quoted in the margin, from which I have taken these hints. I now go on to the subsequent occurren-

Proceedings of the council.

On the 1st of August, John Millar in Kirkaldy, David Barclay, Robert Marnock, and feven or eight more, were brought before the council for having been at several field-conventicles. They refused to swear against any who were present with them, and so had a sen-

They likeways renewed their former act, requiring tence of transportation passed against them.

all concerned in the execution of the laws to take the oath of allegiance and declaration, and appointed their act to be printed and fent to the members of inferior judicatures, town-councils and magistrates. It seems William Stirling, bailie-depute of the regality of Glasgow, had not exerted himself sufficiently in suppressing W. Stir-conventicles; and therefore, on the 14th of August, he was ordered to appear before the council, where he having alledged, that, being newly vested with that office, he was unacquainted with the methods of the court, the lords required him to be more diligent for the future, and so dismissed him. The same day Sir James Stewart, late provost of Edinburgh, who had, for some time, been prisoner in the castle, was, by reason of his old age and infirmities, fet at liberty, upon giving a bond of 10,000 merks to appear when called. At the same time Thomas > presently paid, and was discharged. Next day the council wrote two letters, the one to Dundonald, to order Mr. Wylie to appear before them on the 11th of September, and provide a proper tutor for lord Semple; the other to the bailie of May bole, concerning a conventicle near that place, at which feveral attended in arms; but the matter was dropt. The fame day the magistrates of Ayr were ordered to apprehend Mr. John Guningham, chamberlain to the laird of

> Kennedy of Grange, confessing that he had been at a con-venticle last year, was fined in 800 merks, which he Enterkin, for harbouring Mr. John Welsh.

About

ling.

Sir T. Steuart.

were

About the end of this month a considerable number, 1678. both of the indulged and not indulged ministers, met at Edinburgh, for composing the differences that had arisen Meeting on account of the indulgence, which several had been of minipreaching against, and, as some apprehended, carried sters. things to an excess in their fermons. They had two probationers before them, but to little purpose; a third declined to converse with them, or be subject to their admonitions.

We have related how diffatisfactory the indulgence Remarks. was to many, and how the acceptance of it offended numbers, because it flowed entirely from the supremacy. On the seventh of October 1671. the reverend Mr. John Living ston wrote a letter from Roterdam to his parishio- Mr. Liners of Ancrum, in which he condemned those who ac-ving-fton's cepted the indulgence, without any publick testimony either of their adherence to the oath of God, and work of reformation, or against the usurpations of the civil magistrate upon the royal prerogative of the Lord Jesus Christ; and among other things tells them, ' If any ministers p. 12. have had a hand in contriving or procuring that indulgence, I suppose they have done more mischief to the church of Christ in that land, [Scotland] than all the prelates and all their hirelings.' Besides, the reader will observe, that those worthy persons, who had not freedom to accept of the indulgence, were exposed to the rage of the perfecutors, and deprived of all their liberties both civil and facred; and therefore, though they had expressed themselves in their sermons in terms that could not be altogether justified, had they not great provocation? And when they are convinced that the indulgence was injurious to Christ as Head of the church, flowing from and depending upon the magistrate's supremacy; that it was inconsistent with presbyterian principles; that it invaded the rights of the christian people, not only by depriving many of them of their own ministers, but also obliging them to submit to any the council should fend them; that by this erastianism was established; Were they to be condemned in preaching against it, nay, and in bearing their testimony against the accepters of it? I doubt not in the least but many who accepted the indulgence were worthy and valuable perfons; but humanum est labi; and it was certainly the duty of ministers to concert measures for bringing about peace and union: But, at the fame time, how they 1678. were to be condemned, who, for the fake of union, could not renounce their principles, must be left with the reader. It is certain excesses of all kinds are to be avoided: But it is not to be wondred at, that, when the infection of apoltaly did so universally prevail, fome exceeded the bounds of moderation in shewing their zeal against it.

Gentlemen in Galloway pro-Secuted.

On the 11th of September, Patrick Mac Dougal, Mr. James Lawrie of French, Thomas Hay of Park, John Blair of Dunskey, Andrew Agnew of Sheuchan, Alexander Veitch of Glen, William Veitch tenant to Glencranstoun, and Adam Russel late bailie of Peebles, were prosecuted for house and field-conventicles. They who appeared were acquitted.

Polwart fent to Dumbarton.

The fame day Sir Patrick Hume of Polwart, in consequence of a letter from the king, was ordered to be removed from the tolbooth of Edinburgh to the castle of Dumbarton. This gentleman had been imprisoned *p. 339. February 1676 †. If that order was complied with, it would feem he was again committed to prison; for it is plain he was at this time in goal at Edinburgh.

Council's gainft conven-

Another letter from his majesty was read in council, aflings a- at the same time requiring them to raise two Highland companies, each confifting of 150 men, belides officers, for putting a stop to the depredations in the Highlands. ticles, &c. Whether this order was complied with, my author did not find from the registers. The suppressing of conventicles took up most of their time; for at the same meeting they ordered the arms and papers of nonconformists to be searched for and seized. And next day foldiers were fent to Cowpar of Fife for executing whatever orders they should receive from the council, or their committee, or the major-general. They also enjoined the magistrates of Kirkaldy to proceed against those that had left their parish-church to frequent conventicles, and thanked the magistrates of Dundee for their care in this respect. They likeways wrote to the marquis of Douglass, desiring him to present John Haddoway, James and William Clelands, in confequence of his bond to produce them when called. They had been before the council 1677. for being at conventicles; but upon his lordship's bond the process against them was delayed. At the same meeting the chancellor produced a letter from the earl of Dundonald, fignifying that the commif-con fcru to b that to t to t thef Fam and mor each lters they they lente for p ordin prest Robedicte him to be lithg latel day come the p bey 1

Ch

Glaf comi W ticles liam Bry/ccour lords ton. prifo agair der o cels orde venti plead

fand

g

72

.

,

.

•

e

n

t

3 d

.

d

.

t

0 ſŧ

1-

r

-

,

d

e

n

7-

2 ie.

prove

commissioners of assessment for the shire of Renfrew 1678. scrupled the declaration, which they conceived related to burghs, and not to thires; whereupon they ordered that both the allegiance and declaration should be tendred to them, and a list of the recusants, &c. should be fent to the council. And, on the 13th of September, both Several these were re-imposed on the burghs. At which time fined. James Mosiman was fined in 1000 merks, William Laing and another in 500 merks a-piece; and fix or feven more, all tenants of the laird of Cavers, 100 merks each, for hearing Mr. Welsh and other ejected minifters; and the council gave them to know, that, unless they paid their respective fines against next November, they should be transported. And they actually passed Mr. Harsentence of transportation against Mr. John Harroway, roway. for preaching, baptizing and marrying without episcopal ordination, and refuling to declare, upon oath, who the presbyterian ministers were by whom he was ordained. Robert Dick, merchant in Prestonpans, was likeways in- R. Dick, dicted for being at a conventicle, and, refusing to clear himself by oath, he was declared guilty, and ordered to be banished. They likeways ordered the earl of Linlithgow to bring in feveral persons prisoners who had lately been at a conventicle near Renfrew. The same day they wrote to lord MacDonald, ordering him to come before them on the 27th, and give fecurity for the peace of the bounds; but he was in no haste to obey their summons. And on the 16th the bishop of Glasgow was admitted a counsellor and a member of the committee for publick affairs.

While the council was thus taken up about convented ticles, the trial of James and George Learmonts*, Wil- of James liam Temple, Robert Hepburn of East-fenton, and William Learmont, Bryson younger in Dumbar, came on before the justice &c. court, consisting of lord Carrington justice-general, p. 407. lords Collingtoun, Strathurd, Castlebill, Forret and Newton. They sat down on the 11th of September, and the prisoners were indicted for being at the conventicle over against the Bass, and being art and part in the murder of the soldier, &c. In the beginning of the process the advocate passed from Hepburn and Bryson, in order to pursue them before the council for field-conventicles. Mr. David Thoirs, advocate for the prisoners, pleaded that their simple presence, in a croud of a thousand persons, cannot make them guilty; and offered to

Ggg

1678. prove that they came unarmed; and that others, declared fugitives, and not them, were feen to strike the deceased with swords and halberts, whereas the prisoners retired before the engagement. The king's advocate replied, that field-conventicles were rendezvouzes of rebellion, and the prisoners presence there in arms was enough to prove them guilty, which he undertook to make good. The lords, in their interlocutor, declared that presence at field-conventicles, and giving council and command, infer guilt, and accordingly referred the fame to be prov-

The witnesses were examined; and James Manderstoun swore that he saw Jam. Learmont at a field-conventicle May the fifth; that he had no arms; but that he heard him fay, Let no cowards be here to day; but let fuch as have arms go out to the foreside; that he saw William Temple there with a fword. Other two witnesses fwore much to the same purpose; but none swore that Jam. Learmont had any actual concern in the engagement. In his last speech he tells us, That the jury, at first, declared he was not guilty of the blood that was shed. Their verdict was, 'That they found William Temple guilty of being at the conventicle libelled, near the place where the man was killed, with a fword under his arm, but onot drawn; as also, that James Learmont was not only guilty of presence, but of words, conform to the deposition of witnesses."

ed.

When this was given in the advocate declared that they deferted the diet against Geo. Learmont. Several others who were at the said conventicle, as Sheriff, Cowan, Dawfon, Brock, Miller and Bull, were called, and not appearing were declared fugitives, and outlawed. Next day, September 13th, the following fentence was pronounced, viz. That James Learmont be taken to the Grafs-market of Edinburgh, on Friday the 27th instant, and there have his head severed from his body, &c. No fentence was this day pronouced against Will. Temple; and though, according to their own law, he was certainly more guilty than Jam. Learmont, yet a sentence of transportation was all that was passed against him.

This good man, James Learmont, was executed on the Executed. 27th according to his fentence. In his last speech, which is recorded in Naphtali, he bore an honourable testimony to the covenants and work of reformation, against popery, prelacy, &c. prayed that God would give repentance

mand and c iv. 7, quickl On in co to rai and t ficers and it of th respec this t

and L

emplo

Elphi

any t

comn

to or

Chap

repen

exhor

lawfu

last T Th nister preac but, any f Buche about order

Ne place and laird the fir In porte

the in Pat. confi feven Ponto. Clidsa

their

7, 0

t

repentance to those who were accessory to his death, 1678. exhorted all people to shew loyalty to the king and all lawful magistrates, and all their just and lawful commands, in so far as they agreed with the word of God; and concluded his long speech with these words, 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8. I have fought a good fight, &c. Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even so come LORD JESUS.

On the 9th of October a letter from the king was read More in council, fignifying that he had granted commissions forces to raise a regiment of foot consisting of eight companies, raised. and three troops of horse of fixty men each, besides officers, for fecuring the kingdom from foreign invalions and intestine commotions, and requiring all the officers of the former and new levied forces to repair to their respective posts upon pain of his displeasure. this they council appointed the earls of Moray, Wigtoun and Linlithgow, the bishop of Galloway, (for he must be employed for the Church in military affairs) the lords Elphing stoun, Ross and Collington, and Mr. Maitland, or any three of them, to meet the 22d instant, and deliver commissions to the officers named by his majesty, and to order them to rendezvous on the links of Leith the last Thursday of November.

The same day Mr. James Hamilton, the indulged minister at Evandale, was rebuked before the council for preaching in a vacancy, and so breaking his confinement; but, that being his first fault, he was dismissed without any farther censure. And, at the same sederunt, Alex. Alexan-Buchanan in Bucklyvie, And. Buchanan in Shirgartoun, and der Buabout seven others, were banished for conventicles, and chanan, ordered to be kept prisoners till they should be trans-nifted.

Next day the council appointed garrisons in several Garrisons, places of the Highlands, for preserving the peace there, and permitted dame Margaret Ker to wait upon the laird of Polwart, a prisoner in Dumbartoun-castle, till the sirst of November next.

In November a process commenced against some of the indulged ministers in the shire of Rensrew, as Mr. Pat. Simpson and Mr. Jam. Wallace, for breaking their confinement; of which more next year. And, on the seventh, Tho. and Will. Govans, Alex. Anderson, Rob. Pontoun, James Wilson, Joh. Jervie, Jam. Brown, Nich. Clidsdale, Dav. Kid, and Joh. Arnot, having confessed their being present at conventicles, and refusing to declare

Ch ch

for

gio

ect

dif

ap

pa

re

W .A

W

ea

w

ti

tl

P fa

d iı

C 1

k

i

f

f

1

a

11

1

1

i

1

1678. clare upon oath who preached, or who else were present, were banished to the plantations. Mr. Joh. Govan denying that he was at the conventicles charged against him, and only had conversed with Mr. Forester his brother-inlaw, was ordered to ly in prison till his case should be farther confidered. He was however fet at liberty on the 11th of November. At the same time the council wrote to the lord MacDonald, commanding him to appear before them on the 28th instant. But that popish lord had a friend at court, and so paid but little regard to the charge.

Mr. Pemished.

On the 14th Mr. A. Peden petitioned the council to den ba- be released from Edinburgh jail, and permitted to repair to Ireland, especially as he had not been charged with house or field-conventicles for these twelve years past; but, instead of granting his petition, they ordered him to be transported to Virginia. After this sentence was passed, it was reported that Mr. Peden several times said, That that ship was not yet built that should carry him or the other prisoners to any of the English plantations in America.

> The same day a letter came from the king concerning raising and modelling 5000 foot and 500 horse out of the militia; and the council fent up instructions relating to this for his majesty's approbation. Next day, November the 15th, they issued a proclamation for obferving a publick fast on the 18th of December next, on account of the POPISH PLOT discovered in England.

Popish plot. note on Rapin.

The chief promoters and authors of this were, pope Tindal's INNOCENT XI. cardinal Howard, Johannes Paulus de Oliva general of the Jesuits at Rome, Pedro Jeronymo de Corduba provincial of the Jesuits in New-Castile, La Chaife confessor to LEWIS XIV. the provincial of the Jesuits in England, the Benedictine monks at the Savoy, the Jesuits and seminary priests in England, who were then in number about 1800, the lords Petre, Powis, Bellasis, Arundel of Wardour, Stafford, and several perfons of quality. The defign was to murder the king, fubvert the constitution, introduce popery, and extirpate the protestant religion. When the king was taken off, the duke of York was to receive the crown as a gift from the pope, and hold it in fee. If any difturbance happened, the city of London was to be let on fire, and the infamy of the whole was to be laid upon the presbyterians and funaticks, in order to excite the church

13. ent,

ny-

im,

-inbe

on

ncil

apish

ard

to to use

in-

be ed,

nat

he

ne-

n-

ut e-

y, b-

on pe de

de

La

ne

1,

re

5, r-

3,

e

n a

n

17

church to cut them to pieces, the better to make way 1678. for the easier subversion of the whole protestant religion. This plot was discovered, and several were executed for being concerned in it: And though it was discredited by many, yet it is plain the managers in Scotland believed it; and therefore, as I have observed, appointed a solemn fast to be observed. As to the particulars of this wicked conspiracy, I must refer the reader to the English historians, and go on to observe, That, on the 18th of November, Sir George MacKenzie was made justice-general, and Craigie justice-clerk. And, on the 21st, Thomas Wauch Merchant in Hawick, William Turnbul, and Margaret Barclay, were sentenced to be banished for house and field-conventicles, because they refused to swear as to the circumstances of them.

The popish plot, above mentioned, had filled the na- Examined tion with consternation; and therefore, on the 28th, into. the council ordered the archbishop of Glasgow, the earls of Moray and Linlithgow, the bishop of Galloway, lord Halton, Mr. Maitland, and Haddo, or any two of them, to inspect the papers lately seized by the earl of Moray, and appointed the committee of publick affairs to meet next day, and consider the affair of the papists. But is plain they could make no discoveries: For, on the 30th, they wrote to the king, in which they congratulate his majesty upon the difcovery of the plot, and assured him, that, after the strictest search, they could not find that any in this kingdom had been concerned in that execrable and impious conspiracy, and promised that they would not fail to make a farther inquiry. They wrote at the fame time to Lauderdale much to the same purpose. And, December the 12th, ordered the magistrates of Edinburgh to fearch through Edinburgh, Leith, and Canongate, next fabbath and the following, for houses where papilts affembled and faid mass, and to apprehend the priests, and all they should find at these meetings, and imprison them. They likeways wrote to the Iteward of Annandale to order a meeting-house that had been lately erected near Castlemilk to be burnt and deitroyed, and to fend the names of those by whom it was ordered to be built. So much for the proceedings against the papists. But what were these in compariion of the methods of rigour, oppression and tyranny taken with protestant nen-conformists, whom they hunted like:

nished

1678. like partridges on the mountains, fined, confined, imprisoned and banished? For, on this very 12th of De-The ba- cember, the council gave a warrant to the earl of Linlithgow to fend a party to receive the following per-Sentaway fons, who had received sentence of transportation for house and field-conventicles, and to deliver them to Edward Johnston master of the St. Michael of Scarborough, then lying at Leith, viz. James, John and Robert Maxwels, William Urie, James Lickprevick and Robert Reid, all in Cathcart; William Niven in Eastwood; James Blackwood and David Corsbie in Carmonnock; Archibald Haddoway, John Bowie, William Hay, Mungo Cochran, John Anderson servant, John Cumming, Arthur Dougal, William Rae, Gabriel Thomson merchant, and William Steven, all in Glasgow; David Fergusson and Edward Gray in Bridgeend; Mr. Robert Meikle chaplain to Sir James Stuart, Stephen Porteous taylor in Canongate; John Clerk Writer, Patrick Somerwel and William Hackston in Edinburgh; Adam Stobie of Luscar, James Mosman of Mount, William Laing, John Cavers, Mr. John Harroway, Robert Dykes, John and William Newmans, James Miller in Kirkaldy; George Alexander in Newburgh; David Barclay in Cowquhalty; Gilbert Marnock chapman, Thomas Mowbray, Alexander Stuart, James Law and John Fairbairn, all in Kirklistoun; William Angus in Abercorn; James Brown, Robert Punton in Dalmenie; Richard Clidsdale, Mr. Adam Abercorn chaplain to lady Cavers; William Turnbull brother to Beulie; — Cuningham cook to the earl of Strathmore; William Temple in Lintoun, Mr. Alexander Peden minister, James Pryde, Robert Reid wright in Langfide; Thomas and William Govans, and Alexander Anderson, servants; John Graham, Alexander and John Buchanans, Andrew Brown, Walter MacGechan, John Urie, Daniel Mac-Donald, David Kid, John Arnot, John Jervie in Falkirk, and John Rae. Sixty-seven in all.

They were delivered to Johnston for the benefit of Set at liberty at Williamson*, who was to carry them to Virginia. Mr. London. Peden was of great service to his fellow-sufferers, and * p. 410. frequently affured them of deliverance. Though they had a tedious passage between Leith and Gravesend, yet when they came thither Mr. Williamson was not there; wherefore Mr. Johnston, who had the charge of their main.

maii fon, rece kney got to S A not

him,

Cha

he i Lor hear had tion Chri com adhe prela and Chri

with

both

amo

black

it is O know. Ipeal at th the l the n 5000 the 1 whic anfw a pro terian very the f 6 be

· CH " ftat

" and e pos up maintenance, after waiting some small time for William1678.

fon, set them on shore to shift for themselves. They received great kindness from the country, when they knew the cause of their sufferings; and they generally got home to their own country. Mr. Peden returned to Scotland about the month of June next year.

Alexander Anderson, one of these exiles, who was Alexannot fixteen years of age, in a paper he lest behind der Anhim, dated December the 10th, takes notice, 'That testimony, him, dated December the 10th, takes notice, ' That testimony. he is the youngest prisoner in Scotland, and that the Lord had opened his eyes, and revealed his Son in his heart fince he came under the crofs; that, though he had much difficulty to part with his friends and relations, yet he had now found that fellowship with Christ did much more than balance the want of the company of his dearest relations. He declared his adherence to the work of reformation from popery and prelacy, to the national and folemn league and covenants, and witnessed against pulling down the government of Christ's house, and setting up lordly prelacy, and joining with them. He regretted the indulgence, as what upon both fides had been matter of stumbling and offence among good people; and declared his fears that a black and difmal day was coming upon Scotland; that it is good to feek the Lord, and draw near to him, &c.'

On the 19th of December James Daes of Colding-knows was obliged to beg pardon on his knees, for speaking some words against the management of affairs at that time. The same day they had a letter from the king, thanking them for their care in modelling the militia, and for the distribution they made of the 5000 foot and 500 horse in the different shires thro' the kingdom; for by this means the militia, from which the said soot and horse were taken, effectually answered all the ends of a large standing army, and was a promising method to bear down and ruin the presbyterians. Every one of them for himself, as well as every one of the regular forces, was appointed to take the following oath: viz. I A. B. do swear to Military be true and faithful to my sovereign lord king oath.

^{&#}x27;CHARLES, and his lawful fuccessors, and, in my station, to maintain the present government in church and state, as it is now established by law, and to oppose, to my power, the damnable principle of taking up arms against the king, or those commissionate

1678. by him, upon any pretext whatfoever; and to be obedient in all things to his majesty's major-general or commander in chief, authorised by his majesty for the time being, and will behave myself obediently to my superior officers in all that they shall command me for his majesty's service. And I do farther swear, that I will be a true, faithful and obedient foldier, every way performing my best endeavours for his majesty's ' fervice, obeying all orders, and fubmitting to all fuch rules and articles of war as are or shall be established by his majesty. So help me God.'

Henry Hall of Haughhead.

To the transactions of this year I shall add a few things of which I have not the particular dates. Some time of it, when colonel Struthers was pursuing all Scotsmen in the northern counties of England, Henry Hall of Haughhead was engaged in a skirmish near Crockom, a village on the English border, where that gallant and religious gentleman Thomas Ker of Hayhope was killed. Mr. Hall after this came down to Scotland, where we shall meet with him next year. He had a religious education, and opposed the publick refolutions. After the restoration he was a great enemy to prelacy, and fuffered many hardships; so that he was obliged to leave his estate, and retire into the north of England in 1665. In the year 1666, he was taken when coming from Pentland, and, with some others, imprisoned in Cesford-castle; but was released by the favour of the earl of Roxburgh who was his relation. Then he again retired to Northumberland, where he was very useful.

James Graham of Claverhouse, who will make a dis-Graham of Claver- mal figure in the next volume, came this year with a numerous party of foldiers, took free quarters for feveral days in the house of one Gilbert MacMeihen in New-Glenluce parish; and when they went off, though they had confumed ten times the value of the cefs, they carried with them 3 horses worth 10 L. sterling. John Arrol, who commanded this party, was killed next year at Drumclog, and had his bowels trode out by a horse.

At another time this year an officer came with a company of wild Highlanders, and fired upon a number of people assembled for the worship of God at the hill of Coltenachar in Perthsbire. By a kind providence one ren mi his to: and wei

C

An

He

Edi mic obl till Bla

Gle

the the tion and tho dulg whe

hea

Flen

I fuffe the 172 of S class the he h died wou fed 1 ed in whe read duri

form with with he w

was was :

Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 425

3.

0-

al

or

to

at

ry

7's

ch

ed

W

ne

II

ry

ar

at

pe

t-

Ie

e-

to 28

of

n

s,

ne

1.

15

ſ-

a

.

n

h

y

172 ζt

a

-

of

ı

C

19

Andrew Breddy was the only person who was killed. 1678. He left behind him a wife and four children.

We have had frequent occasion to mention the reve- Mr. rend Mr. Blackadder *, who, before the restoration, was Blackadminister at Traquair near Dumfries. When the rest of der. his brethren were ejected a party of the guards came 270,2764 to seize him, but he was out of the way. His wife and children, to whom the foldiers were very rude, were forced to retire to Barndennoch in the parish of Glencairn. In the year 1665. being with his wife at Edinburgh, a party of Sir James Turner's men came at midnight, turned their children out of their beds, and obliged one of them, in his thirt, to hold the candle till they fearched the house, and went through Mr. Blackadder's books and papers, and took away what The manner in which they threatned they pleased. the poor children is so shocking, that I forbear to men-After this he was forced to leave that house and featter his family. Mr. Blackadder was one of those who preached in the fields, was against the indulgence, and continued in that practice till this year, when he went over to Holland, and was very useful in healing the breaches between Mr. MacWard and Mr. Fleming. We shall hear more of him next year.

It will now be proper to give some account of the Mr. sufferings of the reverend Mr. James Webster, who after Webther revolution was minister in Edinburgh, and died ster's sufferings.

This worthy person studied in the university ferings. of St. Andrews. About three or sour days before the class was to receive their degrees, an order came from the archbishop to remove him from the class, because he had not regularly attended upon ordinances, neither durst his master give him a testimonial that he had studied under his inspection for four years, because he would not engage to attend upon ordinances as dispenled by episcopal ministers. He was this year apprehended in the town of Dundee on the Lord's day after noon, when at a private meeting for prayer, conference, and reading the scriptures. Next day the magistrates informed the council that they had seized a conventicle, with Mr. Webster the preacher. The persons taken with him were fined by order of the council; and he was kept 18 months prisoner. With difficulty he was released upon urging the indemnity 1679. for he was as yet no preacher. About the year 1685 or 1686.

Hhh

1678, when he was living peaceably in the house of Grier of Discanth, a party of lord William Douglass's troop came on a fabbath-morning, and carried him to Dumfries. He was examined on the ordinary questions, and was put into the theives-hole, along with John Clerk a farmer, and John Haldane a weaver, who had for their companions three men who were in hold for robbery, murder and bestiality. Mr. Webster and his two friends were kept in this nafty place about three weeks, and after that removed to the Pledge-house, the usual prison for debitors, and was confined there four weeks, and then released by lieutenant-general Drummond. The gentleman in whose house he was apprehended was likeways kept prisoner for some time. Soon after this Mr. Webster was a third time taken prisoner when walking the streets of Edinburgh, but the viscount of Strathallan quickly let him go.

I shall conlude this chapter by just mentioning the Wilson's sufferings of the reverend Mr. Alexander Wilson minister sufferings. at Cameron, in the presbytery of St. Andrews, from which he was ejected with others. About the beginning of November this year an order was procured by Sharp from the council, requiring the magistrates of Cowpar to banish Mr. Wilson and his family from that town in forty eight hours after they received the orders. The intimation of this came to their hands on Saturday, when at the preparation fermon before the facrament to be dispensed by the episcopal minister next day, so that they had patience till Monday, when the magistrates came to Mr. Wilson, and intimated the orders to his wife, for he had thought proper to withdraw. They commanded her to leave the town in 24 hours. There was no withstanding. Six small children, with one of them lick, could procure no favour. She therefore removed to a neighbour's house that very night, and next day the doors of her own house were secured; so that with the utmost difficulty she could get as much of her own furniture as could serve her necessity; and, had it not been for the lady Preston-hall, Mr. Wilson must have had no shelter. However, he survived his troubles, and returned to his flock at Cameron after the revolution.

elend a annerging the anderentity to the the grade and rest of a contract of the rest of the series

CHAP.

the befo ed l refo tion fhal

> C the cou inte and vive lan

> > C

vid

prif fet : fecu call felf A last

forc

natu the ing Tha fice with are.

vag to n othe the.

of a

or c

CHAP. XIV.

13.

ier

op

ns,

ohn

nad

old

ree

ere

ral

was

ne.

ken

the

the

ster

om

in-

by

of

hat ers.

day,

t to

hat

ites

his

hey

of

ov-

day

/ith

ur-

een

no

re-

P.

1679.

Of the profecutions for conventicles, and other branches of non-conformity, together with the violent death of the archbishop of St. Andrews, till the rising at Bothwel.

N the 2d of January 1679. the council wrote to the Masters archbishop of St. Andrews, and the bishops of of univer-Edinburgh and Aberdeen, enjoining them to call stites, &c. to take the masters of the universities, and other school-masters, oaths. before them, and oblige them to take the oaths appointed by law, and to deprive the recusants; for they were resolved that none should be intrusted with the education of youth but those of their own principles. We shall afterwards hear what was the effect of this.

On the 4th, Mr. T. Warner, who had been indulged to Mr. T. the parish of Balmaclellan, was summoned before the Warner. council for not keeping his confinement, conversing with intercommuned persons, and preaching at conventicles, and not appearing was outlawed. However, he survived this tragical period, and continued at Balmaclellan till the day of his death, 1716.

On the 9th Mris. Margaret Barclay, niece of Sir Da-Mris. vid Barclay of Collernie, who had for some time been in Parclay. prison at Edinburgh for being at private meetings, was set at liberty for the recovery of her health, upon giving security for 500 merks to return to jail by the 20th, if called, or when called, and mean while to confine her-ielf to her room under the same penalty. After many confultations held about the end of the Overtures lalt year, for suppressing the presbyterians, regulating the for supforces, collecting the cefs, and other things of the like preffing nature, at last, on the 9th of January, the committee of &c. the council for publick affairs agreed to fend the following overtures to his majesty for his approbation. That the council appoint sheriff-deputes, and other officers, to put the laws in execution, only against such as withdraw from publick ordinances, keep conventicles, are guilty of disorderly baptisms and marriages, harbour or converse with fugitive and intercommuned persons or vagrant preachers, and may renew the commissions given to noblemen, &c. in August 1677. * and give them such * p. 365. other instructions as they shall think proper. 2. That the foldiers have orders to disperse conventicles by force of arms, and be indemnified for killing or wounding, in

Cha

the

to trai

tati

laft

ed,

like

hov

wil

orde

mir

OW!

jor

to

non

and 167 wh

unc

to at l

fev

tion

car the

the

der

per

cou Vei

tol

utn

pri

pit

pre ing

fift

the

ny

. (

251,

1679. case any of these meetings make resistance when commanded to difmifs in the king's name. 3. That the foldiers have power to feize and imprison the preacher, and as many others as they can conveniently carry with them, until they find bail to answer for their crimes, &c. And, fays the overture, 'in regard the multitudes, who frequent these rendezvouses of rebellion, are such as they cannot all be seized, nor probation easily led against them, the foldiers be impowered to take from the rest of the persons found thereat (whom they cannot conveniently carry to prison) their upper garments, that the same may be a means of conviction, and an evidence against them; and that the foldiers be impowered to take all the arms that any persons shall be found to have at these seditions meetings, and the horses of any that shall have arms.' 4. That none be allowed to enter into the fecond class in colleges, nor received apprentices, till they oblige themselves to keep the church. 5. That his majesty would be pleased to order the council to see, that act 5. B. 125, ieff. 2. and act 2. feff. 3. of his first parl. * appointing magistrates and council of burghs, and others in publick trust, to take the declaration, and all the acts concerning pedagogues, chaplains and schoolmasters, discharging them to officiate without licence from their respective ordinaries, and the acts and proclamations of council published thereupon, be put in due execution. 6. That the king would order the lords of the treasury to pay 500 L. sterling, to any who should apprehend Mr. John Welsh; 3000 merks for apprehending of any of their preachers who are declared traitors; 2000 merks for each of those preachers who are declared fugitives or are intercommuned, and 900 merks for every other fieldpreacher. And, 7. that the council proceed against all the indulged ministers who do not observe their orders; and that, upon the decease of any of them, the vacancy be supplied by the orthodox ministers.

> These overtures for suppressing schism, &c. were all approved of by the council, and fent to his majesty, who ordered the council to put them in execution, which they did accordingly. - Whence we may fee the spirit of the then prevailing party, and that the execution of these things could not fail of exasperating people to the highest degree. Such powers given to the military were not only unprecedented, but entirely subversive of the liberties of the subject,

While

Chap. 14. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 429

While these things were in agitation, the council, on 1679. the 16th of January, wrote to Lauderdale, desiring him to interpole with the king to allow one of his frigates to Letters transport those under sentence of banishment to the plan- for a fritations. Mr. Peden and others, who had been fent off last year, having been set at liberty, as has been related, the granting this would for the future prevent the like: Whether this was complied with I know not; however, it is easy to see with what rigour they were willing to proceed against those whom they called diforderly persons.

On the 19th Mr. William Veitch (after the revolution Mr. minister at Dumfries) returning in the night-time to his Veitch own house to see his fick child, was apprehended by ma-bended. jor Oglethorp, carried to Morpeth jail, and notice fent to the court. He had been obliged to retire into the north of England, where he preached with great success, and met with many remarkable escapes since the year 1671.

1-

d

7, đ,

e-

1-

n,

ne ly

y

1;

13

us

ſs

ge

y 5.

k

1+ 7-

1.

0

r.

of 3

r 1-

11

;

ÿ

11

0 h

it

1

e

e

On the 23d, James Lawfon, a boy of 14 years of age, J. Lawwho had been imprisoned for being at conventicles (for fon a boy. under this administration no age was thought too young to be attacked) was, after some weeks confinement, set at liberty, the councillors being justly ashamed of such severity to a child.

The same day the council published a large proclama- Proclation against papists, but, like all others of this nature, no mation acare was taken by the bishops or judges to prosecute gainst pathem; only G. Young, a popish priest, was, by order of pists. the council, this day fent to the Bass. At the same sederunt the bishop of Galloway obtained the king's dispensation for non-residence.

On the 31st the king's letter of the 25th was read in Mr. council, ordering them to receive upon the borders Mr. Veitch. Veitch, then prisoner at Morpeth, and confine him to the tolbooth of Edinburgh, and proceed against him with the prisoner to Edinburgh.

When such oppressive measures were taken, it was Separatipity that any thing should have happened to divide on from presbyterians among themselves; but the indulgence be-the induling accepted by some, and refused by others as inconfiltent with their principles, they who had not complied therewith looked upon it as their duty to bear testimomy against it; and several at this time began, more utmost feverity of law. He was accordingly brought in

than

C

u

G

b

by

ar

W

7

le

bi

ar

hi

B ſŧi

da

00

M

M

of

CO

CO

an

be

Sc

M

ver

the

pu

ing

bif

YE

cei

until

1679, than was formerly done, to preach up separation from the indulged. And indeed no attempts were able to reconcile many of these people to those who had given into such a course of defection, as they justly looked upon the indulgence to be. Nay, considerable numbers broke off from the indulged; and however some may condemn their conduct, yet they, no doubt, acted confistent with their principles. Nevertheless some vacant parishes privately called presbyterian ministers to fettle among them, as Mr. Matth. Crawfurd to Eastwood, and Mr. Neil Gillies to Greenock.

Schoolmafters, ed out.

Procla-

gainst

Mr.

GC.

On the 6th of February the council ordered the magistrates of Edinburgh, and other patrons, to turn the &c. turn-following persons out of their charges, unless they take the oaths on or before the first of March next, viz. messrs. Alex. Dickson, professor of Hebrew in the college of Edinburgh, Alex. Herriot master of the highschool of Edinburgh, Geo. Sinclair school-master in South-Leith, Geo. Allan his affiftant, Alex. Strang schoolmaster in the Canongate, John Govan his assistant, with 7am. Scot junior, the bishop of Edinburgh having given information that those persons had not conformed: Notwithstanding several, if not all of these, chose rather to undergo a course of suffering than comply. The same day Sir Patrick Home of Polwart was fent from Dumbarton to Stirling castle, and out of their great goodness they allowed his lady to be in the room with him.

The fame day a proclamation was iffued, offering the mation a- rewards specified in the fixth of the foregoing overtures. How strange was it, that they, who called themselves protestant bishops, should thus persecute and Welsh, harrass the greatest enemies to popery in the nation, while, in the mean time, several popish priests and fe-fuites were now fent down from England!

To execute these, and other laws of the same nature, powers to the new levied forces were ordered west at the particuthe forces, lar defire of the prelates, some of them to ly at Glafgow, in order to prevent the preaching of the gospel in private houses, or the adjacent fields; and, on the 13th of February, the army was dispersed through the fouthern and western shires, in the best manner they could, for suppressing field-assemblies. And the council, the better to accomplish their wicked deligns, ordered the officers and foldiers, whenever they faw any number of people together in the fields, to apprehend them until they gave bond, and obliged themselves, under certain penalties, to live orderly, keep their parish churches, and not go afterwards to conventicles, &c. The same day the council ordered the committee for publick affairs to nominate a sew of their number to be a secret committee, with power to order whom they pleased to be apprehended.

Two days after this, Mr. Patrick Simpson, the indul-Mr. ged minister at Kilmacolm, was ordered to be denounced Simpson for not answering to his summons; but it would seem he gave a necessary excuse, for he continued in the peaceable exercise of his ministry at that place several years thereafter.

On the 18th the magistrates of Glasgow were ordered Other fuf. by the council to turn Mris. Blackwel out of her house, ferers for and take possession of it. Her husband, Mr. T. Black-coventiwel, had been declared fugitive. The same day Mr. cles, &c. John Wallace, the indulged minister at Largs, was called before the council; though no proof could be brought against him, yet, because he was not free to answer one of their ensnaring questions, they declared his indulgence void. At the same time the parishioners of Balmaclellan were discharged from paying any more stipend to Mr. Warner till farther orders. The same day Gordon of Earlstoun, Gordon of Holm, Gordon of Overbar, Neilson of Corfack, MarCartney of Blaiket, Maxwel of Hills, Hay of Park, MacDougal of Freuch, MacDougal of Corrochtree, James Johnstoun late provost of Stranrawer, William Spittle at Port, ____ Johnstoun collector there, Mr. William Cathcart and John Inglish commissary of Kirkcudbright, being summoned to answer for conventicles and harbouring intercommuned persons, and not appearing were all ordered to be declared rebels, and outlawed.

Two days after William Page was fined in 1000 1. Some fine Scots, John Arnot in Greentide in 500 merks, and Geo. ed. Marshal in Balvaird in 1001. Scots, for being at field-conventicles, and they were ordered to ly in prison till they paid their fines.

On the 22d Mr. Veitch was before the committee for Mr. publick affairs. Sharp presided, and put many ensnar Veitch ing questions to him, in which he was seconded by the examined, bishop of Edinburgh; such as, Have you taken the Covenant? He replied, This honourable board may perceive that I was not of age to take the COVENANT when 300

CI

fhi

pe

T

on

to

tle

to

mee

del

wh

ry

riff

her

arn

wo

the

the

bur

wh

fub

fear

I

1679. you and other ministers of Scotland tendered it. In short. he figned his examination; and though there was nothing found to militate against him, yet they gave it as their opinion that he should be fent to the Bass till the king's pleasure be known, because he was forfeited for what they called the rebellion in 1666. and when the council fat, on the 25th, they approved of the judgment of their committee.

On the 25th of February John Inglis was turned out from being commissary of Kirkcudbright, but was afterglis. wards remitted to the bishop of Galloway, to be reponed as he faw cause.

The army being to march being at this time, the council ordered them to be furnished with ammunition; and the fame day appointed fome, who attended the fessionhouse as agents, who were suspected to correspond with the outlawed ministers, and others, to be called before their committee, and give fecurity for their good behaviour for the future, or take the oath of allegiance, or else be banished the town of Edinburgh. They likeways ordered Pat. Glass, who had been prisoner these four years past, to be set at liberty on his paying 200 L. of the fine imposed upon him; and that the town-major have 58 L. sterling for taking Mr. Mosman, whom they called a vagrant preacher.

On the 27th they ordered a letter of thanks to be wrote to the earl of Seaforth, for his diligence in suppressing conventicles in the most northern parts.

The same day Mr. Sam. Nairn, brother to the laird Mr. of Sanford, Mr. Jam. Rymer in Pitlochie, Jam. Thomp-Dalrym-son, -- Miller, Will. Beltie, Tho. Ness, Jam. Ness, ple, &c. Joh. Wisheart, and Dav. Heady, were summoned before the council for conventicles, and not appearing were denounced and put to the horn. The fame day Mr. James Dalrymple, who had been ordained by prefbyterian ministers was informed against for preaching in the fields and in private houses in Edinburgh, particularly in the house of one James Fea. This James Fea and other of the hearers were fined in 100 merks each, and the process continued against Mr. Dalrymple.

> In order to profecute the overtures before mentioned, the council, on the 27th of February, agreed upon a lift of commissioners to execute the laws against the protestant non-conformists, gave them instructions to use the utmost rigour, and named deputes in the several fhires,

Pat. Glass.

> min row wan fron wer wor not > > left the fear in a fuch offer his '

afte

fron ther eithe time whe at L

to a

11

d

n

it

.

h

r

r

r

f

thires, each cloathed with the power of a justice of 1679.

peace, who had an army to assist and support them.

The curious reader may see the lists and their instructions at large in Wodrow, vol. 2. p. 14. being too long to be inserted here.

About the beginning of March the forces were fettled in the particular places assigned them, with orders to purfue and fearch for those who frequented fieldmeetings, to kill all who refifted them, to imprison and deliver to magistrates, or send in to the council, all whom they apprehended. A party of these military reformers seized about 23 countrymen in the parish of Evandale, several of whom were poor shepherds, and made them swear, whether they saw any armed men going up and down for a month past. It would be endless to mention all their outrages, how they destroyed the corn with their horses, threw what they could not use into the rivers in some places, and burn it in others; so that the laws then in being were wholly subversive of the liberties and properties of the subject. These were the fruits of prelacy in Scotland!

Lord Ross and other officers of the army made a strict fearch, through the west and south, for intercommuned ministers, field-preachers, and others, so that many narrowly escaped, and were put to no small difficulties, in wandring from place to place to conceal themselves from their cruel enemies. However, at this fearch, there Searches were only two taken, viz. Mr. Archibald MacLean, a for interworthy old minister, who was so infirm that he could communnot get out of the way, and Mr. William Kyle, who fons, &c. after the revolution was a minister in Galloway. They left off fearching, for a few days, in hopes of furprifing the non-conformists. Accordingly, all of a sudden, the fearch was renewed, and Mr. John Law * was taken * p. 356. in a house bolonging to the laird of Kincaid. And fuch was the cruelty of these men, that, though he offered all manner of fecurity to furrender at pleafure, his wife being at the point of death, yet they were deaf to all he could fay, hurried him to Edinburgh, and from thence to the Bass, and, while on the road thither, he was never suffered to be alone, to commend either himself or his dying spouse to God. About this time there was a strict search made in Edinburgh, where Mr. Geo. Barclay (after the revolution minister at Uphall) was apprehended and put into the guard-

(

I

d

h

de

tr

0

T

th

F

th

ro

an

w

fe

lat

ki

lan

ra

Ita

mi

wl

mi

Spe

an

for me

the

per aff

the

the

lan

bil

CO

rel

till

1679. house. However, he got out of a window, and made his escape, but afterwards endured many trials and preservations, sometimes in foreign countries, sometimes in the north of England, and sometimes in Scotland. Mr. Robert Ross and Mr. James Mac Aulay were taken at Leith and fent to the Bass.

While these things were transacting, dame Margaret Stuart, and her husband Sir William Fleming of Ferm, Ferm. were brought before the council on the fourth of March. This lady was accused of being at several conventicles, and owning the charge Sir William was fined in 4000 merks.

English offairs. Burnet.

Rapin.

Lady

But, as the English parliament fat down March 6th, I must take a view of some things on the south of the Tweed. The king had diffolved his last parliament in hopes to obtain a more pliable house of commons; but the elections were carried with great heat, and went every where almost against the court; for the people being discontented, and full of suspicions and fears, chose representatives the most averse to popery and arbitrary government. The king, to suppress these suspicions, affected an extraordinary severity against the papists; but this was too frequent an artifice to be capable of persuading the people that his majesty was truly zealous for the protestant religion.

The duke Sent abroad. Burnet, P. 452.

When the time for the meeting of parliament drew of York near, his majesty, perceiving a storm gathering against the duke of York, by the advice of the earl of Danby, thought proper to fend him abroad. ' Before he went away the king gave him all possible satisfaction with relation to the duke of Monmouth, who was then become very popular, feveral giving it out that he was the king's lawful fon: But his majelty made a folemn declaration in council, and both figned it, and took his oath on it, that he was never married nor contracted to that duke's mother, nor to any other woman except to his present queen. The duke of York went first to Holland, and then to Bruffels, where he met with a cold reception.' However, he had this to comfort him, that the king had given affurance that he never would confent to any thing in prejudice of his right of succession.

Shaft fbury's Speech.

There was at this time a great opposition to the duke of Lauderdale, and the administration of affairs in Scotland, as very much favouring popish defigns. The earl of Shaftsbury had a very remarkable speech in the house

of

d

c

-

7,

of 1-

1-

1,

e

n

it

e

3,

.

-

-

y

ft

,

t

e

n

t,

S

t

d

g

y

1 è

of lords, in which, among other things, he faid, ____ 1679. Popery and flavery, like two fifters, go hand in hand. In England popery was to bring in flavery, in Scotland flavery was to go before, and popery was to follow. I do not think that your lordships, or the parliament, have jurisdiction there. It is a noble and ancient kingdom; they have an illustrious nobility, a gallant gentry, Gc. But yet we cannot think on England as we ought without reflecting on the condition they are in. They are under the same prince, and the influence of the fame favourite and counfels, and are hardly dealt with. Can we that are the richer expect better usage? For it is certain, that, in all absolute governments, the poorest countries are most favourably dealt with, when the ancient nobility and gentry cannot enjoy their royalties. -- If the council-table there can imprison any nobleman or gentleman for feveral years, without bringing him to a trial, or giving the least reason for what they do, can we expect the same will ever preferve the liberties of the subjects here? - They have lately plundered the richest and best countries of that kingdom, by having brought down the barbarous Highlanders to devour them, and all this without any colourable pretence; nor can there be found out a reason of state for what they have done, but that their wicked ministers designed to procure a REBELLION at any rate; which, as they managed it, was only prevented by the miraculous hand of God. - My lords, I am forced to speak this the plainer, because, till the pressure be fully and clearly taken off from Scotland, it is not possible for me, or any thinking man, to believe that good is meant us here, &c.'

The house of commons, being justly apprehensive of Bill of the danger the nation was in from the increase of po-exclusion. pery, the encouragement the papists secretly received, Rapin, and, above all, from the duke of York, who, by the afferters of the liberties of England, was looked upon as being at the bottom of all the mal-administrations they wanted to get rid of, prepared a bill for excluding the duke from succeeding to the imperial crown of England, and bringing in the next protestant heir. This bill was twice read in the house, and ordered to be committed by 207 against 128. But his majesty, not relishing these proceedings, prorogued the parliament till the 14th of August, by which means the exclusion-

hill

C

h 6

ir

tl

fr

at

W U

271 fu

th

CC

be ec

th

ba

VE

for of

De

of

SI

1p M

fu

de

th

as

th

T

pl:

en fue

ca

the ed

1679. bill was defeated for a time. Thus we fee what a brave Itand these English patriots made at this time for their religion and liberties. They well knew, and the whole nation afterwards found, how inconfistent a popish prince over a protestant people was for securing either the liberties of the subject, or the protestant religion. But it is now time to return to the affairs of Scotland.

Mr. Veitch.

Major

beat.

On the 11th of March the council wrote to Landerdale concerning Mr. Veitch, to know his majesty's pleafure, especially since, as they declared, he was not found in any crime, and offered to prove that he was in Edinburgh at the time of Pentland. Mean while they order-

The same day the council wrote to Lauderdale, 'That ed him to the Bass.

Johnston 18 or 20 armed men, prompted by the bloody principles of their traiterous books, sent for major Johnston to the house of one Mris. Crawford, a known and most irregular fanatick, and, at his entry, discharged several shots at him, and those he had with him; after which, with drawn fwords, they beat, bruifed, and threatned to kill him, if he would not swear never to dissipate conventicles; which he having refused, according to his duty, they mortally wounded him, and fome that were with him.' But, however the matter might have been thus represented to them, yet it was aggravated beyond the truth. The case was, That two or three persons, whom the major bore hard upon for their non-conformity, in order to have a little revenge, got some to give him notice of a meeting where they were to be, and, when he went thither, heartily drubbed him, but there was nothing like mortal wounds. However, this was looked upon as a high crime and misdemeanour, and a proclamation was iffued for apprehending the guilty, and a handle made to profecute the innocent; for the same day they made an act, ordering lists to be given in to the magistrates of all the lodgers in Edinburgh every night, and that the wives and families of all outed ministers be turned out of the town by the 21st of March:

Nay, they enacted farther, that all persons who were fummoned, shall, in case of not appearing, be reputed guilty, and fined. On the 18th of March Mr. Veitch was ordered to be Veitch. profecuted before the justiciary on the 24th; at which time he was brought to the bar, and prayed that he might be allowed advocates to plead for him, and that his

Mr.

4.

ve

ir

le

ce li-

ut

7-

a-

ıd

11-

r-

at 1-

on oft

al

h,

ed

te

IIS

re

en

nd

18,

ty,

m en

as k-0-

nd

to

i-

1:

re

be

ch

ne at

18

his case might be laid before his majesty. The lords, not 1679. being willing to pass sentence of death upon a forseiture in absence 13 years ago, as some would have had them, postponed the matter till the 8th of April; and, when they met then, they farther delayed it till June, and from that to July, when we shall meet with him again.

Mean while, on the 30th, there was a large meeting Convenat Cumberhead near Lanerk. A party was sent to disticles mear perse it, but, understanding their strength, they con-Lanerk. tented themselves with risling some women, as they went, of their plaids and bibles, and seizing some men. Upon this a considerable body went from the meeting in arms, and demanded the prisoners. The officer refusing to comply a scusse happened, wherein the commander was wounded, and some taken prisoners, whom they very soon released. This occasioned the adjacent country to be much harraffed for feveral weeks.

In the mean time, on the 2d of April, the council, Landlords being informed of conventicles in Edinburgh, refoly-projecuted. ed to profecute the landlords of those houses where they were held. Accordingly one George Turnbull, a baker, was fined in 300 1. Scots, because of three conventicles faid to be kept in the chamber of Isabel Crawford one of his tenants. At the same sederunt Gordon Gentlemen of Craichlaw younger, and his spouse, Gordon of Col- and lidies vennan, MacGhie of Drumbuy, Ramfay of Boghouse, dame of Gal-- Stuart lady Castlestuart, MacGhie of Larg, Heron loway deof Littlepark, Dunbar younger of Machiemore, Archibald nounced. Stuart of Canseyend, Anthony Heron in Wigg and his spouse, Stuart of Tondergie, MacGhie in Penningham, MacMillan in Craigwell, —— Stuart of Ravenstoun and his lady, together with —— provost of Wigtoun, were fummoned for non-conformity, and, not appearing, were denounced and put to the horn. And it is observable, that the episcopal incumbents sent lists of such persons as these to Edinburgh, urging the council to prosecute them, fo that great numbers were denounced in ablence. These severe proceedings obliged many to wander from place to place, and therefore no wonder though they embraced the first opportunity to relieve themselves from fuch oppressions.

The accounts of the scuffle at Lanerk, on the 30th last, Proceedcame to the council on the third of April, aggravating ings of the the matter to the last degree; upon which they order-council. ed preparations to be made for sending soldiers to those parts.

Ch

do

the

if '

thi

ma

acc

tha

tak

lig

de

me

fen

mi

fuc

the

wit

per

the

ces

thi

tin

woo

tit

yea

ren

bel

COI

COI

fpr

in'

fen

the

liti

or

mil

frie

the

any par

pri

int

ing

rio

be

1679. parts. The fame day they appointed William Carmichael. theriff-depute of Fife, to proceed against the non-conformists in Fife. His violent oppressions were such, that feveral were provoked to refolve on cutting him off; but, missing him, they fell upon the archbishop of St. Andrews, as we shall hear. At the same time orders were given to the sheriff-deputes of Fife and Kinross to call before them those who were concerned in rescuing Mr. Walter Denoon from a party that was carrying him to Edinburgh.

Argyll's commiffion.

Next day a committee was appointed to examine into the affair of the scuffle in Lanerk; the earl of Argyll had his majesty's thanks for securing the peace of the Highlands, and on the 12th a commission was granted to his lordship to use his utmost endeavour to disarm the papists there, particularly lord MacDonald, Keppoch, MacLean of Torlaish, MacLean of Ardgoner, and Mac-

Lean of Berlois, or others suspected of popery.

Two folled.

On the 25th the committee appointed to examine indiers kil- to the affair of Lanerk met there; upon their strictest inquiry could find nothing but what has been related; only, in their report which was given in to the council, they mentioned the murder of two foldiers near Newmills, which was charged unjustly upon the suffering party. The actors were not known, only there was great reason to suspect one John Scarlet, a person of a most infamous character. I shall only trouble the reader with the circumstances of this murder. The fact was certain, and the noblemen, heritors and gentlemen of the shire of Ayr, where it was committed, met on the 28th, and fent in a letter to the council fignifying their abhorrence of it, and their diffatisfaction with armed conventicles, and with some of the doctrines preached at them.

State of fieldmeetings.

The reader has feen that it was necessity, and the great law of felf-preservation, that obliged people to go armed to those meetings, for their better security against the soldiers who were fent to disperse them; and, as they looked upon the indulgence as inconsistent with presbyterian principles, and the cefs as an unlawful tax, imposed with no other design than to suppress the meetings of the Lord's people for publick worship, and persecute those who could not in conscience comply with prelacy; fo it is not to be wondered though they warned their hearers against complying with these things. How far they may have exceeded I cannot determine. No doubt,

doubt, had they observed the rules of carnal prudence, 1679. they would both have delisted from meeting together, or, if they did meet, have been altogether filent as to these things. But what could be expected from men who made conscience of their principles, and on that very account were made to fuffer all manner of hardthips, than that they would bear testimony against every method taken by their perfecutors to overturn their civil and religious liberties, and that they would use their utmost to defend themselves? Accordingly, finding that small meetings were more exposed to danger than larger affemblies, they therefore altered their method, and determined to confine themselves to one meeting, and that in fuch places which they thought stood in most need of the gospel, and where they might affemble and preach with greater fafety. It is true many ferious and good people, ministers as well as others, did not chuse to take these methods. Mr. Welsh, &c. preached in those places where there were but few that came armed. And in this lituation matters with respect to field-meetings continued from December till May.

4. 1,

at

t,

II

r.

O

0 11

le

d

e

b,

-

ft

s,

n

IS .

d

a

t,

t

-

3

e

r

r

In the beginning of April the worthy Mr. James Wel- Mr. wood, brother to Mr. Andrew, author of a treatise in- Weltitled The glimpse of glory, died at Perth, in the 30th wood. year of his age. The night after he died his corps were removed from John Barclay's house into a private room belonging to one Janet Hutton, till his friends might confult about his funeral, that John Barclay might not come to trouble for concealing him. It was quickly fpread abroad that an intercommuned preacher was dead in the town; upon which the magistrates ordered a mesfenger to go and arrest the corps, and would not suffer them to be interred at Perth, but ordered the town militia to be raised, and imprisoned John Price, box-master or treasurer to the gildry, for refusing to give out the However, the magistrates allowed his militia arms, friends to carry the corps out of the town, and bury them where they pleased without their precincts; but any of the town's people who were observed to accompany the funeral were apprehended and committed to prilon. At last the corps were with great difficulty interred in the church-yeard of Drone. This is a lasting evidence of the tyranny of the managers in this period, who would neither suffer the persecuted people to be at peace when alive, nor to be buried when dead.

On

Ch

abo

Ke

and

hal

fee pio

fuc

dor

bec

for

me

tur litt

me dri

My

me

har

wh

coa

CO

rog

wa

we

we the

WO

wh

tur

ad

the

cal

da

lov

rib

the af

blo

dra rel

up

CO

you

6

1679. On the 1st of May the council, being alarmed with the accounts they received concerning the persons who at-Linlith- tended the field-meetings in arms, gave authority to the gow im- earl of Linlithgow to order a party of horse, foot and dragoons to pursue messrs. Welsh, Cameron, Kid, or Douglass, and their followers, to seize and apprehend all who attend their conventicles, and, in case of resistance, to purfue them to the death. The execution of these orders occasioned the rising that fell out next month, as we shall relate.

Inchdarnie killed .

On the 3d, while a party of horse was riding furiously to Cowpar of Fife, Andrew Ayton younger of Inchdarnie, going to his aunt's the lady Murdocairnie, perceived them, and rode hard to escape. One of them, observing this, broke from the rest by order of the commander, and, without asking any questions, fired at the young gentleman, and mortally wounded him, for two balls went through his body. Such was the cruelty of this party, that, though his relation Sir John Ayton fent to Cowpar for a surgeon, they ordered, that no surgeon should leave the town without permission; nay, they fent some of their number to bring him that night to Cowpar. On the way he fainted four times through the effusion of blood. The magistrates suffered him to be carried to an inn, where he died next morning, and heartily forgave the foldier by whom he was murdered. This pious youth was but 18 years of age, and had for fome time been intercommuned. When he went with others to visit Mr. James Welwood on his death-bed, and gave him an account of the tyranny and wickedness of Sharp, Mr. Welwood faid, You'll shortly be quit of him, and he'll get a sudden and sharp off-going, and ye will be the first that will take the good news of his death to heaven; which came literally to pals.

The archbishop's death.

For, on this 3d of May, Mr. JAMES SHARP, archbishop of St. Andrews, came to his untimely end. There were feveral accounts given of this remarkable event. It will be fufficient to my present purpose to lay before the reader the substance of what was published by the authority of the council, taken from the bishop's daughter and his fervants who were prefent, and the fubstance of those given by the actors concerned, by which means he will have the narrative of both fides. The substance of what was published by authority is as follows.

on.

-

e

t-

e

d

1-0

r-

rs

re

0, d

g

r,

g ls

18

O

n

y

0 ne

oe

d d.

r

h

d of

nd

be

;

i-

re

t.

re

ne h-

b-

ch

10 ıl-

n

On the 3d of May this excellent PRELATE, 1679. about nine o'clock in the morning, took his coach in Kennoway ---- accompanied only with four of his fervants, The acand his eldest daughter in the coach with him. About count of it half an hour before he was attacked, his great foul, it as publishfeems, presaging what came to pass, he fell on a most thority. pious and ferious discourse to his daughter, giving her fuch pious instructions and directions as he would have done if upon his death-bed; whereunto she gave such becoming and fatisfactory answers, that he embraced and formally bleffed her. Afterwards coming near to a farmer's house called Magus, he says, There lives an ill-natured man, God preserve us, my child. Within a very little time after, the coachman, perceiving some horsemen on the spur after them, calls to the postilion to drive on, for those men had no good in their minds. My lord finding the coach run fo hard, looked out to fee what the matter was; and then perceiving armed men pursuing, he, turning to his daughter, faid, Lord have mercy upon me, my poor child, for I am gone. Upon which presently three or four of the rustians fired at the coach, but touched neither of them in the coach. The coachman put faster on, and outrun the most part of the rogues (my lord's own servants, of which the best armed was wounded in the head by a fword, being mounted on weak hackney horses, had fallen behind before this, and were disarmed at the first coming up) while at last one of the best mounted overhighed the postilion, and by wounding him on the face, shooting the coach-horse which he led in the back, and cutting him in the hams, turned the coach out of the way, and gave the rest the advantage to come up. Then they fired again: One of them had his pistol so near my lord, that the burning calfing was left on his gown, and was rubbed off by his daughter, which wounded him two or three inches below the right clavicle, in betwixt the second and third ribs; and then another of them, on the other fide of the the coach, run him upon the region of the kidneys with a imall fword; thereafter they called, Come out, cruel and bloody traitor; but not any offered to lay hands upon or drag him out of his coach, as is fallly reported in the relation, the affassins being all yet on horseback; whereupon, most composedly, he opened the door of the coach himself, and stept out; and then said, Gentlemen, you will spare my life, and whatever else you are pleased to Kkk

C

in

lo

ch

th

fe

ge

tur

he

pe lie

all

the

AI

co

the

the

the

wh

ha

tin

rel

pr

the

wh

wa

or rec

be fay

lec

Or

Wa

CO

th

Wa

an

We

1679. do you shall never be questioned for it. They told him there was no mercy for a Judas, an enemy and a traitor to the cause of Christ. Well then, said he, I shall expect none from you; but promise to me to spare my poor child, directing his speech to one, whom it is suspected, by looking him broad in the face, he knew; and reaching forth his hand to him, the bloody villian starts back from my lord, and, by a mighty blow, cut him more than half through the wrift. Then faid my lord, I hope you will give me some time to pour out my soul to God, and I shall alfo pray for you; and presently falling on his knees, he faid, Lord forgive them, for I do. Lord receive my Spirit. While thus praying on his knees, (one of the traitors, standing some paces off, called to the rest, Spare those gray hairs) and his hands lifted up, they struck furiously at him, and wounding him therein in three places, which nevertheless he kept up bleeding to heaven, while one of them cut him to the very bone, a little above the left eye; whereupon my lord faid, Now you have done the turn; then falling foreward he stretched himself out, and laid his head on his arm, as if he had been to compose himself for sleep, when some of the villains from their horses, and others a-foot (having alighted) gave him about fifteen or fixteen wounds in the head, and, in effect, the whole occipital part was but one wound; after which they rifled his pockets, and took some papers out of them; and fo mad was their spite and rage, that even after he was dead, and the murderers gone fome way from the body, one of the furious and bloody assassins returned, and thrust twice or thrice at him with a fword. They robbed his daughter of fome gold and other things she had in a little box, (they had wounded her, thrusting at her father, betwixt whom and them fhe had interposed herself, by a stab in her thigh and one of her thumbs) then they took away my lord's nightbag, &c. They also robbed his servants, and took their arms from them; and then went away as they came. - Thus fell that excellent prelate.'-

The reader will now expect the account of this matter from the papers and relations of the actors concerned.

During the last and current year the persecution was most severe in the county of Fife, and particularly William Carmichael was impowered to seek for and prosecute all non-conformists and intercomuned persons in that shire. Besides his apprehending, sining and imprison-Carmichael's cruelty.

ing

42 im

tor

ect

di-

k-

rth

my

alf

vill

al-

he it.

rs,

ose

ıf-

es,

ile

he

ne

ıt,

nm

ve

d,

١;

a-

e, ıe

y

th

d

d

m

t-

ir

e.

r

18

-

t

ing multitudes, it was his custom to seize servants, and 1679. put siery matches between their singers, together with several other methods of torture, in order to force them to discover where their masters were, or any thing belonging to them. He would likeways beat women and children to make them inform against their husbands and parents; not to mention rapes, adulteries, and other instances of abominable wickedness.

As the suffering people had no legal way of redress, Resolution several of the wanderers of this shire, being deprived of of the the protection of the laws of their country, resolved to wanderget rid of Carmichael; and for this purpose fixed on Saturday the third of May, when, as they were informed, he was to be a hunting. Accordingly, about nine of these persons, some of them being gentlemen of good samilies, upon the day appointed, searched for him through all the country round Cowpar, but to no purpose.

While they were talking of separating and quitting They retheir project, they were informed by a boy that the folve to ARCHBISHOP's coach was at Ceres, and in a little would kill the come that way. This much surprised them, that, when shop, they were just parting and giving over their fearch for the fervant, the master should come in the way, even their arch enemy and source of all their miseries. which one of them faid, It feems he is delivered into our hands, and proposed to embrace this opportunity for cutting him off, and that one should have the command of the Mr. Hackstoun of Rathillet being relt for that purpole. present, this burden was laid on him; but he opposed the motion, and would have no hand in what followed. whether because it was a matter of blood, as to which he was not clear in his own mind, as my author affirms, or if, as others alledge, it was because that he having received personal injuries from the archbishop, it might be thought that he did it in revenge, I cannot certainly

By this time they were come to a little village cal- They floot led Magus, where they discovered the bishop's coach. his coach. One of them, on a swift horse, rode up to see if Sharp was in it. The bishop observing him, cried out to the coachman to drive on. The gentleman hearing this threw off his cloke and pursued at full speed, as likeways did the rest, only Rathillet kept at a distance, and did not at all engage in the action. While they were thus pursuing in Magus-muir, Wallace, one of the bishop's

1679. bishop's servants, turned upon them and cocked his piece; but some of them coming up soon dismounted and difarmed him; and, as the coach was driving furiously away, they fired their muskets, but could not stop it, till the person on the swift horse came up to the coach, crying out, Judas, Be taken. The primate called with the greater violence, Drive, drive, drive; but at last they cut the traces of the coach and stopt

The dif-By this time the rest were come up, and found the paffed, course that bishop's daughter with him in the coach, and therefore the captain ordered him to come out, that no harm might come to her, whom they had no intention to hurt. This he refused; whereupon two of them, the rest being engaged in dismounting and securing his fervants, fired upon the bishop, while his daughter was shrieking and crying most bitterly. But finding that he was not touched, the captain commanded him to come out; and, while the bishop lingred, and cried for mercy, the commander faid, ' I take God to witness, whose cause I desire to own in adhering to the persecuted gospel, that it is not out of any hatred of your person, nor from any prejudice you have done or could have done to me, that I intend now to take your life, but because you have been and still continue to be an avowed opposer of the gospel and kingdom of Christ, and a murderer of his faints, whose blood you have shed like water.' Another said, & Repent, Judas, and come out.' The bishop replied, ' Gentlemen, save my life, and I will fave your's.' The first answered, 'I know it is not in your power to fave us or to kill us; I again declare, it is not any particular feud or quarrel I have at you, which moves me to this attempt, but because you are an enemy to Christ and his interest, and have wrung your hands in the blood of his faints, not only after Pentland, but several times since; and particularly for your perjury and shedding the blood of Mr. James Mitchel, and having a hand in the death of James Learmont, and your perfidious betraying of the church of Scotland. These crimes, added he, and that blood, cry with a loud voice to heaven for vengeance, and WE are this day to execute it.' And again he ordered him to come out, and prepare for death, judgment and eternity. The bishop still refused, and cried for mercy, and offered him money. The captain faid, Thy

Thy money perish with thee; and told him he allowed 1679. him time to pray, and commanded him again to come out. The bishop still refused. One of them at a distance cried out, ' Seeing there have been so many lives unjustly taken by him, for which there is not the least fign of repentance, we will not be innocent if any more be taken that way.'

14.

his

ted

ri-

op

the

ate

e:

pt

the ore

rm

to he

erras

nat

to

or ſs,

fe-

ur ild

fe,

an A, ve nd

ny I

s:

el

ut

nd ot

r-

of

of 10

at

e, r-

d

Then one of them fired a pistol at him in the coach, He came which did not touch him; and another wounded him out of the with a fword, at which he cried out, Fy, fy, I am gone; coach. but the wound was not mortal. At last, when he found they would force him out of the coach, he thought proper to come out. But by no means could they persuade him to pray, which much furprifed them. Then they discharged a shower of shot upon him, which made him fall back, fo that he lay as dead.

But one of them giving him a prick with his fword, Is killed. he raised himself. Then, being apprehensive that shooting would not do, the commander ordered them all to draw their fwords, upon which he made the most hideous and terrible shricks that ever were heard. At last the commander struck him with a shabble on the face, and one of his chops fell down. He tried to speak, but was not understood. They redoubled their strokes, and killed him outright. But they took nothing with them but arms and papers; and, after difmounting and difarming his fervants, they rode away in a body to a place three or four miles from Magus-muir, and continued till night, when they separated, and shifted for themselves the best way they could. When they reflected on what they had done, they were much surprised at their own prefervation, fince the whole was transacted between twelve and one at mid-day.

Thus fell archbishop SHARP. And the reader will Remarks, observe, that the main difference between the two accounts I have given consists in the bishop's carriage; the former represents him as a faint, and the latter as averse to any thing like preparation for death: But which of the two is most consistent with the carriage and behaviour of this prelate, through the former course of his life, must be left with the reader. This matter is most unjustly charged on the whole body of the presbyterians; nay, the actors themselves had no thoughts of making any attempt upon him, till, mif-ling Carmichael, his coach came in their way.

It

Ch the

wh

dil

th

tec

no de

bu Gu

bu

he

W3

ma

ou

of

ob bo

as

de

the

bil

up

pe th

th wh

of

fai

Ea

an va

in ac

ric

ot

up in

W

ho

ap

te

P. 76.

1679. It is faid that the bishop had several notices that he would come to an untimely end, as his having a remarkable dream to this purpose while at the university. But I shall not trouble the reader with these things. The action was much condemned. It was faid, That, let the bishop have been ever so bad, yet the actors had no right to pursue him to death; for none of them had the power of the fword, nor were in any publick judicative capacity, and confequently what they did was murder and affassination. On the other hand, it was faid, that, as the archbishop was a murderer and avowed persecutor of God's people, an apostate from, and a betrayer of the cause of Christ, and as it was not possible to have recourse to the magistrate for justice, the constitution of the government being overturned, the actors could not therefore be charged with murder, nor the action be esteemed any other but an extraordinary execution of the law of God against such a capital offender; besides, they looked upon themselves as in a state of war, and consequently as having a right to cut off their great enemy, by whom they and others were Gordon persecuted to death. An ingenious author has these on Taci- words in his political discourses. ' CESAR had viotus, vol. i. lated every tye that can bind the human foul, oaths, trust and law; he had violated every thing dear to human kind, their peace, liberty, rights and possessions. He did all this by means the most black and flagitious; by plots, faction, corruption, robbery, devastation, facrilege and flaughter. What was left to the oppressed Romans to do under the bonds of the oppressor with his sword at their throat? Law and appeals were no more; a tyrant was their master, the will of a tyrant their law. - In short, there was no other way of abolishing his tyranny, but by dispatching the tyrant.' How applicable this is to the present case must be left with the reader; only it is obvious, that, whether the actors were right or wrong, he met with the just reward of his deeds, and God was righteous in the providence. By his death new defigns of cruelty were prevented; for the last thing he did was his voting for and pushing a violent proclamation we shall hear of, dated the 1st of May; on the 6th he was to have gone to court to use his utmost for more cruel and rigorous methods of oppresfion against the sufferers: But my author justly remarks, that Saul, when breathing out cruelty against the the Christians, was converted; yet this apostate, tho' 16791 when doing the like, went to his own place.

It likeways deserves a remark, that, after the most None of diligent and exact fearch, none were ever apprehended the real that were actually concerned. They who were execu-afters apted on this account, on Magus-muir, afterwards, were prehended. Mr. Hackftoun of Rathillet was innoways acceffory. deed present, and afterwards taken and put to death; but we have heard how he behaved. One Andrew Guillan was likeways present, and afterwards executed; but all the hand he had was, that, living near the place, he was taken out of his house, held their horses, and was a witness of what was done.

Though this violent death of the archbishop was Whokilled made by a few private persons, and by them too with- the bishop. out any premeditated design, till they had information of his coach's coming that way, yet, as has been observed, it was unjustly laid to the charge of the whole body of the presbyterians, and particularly represented as one of the dismal effects of field-meetings, these rendezvouses of rebellion, as they were called. But, had they put the faddle on the right horse, if the archbishop's death was murder, they should have looked upon themselves as the murderers, in supporting that perfidious prelate in those arbitrary measures, whereby the spirits of the people were justly exasperated, and they constrained, in their own necessary defence, to do what they did. However, the managers never thought of those things, but made use of this as a handle for farther unheard-of severities.

Accordingly, when the news of this affair reached Procla-Edinburgh, the council met on Sabbath the 4th of May, mation for and, after taking the depolitions of the bishop's fer-apprehenvants, they published a long proclamation for discover- ding the ing and apprehending the persons concerned in this action; in which, after having displayed all their rhetorick in exposing the cruelty of the fact, they, among other things, ordered all persons in the shire of Fife, upon certain days, to meet at certain places mentioned in the proclamation, in order to be confronted by the witneffes; and fecured all who were under letters of horning, or intercommuned, from all danger of being apprehended for the space of 48 hours before and after the times appointed for their appearance; at the same time certifying, That whoever should not appear, should 1670, should be reputed either guilty or accessory. They likeways offered an indemnity to any of the affaffins who should discover their accomplices, and a reward of 10,000 merks to any who should inform who the assaffins were, to be paid upon their being apprehended or convicted. At the same time they wrote to the king and Lauderdale giving an account of these things. I shall make no remarks here, since all this is nothing but what might have been expected: But one would think they took a very improper method. For can any imagine that any concerned in this fact would ever appear at any of those meetings appointed in the proclamation?

J. Ar-

Mr. Ha- On the same day about 30 persons were hearing Mr. milton's William Hamilton at the house of Mris. Durham his resufferings. lation. They were all seized, and immediately committed to prison, where some continued a longer, and others a shorter time. Mris. Durham and Mris. Carstairs were released after a few days; but the managers were most cruel to the preacher; for, though he was feized with a flux, and presented a petition attested by two physicians, that his life was in hazard, praying that he might, for a little, have the benefit of the air, and offered any bail that could be defired, yet they rejected the petition, and affured his friends they would profecute him for house-tonventicles next council-day: but before that time he died in prison, and faved them the trouble. This excellent pious youth was brother to the laird of Halcraig, was no intercommuned person, nor was any thing ever laid to his charge, unless his

the laws of this period. Besides this instance of severity to a person who could have no accession to the bishop's death, vast fufferings, numbers were exceedingly harraffed in Fife and other places, particularly John Archer, tallow-chandler in Stramiglo, who had suffered much in his person and family fince 1674. He was, foon after the bishop's death, apprehended in his own house and sent prisoner to Edinburgh, without any reason assigned; neither could he think of the cause, till he was brought before the council, and charged with being accessory to the bishop's death. But though he cleared himself by many preaching once in a relation's house to a few friends after publick worship was over. For this conventicle the magistrates of Edinburgh were fined according to unex-

Chap. 13. CHURCH of SCOTLAND. 449

unexceptionable witnesses, who declared that he was 1679. in Edinburgh for several days before and after that fact, we yet it was with great difficulty he was set at liberty about the end of the year.

Mean while, on the 8th of May, the council emitted Proceeda proclamation, discharging all subjects to travel in arms ings of without a licence, except noblemen, landed gentlemen, the counand their children and servants travelling with them.

They likeways wrote to Lauderdale, giving him an account of their proceedings and diligence in apprehending those that were concerned in the death of the primate. They also ordered the earl of Linlithgow to dispose his forces in the best manner he could for suppressing conventicles, and made Adam Urquhart of Meldrum, for his diligence in their service, a justice of peace in the shire of Koxburgh, to act in conjunction with Henry Kerr of Graden; and afterwards he was made one in Teviotdale, the Merse and Selkirk.

While these things were a-doing, the committee for Of the publick affairs had impowered the sherisf-depute of Fife committee to secure and make an inventary of the goods of John affairs.

to fecure and make an inventary of the goods of John for publick Balfour of Kinloch, Hackstown of Rathillet, and the three Balfours of Gilfoun, as being most suspected of the affair of the archbishop, till they be apprehended and brought to a trial. They had also called before them ten perfons apprehended by Meldrum; two of whom, viz. Robert Neilson and Nichol Story, they remitted to the advocate, because of the discoveries they were supposed to make of Mr. Welfb. They found that the bail for Mr. Alex. Gordon had forfeited their bond by not producing him, and therefore had incurred the penalty of 5000 merks; that Mr. And. Kennedy of Clowburn be reputed guilty, and fined in 1000 merks, for refuling to fwear, (which was accordingly inflicted in a few days after) that Mr. John Law be dismissed, Bennet of Chesters be continued in prison, and Scot of Pitlochie be fummoned to appear the next council-day. The council approved of all this on the faid 8th of May.

On the 13th the council met, and received the king's Proclaletter, approving the draught of a proclamation against mation field-conventicles, which they ordered to be published. against By this proclamation, all judges and officers of the field-meetarmy were ordered to proceed against all who go to field-meetings with arms, as traytors, nay, and to execute the laws against those who go to field-meetings

111

a

v

e

W

F

ci

th

OI

bt

pa

pe

an

in

ly

in 1679. without arms; adding, 'We being fully convinced, by reason and experience, that those meetings do certains ly tend to the ruin and reproach of the christian religion and discipline, to the introduction of popery and herefy, the subversion of monarchy, and the contempt of all laws and government.' So that, by this proclamation, the officers of the army were, in a manner, either velted with the authority of judges, or else had power to harrafs or destroy the poor suffering people; which, in process of time, they actually did.

Sharp's legacy.

The draught of this proclamation was made on the first of this month, and very much pushed foreward by Sharp, and was the last publick deed in which he was concerned, though not published till after his death, for the council would not enact it till they had first got the king's approbation. However, this was the primate's legacy, and a specimen of what he would have done had he gone up to court. Can any then be furprised, when such sanguinary laws were made, that the people, diffressed by such a series of oppression should think of concerting measures to rescue themselves from the bondage of their oppressors? It is rather surprising that they bore those things so

Scot of GC.

On the 14th Mr. George Scot of Pitlochie was fined Pitlochie in 3000 merks for conventicles, and Mr. Patrick Simpfoir was turned out of Kilmacolm, where he had been indulged, for breach of confinement and keeping of conventicles; but afterwards he received a little more fayour. At the same time the council had a letter from theking, declaring that he will refent the bishop's death, and recommending to them to go on in their fearch for those concerned in it; to which they fent a very respectful answer.

Gr.

J. Spreul, On the 15th Mr. John Spreul writer in Glafgow, who had been some time in prison, and Mr. Robert Wylie, were both fet at liberty upon giving bond to appear when called; and the same day the council approved the overture, obliging heritors either to produce their tenants, or be liable for their delinquency.

Papifts o-

On the 27th the council wrote to his majesty, figniverlooked fying that the earl of Argyll had defired affiftance against the lord Mac Donald and the rebel papists : But, confidering the great increase of field-conventicles, they could not spare any of the standing forces; however, they they had iffued a proclamation against them; and or- 1679. dered the sheriffs of Dumbarton and Bute to join the earl. May not the reader here see, that our Scots e-piscopalians were more zealous in persecuting protestant non-conformists, than in suppressing popery?

The fame day the council approved the following Commitreport made to them from their committee for publick tee's reaffairs, viz. their ordering farther fearch to be made port apfor those who had killed the primate, and that witnesses proved. should be brought against Henry Schaw an intercommuned person; that they had dismissed upon bond the prisoners taken by Meldrum, except Neilfin and Story; that they had ordered the ladies Torwoodlie, Gallafhiels . and Newton younger, the laird and lady Ashiestiel, the lady Fernylie, Mris. Pringle and her daughter, with feveral other persons of meaner rank, who had been furprised at a conventicle by Claverhouse, to be summoned before the council; that they remitted Mr. Thomas Wilkie, the minister taken at that conventicle, and Mr. Francis Irvine, an intercommuned minister, to the council, by whom they were ordered to the Bass; and that they had ordered Mr. James Daes to pay his fine by the second Tuesday of June, and to re-enter the prison on that day. But before that time they had other business on their hands.

Thus I have finished the first part of this work. And, though it opens a black and dismal scene, yet the next part will give us a more horrible representation; for the persecution not only continued, but still grew more and more severe. It is our happiness we do not live in such times of slavery and oppression; but it is greatly to our reproach that we so wretchedly improve our invaluable privileges.

khey

The End of the First VOLUME.

On the 15th Mr. M. on on, and Mr. Nelest White elette ovecture, obifque honcors cuffer to produce their reagins or bu liable for their delinguency.

Also on the council wood to his majely chimi-

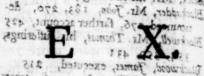

Confidering the great increase of negligible controls, they exceld not frage any of the thanding forces; movever, EXTYPE A R T TAK Dawn and the rebet sent : But Spread to the second second

-35

his examination before the om mons of England, 31, 3 net 11r John, his caous at me untilgence, 307, his de

Slack

Black

Black

Black

Blaik

Blair

Blair

Blatt

Blair

14 hi

1 fe Bon

1

31

t

E-3

t

Boo

Boo Bre

Bre

Bro

Bru 1

Bru

Bry

Bu

Bu

Bu

Bu

Bu

nobu

Sile

ined.

boiti

Bu

elmis,

Maria 3

WI

no Black 35

giet, Mr. his fufferings, 166

176, 360

his charafter of the country people,

Accommodation of Leighton, 277 Adair, Mr. William, minister, 129 Adam, William, banished, 239 Adam, William, merchant, 271 Advocates injured, 329

Aikenhead, James Hamilton of, his fuifferings, 162, 182, 353

Allegiance. See Oath Ancrum, parishioners, 164 Anderson, Alexander, his testimony, Anderson, Cornelius, turned executioner; 2de mber do dodd knore)

Anderson, James, banished, 244 Anderson, John of Dowhill, 362, 384 Anderson, Mr. Patrick, 403 Andrew, Robert, of Little-Tarbet, 70,

Annandale, reformation there, 401

Anniversary days, 76, 99 Archihald, Mr. Hugh, 248, 266, 286 Archibald, Mr. Robert, of Dunfcore,

Archbishops brought into the council, 145, in great power, 352

Argyll, earl of, 29, made a marquis, 32, the king's promise to him, 42, apprehended and sent to Scotland, 62, tried, 81, --- 86, condemned, 87, executed, 90, his head taken down, 168

Argyll, his fon, made a councillor, 166, his commission, 438, defired assistance, 451. See Lorn

Arkinglass, Campbell of, forfeited, 131, intercommuned, 134

Army offered to the king, 147, new one raised, 186, disbanded, 231, 406, more forces raised, 419

Arnot, captain, executed, 200 Arnot, Mr. Samuel, 183. forfeited, Arnot, William, his fufferings, 144

Boxwood, William Lagie of, treats Articles, lords of, 72. See Perth di BERDEEN, town of, de- Assembly, at Dundee, 14, Glassow, clined the covenant, page 28, 19, Westminster, 32. See General Academical degrees limited, Auftin, Mr. Samuel, ordered before the his case before the count &

Har, Mr. Jones, at Buthout, BAILLIE, Mr. Robert, of Jervif wood, fined, 351 Baillie, Mr. Robert, died of grief, 129

Baird, Mr. John, denounced, 301 Balhaufie, Geo. Hay of, exorbitantly fined, 285

Balloting act, 127
Balmaclellan, hardships on the heritors of, 260

Banished persons, 400, 410, 479, hipped off, 421, 422 Bannantyne, Sir William, his cruelties, 222, 223, his death, 245 Baptisms, irregular, acts against them, 247, 284 Barclay, colonel, 256 Barclay, Mr. George, 433 Barclay, Mris. Margaret, 427 Barfcob, MacLelland of, 189, 229 Bafs, ifland, made a prison, 282

Bates, doctor, poisoned Waristown, 148 Bedlane, Cuningham of, forfeited, 229, apprehended, 246, 281, 286, 354, releafed, 364

Beeth, Mr. Archibald, the curate, par-296 doned, Beeth-bill, field-meeting there, 270 Bell, Mr. John, 279, fixed, 301 Bennet of Chefters, 362, 450 Bennet, Mr. David, 43, 45 Bishops introduced by Palladius, 2 subject to the assembly, 9, restor-ed, 17, consecrated at London, offensive to all ranks, 24, deposed, 30, their characters after the restoration, 114, re-ordained, 115, confecrated, 123, admitted w. Sutherland's thoughts their complaints,

Black,

Black, Mr. his fufferings, 166 Blackadder, Mr. John, 183, 270, de-nounced, 276, farther account, 425 Blackwell, Mr. Thomas, his fufferings, 354, 259, 431 Blackwood, James, executed, 215 Blackwood, William Laurie of, treats with the west-country army, 193,

Blaket, MacCartney of, his fufferings, 189, 280

Blair, Mr. Alexander, profecuted, 129, his case before the council, 301 Blair, Mr. James, at Cathcart, Blocka

Books

FOOR T

177

Min (5

1

10.5

12

A.

1100

25 Black

> Blair, Mr. John, at Mauchlin, 150 Blair, Mr. Robert, at St. And ews, profecuted, 118, 121 Bond, in the time of king James VI. refused, 13, against the remonstrance, 70, of peace 1667. with remarks, 257, for heritors 1677. opposed, 364—366, of conformity, 382, reasons against it, 386, refused, 388, an universal act, 389

Book of discipline, 5, subscribed by the nobility, 5, 6

Boots, a torture, 203 Breda, treaty of, 35

Breddy, Alexander, killed, 325

Brown, Mr. John, banished, 134, 353 Bruce, Sir Alexander, of Broomhall, fined his tenants, 363

Bruce, Mr. Michael, banished, 168,

Bryce, John, banished, 239

Buchanan, Alexander and Andrew, ba-

nished, 419
Buchauru, Mr. George, a proclamation against his book De jure regni apud Scotos, 166

Buntin, Rebert, executed, 204 letters Burghs royal, state of, 324, sent to them for suppressing convenburnet, Mr. Alexander, bishop of Aberdeen, 140, translated to Glasgow, 153, his cruel answer, 165 his advancement, 166, 169, his pro-pofal, 178, his bigotry and oppref-tion, 184, his diffrace, 259, 264, in ion, 184, his restoration, 328

Burnet, Mr. Gilbert, disliked the procccdings of the bishops, 184, professor of divinity at Glasgow, 267, his character of the country people, 277, his examination before the commons of England, 331, 332 ruet, Mr. John, his reasons against the indulgence, 307, his death, 311

BAK

"ABAL, its members and delign, 282, divided, 2297 and bands

Calder, curate of, 169, 170 Caldwell of that ilk forfeited, 229 Caldwell, Muir of, forteited, 222 Callane, James, his fufferings, 225 Cameron, Mr. John, his fufferings, 135, 137, 175

Campbell, Charles, in Airth, 271 Campbell, George, imprisoned, 70 Campbell, Sir Hugh, of Cefnock, 121, imprisoned, 179, released, 234. See

Arkinglass and Ormsay Cannon of Burnsballoch forfeited, 229

Cannon of Mondrogate, 266 Cannons, Robert and Gilb forfeited, 229 Canons, book of, condemned, 31 Cardrofs, Henry lord, his sufferings, 328, 333, 335, had fome favour,

Cargill, Mr. Daniel, transported to the north, 134, put to trouble, 245 Carmithael, Messes. Alexander and John, forfook prelacy, 283

Carmichael, William, his commission, 438, his cruelties, 442

Carmonnock, parish of, fined, Carfon, John, of Sennick, his sufferings, Carftairs, captain, his scuffle in Fife, 368

Carstairs, Mr. John, prosecuted, 329, 135, excused his appearing before the commission, 161, forfeited, 229, misrepresented, 286

Carfewell, Sir John Chiefly of, imprisoned, 178, 235, 244, released, 264

Cassils, earl of, 376, 387,--389, denounced, 393, his case, and the council's letter, with remarks, 402,

Cess enacted, 410, different opinions about paying it, 411,--414 Chalmers, Kobert, forfeited, 229

Charity to suffering ministers discharged, 166,

Charles

Charles I. born, 17, fucceeds to the crown, 22, crowned in Scotland, 23, his war with the Scats, 30, 31, his progress to Scotland, 31, delivered to the English, 33, beheaded, 34, Charles II. takes the title of king, 34, proclaimed at Edinburgh, 34 took the covenants, 37, 44, his declaration at Dumfermling, 39, crowned, 44, routed, 49, embraced popery, 5c, his restoration, 57, ingratitude, 61, his letter to the presbytery of Edinburgh, 67, his letter restoring presacy, 111, difcharged church-judicatures, his first Dutch war, 173, his letter of indulgence, 252,-for suppressing conventicles, 322, --- to the states, 353, --- for raising the Highland bost, 373, his irresolution, 407, his 373, declaration concerning the duke of Monmouth, 434, prorogued the parliament, 435 Chrystie, Alexander, fined, 285 Christianity planted in Scotland, 1

Church, her liberty disputed, 7, invaded, 10, 14, overthrown, 17, restored, 30, undermined, 76, and overthrown, 124

Classes, act of, made, 34, repealed, 48 Clergy, proclamations, 227, ratified, Clark, Mr. Gilbert, of New-Deer, 240

Clowburn. See Kennedy Cochran, lord, harraffed the ministers, his case with respect to the bond and lawborrows, 392 Cockburn, major. See Peden Colgubon, Humphrey, executed, 204 Colvil, lady, her sufferings, 368

Commission, high. See High Commission for trying the Pentland priloners, 203, for conventicles, 291, 227, for executing the laws, 365 Committee of estates, 63, imprison ministers, 66, their proceedings, 69 Committee for publick affairs, 352, an account of the Highland-holl, 376, 384, for conventicles, 346, 349, purging committee, 276 Commons, house of, address against the duke of York's marriage, 311, vote Lauderdale a grievance, 311, 316

Common prayer-book; 250 condemns ed, 30, Conference at Holy-rood-boufe, 16

Confession of faith, the first, 6 Congregation, lords of, who, 14

Conventicles, proclamations against them, 180, 250, 258, 267, 298, act against them, 274, 345, abounded, 319, fifty denounced for them, 323, several fined and imprisoned, mifrepresented, 369, feve-344, ral proceedings against them, 416, Convention of estates 1643. rescinded,

73, 175, 225, 410. Sec Perth Corfack, John Neilson of, tortured, 203, family, 202

Covenant, the first, in Scotland, 4, 5. See National and folemn league

Council, privy, members of it, 109, proceedings about Pentland, 189, orders about the prisoners, 228, act bout Mr. Mitchel, 315, produced to their shame, 378, their proceedings approved of, how, 399, 402 Countryman's remarks on the bishops, 115 Crawford, earl of, religned, 145 Crawford, George, executed, 201 Crawford, Mr. John, denounced, 301 Crawford, John, and his wife's fufferings, 242

Crighton, Mr. William, deposed, 80 Cromwell defeats the Scots, 41, his death, 51

Crockshank, Mr. John, 168, 183, killed at Pentland, 195, forfeited, 229 Culdees, Cuningham, Mr. Gabriel, 169, Lent with grievances, 294

Cuningham of Bedlane. See Bedlane Cuningham, Sir William, of Cuninghambead, 121, before the high-commiffion, 165, imprisoned, 178, 235, 244, 246, released, 264, his fon's fufferings, 397 Curingham, Mris. Elifabeth, fined, 270

Curates, their character, 138, why the people would not hear them, ibid, Cuthbertson, William, transported, 250

ALRY, feldiers difarmed there, See Wathe Li Dat

Dalrym 2871 Dalziel; land a Davidso Declara gativ

Dalryng

blick the c Denholin Devil's Dick, the c

> Dick. I Dickie, Dickfon, Diocesa Discilpi miffi Donald,

Donaldi his f Donald/ Douchal comi Douglas coro ratio parli the p Dreghor upon Drumm

Drumm 328, Drumm Drums Dumbar Dumfer

Dumfer 171 Duncan, Duncan Duncan, Dundas. Dundass Dundass

Dundon Dunkeld Dunlop, Dunlop, Dunlop,

Durban Dutch w

Dalrymple, Mr. Andrew, 248, 301 mal tadt of discount En en con I same Dalrymple, Sir James, of Stair, 279, 287 Dalziel, general, 186, routed the Pentland army, 195, his cruckies, 221 Davidson, Mr. John, his protest, 15 Declaration afferting the royal prero-gative, 74, required of all in publick truft, 126, 146, 156--- for the covenant, 192 Denholm, John, banished, 245 Devil's health drunk, 132 Dick, Quintin, his fentiments about the cefs, 411 Dick, Robert, banished, 417 Dickie, William, his fufferings, 397 Dickfon, Mr. John, 70, denounced, 275 Discelan meetings, 131 Discilpine, first book of it, 5, commillion for it, 181. See Book Donald, king, baptized, 1 Donaldjon, Mr. Andrew, deposed, 171, his farther fufferings, 356 Donaldson, Mr. James, 80, 296 Douchal, John Porterfield of, before the committion, 163, fined, 269 Douglas, Mr. Robert, preached at the coronation, 44, proposed the restoration, 52, preached before the parliament, 71, 77, his faying of the protesters, T20 Dreghorn parish had a curate forced upon it, 168 Drummond, Mr. James, 324, 362 Drummond, lieutenant-general, 328, 344 Drummond, Mr. John, of Meggins, 385 Drums at executions, 204 Dumbar. See Cromwell Dumfermling declaration, 39 Dumfermling, earl of, tricked by Sharp, Duncan, Mr. James, fined, 285 Duntan, Mr. Robert, 256 Duncan, Mris. her sufferings, 342 Dundass of Armiston, 147 matter ear Dundass, James, 271 Dundass, William, declared fugitive, 70 Dundonald, parishioners summoned, 389 Dunkeld, ministers ejected, 142 Dunlop, Mr. Alexander, 137 Dunlop, laird of, 178, 234 Dunlop, James, of Lioufehill, fined, 356 Durbam, of Large, fined, 344

Dutch war. See Charles II.

115

nft

8, idm,

10-

d,

5.

9, ret

d

5

Ī

S

FARLSTOUN, Mr. William Gardon of, furnmoned before the council, 145, 152, act against him, Faster facrament proclamation, Ecclefiastical authority, a proclamation, 187, the disobedient to be apprehended, 234 Edinburgh, meeting of ministers there, 64, their supplication, ibid. king's letter to the presbytery, 67, tures of ministers neglected, 78, ministers ordered to remove, 134, 236, magistrates fined, 261, 331, twelve of the council turned out, Ejected ministers, their number and character, 138, fome indulged 255, 288, the rest exposed to sufferings, 296 Engagement of Hamilton, 33 England in confusion, 51 Episcopal ministers. See Curates Erskine, Mr. William, imprisoned, 354 Enart, John, his fufferings, 144 Evangelists, persons so called, 277 Exclusion bill, 435 Execrable, field-meetings fo called, 409

FAIR FOUL, archbishop of Glafgow, 114, his proposal, 132, his death, 152 Fanatick, ministers when so called, 387 Fergusson, Hugh, fined, 299 Ferguson, Mr. James, intimates a fast, 174 Fergusson, William, banished, Fergullon, John, his case, 245 Field-meetings, their original, increase, 270, 329, reasons of them, 408, flate of them, 438 Fife fynod, 12, excommunicate the popilh lords, 13, interrupted, 79, difmiffed without protesting, ibid. Fines, act of, 127. proceedings on it, 158, proclamation concerning them, 178, exacted with rigour, 185 Finley, David, murdered, 222 Fire of London, 18 137 Fleming, Mr. Robert, 306

Fleming

Fleming, Sir William, of Ferm, fined for his lady, 434 Fletcher, Sir John, refigns, 172 Forrester, Mr. Alexander, Sent to the Bass, Forrester, Mr. Andrew, imprisoned, Forrester, Mr. Thomas, forsook prelacy, 305, apprehended, 315, deposed by the bishops, 316 Fraser, Mr. James, of Brae, his sufferings, 358, 367, Fullerton, Mr. William, 129, speech before the council, 248, denounced, 301

GALLOWAY Synod diffolyed, 80, ministers ejected, 142 Gardner, Mr. James, banished, 135, Garrisons, 334, act, 335, occasion of some of them, 394, in the Highlands, 419 General affembly, the first, 7, confirm the reformation, 9 their admonition. 12, renewed the covenant, 13, protest for their liberties, 14, at Glafgow 1638. 29, disfolved, ibid. confirmed, 30, at Edinburgh 1639, 30 Gentlemen denounced, 431, 437 Gibson, Robert, transported, 250 Gillespie, Mr. Patrick, his declaration to the king, 41, imprisoned, 69, his acknowledgment, 106 Gillespie, Mr. Robert, sent to the Bass, Gilon, Mr. his hard usage, 241 Glas, Patrick, released, 432 Glasgow, synod of, dissolved, 78, act there, 133, grievances of the pre-latical fynod, 313, town fined, Glassford, heritors of, fined, 276

Glencairn, earl of, chancellor, 63, mortified at Sharp's preferment, 158, his death, 167 Gordon, Mr. Alexander, 135, 138 Gordon, John, in Irongray, executed, Gordon, John, in Carnevel, 223 Gordon, John and William. See Knock-

Gordon of Garrary forfeited, 229

Gordon, Mris. Mary, of Roberton, 224 Gordon, Mr. William. See Earlstown Gordon, William, of Robertoun, 224 Gordon, John and William, in Middleton, 229 Govan, William, apprehended, 63, his fentence, 96, and execution, 98 Graham of Claverhoufe, 424 Graham, John, executed at Ayr, 214 Graham, John, provoît of Glasgow, im-prisoned, 69, declared a rebel, 179 Gray, Robert, his fufferings, 242 Greg, Mr. James, his indulgence forfeited, 366 Greg, Mr. John, suspended, 80, imprisoned, 330, Grier, John, executed, 215 Grier, Robert, banished, 244 Grier, Henry, forfeited, 229 Grierson, James, of Dalgoner, imprisoned on fuspicion, 224 Guillan, Andrew, 447 Guthrie, Mr. James, 43, declined the civil authority in matters ecclefiaftical, 46, imprisoned, 66, his book of The causes of God's wrath imprisoned, 66, his burnt, 69, his character, 91, his fpeech to the parliament, 92, his fentence and execution, 95, 96, a strange accident, 99, his widow

Gordon, John, of Largmore, 224

Han

Han

Han

Han

E

fo

Han ...te

d

Han

Han

Hard

Harr

Hari

Haft

Hatt

Hay,

Hear

Heri

High

OI

High

fo

38

Hog,

Holy

Hony

Horf

Houf

Hum

Hum

Hunti

Hutch

ca

98

13

Hutch

H

ec

m

30

2

a strange accident, 99, his widow and daughter prosecuted, 184 Guthrie, Mr. John, of Tarbotton, 150, 190, forfeited, 229 ejected, Gutbrie, Mr. William, 77, 168, his death and character, 169 H

HACKSTOUN of Ratbillet, his carriage at Sharp's death, 443, ordered to be secured, 450 Halket, colonel Robert, imprisoned, 178, released, 234 Hall, Mr. Gilbert, 64, imprisoned, 66, suspended, 86, released, 118 Hall, Mr. Henry, of Haughead, 424 Hamilton, Mr. Patrick, burnt, 2 Halton, Charles lord, a councillor, 145 Hamilton, duke, opposed Lauderdale, 312, turned out of the council, 352, deprived of his commissions, 358, required to meet the committee at Glasgow, 376, refused the bond, 388, his debates at court, 408 Hamil-

Hamilton of Aikenbead, See Aikenbead Hamilton, Mr. George, 165 Hamilton, Mr. James, bishop of Gallo-way, 114, his cruelty, 153 Hamilton, Mr. James, at Blantyre, or Eaglesham, 150, his behaviour before the committee, 250, denounced, 276 Hamilton, Mr. James, at Edinburgh, attended the marquis of Argyll, 90, deposed by the parliament, 131 Hamilton, James and Gavin, executed, Hamilton, Mr. William, died in prison, Hardie, Mr. John, at Gordon, ordered to remove 20 miles from his parish, 150 Harroway, Mr. John, banished, 417 Hart, John, executed, 204 Hasty, Mr. Alexander, fined, 271 Hattridge, Mr. John, 165 Hay, Mr. David, curate, 162 Hearing of the curates. See Curates Heritors, their hardships, 188, 321, 363, 365, refuse the bond, 392 High commission-courts, 19, a new one crected, with remarks, 165, φc. their proceedings, 162, φc.
 Highland-hoft, its first spring, 371, preparations for it, ibid. commission for it, 375, rendezvous at Stirling, 384, their number, &c. 385 their march, 387, ravage the country, 389, 391 Hog, Mr. Thomas, deposed, 80, imprisoned, 243, 355 Holywood, communion there, 136 Hongman, bishop of Orkney, 158, wounded, 241 Horses, proclamation, 393 Houston, lady, frighted to death by the Highland-host, 398 Hume, George, of Kimmergham, 410 Hume, Sir Patrick. See Polwart Huntley, marquis, committed to Sharp's care, 178 Hutchifon, Mr. George, attended Argyll, 98, deposed by the parliament, 131, his speech, with remarks, 257, fined, 301, &c. Hutchison, Mr. John, 248, fined, 301 ACKSON, Mr. Arthur, presented the king with a bible, 50

224

iddle-

his

98

214

im-

179

for-

im

ison-

d the

liasti-

wrath

his

his

96,

150,

ected,

169

his 4431

178,

oned,

118

24

145

rdale,

uncil,

Tions,

nmit-

d the court,

Jamil-

un

Jaffray, provost, imprisoned, 69 James VI. born, 7, his baptism and coronation, 8, his speech to the coronation, 8, his special coronation, 12, encroached on their affembly, 12, encroached on their liberties, 14, his letter to the pope, 16, his speech in the great church, 17, fucceeds to the crown of Eng-land, ibid. his progress to Scotland, 20, his death and character, 22 Jamieson, Mr. Alexander, debates with Leighton, 278, his death, 340 Jervifwood, Baillie of, fined, 351 Inchdarnie, laird of, murdered, 440 Indemnity for Scotland delayed, 106, act of, 127, after Pentland, 233, proclamation against the refusers of it, 239, another, 316 Indulged ministers received their licences, 256, in straitning circumstan-ces, 265, their lecturing, 269, their lecturing, 269, their rules, 290, prosecuted, 300, received their instructions,, 301, hardships on them, 330, 339, pro-clamation against them, 346, summoned before the council, sc6, feparation from them, 429 Indulgence in England, 283 Indulgence proposed for Scotland, 240, its rife, 251, the king's letter, with remarks, 252, &c. founded on the supremacy, 262, rise of the second, 286, acts, 288, grievances of ministers, 392, of Mr. Burnet, Inglis, Mr. John, fined, 320 Inspector of synods, 79 Intercommuned, lifts of them require ed, 349 Intercommuning, letters of, 336 Johnston, Six Archibald. See Wariston Johnston, Mr. George, his fufferings, Johnston, major, beat, 436 Ireland, council's act, 152, none to go thither without a pass, Irongray, a tumult there, 143 Irvine, Mr. John, his case, 268 Irvine, Mr. Francis, sent to the Bas, 451 Irvine, magistrates there, 155, 394, meeting of gentlemen, 371 Judicatures of the church infulted, 49, discharged, 119 Jus populi vindicatum, a book, proclamation against it, 279 Kaipe, M m m

K AIPO, Musico, executed, 204 Kello, Mris. her fufferings, 242 Kelfo prefbytery discharged from or-daming a minister, 120 Kennedy, Sir Andrew, 303 Kennedy of Grange fined, 414 Ker, colonel, declared fugitive, 70, permitted to return, 279

Ker, Robert, of Kersland, forfeited, 230, imprisoned, 266, his ther sufferings, 281, 355, 370 his far-

Kilmarnock, crttelty to a woman there, 222, its lofs by the Highland-hoft, King, Mr. John, taken and rescued, Kinkell, lady, fined, 365 Kirkeo, James, of Sundaywell, 64, prisoned, 66, his other sufferings, 224, forfeited, 229

Kirkcudbright, presbytery's petition rejected, 121, a tumult there, 143 Kirkeudbright, John lord, 144

Kirktown, Mr. James, 287, 296, feized by Carftairs, 350, intercommuned, Knockbreck, Alexander Gordon of, denounced, 197, forfeited, 229, John and William executed, 200, fufferings of the family, 201, 223, 229

Knox, Mr. John, the great reformer, on, 8, his dying words, 9 chem the freend indulgence, 287 LANDAS, Mr. Robert, imprison-Landlords fined for their tenants, 437 Lamerk, a meeting there, 437, ceedings of the council apon it, ibid.

Land, bishop, his infolence, 23, his regulating the chapel at Holy-roodboufe, 24

Lauderdale, earl of, secretary of state, got the management, 142, took his place in the council, 145, commissioner to the parliament, 260, his conduct as to the supremacy, 262, his feverities, 273, created a duke, 284, opposed in parliament, 312, voted a grievance by the commons of England, 311, 316, address against him,

333, his profane oath, 390, made a commissioner, 409

MacC

MacC

MacC MacC

229 MacC

Per

Masc

Mac

Mac

22

Mac

Mac

fe

ie

ch

Mai

Ma

Ma

Ma

M

M

M

ans 1

M 280

M

M

N

A

Mac.

fuf

Law, Mr. John denounced, 356, his farther fufferings 43 3

Lawborrows appointed, 389, ful pended, 405

Lawrie. See Blackwood

Learmont, major Joseph, forfeited, 229 Learmont, James, apprehended, 407, his trial and execution, 417

Lealk, Mr. minister of Maryculter, his death, 140

Lecturing, act of council against it,

Leighton, bishop of Dumblain, his character, 115, his opinion, 116 voted for the supremacy, 262, had the archbishoptick of Glasgow in commendam, 276, his accommodation, 277

Lennox of Plumpton, 225 Lennox, Thomas, condemned, 204 Lefly, doctor James, prosecuted, 372 Letter. See James VI. Char. II. Lex rex, a book, burnt, 69, 107 Lindsay, John, condemned, but respit-Linlithgow, the observation of the 29th of May there, 128, &c.

Listown, Patrick, forfeited, 229 Livingstone, Mr. Alexander, his sufferings, 80, 150, 169 Living stone, Mr. John, at the treaty of Breda, 35, tendered the covenant to the king, 37, banished and went to Holland, 135,--138, his letter to his parishioners at Ancrum,

Living stone, Mr. Will. imprisoned, 286 Lodgers, lift of those in Edinburgh required, 436 aufars and agric

London. Set Fire offer and Allers

Lords of the articles, 72 Lords, house of, their address, 316 Lors, lord, condemned, 130, released and made earl of Argyll, 147. See Argyll

Lathian, fynod, their conduct, 80 Lowdown, earl of, died of grief, 122 Lowdown, earl of, died abroad, 365 Lyon, Mr. the curate insulted, 260

MACCARTNEY of Blaiket. See Blaiket MacCartney, MacCartney, George, executed, 214 MacClelland, See Barfcob MacClelland, James, tortured, 224 MacClelland of Barmageichan forfeited, MacCormock, Mr. Andrew, killed at Pentland, 195 MasCoul, John, executed, 215 MacCullech, John, executed, fufferings of hls family, ibid. MacGill, David, his wife tortured, 223 MacGill, James, 145 MacGiligen, Mr. John, imprisoned, 243, intercommuned, 336, facrament at Obsdale, 338, his fufterings, 355, 360 his last Mackail, Mr Hugh, 134 publick fermon, 206, apprehended and tortured, 207, his trial and fentence, 208, 209, behaviour, 210, &c. last words, 213, and character, 214 MacKail, Mr. Matthew, 150, 169 MacKenzie, Sir George, made the king's advocate, 367 MacIlwraith, Gilbert, his fufferings, Mac Millan, Alex. and James, executed, Mac Millan, Robert, condemned, 204 MacMillan, William, of Caldow, 361 MacWard, Mr. Robert, 77, his testimony and fermon, 102, his de-103, banished, 105, 353 Magistrates, their election and qualification, 117, 146, 187, 345, their bond about conventicles, 243 Malignants excluded from places of trust, 34, restored, 48 Mary queen of Scots, 7 Masters, hardships on them, 187, of colleges to take the oaths, 125 Mather, David, fined, 271 Maxwell, Mr. Gabriel, 169, 229 Maxwell, Mr. Rebert, 179 Maxwell, Sir George. See Netber-pollock-Maxwell, lord, a papilt, employed, Maxwell, William, of Moncrieff, forfeited, 229, his escape, 241 May 29th, act for observing it, 76, how observed at Linkithgow, 128, another act, 285, not kept by the nade

356,

- fuc

229

407,

his

it,

ha-

16,

had

om:-

on,

2 oit-

oth

cr-

of

nt

nd

nis

m,

36

gh

C

indulged, 200, who are fined on that account, 300. See Anniversary Meeting-houses destroyed, 388 Meetings in the fields. See Field-meetings; private for exercise, 180 Meggins, laird of, fined, 285 Meldrum, Mr. George, ordered before the council, 135, his fufferings, Meldrum, laird of, 276 Melvil, Mr. Andrew, persecuted, 112 15 Menstrie, major-general Holburn of, imprisoned, 178, released, 234 Menzies, Mr. John, of Aberdeen, fufferings, 135, 137, wrote against popery, 281 Menzies, Mr. John, of Carlaverock, his testimony, 271, and sufferings, 280 Mercer, Mr. James, 285 Middleton, earl of, commissioner, 63, 71, his ill conduct, 127, his difappointment, 130, promoted the Glafgow act, 132, refigned, 141, his death, ibid. Mile act, with remarks, 151 Militia act of parliament, 263 Miller of Waxford fined, 238 Ministers perfecuted, 10, 14, 22, 172, 179, 323, appointed to vote in parliament, 15, meeting at Edinburgh, 64, imprisoned, 66, Galloway and Dwikell, 142, indulged, 256, 258, 259, 263, meet about the fecond indulgence, 287, meeting at Edinburgh, 291, 357 another meeting, 415 Mitchel, Mr. David, bishop of Aber-Mitchel, Mr. James, his attempt on Sharp, 241, his confession, 314, before the justiciary, 315, examined by torture, 341, sent to the Bass, 359, brought to Edinburgh, 372, his trial and sentence, 376, last speech and execution, 380 Mitchel, James, forfeited, 229 Mitchel, Mr. Robert, fulpended, 179 Moncrieff, Mr. Alexander, 64, imprifoned, 66, his farther sufferings, 100, 101, 172 Moderators, constant ones, 18, Monk, general, reduced Scotland, 49, his conduct there, 52, marched inte into England, 53, entered London, ibid. restored the sechuded members, Montgomery, major-general, imprisoned, 178, released, 234 Montrofe, marquis of, his expedition and execution, 35 Morton, Mr. Andrew, imprisoned, 266 Mosman, George, fined, 247 Muir. See Caldwell and Rowallan Muirhead, John, executed, 215 Manro, Sir George, imprisoned, 178 Murray, Mr. Arthur, died of grief, Murray, Mr. John, 64, imprisoned, charged with high-treason, 66, Murray, Sir Mungo, his cruelty, 222 Murray, Sir Robert, 170

Nair N, Mr. George, 64, imprisoned, 66 Naphtali, proclamation against it, 235, Nasmith, Mr. James, imprisoned, 70, prosecuted, 129, 135, confined to the Merse, 137 National covenant subscribed, 9, 11, renewed, 13, 28, 30, sworn by

Murray, Sir William's commission, 363 renewed, 13, 28, 30, sworn by the king, 37, 44, declared unlawful, 125, declaration against it, 122, burnt at Linlithgow, 168, renewed at Pentland, 191 National synod. See synod Neave, Mr. John, his sufferings, 135,

Neilson of Corsack. See Corsack Neilston parish fined, 270 Nisbet, Sir John, advocate, 172 Nether-pollock, Sir George Maxu

Nether-pollock, Sir George Maxwell of, imprisoned, 178, 234, 244, 246, fet at liberty, 264 Noblemen, 276, discharged to leave

Noblemeu, &c. discharged to leave the kingdom, 376, go to court

North, bishop Paterson's letter about the gentlemen confined there, 182

OATH of supremacy, 20, of allegiance taken instead of the covenant, 71, tenor of it, 73, sufferings of ministers about it, 179, imposed on universities, 187, 427 430, and on the military, 423 Offers made to and rejected by the Scots, 32 Officers of the army impowered to hold courts, 282 Orange, prince of, Subsisted king Charles II. 34, made Stadtholder, 284, his marriage, 369 Ordinations unlawful, act against them, 284 Ormsay, Campbell of, forfeited, 131, intercommuned, 134 Orr, Mr. forfeited, 229 Orr, Robert, of Milnbank, 271 Orthodox clergy, how encouraged, 227 Osburn, Mr. James, outlawed, 354 Osburn, John, in Keir, 183 Overtures of the council, 247, 427 Overtures of a meeting of ministers,

Patro

Peden 22 les

ed

Peder

Pecbl

Pentl

th

it,

OI

Peop

Perf

Perti

Petit

Pitlo

Poln

Paru

. '10

Pop

Pop

Port

Port

Prea

Prel

be le

d

Prel

Prei

Pref

Pref

- 8

V

6

Frei

Prel

S

n

fo

4 gl

ol ra Pelli

co

P
PALLADIUS in Scotland, 1 Papifts trafficking profecuted, 118, lifts of them ordered to be made, 235, skreened by the act of separation, 275 Parithoners, hardships on them, 227

Parishioners, hardships on them, 227 Park, Mr. John, protests, 80, his case after the indulgence, 258 Parker, John, executed, 200

Parliament establish the reformation, 5, 6, abridge the power of the church, 10, allow ministers to vote in it, 15, restored bishops to civil dignities, 17, abused by king Charles I. 23, prorogued 31, ratisfied the acts of assembly and national covenant, ibid. and solemn league, 48, character of the members after the restoration, 71, their acts 1661, 73, restore prelacy, 124, dispense with oaths, 125, their farther acts, 146, &c. 273,--276, 284

Parliamentary ministers, their limitations, 16 Parliament, long, dissolved themselves,

Paterson, bishop of Ross, his letter, 182 Paterson, Thomas, died of his wounds, Paton, Matthew, executed, 204 Paton, Robert, transported, 250

atro-

Patronages established, 76, 125

Peden, Mr. Alexander, 183, forfeited, 229, fent to the Bass, 299, released from the Bass, 367, banished, 420

7

10

d'

7.

41 II.

I,

7

rs,

8,

e,

2-

is

n,

e

te

es

iè

-

8,

e ſe,

s,

5,

2

Peden, William, condemned, 204 Poebles, Mr. Hugh, before the high-commission, 177, had some liber-ty, 235, sent to Dumbarton, 276 Peebles, presbytery of, proceedings against, 119 rifing, 188, Pentland, rifing, the defeat there, 195, the profecutions after it, 197, the riling defended, 219 People peaceable under their oppressions, 391

Persecution in the reign of king James VI. 10, 13, 14, 19,-22

Perth, convention there, 14, conduct of the fynod, 18, 79, articles, 21, ratified, ibid. condemned, 31

Petitience in England, 174 Petitions against the liturgy, &c. 26 Pitlochie, Scot of, fined, 451

Polmais, lady, 350

Polwarl, Sir Patrick Hume of, imprifoned, 178, 339, ordered to be released, 344, sent to Dumbarton, 416

Popery abolished, 6, its increase neglected by the prelates, 143, 235, 266, 281, 429, 451

Popish plot, 420

Portecus, Mr. Archibald, suspended, 80 Porterfield, George, declared rebel, 179 See Douchal and Quarreltoun

Preachers flattering, 72, at fieldmeetings to be punished by death, Prelacy condemned, 9, 30, debates about it, 109, restored by the king's letter, 111

Prelates, none in Scotland before Palladius, 2. See Bishops Prerogative, instrument afferting it,

Presbyterians, English, ill rewarded, 61 Presbytery brought in with the reformation, 5, marred by avarice, 8, restored, 11, ratified, 13, overturned, 17, restored again, 30, overthrown, 76, 112, 119, 124,

Fresbyteries discharged, 119, Press, liberty of it taken away, 117 Primrose, Sir Archibald, justice-general 376

Pringle of Greenknows, 165, 174 Prisoners transported, 181, taken at Pentland, 250, executed, 198, 199, 201, 204, they suffered for religion, 220, were banished, 299, fent to be foldiers, 315 Private meetings, act of council, 159 Privileges of the church abridged, 10 14, 15, 19, restored 11, 6.

Protestants used worse than papists, 275 Protestation against the liturgy, 27, prelacy, 59, ministerial defended, 103

Protesters, their rise, 42, difference between the resolutioners and them, 46, 48, some of them deposed, 49, loyal to the king, 50, the first sufferers, 51, proclamation against them, 66, censured in the synod of Lothian, 80

GUAKERS, acts against them, 145, 183, Quarreltoan, William Porterfield of, forfeited, 229, had some favour, 295, Queen regent's perfidy, 4, dies, 5

Queen Mary's return from France, 7 Queries upon oath, 388

RAE, Mr. John, imprisoned, 266, 286, 354

Ralstoun, William, laird of, imprisoned, 178, released, 234

Ramfay, bishop of Dumblain, ordered to the isles, 325, restored, 349 Ramfay, Mr. Thomas, imprisoned, 66 Ramfay, Mr. Matthew, deposed, 179 Reformation from popery,2, established, 5, 6

Reformers, their first proceedings, 3, 4, 5, 6

Remonstrance, bond against it, 70, of the episcopal synod condemned, Renfrew gentlemen fined, 304 Re-ordination of bishops, 115 Rescissory acts, 75

Kesolutioners convinced of their error. 120. See Protesters Refolutions, publick, opened a door for malignants, 43, 48, debates concerning them, 43, 46,-48 Restoration proposed by Mr. Robert Douglas, 52, brought about, 57, excessive rejoicings at Edinburgh, 62 Riding-money imposed, 185 Road of Ruthven, 9 Robertown, William Gordon of, with John Gordon of Largmore, 224 Robertson, Alexander, 190, executed, Ross, Mr. Alexander, 404 Ross, John, executed, 200

Ross, Mr. Thomas, sent to the Bass, 339 Rothes, earl of, his many posts, 63, 145, 152, 168, his tour to the west, 179, 214, perjured, 377 Row, Mr. his conduct in the fynod, 18 Row, James, fined, 247 Row, Mr. John, infulted, 260 Row, John, agent, 247 Rowallan, Sir William Muir of, imprifoned, 178, 234, 244, released 264 Rule, Mr. Gilbert, escaped, 135 Retherford, Mr. Samuel, his Len rex burnt, 69, fome account of his life, death and character, 106, 6c,

SACRAMENT Eafter, 20 appointed at Sandilands, John, fined, 335 Scoon, lord, abused the fynod of Perth, Schoolmasters turned out, 430 Scot, Mr. James, 164 Scot, Mr. John, 64, imprisoned, 66, discharged, 118 Scot, Mr. John, in Tufbilaw, 286 Scot, Robert, executed, 204 Scotland invaded by Cronrwel, 38, reduced by Monk, 49 Scougal, Mr. bishop of Aberdeen, 158 Seaforth, earl of, reprimanded, 360 Secluded members reftored, 55 Semple, Mr. Gabriel, 183, at Pentland, 190, forfeited, 229 Semple, lord, his cafe, 402, 405, 414 Semple, Mr. John, 64, 66, forfeited, 229 Separation act, with remarks, 146, another act, 275 Shaftshary, his speech, 434

Sharp, Mr. James, Sent to London, 14. betrayed his trust, 56, his character, 56, 114, returned to Scotland, 67, made primate, 114, his perfidy, 141, his ambition, 155, pre-ferred to the officers of state, 158, his conduct on Glencairn's death, 167, president of the committee of estates, 175, gave himself the the lie, 177, 186, his cruelties after Pentland, 198, his difgrace, 226, his narrow escape, 241, his impunick, 317, his opposition to a national fynod, 326, perjured, 378, killed at Magus-Muir, 440,----45 proclamation against those who did it, 447, his legacy, 450 Sheldon, archbishop of Canterbury, interceeds for Sharp, 167 Shiells, John, executed, 200 Shiells, Ralph, executed, 204 Shires, proclamation for difarming, 227 Short, John, executed, 214 Shots, communion there, 136 Sideferfe, bishop of Orkney, 114, his death, 152 Simony in the restoration of an archbishop, 328 Simpson, Mr. James, imprisoned, 70, banished, 102 Simpson, Mr. Patrick, 431, 451, Smith, Mr. Alexander, before the commission, 163, brought to Leith, 235, banished to Orkney, 243 Smith, Mr. Hugh, at Eastwood, 150, Smith, James, executed, 214 Smith, James, of Tullochsbaugh, 363 Smith, Mr. John, deposed, 131, 174 Smith, Margaret, of Irongray, 144 Smith, Mr. James, forfeited, 229 Soldiers at Irongtoy, 144, and Kirkcudbright, 152, their exactions, 153, infolencies, 153, 172, 221, 224, 433, parties fent to apprehend conventicle preachers, 319, 3201 Solemn league and evocuant, the rife of it, 32, framed in Scotland, ibid. first sworn in England, 33, sworn imprisoned, by the king, 37, 44, ratified by parliament, 49, ordered to be reprinted, 56, discharged, 73, declared unlawful, 125, declaration against it, 126, burnt at London,

S

S

S

SI

Si

Si

3

Sy

Sy

Sy

50

1

T

7417

To

To

Tr

idi

Tra

Ti

con, $40 characcotland, his perprec, 158, death, mittee celf the les after c, 226, s impua: panvho did , inter-

ng, 227

a na-

, 378,

--445

4 his

he com-

43° 04, 150,

perehend 320 e rife of
md, ibid.
fivorn tified by to be re73, declaration t London, 99;

at Pentland, 191
Spotifwood, archbishop, consecrated at London, 19
Spreul, John, imprisoned, 69, ordered to depart the kingdom, 172, released, 287
Stewartous parish prosecuted, 176

Stewartown parish prosecuted, 176 Stirling, Mr. John, 64, imprisoned, 66, before the articles, 101, a little favoured, 175 Stobic of Luscar fined, 271 Strong, Christopher, executed, 200

Strong, Christopher, executed, 200 Stuart, Sir James, provost of Edinburgh, 63, his process, 134, imprisoned, 178, 234, 244, released, 264, orders against his son, 331, again released, 414 Superintendents subject to the assembly, 6, 7, 9

Supplication of ministers, 64, 65 Supremacy, act of, with remarks, 261, 60. an instance of the royal supremacy, 325

macy, 325
Suther and, William, refused to execute the prisoners at Ayr, 215,--218 Swearing against delinquents, 273 Swinton, Sir John, apprehended, 62, before the parliament, 99, pardoned, 100

Synod, episcopal, at Glasgow, 259, act for a national one, 147, the act opposed, 325

Synodical correspondence, a meeting,

Synods above bishops, 9, oppose constant moderators, 18, their conduct after the restoration, 78, and discharged, 119

TABLES erected, 27
Temple, William, transported, 418 Thanksgiving at Edinburgh, 62, another appointed, 175 Torphichen, lord, process against him,

Torture. See MacKeil, Mitchel, &c. Trail, Mr. Robert, 64, imprisoned, 66, before the parliament, 101, ordered before the council, 135, banished, 136, his wife imprisoned, 175, his son sent to the Bass, 363 Traqueir, earl of, commissioner to the general assembly, 30

Travelling with arms prohibited, 449

Tulchan bishops, who, 8 Tullidaff, Mr. William, confronted Sharp, 161, fined, 301
Tunult in the great church of Edinburgh, 26

burgh, 26
Turnbull, George, fined, 437
Turner, Sir James, his orders, 145, his character, 153, severe on the country, 172, 176 185, 188, taken prisoner, 189, his conduct examined, 235

Tweeddale, earl of, against Mr. Guthrie's death, 95, suffered on that account, 116, his restraint taken off, 124, made president of the council, 142

UNIFOR MITY, act of, 131 Union, proposals about it, 255, 261, came to nothing, 273 Universities, 345
University degrees, 187 Urqubart, Mr. Thomas, 243

Veitch, Mr. James, profecuted, 129, fined, 301 Veitch, Mr. William, forfeited, 229, his farther sufferings, 429,---436 Vernor, Mr. John, his sufferings, 271 Violant, Mr. William, 292

WALKINGSHAW, Mr. James, 150
Wallace, colonel, 100, defeated, 105

Wallace, colonel, 190, defeated, 195
Wallace, Mr. John, deprived of his indulgence, 431 Walwood of Touch fined, 271

War. See Charles I and II.

Wariston, lord, Sir Archibald Johnston, proclamation against him, 63, declared fugitive, 70, forfeited 99, apprehended and condemned, 148, executed, 149, act against printing his speech, 170

Warriner, Mr. Thomas, 427, 431 Webster, Mr. James, his sufferings, 425 Wedderburn, Mr. Alexander, accepted Leighton's challenge, 279, assisted in drawing up the grievances of the indulgence, 292, imprasoned, 302, his death, 397

Weir, Mr. William, his sufferings, 80 Wolfe, Mr. John, ejected, 143, letters against him, 183, at Pentland, 190, forseited, 229, his preaching in Fise, 320, forced from place to place, 358

ter

Alb, William, executed, 215

Vello, Jobs, of Star, and — of Corn19, forseited, 229

Velwood, Mr. John, turned out, 371 Velwood, Mr. James, his death, 440

West country gentlemen fined, 121, imprisoned, 177, 178, favoured,

Western committee, their commission and proceedings, 268

West-kirk, act of, 38, disturbance there, 174

Whigs, the rise of the name, 221 Whitehall, an accident there, 226 Whitekirk, a field-meeting there, 406 Wigtoun, Anne counters of, fined, 285 Wilkie, Mr. John, collector, 143 Wilkie, Mr. John, minister, 183, Wilkie, Mr. John, of Twinban, 243

Wilkie, James, forfeited, 229 Williamwood, a conventicle there, 407,

200 man h 1

War to Live Line W.

Parisher, legal, the serviced Meledan rivel are to and flating water large dered from your factorial go.

painting Buigts D4 , as 1 Avances Col whilested Planett Mr. Livery art, att.

between whenever about the

to a state of the Willy Str. John School, 1835, Son.

Leight challenge, ere, andled persons transported for it, 409 Wilfon, John, executed, 204 Wifbart, Mr. George, burnt, 3 door brailed work 105

and the begingsb and the Wifbart, Mr. William, imprisoned, 60. teleased, 118

Wodrow, John, executed, 204

Wood, Mr. James, 150, his death and testimony, 160, testimony burnt, Women petition the council, &c.

317, profecuted, 318
Worcester fight, 49
Wright, John, banished, 244 Wylie, Mr. Robert, 404, 405

Wylie, Mr. Thomas, profecuted, 134, his petition, 171, obtained his li-berty, 250, his thoughts on the berty, 250, rules given to the indulged, 347 to delected and YORK, duke of, defeated the Dutch. 175, his marriage, 311, fent abroad, 434 Young, Mr. Robert, before the council, 297 dental William reliabilities evenue ZEALOUS managers more against protestant non-conformists that below the pulliament, papists, 451

att oppoled, 325 w the

A contract of the o session average change i andersborn quality waster all this tellar

ent degratificana

PERSONAL SECTION

Pinciple of Same transported of

Se Markill, Mildel, Acc

the bearing at Edward . was and in the superinted appropriate the state of t

Bondinger of the Miles of the State of the S of earthe preliament, 101, 201 adi os municipareso do franciones so the and desired with some granded to and ages of the court is a 1950. her-Mind endogel, at Chiles I and Inspired a still will a consimulation les burnes, a FIN 1 5. Typ Armidian I all

d, 69,

death burnt,

134, his lin the

outch, fent

gainst that